

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at http://books.google.com/

當譽、聞。哉。得、痛逮楊 刑賞 所旗 所故故知不餘 不死能樂之 色亦 故滅生刑名曹肆生刑所往於 當古非時可身之徒之堂 也是也後身

The Chinese classics

James Legge, Confucius, Mencius, Shih ching, Ming Zuoqiu, Tsa-ch'iu Ming

H-Y LIB (W) PL 2461 .R43 1939

vol. 2

KEEP IN STACKS

HARVARD-YENCHING LIBRARY

HARVARD UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

THE CHINESE CLASSICS

THE WORKS OF MENCIUS

LEGGE

VOL. II.

Hondon

HENRY FROWDE OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS WAREHOUSE AMEN CORNER, E.C.

(Ren Port
MACMILLAM & CO., 66 FIFTH AVENUE

THE

CHINESE CLASSICS

WITH

A TRANSLATION, CRITICAL AND EXEGETICAL NOTES, PROLEGOMENA, AND COPIOUS INDEXES

BY

JAMES LEGGE

PROYPESOR OF CHINESE IF THE UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD PORMERLY OF THE LONDON MISSIONARY SOCIETY

IN SEVEN VOLUMES

SECOND EDITION, REVISED

VOL. II

CONTAINING

THE WORKS OF MENCIUS

Oxford

AT THE CLARENDON PRESS
1895

R N 110/49A

HINES SPANESE LIBRARY OF TARVAR SCHOOL INSTITUTE AT HARVARD UNIVERSITY
JUN 27 1940

爲 逝 志,以 害 不 得 志,以 辭 辭,以 之。是 意 害 不 文 Monoius, V. Pt. I. iv. 2.

中華民國二十八年影印 REPRINTED IN CHINA 1939

ADVERTISEMENT.

THE reader is referred to what is said in the Preface to Volume I as to how the author was led to undertake the translation of the Chinese Classics, and how he was assisted in the preparation and publication of his earlier volumes by the late Hon. Joseph Jardine, Eq., and after his death by his brother, who is now Sir Robert Jardine, Baronet.

When this second volume was ready for the press in 1861, another merchant-prince of China, the late Hon. John Dent, Esq., with a similar generosity, presented a considerable sum to the author, in order that the successive volumes might be sold to missionaries at a much reduced price. And this was done till the amount of his gift was more than exhausted;—to missionaries, without distinction of nationality or creed. The last sale of this kind, it may be stated, was to a missionary in Korea, where at present, we may suppose, all missionary labours are suspended. Of Volume II, as of Volume I, an edition of a thousand copies Both of these volumes being exhausted, it was was printed. necessary to publish new editions of them, which the Delegates of the Clarendon Press undertook to do. The same care has been taken in the printing of this second volume as in that of the former one, and the same alterations adopted in transliterating the pronunciation of Chinese characters.

J. L.

OXFORD, October, 1894.

CONTENTS.

THE PROLEGOMENA.

CHAPTER I.

	OF THE W	ORKH	OF	EBRUI	UB.
II. III.	Their Recognition under the H Châo Ch'l and his Labours upor Other Commentators Integrity; Authorship; and R	n Me	nciu	s .	•	•	•	ooks	•	PAGI 1 4 7 9
	CHA	APT	ER :	11.
	mencius a	MD I	i ait) ISC LPI	es.
II.	Life of Mencius									14 38 76 79
	CHA	PTI	er i	11.
	OF YANG	снû	AND	MO T	ń.
	The Opinions of Yang Chu The Opinions of Mo T1 .		•	•		•	•	•	•	92 100
	CHA	\PT	er i	īV.
	WORKS COMBULTED 1	IN PI	REPAI	RING 1	THE V	OLUMI	2.
	Chinese Works Translations and other Works	•		•	•		•			123 123

THE BODY OF THE VOLUME.

THE WORKS OF MENCIUS.

BOOK											PAG
I.	King Hûi of Liang, Part I				•				•		120
	King Hûi of Liang, Part I	I									150
II.	Kung-sun Ch'au, Part I										180
	Kung-sun Ch'au, Part II										208
III.	Tăng Wăn Kung, Part I					•					234
	Tăng Wăn Kung, Part II	•									261
IV.	Li Lau, Part I					•					288
	Li Lau, Part II										316
V.	Wan Chang, Part I .										342
	Wan Chang, Part II .										869
VI.	Kão Taze, Part I .										394
	Kao Taze, Part II .										422
VII.	Tsin Sin (or Chin Hsin), I								•		448
	Tsin Sin (or Chin Hsin), I				•	•	•	•	•	•	477
		IN	DE	XE	es.
I.	Of Subjects				•				•		503
II.	Of Proper Names				•	•		•	•		510
III.	Of Chinese Characters and	l Ph	rasee	з.	•	•		•	•	•	514

PROLEGOMENA.

CHAPTER L

OF THE WORKS OF MENCIUS.

SECTION I.

THEIR RECOGNITION UNDER THE HAN DYNASTY, AND BEFORE IT.

- 1. In the third of the catalogues of Liû Hsin¹, containing a list of the Works of Scholars² which had been collected up to his time (about A.D. 1), and in the first subdivision, devoted to authors of the classical or orthodox School, we have the entry—'The Works of Mencius, in eleven Books³.' At that date, therefore, Mencius's writings were known and registered as a part of the literature of China.
- 2. A hundred years before Hsin, we have the testimony of the historian Sze-må Ch'ien. In the seventy-fourth Book of his 'Historical Records,' there is a brief memoir of Mencius', where he says that the philosopher, having withdrawn into private life, 'along with the disciples of Wan Chang, prefaced the Shih and the Sha, unfolded the views of Confucius, and made "The Works of Mencius, in seven Books'."'

The discrepancy that appears between these testimonies, in regard to the number of the Books which went by the common name of Mencius, will be considered in the sequel. In the meanwhile it is shown that the writings of Mencius were recognised by scholars a hundred years before the Christian era, which takes us back to little more than a century and a half from the date assigned to his death.

「800 vol.1. prolog. pp. 4, 5. '凿子路. '孟子十一篇. '史記, 七十四,列傳,第十四. '與萬章之徒,序詩書,述仲尼之意,作孟子七篇.

VOL. IL

- 3. Among writers of the Han dynasty earlier than Sze-må Ch'ien, there were Han Ying¹ and Tung Chung-shû², contemporaries, in the reigns of the emperors Wan, Ching, and Wû³ (B.C. 179-87). Portions of their Works remain, and in them are found quotations from Mencius⁴.
- 4. But we find references to Mencius and his Works anterior to the dynasty of Han. In the literary remains of K'ung Fû, to whose concealment of many of the classical Works on the issuing of the edict for their destruction posterity is so much indebted, there are accounts of Mencius, and many details of his history.

Between Mencius and the rise of the Ch'in dynasty flourished the philosopher Hstin Ch'ing, of whose writings enough is still preserved to form a large volume. By many he is regarded as the ablest of all the followers of Confucius. He several times makes mention of Mencius, and one of his most important chapters, 'That Human Nature is Evil, seems to have been written expressly against Mencius's doctrine of its goodness. He quotes his arguments, and endeavours to set them aside.

5. I have used the term recognition in the heading of this section, because the scholars of the Han dynasty do not seem to have had any trouble in forming or settling the text of Mencius such as we have seen they had with the Confucian Analects.

And here a statement made by Châo Ch'i, whose labours upon our philosopher I shall notice in the next section, deserves to be considered. He says:—'When Ch'in sought by its fires to destroy the Classical Books, and put the scholars to death in pits, there was an end of the School of Mencius. His Works, however, were included under the common name of "Philosophical," and so the tablets containing them escaped destruction.' Ma Twan-lin does not hesitate to say that the statement is incorrect¹⁰; and it seems strange that Mencius should have been exempted from the sweep of a measure intended to extinguish the memory of the most ancient and illustrious sovereigns of China and of their principles. But the same thing is affirmed in regard to the writings of at least one other author of antiquity. the philosopher Yü¹; and the frequent quotations of Mencius by Han Ying and Tung Chung-shû, indicating that his Works were a complete collection in their times, give some confirmation to Ch'1's account.

· 韓嬰. '董仲舒. '太宗孝文皇帝;孝景皇帝;世宗孝武皇帝. 'See 四書柘餘說,孟子, art. I, and 焦孝廉孟子正義, notes to Châo Ch'i's preface. 'See vol. i. proleg. p. 36. 'I have not been able to refer to the writings of K'ung Fû themselves, but extracts from them are given in the notes to Chât Hai's preface to Mencius in the 四書程註集證. '荀卿. 荀子,性惡篇. '其書號爲諸子,故篇籍得不泯稅; eee Châo Ch'i's preface to Mencius. "文獻通考, Bk. elxxxiv, upon Mencius.

On the whole, the evidence seems rather to preponderate in its favour. Mencius did not obtain his place as 'a classic' till long after the time of the Ch'in dynasty; and though the infuriate emperor would doubtless have given special orders to destroy his writings, if his attention had been called to them, we can easily conceive their being overlooked, and escaping with a mass of others which were not considered dangerous to the new rule.

6. Another statement of Chao Ch'i shows that the Works of Mencius, once recognised under the Han dynasty, were for a time at least kept with a watchful care. He says that, in the reign of the emperor Hsiao-wan (B.C. 178-155), 'the Lun-ytt, the Hsiao-ching, Mencius, and the R-ya were all put under the care of a Board of "Great Scholars," which was subsequently done away with, only "The Five Ching" being left under such guardianship?.' Chû Hat has observed that the Books of the Han dynasty supply no evidence of such a Board; but its existence may be inferred from a letter of Liù Hsin, complaining of the supineness with which the scholars seconded his quest for the scattered monuments of literature. says:—'Under the emperor Hsiao-wan, the Shu-ching reappeared, and the Shih-ching began to sprout and bud afresh. Throughout the empire, a multitude of books were continually making their appearance, and among them the Records and Sayings of all the Philosophers, which likewise had their place assigned to them in the Courts of Learning, and a Board of Great Scholars appointed to their charges.'

As the Board of Great Scholars in charge of the Five Ching was instituted B.C. 135, we may suppose that the previous arrangement hardly lasted half a century. That it did exist for a time, however,

'進行珪註署子叙云, 進秦暴亂, 書紀略盡, 鬻子不 與養燒;  無孝廉孟子正義, notes on Chho Chi's predace. '孝文皇帝欲廣遊學之路, 論語, 孝經, 孟子, 爾雅, 皆置博士, 後罷傳配博士, 獨立五經而已. '800 the 文獻通考, 8t. elzziv. pp. 9, 10. shows the value set upon the writings of Mencius, and confirms the point which I have sought to set forth in this section;—that there were Works of Mencius current in China before the Han dynasty, and which were eagerly recognised and cherished by the scholars under it, who had it in charge to collect the ancient literary productions of their country.

SECTION II.

CHÂO CH'Î AND HIS LABOURS UPON MENCIUS.

1. It has been shown that the Works of Mencius were sufficiently well known from nearly the beginning of the Han dynasty; but its more distinguished scholars do not seem to have devoted themselves to their study and elucidation. The Classics claimed their first attention. There was much labour to be done in collecting and collating the fragments of them, and to unfold their meaning was the chief duty of every one who thought himself equal to the task. Mencius was but one of the literati, a scholar like themselves. He could wait. We must come down to the second century of the Christian era to find the first commentary on his writings.

In the prolegomena to the Confucian Analects, Section i. 7, I have spoken of Chang Hsuan or Chang K'ang-ch'ang, who died at the age of seventy-four, some time between A.D. 190-220, after having commented on every ancient classical book. It is said by some 1 that he embraced the Works of Mencius in his labours. If he did so, which to me is very doubtful, the result has not come down to posterity. To give to our philosopher such a treatment as he deserved, and compose a commentary that should descend to the latest posterity, was the work of Chao Ch'i, of whom we have a memoir in the fifty-fourth chapter of the Biographies in the Books of the second Han dynasty.

2. Ch'i was born A.D. 108. His father was a censor about the

1 In the 'Books of the Sti dynasty' (A.D. 589-617), Bk. xxxix, 經濟元, 三, we find that there were then in the national Repositories three Works on Mencius,—Châo Chî's, one by Châng Hstian, and one by Lit Hat (劉熙), also a scholar of Han, but probably not earlier than Châo Chî'. The same Works were existing under the Tang dynasty (618-907);—see the 'Books of Tang,' Bk. xlix, 妻文元, 三. By the rise of the Sung dynasty (A.D. 975 or 960), however, the two last were both lost. The entries in the Records of Sti and Tang would seem to prove that Châng Hstian had written on Mancius, but in the sketches of his life which I have consulted,—and that in the 'Books of the After Han dynasty,' 万 传第二十五, must be the basis of all the rest,—there is no mention made of his having done so.

court of the emperor Hsiao-an¹, and gave him the name of Chia, which he afterwards changed into Ch'1 for the purpose of concealment, changing also his original designation of Tai-ch'ing into Pinch'ing³. It was his boast that he could trace his descent from the ancient sovereign Chwan-hsii³, B.C. 2510.

In his youth Ch't was distinguished for his intelligence and diligent study of the Classics. He married a niece of the celebrated scholar and statesman Ma Yung 4, but bore himself proudly towards him and her other relatives. A stern independence and hatred of the sycophancy of the times were from the first characteristic of him, and proved the source of many troubles.

When he was over thirty, Ch't was attacked with some severe and lingering illness, in consequence of which he lay upon his bed for seven years. At one time, thinking he was near his end, he addressed a nephew who was with him in the following terms:—
'Born a man into the world, in retirement I have not displayed the principles exemplified on Mount Cht's, nor in office achieved the merit of I and Lü'. Heaven has not granted me such distinction. What more shall I say? Set up a round stone before my grave, and engrave on it the inscription,—"Here lies a recluse of Han, by surname Châo and by name Chiâ. He had the will, but not the opportunity. Such was his fate. Alas!"'

Contrary to expectation, Ch'i recovered, and in A.D. 154 we find him again engaged in public life, but in four years he is flying into obscurity under a feigned name, to escape the resentment of Tang Hang, one of the principal ministers, and his partisans. He saved his life, but his family and relatives fell victims to the vengeance of his enemies, and for some time he wandered about the country of the Chiang and Hwai, or among the mountains and by the sea-coast on the north of the present Shan-tung. One day as he was selling cakes in a market-place, his noble presence attracted the attention of Sun Ch'ung, a young gentleman of An-ch'it, who was passing by in a carriage, and to him on being questioned he made known his

* 考安皇帝. * 趙塽,字那鄉,初名嘉,字臺鄉,後選 難,故自改名字. * 顓頊. * 馬融. * 箕山之操. It was to Mount Oht that 巢炎 and 許由, two ancient worthies, are said to have withdrawn, when Yao wished to promote them to honour. * These are the well-known I Yin (伊尹) and Tai-kung Wang (太公堂). * 唐衡. *安邱,孫崇. The name An-ch'id still remains in the district so called of the department of Ch'ing-châu (青州). history. This proved a fortunate rencontre for him. Sun Ch'ung took him home, and kept him for several years concealed somewhere 'in the centre of a double wall'.' And now it was that he-solaced his hard lot with literary studies. He wooed the muse in twenty-three poetical compositions, which he called 'Songs of Adversity', and achieved his commentary on Mencius

On the fall of the Tang faction, when a political amnesty was proclaimed, Ch'i emerged from his friendly confinement, but only to fall a victim again to the intrigues of the time. The first year of the emperor Ling, A.D. 168, was the commencement of an imprisonment which lasted more than ten years; but nothing could crush his elasticity, or daunt his perseverance. In 185, when he had nearly reached fourscore, he was active as ever in the field of political strife, and wrought loyally to sustain the fortunes of the falling dynasty. He died at last in A.D. 201, when he was over ninety, in Ching-châu, whither he had gone on a mission in behalf of his imperial master. Before his death he had a tomb prepared for himself, which was long shown, or pretended to be shown, in what is now the district city of Chiang-ling in the department of Ching-châu in Hû-pei³.

3. From the above account of Chao Ch'i, it will be seen that his commentary on Mencius was prepared under great disadvantages. That he, a fugitive and in such close hiding, should have been able to produce a work such as it is, shows the extent of his reading and acquirements in early days. I have said so much about him, because his name should be added to the long roll of illustrious men who have found comfort in sore adversity from the pursuits of literature and philosophy. As to his mode of dealing with his subject, it will be sufficient to give his own account:—

'I wished to set my mind on some literary work, by which I might be assisted to the government of my thoughts, and forget the approach of old age. But the six classics had all been explained and carefully elucidated by previous scholars. Of all the orthodox school there was only Mencius, wide and deep, minute and exquisite, yet obscure at times and hard to see through, who seemed to me to deserve to be properly ordered and digested. Upon this I brought forth whatever I had learned, collected testimonies from the Classics and other books, and divided my author into chapters and sentences. My annotations are given along with the original text, and of every chapter I have separately indicated the scope. The Books I have divided into two Parts, the first and second, making in all fourteen sections.

'On the whole, with regard to my labour, I do not venture to think that it speaks the man of mark, but as a gift to the learner, it may dispel some doubts and resolve perplexities. It is not for me, however, to pronounce on its excellencies or defects. Let men of discernment who come after me observe its errors and omissions and correct them;—that will be a good service.'

SECTION III.

OTHER COMMENTATORS.

- 1. All the commentaries on Mencius made prior to the Sung dynasty (A. D. 9602) having perished, excepting that of Chao Ch't, I will not therefore make an attempt to enumerate them particularly. Only three names deserve to be mentioned, as frequent reference is made to them in Critical Introductions to our philosopher. They were all of the Tang dynasty, extending, if we embrace in it what is called 'The After T'ang,' from A.D. 618 to 936. The first is that of Lû Shan-ching, who declined to adopt Châo Ch'i's division of the whole into fourteen sections or parts, and many of whose interpretations, differing from those of the older authority, have been received into the now standard commentary of Chû Hat. The other two names are those of Chang Yi' and Ting Kung-chû', whose principal object was to determine the sounds and tones of characters about which there could be dispute. All that we know of their views is from the works of Sun Shih and Chû Hst, who have many references to them in their notes.
- 2. During the Sung dynasty, the commentators on Mencius were a multitude, but it is only necessary that I speak of two.

The most distinguished scholar of the early reigns was Sun Shih, who is now generally alluded to by his posthumous or honorary epithet of 'The Illustrious Duke'.' We find him high in favour and reputation in the time of T'ai-tsung (976-998), Chan-tsung (998-1022), and Zan-tsung (1023-1063)1. By imperial command, in association with several other officers, he prepared a work in two Parts. under the title of 'The Sounds and Meaning of Mencius.' and presented it to the courts. Occasion was taken from this for a strange imposture. In the edition of 'The Thirteen Ching.' Mencius always appears with 'The Commentary of Chao Ch'i' and 'The Correct Meaning of Shun Shih 2. Under the Sung dynasty, what were called 'correct meanings' were made for most of the Classics. They are commentaries and annotations on the principal commentator who is considered as the expounder of the Classic, the author not hesitating, however, to indicate any peculiar views of his own. The genuineness of Shih's 'Correct Meaning of Mencius' is questioned by few, but there seems to be no doubt of its being really a forgery. at the same time that it contains the substance of the true work of 'The Illustrious Duke,' so far as that embraced the meaning of Mencius and of Chao Ch't. The account of it given in the preface to 'An Examination of the Text in the Commentary and Annotations on Mencius,' by Yttan Yttan of the present dynasty, is-'Sun Shih himself made no "Correct Meaning;" but some one-I know not who—supposing that his Work was really of that character, and that there were many things in the commentary which were not explained, and passages also of an unsatisfactory nature, he transcribed the whole of Shih's Work on "The Sounds and Meaning," and having interpolated some words of his own, published it under the title of "The Annotations of Sun Shih." He was the same person who is styled by Chû Hsî "a scholar of Shâo-wû 4."'

1 See the 孟子题群。 2 Some date the commencement of the Sung dynasty in 42.960. 2 注音程. 1 误合. 1 子公若. 1 孫爽. 1 宣公.

In the twelfth century Chû Hsî appeared upon the stage, and entered into the labours of all his predecessors. He published one Work separately upon Mencius, and two upon Mencius and the Confucian Analects. The second of these, 'Collected Comments on the Analects and Mencius,' is now the standard authority on the subject, and has been the test of orthodoxy and scholarship in the literary examinations since A.D. 1315.

'太宗, 真宗, 仁宗. '孟子音義, 二卷.—In or about the year roos, a book was found, at one of the palace gates, with the title of 'The Book of Heaven' (天書). The emperor at first was inclined to go in state and accept it, but he thought of consulting Shih. Shih replied according to a sentiment of Mencius (V. Pt. I. v. 3) that 'Heaven does not speak,' and asked how then there could be any Book of Heaven. Was this Book of Heaven, thus rejected on Shih's counsel, a copy of our Sacred Scriptures, which some Nestorian Christian was endeavouring in the manner indicated to bring before the court of China! '漢趙氏註,宋孫夷克. '阮云孟子註菜技勘配序. '孟子指要. '論孟集義; 論孟集註.

3. Under the present dynasty two important contributions have been made to the study of Mencius. They are both published in the 'Explanations of the Classics under the Imperial Dynasty of Ching'.' The former, bearing the title of 'An Examination of the Text in the Commentary and Annotations of Mencius,' forms the sections from 1039 to 1054. It is by Yuan Yuan, the Governor-General under whose auspices that compilation was published. Its simple aim is to establish the true reading by a collation of the oldest and best manuscripts and editions, and of the remains of a series of stone tablets containing the text of Mencius, which were prepared in the reign of Kao-tsung (A.D. 1128-1162), and are now existing in the Examination Hall of Hang-chau. The second Work, which is still more important, is embraced in the sections 1117-1146. Its title is-- The Correct Meaning of Mencius, by Chiao Hstin, a Chti-zan of Chiang-ta?' It is intended to be such a Work as Sun Shih would-have produced, had he really made what has been so long current in the world under his name. I must regret that I was not earlier acquainted with it.

SECTION IV.

INTEGRITY; AUTHORSHIP; AND RECEPTION AMONG THE CLASSICAL BOOKS.

- I. We have seen how the Works of Mencius were catalogued by Liû Hsin as being in 'eleven Books,' while a century earlier Sze-mâ Ch'ien referred to them as consisting only of 'seven.' The question has very much vexed Chinese scholars whether there ever really were four additional Books of Mencius which have been lost.
- 2. Chao Ch'i says in his preface:—'There likewise are four additional Books, entitled "A Discussion of the Goodness of Man's Nature," "An Explanation of Terms," "The Classic of Filial Piety," and "The Practice of Government." But neither breadth nor depth marks their composition. It is not like that of the seven acknowledged Books. It may be judged they are not really the production of Mencius, but have been palmed upon the world by some subsequent imitator of him." As the four Books in question are lost, and only a very few quotations from Mencius, that are not found in his Works which we have, can be fished up from ancient authors, our best plan is to acquiesce in the conclusion of Châo Ch'î. The specification of 'Seven Books' by Sze-mâ Ch'ien is an important corroboration of it. In the two centuries preceding our era, we may conceive that the four Books whose titles are given by him were made and published under the name of Mencius, and Hsin would only do his duty in including them in his catalogue, unless their falsehood was generally acknowledged. Ch'î devoting himself to the study of our author, and satisfied from internal evidence that they were not his, only did his duty in rejecting them. There is no evidence that his decision was called in question by any scholar of the Han or the dynasties immediately following, when we may suppose that the Books were still in existence.
- ' 800 vol. 1 prolog p. 133. '孟子正義, 江都焦孝廉循著. '又有外書四篇,性書辮,交說,孝經,爲政,其交不能

The author of 'Supplemental Observations on the Four Books',' says upon this subject :-- "It would be better to be without books than to give entire credit to them 2;"—this is the rule for reading ancient books laid down by Mencius himself, and the rule for us after-men in reading about what purport to be lost books of his seven Books which we have "comprehend the doctrine of heaven and earth, examine and set forth ten thousand topics, discuss the subjects of benevolence and righteousness, reason and virtue, the nature of man and the decrees of Heaven, misery and happiness ." Brilliantly are these things treated of, in a way far beyond what any disciple of Kung-sun Ch'au or Wan Chang could have attained to. What is the use of disputing about other matters? Ho Sheh has his "Expurgated Mencius4," but Mencius cannot be expurgated. Lin Chin-sze has his "Continuation of Mencius," but Mencius needs no continuation. I venture to say-" Besides the Seven Books there were no other Works of Mencius."

3. I have said, in the note at the end of this volume, that Chao Ch'i gives the total of the characters in Mencius as 34,685, while they are now found actually to amount to 35,226. This difference has been ingeniously accounted for by supposing that the continually recurring 宏深,不與內篇相包,包非孟子本真,後世依故而託也. 1 See vol. i. prolog. p. zgz. 1 Mencius, VIL Pt. II. iii. 1 This is the language of Châo Ch'i. 1 Ma Twan-lin mentions two authors who had taken in hand to expurgate Mencius, but neither of them is called 何涉. He mentions Lin Chin-sze, calling him Lin Shān-sze (林俊思), and his Work.

- 'Mencius' and 'Mencius said' were not in his copies. There would be no use for them on his view that the whole was composed by Mencius himself. If they were added subsequently, they would about make up the actual excess of the number of characters above his computation. The point is not one of importance, and I have touched on it simply because it leads us to the question of the authorship of the Works.
- 4. On this point Sze-mâ Ch'ien and Châo Ch'i are agreed. They say that Mencius composed the seven Books himself, and yet that he did so along with certain of his disciples. The words of the latter are:—'He withdrew from public life, collected and digested the conversations which he had had with his distinguished disciples, Kung-sun Ch'âu, Wan Chang, and others, on the difficulties and doubts which they had expressed, and also compiled himself his deliverances as ex cathedrá;—and so published the seven Books of his writings.'

This view of the authorship seems to have been first called in question by Han Yu¹, commonly referred to as 'Han, the duke of Literature²,' a famous scholar in the eighth and ninth centuries, under the Tang dynasty, who expressed himself in the following terms:— 'The Books of Mencius were not published by himself. After his death, his disciples, Wan Chang and Kung-sun Ch'au, in communication with each other, recorded the words of Mencius².'

- 5. If we wish to adjudicate in the matter, we find that we have a difficult task in hand. One thing is plain—the book is not the work of many hands like the Confucian Analects. 'If we look at the style of the composition,' says Chû Hat, 'it is as if the whole were melted together, and not composed by joining piece to piece '.' This language is too strong, but there is a degree of truth and force in it. No principle of chronology guided the arrangement of the different parts, and a foreigner may be pardoned if now and then the 'pearls' seem to him 'at random strung;' yet the collection is characterised by a uniformity of style, and an endeavour in the separate Books to preserve a unity of matter. This consideration, however, is not
- ·韓愈,字退之. '韓交公. '孟軻之書,非軻自著, 軻既沒,其徒萬章公孫丑,相與認軻所言爲耳; see note by Chat Hat in his predatory notice to Mensius. '觀其攀勢,如錦鑄而成, 非綴緝所就者; quoted in 四番柘餘說,孟子, art. I enough to decide the question. Such as the work is, we can conceive it proceeding either from Mencius himself, or from the labours of a few of his disciples engaged on it in concert.

The author of the 'Topography of the Four Books 1' has this argument to show that the Works of Mencius are by Mencius himself:—'The Confucian Analects,' he says, 'were made by the disciples, and therefore they record minutely the appearance and manners of the sage. But the seven Books were made by Mencius himself, and therefore we have nothing in them excepting the words and public movements of the philosopher².' This peculiarity is certainly consonant with the hypothesis of Mencius's own authorship, and so far may dispose us to adopt it.

On the other hand, as the princes of Mencius's time to whom any reference is made are always mentioned by the honorary epithets conferred on them after their death, it is argued that those at least must have been introduced by his disciples. There are many passages, again, which savour more of a disciple or other narrator than of the philosopher himself. There is, for instance, the commencing sentences of Book III. Pt. I:—'When the duke Wan of T'ang was crown-prince, having to go to Ch't, he went by way of Sung, and visited Mencius (lit. the philosopher Mang). Mencius discoursed to him how the nature of man is good, and when speaking, always made laudatory reference to Yao and Shun. When the crown-prince was returning from Ch't, he again visited Mencius. Mencius said to him "Prince, do you doubt my words? The path is one, and only one."

- 6. Perhaps the truth after all is as the thing is stated by Sze-ma Ch'ien,—that Mencius, along with some of his disciples, compiled and composed the Work. It would be in their hands and under their guardianship after his death, and they may have made some slight alterations, to prepare it, as we should say, for the press. Yet allowing this, there is nothing to prevent us from accepting the sayings and doings as those of Mencius, guaranteed by himself.
- 7. It now only remains here that I refer to the reception of Mencius's Works among the Classics. We have seen how they were not admitted by Liû Hsin into his catalogue of classical works. Mencius was then only one of the many scholars or philosophers of the orthodox school. The same classification obtains in the Books of the Sûi and Tang dynasties; and in fact it was only under the dynasty of Sung that the Works of Mencius and the Confucian Analects were authoritatively ranked together. The first explicitly to proclaim this honour as due to our philosopher was Ch'an Chih-chai¹, whose words are-'Since the time when Han, the duke of Literature, delivered his eulogium, "Confucius handed the scheme of doctrine to Mencius, on whose death the line of transmission was interrupted 3," the scholars of the empire have all associated Confucius and Mencius together. The Books of Mencius are certainly superior to those of Hstin and Yang, and others who have followed them. Their productions are not to be spoken of in the same day with his.' Chû Hat adopted the same estimate of Mencius, and by his 'Collected Comments' on him and the Analects bound the two sages together in a union which the government of China, in the several dynasties which have succeeded, has with one temporary exception approved and confirmed.
- ¹ See vol. i. proleg. p. ISI. ¹論語成于門人之手,故配聖人容貌甚恐,七篇成于已手,故但記言語或出處; eee 皇清經解, Seet. xxiv, at the end.

1 In the name and the account I take from the 'Supplemental Observations on the Four Books,' art. I, on Mencius. if, I apprehend, is a misprint for II, the individual referred to being probably in II, a great scholar and officer of the twelfth century, known also by the designations of II and II and II are a This eulogy of Han Yū is to be found subjoined to the brief introduction in the common editions of Mencius. The whole of the passage there quoted is :—'Yāo handed the scheme of doctrine down to Shun; Shun handed it to Yū; Yū to Tang; Tang to Wān, Wū, and the duke of Chāu; Wān, Wū, and the duke of Chāu to Confucius; and Confucius to Mencius, on whose death there was no further transmission of it. In Hsūn and Yang there are anatches of it, but without a nice discrimination; they talk about it, but without a definite particularity.'

CHAPTER II.

MENCIUS AND HIS DISCIPLES.

SECTION I.

LIFE OF MENCIUS.

1. The materials for a Memoir of Mencius are very scanty. The birth and principal incidents of Confucius's life are duly chronicled in the various annotated editions of the Ch'un Ch'iû, and in Sze-mâ Ch'ien. It is not so in the case of Mencius. Ch'ien's account of him is contained in half a dozen columns which are without a single date. That in the 'Cyclopædia of Surnames' only covers half a page. Châo Ch'i is more particular in regard to the early years of his subject, but he is equally indefinite. Our chief informants are K'ung Fû, and Liû Hsiang in his 'Record of Noteworthy Women',' but what we find in them has more the character of legend than history.

It is not till we come to the pages of Mencius himself that we are treading on any certain ground. They give the principal incidents of his public life, extending over about twenty-four years. We learn from them that in the course of that time he was in such and such places, and gave expression to such and such opinions; but where he went first and where he went last, it is next to impossible to determine. I have carefully examined three attempts, made by competent scholars of the present dynasty, to construct a Harmony that shall reconcile the statements of the 'Seven Boeks' with the current chronologies of the time, and do not see my way to adopt entirely the conclusions of any one of them'. The value of the Books lies in the record

i 面 页文体. The three attempts are—one by the author of 'Supplemental Observations on the Four Books,' an outline of which is given in his Motes on Mencius, art. III; one by the author of the 'Topography of the Four Books,' and forming the twenty-fourth section of the 'Explanations of the Classics under the Ch'ing Dynasty;' and one prefixed to the Works of Mencius, in 'The Four Books, with the Belish of the Radical Meaning' (vol. i. proleg. p. 130). These three critics display much ingenuity and research, but their conclusions are conflicting.—I may be pardoned in saying that their learned labours have affected me just as those of the Harmonisers of the Gospel Narratives used to do in former years,—bewildering more than edifying. Most cordially do I agree with Dean Alford (New Testament, vol. i. proleg. I. vii. 5):—'If the Evangelists have delivered to us truly and faithfully the Apostelle Narratives, and if the Apostles spoke as the Holy Spirit enabled them, and brought events and sayings to their recollection, then we may be sure that if we know the real process of the transmisses.

which they furnish of Mencius's sentiments, and the lessons which these supply for the regulation of individual conduct and national policy. It is of little importance that we should be able to lay them down in the strict order of time.

With Mencius's withdrawal from public life, all traces of him disappear. All that is said of him is that he spent his later years along with his disciples in the preparation and publication of his Works.

From this paragraph it will be seen that there is not much to be said in this section. I shall relate, first, what is reported of the early years and training of our philosopher, and then look at him as he comes before us in his own pages, in the full maturity of his character and powers.

2. Mencius is the latinized form of Mang-taze¹, 'The philosopher Mang.' His surname thus connects him with the Mang or Mang-sun

His surname; birth-place; parents; the year of his birth, s.c. family, one of the three great Houses of Lû, whose usurpations were such an offence to Confucius in his time. Their power was broken in the reign of duke Åi (B.C. 494-468), and they thenceforth dwindle into comparative insignificance. Some branches remained in obscurity in Lû, and others went forth to the neighbouring States.

The branch from which Mencius sprang found a home in the small adjacent principality of Tsau², which in former times had been known by the name of Chû². It was afterwards absorbed by Lû, and its name is said to be still retained in one of the districts of the department of Yen-chau in Shan-tung⁴. There I visited his temple in 1873, saw his image, and drank of a spring which supplied a well of bright, clear water close by. Confucius was a native of a district of Lû having the same name, which many contend was also the birth-place of Mencius, making him a native of Lû and not of the State of Tsau. To my mind the evidence is decidedly against such a view⁵.

themselves, that knowledge would enable us to give an account of the diversities of narration and arrangement which the Geopole now present to us. But without such knowledge, all attempts to accomplish this analysis in minute detail must be merely conjustered, and must tend to weaken the Evangelic testimony rather than to strengthen it.'

重子. "關(written also 郷) 园. "邾. '山東,兗州府, 郷縣. '固若據 and 曹之升 stoutly maintain the different sides of this question, the latter giving five arguments to show that the Trau of Mencius was the Trau of I.a. As Mencius went from Ch'i on the death of his mother to bury her in La (Bk. II. Pt. II. vii), this appears to prove that he was a native of that State. But the conclusion is not Mencius's name was K'o¹. His designation does not appear in his Works, nor is any given to him by Sze-mâ Ch'ien or Châo Ch't. The latter says that he did not know how he had been styled; but the legends tell that he was called Tsze-chü², and Tsze-yü³. The same authorities—if we can call them such—say that his father's name was Chî⁴, and that he was styled Kung-1⁵. They say also that his mother's maiden surname was Chang⁶. Nothing is related of the former but that he died when his son was quite young, but the latter must have a paragraph to herself. 'The mother of Mencius' is famous in China, and held up to the present time as a model of what a mother should be.

The year of Mencius's birth was probably the fourth of the sovereign Lieh, B.C. 372. He lived to the age of 84, dying in the year B.C. 289, the 26th of the sovereign Nane, with whom terminated the long sovereignty of the Chau dynasty. The first twenty-three years of his life thus synchronized with the last twenty-three of Plato's. Aristotle, Zeno, Epicurus, Demosthenes, and other great men of the West, were also his contemporaries. When we place Mencius among them, he can look them in the face. He does not need to hide a diminished head.

3. It was his misfortune, according to Châo Ch'i, 'to lose his father at an early period'; but in his youthful years he enjoyed the necessary. Lû had been for several generations the State of his family, and on that account he might wish to inter his parent there, according to the custom of the Châu dynasty (see the Li Chi, Bk. II. Sect. I. i. 27). The way in which Tsâu always appears as the residence of Mencius, when he is what we should say 'at home,' appears to me decisive of the question, though neither of the disputants presses it into his service. Compare Bk. III. Pt. I. ii; Bk. VI. Pt. II. i and v. The point is really of no importance, for the States of Tsâu and Lû adjoined. 'The rattle of the watchman in the one was heard in the other.'

Mencius's lessons of his kind mother, who thrice changed her residence on his account.'

1 啊. "子車 and 子居, the one character taking the place of the other from the similarity of the sound. "子典. '微. '公宜. I find 宜 sometimes instead of 宜. '仉氏.'烈王,四年,已酉. '赧王二十六年,壬申.—The 'Genealogical Register of the Mäng Family' says that Mencius was born in the year 已酉, the 37th of the sovereign Ting (定), on the and day of the 4th month, and died in the year 壬申, the soth of the sovereign Nan, on the 15th day of the 1st month. (See 四書名餘說,孟子, art. III.) The last of these dates is to be embraced on many grounds, but the first is evidently a mistake. Ting only reigned 28 years, and there is no 已酉 year among them. Reckoning back 84 years from the soth of Nan; we come to a 已酉 year, the 4th of Lideh, which is now generally sequicesed in as the year of Mencius's birth. 'Ch's words are—凤喪其父. The legend-writers are more

At first they lived near a cemetery, and Mencius amused himself with acting the various scenes which he witnessed at the tombs. 'This,' said the lady, 'is no place for my son;'—and she removed to a house in the market-place. But the change was no improvement. The boy took to playing the part of a salesman, vaunting his wares, and chaffering with customers. His mother sought a new house, and found one at last close by a public school. There her child's attention was taken with the various exercises of politeness which the scholars were taught, and he endeavoured to imitate them. The mother was satisfied. 'This,' she said, 'is the proper place for my son.'

Han Ying relates another story of this period. Near their house was a pig-butcher's. One day Mencius asked his mother what they were killing the pigs for, and was told that it was to feed him. Her conscience immediately reproved her for the answer. She said to herself, 'While I was carrying this boy in my womb, I would not sit down if the mat was not placed square, and I ate no meat which was not cut properly;—so I taught him when he was yet unborn. And now when his intelligence is opening, I am deceiving him;—this is to teach him untruthfulness!' With this she went and bought a piece of pork in order to make good her words.

As Mencius grew up, he was sent to school. When he returned home one day, his mother looked up from the web which she was weaving, and asked him how far he had got on. He answered her with an air of indifference that he was doing well enough, on which she took a knife and cut through the thread of her shuttle. The idler was alarmed, and asked what she meant, when she gave him a long lecture, showing that she had done what he was doing,—that her cutting through her thread was like his neglecting his learning. The admonition, it is said, had its proper effect; the lecture did not need to be repeated.

There are two other narratives in which Chang-shih figures, and though they belong to a later part of Mencius's life, it may be as well to embrace them in the present paragraph.

His wife was squatting down one day in her own room, when precise, and say that Mencius was only three years old when his father died. This statement, and ChT's as well, are difficult to reconcile with what we read in Bk. I. Pt. II. xvi, about the style in which Mencius buried his parents. If we accept the legend, we are reduced there to great straits.

1 See Chu Hat's 小學內篇, 立教, 第一, which begins with the educational duties of the mother, while the child is yet unborn.

VOL. II.

Mencius went in. He was so much offended at finding her in that position, that he told his mother, and expressed his intention to put her away, because of 'her want of propriety.' 'It is you who have no propriety,' said his mother, 'and not your wife. Do not "The Rules of Propriety" say, "When you are about to ascend a hall, raise your voice; when you enter a door, keep your eyes low?" The reason of the rules is that people may not be taken unprepared; but you entered the door of your private apartment without raising your voice, and so caused your wife to be caught squatting on the ground The impropriety is with you and not with her.' On this Mencius fell to reproving himself, and did not dare to put away his wife.

One day, when he was living with his mother in Ch'1, she was struck with the sorrowfulness of his aspect as he stood leaning against a pillar, and asked him the cause of it. He replied, 'I have heard that the superior man occupies the place for which he is adapted, accepting no reward to which he does not feel entitled, and not covetous of honour and emolument. Now my doctrines are not practised in Ch'1:—I wish to leave it, but I think of your old age, and am anxious.' His mother said, 'It does not belong to a woman to determine anything of herself, but she is subject to the rule of the three obediences. When young, she has to obey her parents; when married, she has to obey her husband; when a widow, she has to obey her son. You are a man in your full maturity, and I am old. Do you act as your conviction of righteousness tells you you ought to do, and I will act according to the rule which belongs to me. Why should you be anxious about me?'

Such are the accounts which I have found of the mother of Mencius. Possibly some of them are inventions, but they are devoutly believed by the people of China;—and it must be to their profit. We may well believe that she was a woman of very superior character, and that her son's subsequent distinction was in a great degree owing to her influence and training.

4. From parents we advance to be under tutors and governors. The moulding hand that has wrought upon us in the pliant years of youth always leaves ineffaceable traces upon the character. Can anything be ascertained of the instructor or instructors of Mencius? The reply to this inquiry must be substantially in the negative, though many have affirmed that he sat as a pupil at the feet of Taze-aze, the grandson of Confucius. We are told this by Chao Ch'1, whose words are :- 'As he grew up, he studied under Tsse-sze, acquired all the knowledge taught by "The Learned," and became thoroughly acquainted with "The Five Ching," being more especially distinguished for his mastery of the Shih and the Shil.' A reference to dates, however, shows that this must be incorrect. From the death of Confucius to the birth of Mencius there were 108 years, and supposing—what is by no means probable—that Taze-sze was born in the year his father died, he must have been 112 years old when Mencius was born. The supposition of their having stood to each other in the relation of master and scholar is inconsistent, moreover, with the style in which Mencius refers to Tsze-sze. He mentions him six or seven times, showing an intimate acquaintance with his history, but never once in a manner which indicates that he had personal intercourse with him *.

1 All these stories are given in the notes to the preface to Mencius in the 四書紅註集證.

See-ma Ch'ien's account is that 'Mencius studied under the disciples of Tsse-sze'.' This may have been the case. There is nothing on the score of time to make it impossible, or even improbable; but this is all that can be said about it. No famous names out of the school of Tsse-sze have been transmitted to posterity, and Mencius nowhere speaks as if he felt under special obligation to any instructor.

One short sentence contains all that he has said bearing on the point before us:—'Although I could not be a disciple of Confucius myself, I have endeavoured to cultivate my character and knowledge by means of others who were'.' The chapter to which this belongs is rather enigmatical. The other member of it says:—'The influence of a sovereign sage terminates with the fifth generation. The influence of an unsceptred sage does the same.' By 'an unsceptred sage' Mencius is understood to mean Confucius; and by extending his influence all over five generations, he shows how it was possible for him to place himself under it by means of others who had been in direct communication with the Master.

We must leave the subject of Mencius's early instructors in the obscurity which rests upon it. The first forty years of his life are · 長師孔子之孫子思,治儒術之道,通五程,尤長於 詩書. · See the Index of Proper Names. · 受業子思之門人. · See Book IV. Pt. II. xxii. little more than a blank to us. Many of them, we may be sure, were spent in diligent study. He made himself familiar during them with all the literature of his country. Its classics, its histories, its great men, had received his careful attention. Confucius especially became to him the chief of mortal men, the object of his untiring admiration; and in his principles and doctrines he recognised the truth for want of an appreciation of which the bonds of society all round him were being relaxed, and the kingdom hastening to a general anarchy.

How he supported himself in Tsau, we cannot tell. Perhaps he was possessed of some patrimony; but when he first comes forth from his native State, we find him accompanied by his most eminent disciples. He probably imitated Confucius by assuming the office of a teacher,—not that of a schoolmaster in our acceptation of the word, but that of a professor of morals and learning, encouraging the resort of inquiring minds, in order to resolve their doubts and inform them on the true principles of virtue and society. These disciples would minister to his wants, though we may presume that he sternly maintained his dignity among them, as he afterwards did towards the princes of the time, when he appeared among them as a lecturer in another sense of the term. Two instances of this are recorded, though we cannot be sure that they belonged to the earlier period of his life.

'When Kang of Tang made his appearance in your school, said the disciple Kung-tû, 'it seemed proper that a polite consideration should be paid to him, and yet you did not answer him;—why was that?' Mencius replied, 'I do not answer him who questions me presuming on his ability, nor him who presumes on his talents, nor him who presumes on his age, nor him who presumes on services performed to me, nor him who presumes on old acquaintance. Two of those things were chargeable on Kang of Tang¹.'

The other instance is that of Chiao of Ts'ao, who said to Mencius, 'I shall be having an interview with the prince of Tsau, and can ask him to let me have a house to lodge in. I wish to remain here, and receive instruction at your gate.' 'The way of truth,' replied the philosopher, 'is like a great road. It is not difficult to know it. The evil is only that men will not seek it. Do you go home and search for it, and you will have abundance of teachers.' This was firmly said, yet not unkindly. It agrees with his observation:— 'There are many arts in teaching. I refuse, as inconsistent with my character, to teach a man, but I am only thereby still teaching him².'

1 See Bk. VII. Pt. I. xliii.

5. The state of China had waxed worse and worse during the interval that elapsed between Confucius and Mencius. The elements State of China of disorganization which were rife in the times of in Mencius's time. the earlier sage had gone on to produce their natural results. One feeble sovereign had followed another on the throne, and the dynasty of Châu was ready to vanish away. Men were persuaded of its approaching extinction. The feeling of loyalty to it was no longer a cherished sentiment; and the anxiety and expectation was about what new rule would take its place.

Many of the smaller fiefs or principalities had been reduced to a helpless dependence on, or been absorbed by, the larger ones. Of Lû, Chăng, Wei, Wû, Chăn, and Sung², conspicuous in the Analects, we read but little in Mencius. Tsin⁴ had been dismembered, and its fragments formed the nuclei of three new and vigorous kingdoms,—Wei, Châo, and Han⁵. Ch'i still maintained its ground, but was barely able to make head against the State of Ch'in⁶ in the West, and Ch'û in the South⁷. The struggle for supremacy was between these two; the former, as it was ultimately successful, being the more ambitious and incessant in its aggressions on its neighbours.

The princes were thus at constant warfare with one another. Now two or more would form a league to resist the encroaching Ch'in, and hardly would that object be accomplished before they were at war among themselves. Ambitious statesmen were continually inflaming their quarrels. The recluses of Confucius's days, who withdrew in disgust from the world and its turmoil, had given place to a class of men who came forth from their retirements provided with arts of war or schemes of policy which they recommended to the contending chiefs. They made no scruple of changing their allegiance, as they were moved by whim or interest. Kung-sun Yen and Chang I may be mentioned as specimens of those characters. 'Are they not really great men?' it was once asked of Mencius.

· BL. VI. Pt. II. ii. 6. · 'Bk. VI. Pt. II. xvi. · '魯, 鄭, 衞, 吳, 陳, 宋. ' 晉. · '魏, 趙, 韓. · '秦. · '楚. 'Let them once be angry, and all the princes are afraid. Let them live quietly, and the flames of trouble are extinguished throughout the kingdom¹.'

It is not wonderful that in such times the minds of men should have doubted of the soundness of the ancient principles of the acknowledged sages of the nation. Doctrines, strange and portentous in the view of Mencius, were openly professed. The authority of Confucius was disowned. The foundations of government were overthrown; the foundations of truth were assailed. Two or three paragraphs from our philosopher will verify and illustrate this representation of the character of his times:—

'A host marches in attendance on the ruler, and stores of provisions are consumed. The hungry are deprived of their food, and there is no rest for those who are called to toil. Maledictions are uttered by one to another with eyes askance, and the people proceed to the commission of wickedness. Thus the royal ordinances are violated, and the people are oppressed, and the supplies of food and drink flow away like water. The rulers yield themselves to the bad current, or they urge their evil way against a good one; they are wild; they are utterly lost'.'

'The five chiefs of the princes were sinners against the three kings. The princes of the present day are sinners against the five chiefs. The great officers of the present day are sinners against the princes. . . . The crime of him who connives at and aids the wickedness of his prince is small, but the crime of him who anticipates and excites that wickedness is great. The officers of the present day all go to meet their sovereigns' wickedness, and therefore I say that they are sinners against them.

'Sage sovereigns cease to arise, and the princes of the States give the reins to their lusts. Unemployed scholars indulge in unreasonable discussions. The words of Yang Chû and Mo Ti fill the kingdom. If you listen to people's discourses, you will find that they have adopted the views either of Yang or of Mo. Now, Yang's principle is—"each one for himself," which does not acknowledge the claims of the sovereign. Mo's principle is—"to love all equally," which does not acknowledge the peculiar affection due to a father. But to acknowledge neither king nor father is to be in the state of a beast. Kung-ming Î said, "In their kitchens there is fat meat. In their stables there are fat horses. But their people have the look of hunger, and on the wilds there are those who have died of famine. This is leading on beasts to devour men." If the principles of Yang and Mo are not stopped, and the principles of Confucius not set forth, those perverse speakings will delude the people and stop up the path of benevolence and righteousness. When benevolence and righteousness are stopped up, beasts will be led on to devour men, and men will devour one another 1."

¹ Bk, III: Pt. II. i, ² Bk, I. Pt. II. iv. 6, 8. ³ Bk, VII, Pt. II. vii, 1, 4.

6. It is in Ch'1 that we first meet with Mencius as a counsellor of the princes, and it was in this State that he spent much the greater part of his public life. His residence in it, however, appears to have been divided into two portions, and we know not to which of them to refer many of the chapters which describe his intercourse with the prince (or kiug, as he claimed to be) and his ministers; but, as I have already observed, this is to us of little moment. Our interest is in what he did and said. It matters little that we cannot assign to each saying and doing its particular date.

Mencius the first time in Ch'1; some time between n.o. 330 and 323.

That he left Ch'i the first time before B. C. 323 is plausibly inferred from Bk. II. Pt. II. xiv. 32; and assuming that the conversation in the same Book, Pt. I. ii, took place immediately before or after his arrival4, we can determine that he did not enter the State before B. C. 331, for he speaks of himself as having attained at forty years of age to 'an unperturbed mind.' The two chapters contain the most remarkable expressions indicative of Mencius's estimate of himself. In the first, while he glorifies Confucius as far before all other men who had ever lived, he declines having comparisons drawn between himself and any of the sage's most distinguished disciples. In the second, when going away sorrowful because he had not wrought the good which he desired, he observes:—'Heaven does not yet wish that the kingdom should enjoy tranquillity and good order. If it wished this, who is there besides me to bring it about?'

¹ Bk. III. Pt. II. iz. 9. ² In the 'Annals of the Nation' (vol. i. proleg. p. 194), Meneius's visit to king Hûi of Liang is set down as having occurred in n. c. 235, and under n. c. 318 it is said-'Mencius goes from Liang to Ch'l.' The visit to Liang is placed too early, and that to Ch'l too late. The disasters of king Hûi, mentioned in Bk. L Pt. L v. z, had not all taken place in n. c. 318; and if Mencius remained seventeen years in Liang, it is strange we have only five conversations between him and king Hûi. So far from his not going to Ch'l till B.o. 318, it will be seen from the next note that he was leaving Ch'l before B.o. 329. Mencius's words are—'From the commencement of the Chau dynasty till now more than 700 years have elapsed.' It was to the purpose of his argument to make the time appear as long as possible. Had 800 years elapsed, he would surely have said so. But as the Chau dynasty commenced in R.C. IISI, the year R.C. 322 would be its Scoth anniversary, and Mencius's departure from Ch'l did not take place later than the year before R.C. 323. ⁴ This chapter and the one before it have very much the appearance of having taken place on the way from Teku to Ch'i. Mencius has been invited to a powerful court. He is emerging from his obscurity. His disciples expect great things for him. Kung-sun Ch'an sees him invested with the government of Ch'i, and in the elation of his heart makes his inquiries.

We may be certain that Mencius did not go to Ch'i uninvited. His approach was waited for with curious expectation, and the king, spoken of always by his honorary epithet of Hsuan, 'The Illustrious,' sent persons to spy out whether he was like other men'. They had their first interview at a place called Ch'ung, which was so little satisfactory to the philosopher that he resolved to make only a short stay in the State. Circumstances occurred to change this resolution, but though he remained, and even accepted office, yet it was only honorary;—he declined receiving any salary.

From Ch'ung he appears to have retired to P'ing-lû, where Ch'û, the prime minister, sent him a present, wishing, no doubt, to get into his good graces. I call attention to the circumstance, though trifling in itself, because it illustrates the way in which Mencius carried himself to the great men. He took the gift, but subsequently, when he went to the capital, he did not visit the minister to acknowledge it. His opinion was that Ch'û might have come in person to P'ing-lû to see him. 'There was a gift, but no corresponding respect.'

With the governor of P'ing-lû, called K'ung Chu-hsin, Mencius spoke freely, and found him a man open to conviction. 'If one of your spearmen,' said Mencius to him, 'were to lose his place in the ranks three times in one day, would you put him to death or not?' I would not wait for three times to do so,' replied Chu-hsin. Mencius then charged home upon him the sufferings of the people, saying they were equivalent to his losing his place in the ranks. The governor defended himself on the ground that those sufferings were a consequence of the general policy of the State. To this the other replied, 'Here is a man who receives charge of the sheep and cattle of another, undertaking to feed them for him;—of course he must search for pasture-ground and grass. If, after searching for those, he cannot find them, will he return his charge to the owner? or will he stand by and see them die?' The governor's reply was, 'Herein I am guilty'.'

When Mencius presented himself at the capital of the State, he was honourably received by the king. Many of the conversations with the sovereign and officers which are scattered through the seven Books, though the first and second are richest in them, must be referred to this period. The one which is first in place¹, and which contains the fullest exposition of the philosopher's views on government, was probably first likewise in time². It sets forth the grand essential to the exercise of royal government,—a heart on the part of the sovereign impatient of the sufferings of the people, and eager to protect them and make them happy; it brings home to king Hstan the conviction that he was not without such a heart, and presses on him the truth that his not exercising it was from a want of will and not from any lack of ability; it exposes unsparingly the errors of the course he was pursuing; and concludes by an exhibition of the outlines and happy issues of a true royal sway.

¹ Bk. IV. Pt. II. xxxii. ² Bk. II. Pt. II. xiv. ³ Bk. II. Pt. II. v. ⁴ Bk. II. Pt. II. iv.

Of this nature were all Mencius's communications with the sovereign; but he lays himself open in one thing to severe censure. Afraid apparently of repelling the prince from him by the severity of his lessons, he tries to lead him on by his very passions. 'I am fond of beauty,' says the king, 'and that is in the way of my attaining to the royal government which you celebrate.' 'Not at all, replies the philosopher. 'Gratify yourself, only do not let your doing so interfere with the people's getting similar enjoyment for themselves.' So the love of money, the love of war, and the love of music are dealt with. Mencius thought that if he could only get the good of the people to be recognised by Hsüan as the great aim which he was to pursue, his tone of mind would be so elevated, that the selfish passions and gratifications of which he was the slave would be purified or altogether displaced. And so it would have been. Where he fails, is in putting his points as if benevolence and selfishness, covetousness and generosity might exist together. Chinese moralists rightly find fault with him in this respect, and say that Confucius never condescended to such a style of argument.

Notwithstanding the apparent cordiality of the king's reception of him, and the freedom with which Mencius spoke his mind at their interviews, a certain suspiciousness appears to have been maintained between them. Neither of them would bend to the other.

¹ Bk. I. Pt. L vii.

² I judge that this was the first set conversation between king Hstan and Mencius, because of the inquiry with which the king opens it,—'May I be informed by you of the transactions of Hwan of Ch'i, and Wan of Thin?' A very brief acquaintance with our philosopher would have taught him that he was the last person to apply to about those characters.

² Bk. I. Pt. II, i, iii, v; et et.

Mencius would not bow to the royal state; Hsuan would not vail bonnet to the philosopher's cloak. We have one amusing instance of the struggles to which this sometimes gave rise. One day Mencius was preparing to go to court of his own free will, when a messenger arrived from the king, saying he had intended to come and see him, but was prevented by a cold, and asking whether Mencius would not appear at the audience next morning. Mencius saw that this was a device on the part of the king to avoid stooping to visit him, and though he had been about to go to court, he replied at once that he was unwell. He did not hesitate to meet the king's falsehood with one of his own.

He did not wish, however, that the king should be ignorant of the truth, and went out next morning to pay a visit of condolence. He supposed that messengers would be sent from the court to inquire about his health, and that, when they took back word that he had gone out visiting, the king would understand how his sickness of the day before was only feigned.

It happened as he expected. The king sent a messenger, and his physician besides. Mencius being out, they were received by Mang Chung, either his son or cousin, who complicated the affair by an invention of his own. 'To-day,' he said, 'he was a little better, and hastened to go to court. I don't know whether he has reached it by this time or not.' No sooner were the visitors gone with this story, than he sent several persons to look for the philosopher, and urge him to go to the court before he returned home.

It was now necessary that a full account of the matter should reach the royal ears; and to accomplish this, Mencius neither went home nor to court, but spent the night at the house of one of the high officers. They had an animated discussion. The officer accused Mencius of showing disrespect to the king. The philosopher replied that no man in Ch'i showed so much respect for the sovereign as he did, for it was only he who brought high and truly royal subjects under his notice.

'That,' said the officer, 'is not my meaning. The rule is—"When the prince's order calls, the carriage must not be waited for." You were going to the court, but when you heard the king's message, you did not do so. This seems not in accordance with that rule.' Mencius explained:—'There are three things universally acknowledged to be honourable,—nobility, age, and virtue. In courts, nobility holds the first place; in villages, age; and for helping one's generation and presiding over the people, the other two are not equal to virtue. The possession of one of the three does not authorise the despising of one who has the other two.

'A prince who is to accomplish great deeds will have ministers whom he does not call to go to see him. When he wishes to consult with them, he goes to them. The prince who does not honour the virtuous, and delight in their ways of doing, to this extent, is not worth having to do with.

'There was Tang with I Yin:—he first learned of him, and then made him his minister; and so without difficulty he became sovereign. There was the duke Hwan with Kwan Chung:—he first learned of him, and then made him his minister; and so without difficulty he became chief of all the princes.

'So did Tang behave to I Yin, and the duke Hwan to Kwan Chung, that they would not venture to call them to go to them. If Kwan Chung might not be called to him by his prince, how much less may I be called, who would not play the part of Kwan Chung'!'

We are to suppose that these sentiments were conveyed to the king by the officer with whom Mencius spent the night. It is a pity that the exposition of them could only be effected in such a round-about manner, and was preceded by such acts of prevarication. But where the two parties were so suspicious of each other, we need not wonder that they separated before long. Mencius resigned his honorary appointment, and prepared to return to Tsau. On this occasion king Hstian visited him, and after some complimentary expressions asked whether he might expect to see him again. 'I dare not request permission to visit you at any particular time,' replied Mencius, 'but, indeed, it is what I desire'.'

The king made another attempt to detain him, and sent an officer, called Shih, to propose to him to remain in the State, on the understanding that he should have a house large enough to accommodate his disciples, and an allowance of ten thousand measures of grain to support them. All Mencius's efforts had not sufficed to make king Hsüan and his ministers understand him. They thought he was really actuated like themselves by a desire for wealth. He indignantly rejected the proposal, and pointed out the folly of it, considering that he had already declined a hundred thousand measures in holding only an honorary appointment¹.

¹ Bk. II. Pt. II. ii. ² Bk. II. Pt. II. x. I consider that this chapter, and others here referred to, belong to Mencius's first departure from Ch'i. I do so because we can hardly suppose that the king and his officers would not have understood him better by the end of his second residence. Moreover, while Mencius retires, his language in x. 2 and xi. 5. 6 is of such a nature that it leaves an opening for him to return again.

So Mencius turned his back on Ch'1; but he withdrew with a slow and lingering step, stopping three nights in one place, to afford the king an opportunity to recall him on a proper understanding. Some reproached him with his hesitancy, but he sufficiently explained himself. 'The king,' he said, 'is, after all, one who may be made to do good. If he were to use me, would it be for the happiness of Ch'1 only? It would be for the happiness of the people of the whole kingdom. I am hoping that the king will change; I am daily hoping for this.

'Am I like one of your little-minded people? They will remonstrate with their prince, and on their remonstrance not being accepted, they get angry, and, with their passion displayed in their countenance, they take their leave, and travel with all their strength for a whole day, before they will rest.'

7. After he left Ch'i, Mencius found a home for some time in the small principality of Tang, on the south of Ch'i, in the ruler of Mencius in which he had a sincere admirer and docile pupil. Tang;—from his leaving Oh'i to He did not proceed thither immediately, however, but seems to have taken his way to Sung, which consisted mostly of the present department of Kwei-tei in Ho-nan. There he was visited by the crown-prince of Tang, who made a long detour, while on a journey to Ch'û, for the purpose of seeing him. The philosopher discoursed on the goodness of human nature, and the excellent ways of Yao and Shun. His hearer admired, but doubted. He could not forget, however, and the lessons which he received produced fruit before long.

¹ I have said in a note, Bk. II. Pt. II. x. 5, that 100,000 chung was the fixed allowance of a 111. which Mencius had declined to receive. When we look narrowly into the matter, however, we see that this could hardly be the case. It is known that four measures were used in Chi,—the 豆, 區, 釜, and 錘, and that a chung was - ten /h, or six 石 and four the. 10,000 chung would thus = 64,000 stone, and Mencius declined 640,000 stone of grain. No officer of Ch'I could have an income so much as that. The measures of the Han dynasty are ascertained to have been only one-fifth the capacity of the present. Assuming that those of Chau and Han agreed, and bringing the above computations to the present standard, Mencius was offered an annual amount of 12,800 stone of grain for his disciples, and he had himself refused in all 128,000 stone. With this reduction, and taking any grain we please as the standard of valuation, the amount is still much beyond what we can suppose to have been a suppose to have been a 图 若 據 supposes that Mencius intends by 100,000 chang the sum of the income during ² Bk. II. Pt. II. zii. ² This is gathered all the years he had held his honorary office. from Bk. III. Pt. I. i. z, where the crown-prince of Tang visits Mencius, and from Bk. 11. Pt. II. iii, where his accepting a gift in Sung appears to have been subsequent to his refusing one in Ch'i.

From Sung Mencius returned to Tsau, by way of Hsieh. In both Sung and Hsieh he accepted large gifts from the rulers, which help us in some measure to understand how he could maintain an expenditure which must have been great, and which gave occasion also for an ingenious exposition of the principles on which he guided his course among the princes. 'When you were in Ch't,' said one of his disciples, 'you refused a hundred yi of fine gold, which the king sent, while in Sung you accepted seventy vi, and in Hsieh fifty'. If you were right in refusing the gift in the first case, you did wrong in accepting it in the other two. If you were right in accepting it in those two cases, you were wrong in refusing it in Ch'1. You must accept one of these alternatives.' 'I did right in all the cases,' replied Mencius. 'When I was in Sung, I was about to undertake a long journey. Travellers must be provided with what is necessary for their expenses. The prince's message was-"a present against travelling expenses;" why should I have declined the gift? In Hsieh I was under apprehensions for my safety, and taking measures for my protection. The message was-"I have heard you are taking measures to protect yourself, and send this to help you in procuring arms." Why should I have declined the gift? But when I was in Ch't, I had no occasion for money. To send a man a gift when he has no occasion for it is to bribe him. How is it possible that a superior man should be taken with a bribes?

Before Mencius had been long in Tsau, the crown-prince of Tang succeeded to the rule of the principality, and calling to mind the lessons which he had heard in Sung, sent an officer to consult the philosopher on the manner in which he should perform the funeral and mourning services for his father. Mencius of course advised him to carry out in the strictest manner the ancient regulations. The new prince's relatives and the officers of the State opposed, but I have supposed in the translation, Bk. II. Pt. II. iii. I, that the metal of these gifts was silver and not gold. 圖 岩 機, however, seems to make it clear that we ought to understand that it was gold. (See 皇 清經解, 孟子生卒年月考, p. 6.) Pressed with the objection that a,400 ounces of gold seems too large a sum, he goes on to make it appear that under the Ch'in dynasty, a pi or twenty-four ounces of gold was only equal to 15,000 cash, or affect tacks of silver of the present day! This is a point on which I do not know that we can attain any positive certainty.

Bk. II. Pt. II. iii.

Bk. III. Pt. I. ii. The note of time which is relied on as enabling us to follow Mencius here is the intimation, Bk. I. Pt. II. xiv, that 'Ch'l was about to fortify Heich.' This is referred to n.o. 300, when king Helian appointed his brother III & over the dependency of Heich, and took measures to fortify it.

ineffectually. Mencius's counsel was followed, and the effect was great. Duke Wan became an object of general admiration.

By and by Mencius proceeded himself to Tang. We may suppose that he was invited thither by the prince as soon as the rules of mourning would allow his holding free communication with him. The chapters which give an account of their conversations are really interesting. Mencius recommended that attention should be chiefly directed to the encouragement of agriculture and education. He would have nourishment secured both for the body and the mind of every subject1. When the duke was lamenting the danger to which he was exposed from his powerful and encroaching neighbours, Mencius told him he might adopt one of two courses :-either leave his State, and like king Tai go and find a settlement elsewhere, or be prepared to die for his patrimony. 'If you do good,' said he, 'among your descendants in after generations there will be one who shall attain to the royal dignity. But results are with Heaven. What is Ch'i to you, O prince? Be strong to do good. That is all your business 2.'

After all, nothing came of Mencius's residence in Tang. We should like to know what made him leave it. Confucius said that, if any of the princes were to employ him, he should achieve something considerable in twelve months, and in the course of three years, the government would be perfected. Mencius taught that, in his time, with half the merit of former days double the result might be accomplished. Here in Tang a fair field seemed to be afforded him, but he was not able to make his promise good. Possibly the good purposes and docility of duke Wan may not have held out, or Mencius may have found that it was easier to theorise about government, than actually to carry it on. Whatever may have been the cause, we find him in B.C. 319 at the court of king Hûi of Liang.

Before he left Tang, Mencius had his rencounter with the disciples of the 'shrike-tongued barbarian of the South,' one Hsu Hsing, who came to Tang on hearing of the reforms which were being made at Mencius's advice by the duke Wan This was one of the dreamy speculators of the time, to whom I have already alluded. He pretended to follow the lessons of Shan-nang, one of the reputed founders of the kingdom and the father of husbandry, and came to Tang with Bk. III. Pt. I. iii.

 Bk. I. Pt. II. xiii. xiv. xv.
 Confucian Analosts, XIII. x.
 Bk. II. Pt. I. i. 12.

his plough upon his shoulder, followed by scores of followers, all wearing the coarsest clothes, and supporting themselves by making mats and sandals. It was one of his maxims that 'the magistrates should be labouring-men.' He would have the sovereign grow his own rice, and cook his own meals. Not a few of 'The Learned' were led away by his doctrines, but Mencius girt up his loins to oppose the heresy, and ably vindicated the propriety of a division of labour, and of a lettered class conducting the government. It is just possible that the appearance of Hsti Hsing, and the countenance shown to him, may have had something to do with Mencius's leaving the State.

8. Liang was another name for Wei, one of the States into which Tsin had been divided. King Hui, early in his reign, B.C. 364, had made the city of Ta-liang, in the present department · Mencius in of K'ai-fang, his capital, and given its name to his Liang; — n. c. gr9, 318. whole principality. It was the year before his death, when Mencius visited him 1. A long, stormy, and disastrous rule was about to terminate, but the king was as full of activity and warlike enterprise as ever he had been. At his first interview with Mencius, he addressed him in the well-known words, 'Venerable Sir, since you have not counted it far to come here, a distance of a thousand U, may I presume that you are likewise provided with counsels to profit my kingdom?' Mencius in reply starts from the word profit, and expatiates eloquently on the evil consequences that must ensue from making a regard to profit the ground of conduct or the rule of policy. As for himself, his theme must be benevolence and righteousness. On these he would discourse, but on nothing else, and in following them a prince would obtain true and sure advantages.

Only five conversations are related between king Hûi and the philosopher. They are all in the spirit of the first which has just been described, and of those which he had with king Hsüan of Ch't.

There are various difficulties about the reign of king Hûi of Liang. See-mâ Ch'ien makes it commence in 369 and terminate in 334. He is then succeeded by Hsiang (), whose reign ends in 318; and he is followed by Âi () till 295. What are called 'The Bamboe Books' () extend Hûi's reign to n.o. 318, and the next twenty years are assigned to king Âi. 'The Annals of the Nation' (which are compiled from 'The General Mirror of Ristory' () follow the Bamboo Books in the length of king Hûi's reign, but make him followed by Hsiang; and take no note of a king Âi.—From Mencius we may be assured that Hûi was succeeded by Hsiang, and the view of his Life, which I have followed in this stetch, leads to the longer period assigned to his reign.

There is the same freedom of expostulation, or, rather, boldness of reproof, and the same unhesitating assurance of the success that would follow the adoption of his principles. The most remarkable is the third, where we have a sounder doctrine than where he tells king Hsüan that his love of beauty and money and valour need not interfere with his administration of royal government. boasting of his diligence in the government of his State, and sympathy with the sufferings of his people, as far beyond those of any of the neighbouring rulers, and wondering how he was not more prosperous than they. Mencius replies, 'Your Majesty is fond of war ;-let me take an illustration from it. The drums sound, and the weapons are crossed, when suddenly the soldiers on one side throw away their coats of mail, trail their weapons behind them, and run. Some of them run a hundred paces, and some run only fifty. What would you think if those who run fifty paces were to laugh at those who run a hundred paces?' 'They may not do so,' said the king; 'they only did not run a hundred paces, but they also ran.' 'Since your Majesty knows this,' was the reply, 'you need not hope that your people will become more numerous than those of the neighbouring kingdoms.' The king was thus taught that half-measures would not do. Royal government, to be effectual, must be carried out faithfully and in its spirit.

King Hûi died in B.C. 319, and was succeeded by his son, the king Hsiang. Mencius appears to have had but one interview with him. When he came out from it, he observed to some of his friends:

—'When I looked at him from a distance, he did not appear like a sovereign; when I drew near to him, I saw nothing venerable about him!'

It was of no use to remain any longer in Liang; he left it, and we meet with him again in Ch'i.

9. Whether he returned immediately to Ch'1 we cannot tell, but the probability is that he did, and remained in it till the year

Mencius the B.C. 311². When he left it about seven years before, he had made provision for his return in case of a change of mind in king Hstian. The philosopher, I apprehend, was content with an insufficient assurance of such an alteration. Be that as it may, he went back, and took an appointment again as a high noble.

¹ Bk. I. Pt. I. vi. 3 This conclusion is adopted because it was in 311 that Yen rebelled, when the king said that he was very much ashamed when he thought of Mencius, who had strongly condemned his policy towards the State of Yen.—This is another case in which the chronology is differently laid down by the authorities, Sse-ma Chien saying that Yen was taken by king Min () the son and successor of Hatlan.

If he was contented with a smaller reformation on the part of the king than he must have desired, Mencius was not himself different from what he had been. In the court and among the high officers his deportment was equally unbending; he was the same stern mentor.

Among the officers was one Wang Hwan, called also Taze-Ao, a favourite with the king, insolent and presuming. Him Mencius treated with an indifference and even contempt which must have been very provoking. A large party were met one time at the house of an officer who had lost a son, for the purpose of expressing their condolences. Mencius was among them, when suddenly Wang Hwan made his appearance. One and another moved to do him honour and win from him a smile,—all indeed but Mencius, who paid no regard to him. The other complained of the rudeness, but the philosopher could show that his conduct was only in accordance with the rules of Propriety 1.

Another time, Mencius was sent as the chief of a mission of condolence to the court of Tang, Wang Hwan being the assistant commissioner. Every morning and evening he waited upon Mencius, who never once exchanged a word with him on the business of their mission.

Now and then he became the object of unpleasant remark and censure. At his instigation, an officer, Ch'i Wa, remonstrated with the king on some abuse, and had in consequence to resign his office. The people were not pleased with Mencius, thus advising others to their harm, and yet continuing to retain his own position undisturbed. 'In the course which he marked out for Ch'i Wa,' they said, 'he did well, but we do not know as to the course which he pursues for himself.' The philosopher, however, was never at a loss in rendering a reason. He declared that, as his office was honorary, he could act 'freely and without restraint either in going forward or retiring.' In this matter we have more sympathy with the condemnation than with the defence.

Some time during these years there occurred the death of Mencius's excellent mother. She had been with him in Ch't, and he carried the coffin to Lû, to bury it near the dust of his father and ancestors. The funeral was a splendid one. Mencius perhaps erred in having it so from his dislike to the Mohists, who advocated a spare simplicity in all funeral matters. His arrangements certainly excited the astonishment of some of his own disciples, and were the occasion of general remark. He defended himself on the ground that 'the superior man will not for all the world be niggardly to his parents,' and that, as he had the means, there was no reason why he should not give all the expression in his power to his natural feelings.

¹ Bk. IV. Pt. II. xxvii. ² Bk. II. Pt. II. vi. ³ Bk. II. Pt. II. v. _D

Having paid this last tribute of filial duty, Mencius returned to Ch'i, but he could not appear at court till the three years of his mourning were accomplished4. It could not be long after this when trouble and confusion arose in Yen, a large State to the north-west of Ch'i, in the present Chih-li. Its prince, who was a poor weakling, wished to go through the sham of resigning his throne to his prime minister, understanding that he would decline it, and that thus he would have the credit of playing the part of the ancient Yao, while at the same time he retained his kingdom. The minister, however, accepted the tender, and, as he proved a tyrannical ruler, great dissatisfaction arose. Ch'an T'ung, an officer of Ch'i, asked Mencius whether Yen might be smitten. He replied that it might, for its prince had no right to resign it to his minister, and the minister no right to receive it. 'Suppose,' said he, 'there were an officer here with whom you were pleased, and that, without informing the king, you were privately to give him your salary and rank; and suppose that this officer, also without the king's orders, were privately to receive them from you: -- would such a transaction be allowable? And where is the difference between the case of Yen and this ?

Whether these sentiments were reported to king Hstan or not, he proceeded to attack Yen, and found it an easy prey. Mencius was charged with having advised the measure, but he ingeniously repudiated the accusation. 'I answered Ch'an Tung that Yen might be smitten. If he had asked me—"Who may smite it?" I would have answered him—"He who is the minister of Heaven may smite it." Suppose the case of a murderer, and that one asks me—"May this man be put to death?" I will answer him—"He may." If he ask me—"Who may put him to death?" I will answer him—"The chief criminal judge may put him to death." But now with one Yen to smite another Yen:—how should I have advised this?' This reference to 'The minister of Heaven' strikingly illustrates what was said about the state of China in Mencius's time. He tells us in one place that hostile States do not correct one another, and that only the supreme authority can punish its subjects by force of arms. But there was now no supreme authority in China. He saw in the sovereign but 'the shadow of an empty name.' His conception of a minister of Heaven was not unworthy. He was one who, by the distinction which he gave to talents and virtue, and by his encouragement of agriculture and commerce, attracted all people to him as a parent. He would have no enemy under heaven, and could not help attaining to the royal dignity.

¹ Etc. III. Pt. I. v. 2. ² Bk. II. Pt. II. vii. ³ Bk. I. Pt. II. xvi. ⁴ Some are of opinion that Mencius stopped all the period of mourning in Lû, but the more natural conclusion, Bk. II. Pt. II. vii. 1, seems to me that he returned to Ch'i, and stayed at Ying, without going to court.

² Bk. II. Pt. II. viii.

King Hstian, after conquering and appropriating Yen, tried to get Mencius's sanction of the proceeding, alleging the ease and rapidity with which he had effected the conquest as an evidence of the favour of Heaver. But the philosopher was true to himself. The people of Yen, he said, had submitted, because they expected to find in the king a deliverer from the evils under which they groaned. If they were pleased, he might retain the State, but if he tried to keep it by force, there would simply be another revolution.

The king's love of power prevailed. He determined to keep his prey, and ere long a combination was formed among the neighbouring princes to wrest Yen from him. Full of alarm he again consulted Mencius, but got no comfort from him. 'Let him restore his captives and spoils, consult with the people of Yen, and appoint them a ruler;—so he might be able to avert the threatened attack'.'

The result was as Mencius had predicted. The people of Yen rebelled. The king felt ashamed before the philosopher, whose second residence in Ch'i was thus brought to an unpleasant termination.

10. We do not know that Mencius visited any of the princes after this. On leaving Ch'i, he took his way again to Sung, the duke of Mencius in IA; which had taken the title of king in B.C. 318. A report also had gone abroad that he was setting about to practise the true royal government, but Mencius soon satisfied himself of its incorrectness.

The last court at which we find him is that of Lû, B.C. 309. The Bk. VII. Pt. II. ii.

 Bk. II. Pt. II. v.
 Bk. II. Pt. II. xi.
 Bk. III. Pt. II. v.

duke P'ing had there called Yo-chang, one of the philosopher's disciples, to his councils, and indeed committed to him the administration of the government. When Mencius heard of it, he was so overjoyed that he could not sleep¹.

The first appearance (in point of time) of this Yo-chang in the seven Books is not much to his credit. He comes to Ch'i in the train of Wang Hwan, the favourite who was an offence to the philosopher, and is very sharply reproved for joining himself to such a character 'for the sake of the loaves and fishes'.' Other references to him are more favourable. Mencius declares him to be 'a good man,' 'a real man'.' He allows that 'he is not a man of vigour,' nor 'a man wise in council,' nor 'a man of much information,' but he says—'he is a man that loves what is good,' and 'the love of what is good is more than a sufficient qualification for the government of the kingdom;—how much more is it so for the State of La'?'

Either on his own impulse or by Yo-chang's invitation, Mencius went himself also to Lû, hoping that the prince who had committed his government to the disciple might be willing to listen to the counsels of the master. The duke was informed of his arrival by Yo-chang, and also of the deference which he exacted. He resolved to go and visit him and invite him to the court. The horses were put to the carriage, and the duke was ready to start, when the intervention of his favourite, a worthless creature called Tsang Ts'ang, diverted him from his good purpose. When told by the duke that he was going to visit the scholar Mang, Ts'ang said, 'That you demean yourself to pay the honour of the first visit to a common man, is, I apprehend, because you think that he is a man of talents and virtue. From such men the rules of ceremonial proprieties and right proceed; but on the occasion of this Mang's second mourning, his observances exceeded those of the former. Do not go to see him, my prince.' The duke said, 'I will not;'-and carriage and horses were ordered back to their places.

As soon as Yo-chang had an audience of the duke, he explained the charge of impropriety which had been brought against Mencius; but the evil was done. The duke had taken his course. 'I told him' said Yo-chang, 'about you, and he was coming to see you, when Tsang Ts'ang stopped him.' Mencius replied to him, 'A man's advancement is effected, it may be, by others, and the stopping him is, it may be, from the efforts of others. But to advance a man or to stop his advance is really beyond the power of other men; my not finding in the prince of Lû a ruler who would confide in me, and put my counsels into practice, is from Heaven. How could that scion of the Tsang family cause me not to find the ruler that would suit me¹?'

¹ Bk, VI. Pt, II. xiii. ² Bk, IV. Pt. I. xxv. ³ Bk, VII. Pt. II. xxv. ⁴ Bk, VI. Pt. II. xiii.

Mencius appears to have accepted this intimation of the will of Heaven as final. He has a remarkable saying, that Heaven controls the development of a man's faculties and affections, but as there is an adaptation in his nature for these, the superior man does not say-'It is the appointment of Heaven'.' In accordance with this principle he had striven long against the adverse circumstances which threw his hopes of influencing the rulers of his time again and again in the dust. On his first leaving Lû we saw how he said:—'Heaven does not yet wish that the country should enjoy tranquillity and good order.' For about fifteen years, however, he persevered, if peradventure there might be a change in the Heavenly councils. Now at last he bowed in submission. The year after and he would reach his grand climacteric. We lose sight of him. He retired from courts and great officers. We can but think and conjecture of him, according to tradition, passing the last twenty years of his life amid the more congenial society of his disciples, discoursing to them, and compiling the Works which have survived as his memorial to the present day.

gether the principal incidents of Mencius's history as they may be gathered from his Writings. There is no other source of information about him, and we must regret that they tell us nothing of his domestic life and habits. In one of the stories about his mother there is an allusion to his wife, from which we may conclude that his marriage was not without its bitternesses. It is probable that the Mang Chung, mentioned in Bk. II. Pt. II. ii, was his son, though this is not easily reconcileable with what we read in Bk. VI. Pt. I. v. of a Mang Ch'i, who was, according to Chao Ch'i, a brother of Mang Chung. We must believe that he left a family, for his descendants form a large clan at the present day. Hel-wan, the fifty-sixth in descent from Mencius, was, in the reign of Chia-ching (A.D. 1522-1566), constituted a member of the Han-lin college, and of the Board in charge of the Five Ching, which honour was to be hereditary in the family, and the holder of it to preside at the sacrifices to his ancestor. China's appreciation of our philosopher could not be more strikingly shown. Honours flow back in this empire. The descendant ennobles his ancestors. But in the case of Mencius, as in that of Confucius, this order is reversed. No excellence of descendants can extend to them; and the nation acknowledges its obligations to them by nobility and distinction conferred through all generations upon their posterity.

Bk. I. Pt. II. zvi. Bk. III. Pt. II. i. ii.

SECTION II.

HIS INFLUENCE AND OPINIONS.

r. Confucius had hardly passed off the stage of life before his merits began to be acknowledged. The duke Åi, who had neglected his counsels when he was alive, was the first to pronounce his eulogy, and to order that public sacrifices should be offered to him. His disciples proclaimed their estimation of him as superior to all the sages whom China had ever seen. Before long this view of him took possession of the empire; and since the Han dynasty, he has been the man whom sovereign and people have delighted to honour.

The memory of Mencius was not so distinguished. We have seen that many centuries elapsed before his Writings were received among Acknowledgement of Mencius's merits by the government. the Classics of the empire. It was natural that under the same dynasty when this was done the man himself should be admitted to share in the sacrifices presented to Confucius.

The emperor Shan Tsung², in A.D. 1083, issued a patent, constituting Mencius 'Duke of the kingdom of Tsau³,' and ordering a temple to be built to him in the district of Tsau, at the spot where the philosopher had been interred. In the following year it was enacted that he should have a place in the temple of Confucius, next to that of Yen Yuan, the favourite disciple of the sage.

In A.D. 1330, the emperor Wan Tsung', of the Yuan dynasty, made an addition to Mencius's title, and styled him 'Duke of the 1 See Morrison's Dictionary, on Mencius, character 孟. 3 神宗, A.D. 2068-2085.

3 第國公. 4 文宗, A.D. 1880-1333.

State of Tsau, Inferior Sage¹.' This continued till the rise of the Ming dynasty, the founder of which, Hung-wû, had his indignation excited in 1372 by one of Mencius's conversations with king Hstian. The philosopher had said:—'When the prince regards his ministers as his hands and feet, the ministers regard their prince as their belly and heart; when he regards them as his dogs and horses, they regard him as any other man; when he regards them as ground or grass, they regard him as a robber and an enemy².' To apply such names as robber and enemy in any case to sovereigns seemed to the imperial reader an unpardonable outrage, and he ordered Mencius to be degraded from his place in the temples of Confucius, declaring also that if any one remonstrated on the proceeding he should be dealt with as guilty of 'Contempt of Majesty.'

The scholars of China have never been slow to vindicate the memory of its sages and worthies. Undeterred by the imperial threat, Ch'ien T'ang, a president of the Board of Punishments, appeared with a remonstrance, saying,—'I will die for Mencius, and my death will be crowned with glory.' The emperor was moved by his earnestness, and allowed him to go scathless. In the following year, mereover, examination and reflection produced a change of mind. He issued a second proclamation to the effect that Mencius, by exposing heretical doctrines and overthrowing perverse speakings, had set forth clearly the principles of Confucius, and ought to be restored to his place as one of his assessors.

1 第 圖 亞里 公. The 區 has been translated 'second-rate,' but it is by no means so depreciating a term as that, simply indicating that Mencius was second to Confucius.

The title 语 里 was first applied to him by Châo Ch'i. Bk. IV. Pt. II. iii. 2 篇 唐.

4 I have taken this account from 'The Sacrificial Canon of the Sage's Temples' (vol. i. proleg. p. 132). Dr. Morrison in his Dictionary, under the character 🛣, adds that the change in the emperor's mind was produced by his reading the remarkable passage in Bk.VI. Pt. II. xv, about trials and hardships as the way by which Heaven prepares men for great He thought it was descriptive of himself, and that he could argue from it a good title to the grown ;-and so he was mollified to the philosopher. It may be worth while to give here the concluding remarks in 'The Paraphrase for Daily Lessons, Explaining the Mesning of the Four Books' (vol. i. proleg. p. 130), on the chapter of Mencius which was deemed by the imperial reader so objectionable :- 'Mencius wished that sovereigns should treat their ministers according to propriety, and nourish them with kindness, and therefore he used these perilous words in order to alarm and rouse them. As to the other side, the part of ministers, though the sovereign regard them as his hands and feet, they ought notwithstanding to discharge most earnestly their duties of loyalty and love. Yea, though he regard them as dogs and horses, or as the ground and grass, they ought still more to perform their part in spite of all difficulties, and oblivious of their persons. They may on no account make the manner in which they are regarded, whether it be of appreciation or contempt, the standard by which they regulate the measure of their grateful service. The words of Confucius, that the ruler should behave to his ministers according to propriety, and the ministers In 1530, the ninth year of the reign of Chiâ-ching, a general revision was made of the sacrificial canon for the sage's temple, and the title of Mencius was changed into—'The philosopher Mang. Inferior Sage.' So it continues to the present day. His place is the second on the west, next to that of the philosopher Tsang. Originally, we have seen, he followed Yen Hûi, but Hûi, Tsac-sze, Tsang, and Mang were appointed the sage's four assessors, and had their relative positions fixed, in 1267.

2. The second edict of Hung-wû, restoring Mencius to his place in the temples of Confucius, states fairly enough the services which he is held to have rendered to his country. The Estimate of philosopher's own estimate of himself has partly by scholars. appeared in the sketch of his Life!. He seemed to start with astonishment when his disciple Kung-sun Ch'au was disposed to rank him as a rage; but he also said on one occasion-'When sages shall rise up again, they will not change my words'.' Evidently, he was of opinion that the mantle of Confucius had fallen upon him. A work was to be done in his generation, and he felt himself able to undertake it. After describing what had been accomplished by the great Ytt, by Chau-kung, and Confucius, he adds:—'I also wish to rectify men's hearts, and to put an end to those perverse doctrines, to oppose their one-sided actions, and banish away their licentious expressions; and thus to carry on the work of the three sages '.'

The place which Mencius occupies in the estimation of the literati of China may be seen by the following testimonies, selected from those appended by Chu Hat to the prefatory notice of his Life in the 'Collected Comments.'

Han Yus says, 'If we wish to study the doctrines of the sages, we must begin with Mencius.' He also quotes the opinion of Yang Tsse-yuns, 'Yang and Mo were stopping up the way of truth, when Mencius refuted them, and scattered their delusions without difficulty;' and then remarks upon it:—'When Yang and Mo walked abroad, the true doctrine had nearly come to nought. Though serve their sourceion with faithfulness, contain the unchanging rule for all ages.' The authors of the 'Daily Lessons' did their work by imperial order, and evidently had the fear of the court before their eyes. Their language implies a censure of our philosopher. There wil' ever be a grudge against him in the minds of despots, and their creatures will be ready to depreciate him.

Mencius possessed talents and virtue, even those of a sage, he did not occupy the throne. He could only speak and not act. With all his earnestness, what could he do? It is owing, however, to his words, that learners now-a-days still know how to revere Confucius, to honour benevolence and righteousness, to esteem the true sovereign and despise the mere pretender. But the grand rules and laws of the sage and sage-sovereigns had been lost beyond the power of redemption; only one in a hundred of them was preserved. Can it be said in those circumstances that Mencius had an easy task? Yet had it not been for him, we should have been buttoning the lappets of our coats on the left side, and our discourse would have been all confused and indistinct;—it is on this account that I have honoured Mencius, and consider his merit not inferior to that of Yü.'

One asked the philosopher Ch'ang 1 whether Mencius might be pronounced to be a sage. He replied, 'I do not dare to say altogether that he was a sage, but his learning had reached the extremest point.' The same great scholar also said :-- 'The merit of Mencius in regard to the doctrine of the sages is more than can be told. Confucius only spoke of benevolence, but as soon as Mencius opens his mouth, we hear of benevolence and righteousness. Confucius only spoke of the will or mind, but Mencius enlarged also on the nourishment of the passion-nature. In these two respects his merit was great.' 'Mencius did great service to the world by his teaching the goodness of man's nature.' 'Mencius had a certain amount of the heroical spirit, and to that there always belong some jutting corners, the effect of which is very injurious. Yen Yuan, all round and complete, was different from this. was but a hair's-breadth removed from a sage, while Mencius must be placed in a lower rank, a great worthy, an inferior sage.' Ch'ang was asked where what he called the heroical spirit of Mencius could be seen. 'We have only to compare his words with those of Confucius,' he said, 'and we shall perceive it. It is like the comparison of ice or crystal with a precious jade-stone. The ice is bright enough, but the precious stone, without so much brilliancy, has a softness and richness all its own 2.' The scholar [·] 程平; see vol. i. proleg. p. 24.

² This is probably the original of what appears in the 'Mémoires concernant les Chinois,' in the notice of Mencius, vol. iii, and which Thornton (vol. ii. pp. 216, 217) has faithfully translated therefrom in the following terms:—'Confucius, through prudence or modesty, often dissimulated; he did not always say what he might have said: Mang-taze, on the contrary, was incapable of constraining himself; he spoke what he thought, and without the

Yang 1 says :-- 'The great object of Mencius in his writings is to rectify men's hearts, teaching them to preserve their heart and nourish their nature, and to recover their lost heart. When he discourses of benevolence, righteousness, propriety, and knowledge, he refers to the principles of these in the heart commiserating. feeling shame and dislike, affected with modesty and complaisance, approving and disapproving. When he speaks of the evils springing from perverted speakings, he says-"Growing first in the mind, they prove injurious to government." When he shows how a prince should be served, he says-" Correct what is wrong in his mind. Once rectify the prince, and the kingdom will be settled." With him the thousand changes and ten thousand operations of men all come from the mind or heart. If a man once rectify his heart, little else will remain for him to do. In "The Great Learning," the cultivation of the person, the regulation of the family, the government of the State, and the tranquillisation of the empire, all have their root in rectifying the heart and making the thoughts sincere. If the heart be rectified, we recognise at once the goodness of the nature. On this account, whenever Mencius came into contact with people, he testified that man's nature is good. When Au-yang Yung-shûs says, that in the lessons of the sages, man's nature does not occupy the first place, he is wrong. There is nothing to be put before this. Yao and Shun are the models for ten thousand ages simply because they followed their nature. And to follow our nature is just to accord with Heavenly principle. To use plans and arts, away from this, though they may be successful in great achievement, is the selfishness of human desires, and as far removed from the mode of action of the sage, as earth is from heaven.' I shall close these testimonies with a sentence from Chû Het bimself. He says :-- 'Mencius, when compared with Confucius, always appears to speak in toc lofty a style; but when we hear him proclaiming the goodness of man's least fear or reserve. He resembles ice of the purest water, through which we can see all its defects as well as its beauties: Confucius, on the other hand, is like a precious gem, which, though not so pellucid as ice, has more strength and solidity.' The former of these sentences is quite alien from the style of Chinese thinking and expression.

□ 楊氏. This is 楊時, styled 中立, but more commonly referred to as 楊龜山. He was one of the great scholars of the Sung dynasty, a friend of the two Ch'ing. He has a place in the temples of Confucius. □ □ □ 承权. This was one of China's greatest scholars. He has now a place in the temples of Confucius.

nature, and celebrating Y4o and Shun, then we likewise perceive the solidity of his discourses 1.'

3. The judgment concerning our philosopher contained in the above quotations will approve itself to every one who has carefully

Correctness of the above testimonies. Mencius's own peculiarities appear in his expositions of destrine. perused his Works. The long passage from Yang Kwei-shan is especially valuable, and puts the principal characteristic of Mencius's teachings in a clear light. Whether those teachings have the intrinsic value which is ascribed to them is another question, which I will endeavour to discuss in the present section without prejudice. But Mencius's position with reference to 'the doctrines of the sages' is correctly assigned. We are not to look for new truths in him. And this does not lead his countrymen to think less highly of him. I ventured to lay it down as one grand cause of the position and influence of Confucius, that he was simply the preserver of the monuments of antiquity, and the exemplifier and expounder of the maxims of the golden age of China. In this Mencius must share with him.

But while we are not to look to Mencius for new truths, the peculiarities of his natural character were more striking than those of his master. There was an element of 'the heroical' about him. He was a dialectician, moreover. If he did not like disputing, as he protested that he did not, yet, when forced to it, he showed himself a master of the art. An ingenuity and subtlety, which we cannot but enjoy, often mark his reasonings. We have more sympathy with him than with Confucius. He comes closer to us. He is not so awe-ful, but he is more admirable. The doctrines of the sages take a tinge from his mind in passing through it, and it is with that Mencian character about them that they are now held by the cultivated classes and by readers generally.

I will now call attention to a few passages illustrative of these remarks. Some might prefer to search them out for themselves in the body of the volume, and I am far from intending to exhaust the subject. There will be many readers, however, pleased to have the means of forming an idea of the man for themselves brought within small compass. My next object will be to review his doctrine con cerning man's mental constitution and the nourishment of the passion-nature, in which he is said to have rendered special service to the cause of truth. That done, I will conclude by pointing out what I conceive to be his chief defects as a moral and political teacher. To the opinions of Yang Chû and Mo, which he took credit to himself for assailing and exposing, it will be necessary to devote another chapter.

1500 朱子全書,卷二十.

4. It was pointed out in treating of the opinions of Confucius, that he allowed no 'right divine' to a sovereign, independent of his exercising a benevolent rule. This was one of the topics, however, of which he was shy. With Mencius, and manner of salvocating them.

Specimens of Mencius's opinions, and manner of salvocating them.

cius, on the contrary, it was a favourite theme. The degeneracy of the times and the ardour of his disposition prompted him equally to the free expression of his convictions about it.

'The people,' he said, 'are the most important element in a nation; the spirits of the land and grain are the next; the sovereign on government.—The people more important than the sovereign.

is the lightest. When a prince endangers the altars of the spirits of the land and grain, he is changed, and another appointed in his place. When the sacrificial victims have been perfect, the millet in its vessels all pure, and the sacrifices offered at their proper seasons, if yet there ensue drought, or the waters overflow, the spirits of the land and grain are changed, and others appointed in their place 1.'

'The people are the most important element in a nation, and the sovereign is the lightest;'—that is certainly a bold and ringing affirmation. Mencius was not afraid to follow it to An unworthy sovereign may be the conclusion that the sovereign who was exercising dethroned or put an injurious rule should be dethroned. His existence is not to be allowed to interfere with the general good. such a case is no murder. King Hattan once asked, 'Was it so that T'ang banished Chieh, and that king Wû smote Châu?' replied, 'It is so in the records.' The king asked, 'May a minister then put his sovereign to death?' Our philosopher's reply was:-'He who outrages the benevolence proper to his nature is called a robber; he who outrages righteousness is called a ruffian. The robber and ruffian we call a mere fellow. I have heard of the cutting off of the fellow Chau, but I have not heard in his case of the putting a sovereign to death "."

With regard to the ground of the relation between ruler and people, Mencius refers it very clearly to the will of God. In one The ground of place he adapts for his own purpose the language of the relation between ruler and wing Wû in the Shû-ching:—'Heaven having produced the inferior people, appointed for them rulers and teachers, with the purpose that they should be assisting to God, and therefore distinguished them throughout the four quarters of the kingdom'.' But the question arises—How can this will of Heaven be known? Mencius has endeavoured to answer it. He says:—'Heaven gives the throne, but its appointment is not conferred with specific injunctions. Heaven does not speak. It shows its will by a man's personal conduct and his conduct of affairs.' The conclusion of the whole matter is:—'Heaven sees according as the people see; Heaven hears according as the people hear?'

1 Bk. VIL Pt. IL xiv.

³ Bk. L. Pt. II. viii.

It may not be easy to dispute these principles. I for one have no hesitation in admitting them. Their application, however, must always be attended with difficulty. Here is a sove-An unworthy ruler may be de-throned by his reign who is the very reverse of a minister of God for good. He ought to be removed, but who is to remove him? Mencius teaches in one passage that the duty is to be performed by his relatives who are also ministers. Hstan asked him about the office of chief ministers. Mencius said. 'Which chief ministers is your Majesty asking about?' 'Are there differences among them, inquired the king. 'There are,' was the reply; 'there are the chief ministers who are noble and relatives of the prince, and there are those who are of a different surname.' The king said, 'I beg to ask about the chief ministers who are noble and relatives of the prince.' Mencius answered, 'If the prince have great faults, they ought to remonstrate with him, and if he do not listen to them after they have done so again and again, they ought The king on this looked moved, and changed to dethrone him.' countenance. Mencius said, 'Let not your Majesty be offended. You asked me, and I dare not answer but according to truth:

This plan for disposing of an unworthy sovereign has been acted on in China and in other countries. It is the best that can be virtuous ministers, and the minister of Heaven, may dethrens a ruler. But where there are no relatives that have the virtue and power to play such a part, what is to be done? Mencius has two ways of meeting this difficulty. Contrary to his general rule for the conduct of ministers who are not relatives, he allows that even they may, under certain conditions, take summary measures with their sovereign. His disciple Kung-sun Ch'au said to him, 'I Yin said, "I cannot be near and see him so disobedient to reason," and therewith he banished Tai-chia to Tung. The people were much pleased. When T'ai-chia became virtuous, he brought him back, and the people were again much pleased. When worthies are ministers, may they indeed banish their sovereigns in this way when they are not virtuous?' Mencius replied, 'If they have the same purpose as I Yin, they may. If they have not the same purpose, it would be usurpation ".' His grand device, however, is what he calls 'the minister of Heaven.' When the sovereign has become worthless and useless, his hope is that Heaven will raise up some one for the help of the people; -- some one who shall so occupy in his original subordinate position as to draw all eves and hearts to himself. Let him then raise the standard, not of rebellion, but of righteousness4, and he cannot help attaining to the highest dignity. So it was with the great Tang; so it was with the kings Wan and Wû. Of the last Mencius says :-- 'There was one man'-i.e. the tyrant Chau-'pursuing a violent and disorderly course in the kingdom, and king Wt was ashamed of it. By one display of his anger, he gave repose to all the people. would have been glad if any one of the princes of his own time had been able to vault in a similar way to the sovereign throne, and he went about counselling them to the attempt. 'Let your Majesty,' said he to king Hstan, 'in like manner, by one burst of anger, give repose to all the people of the nation.' This was in fact advising to rebellion, but the philosopher would have recked little of such a charge. The house of Chau had forfeited in his view its title to the kingdom. Alas! among all the princes he had to do with, he did not find one who could be stirred to so honourable an action.

¹ Bk. I. Pt. II. iii. 7. ² Bk. V. Pt. I. v. ³ Bk. V. Pt. II. ix.

We need not wonder that Mencius, putting forth the above views so boldly and broadly, should not be a favourite with the rulers of China. His sentiments, professed by the literati, and known and read by all the people, have operated powerfully to compel the good behaviour of 'the powers that be.' It may be said that they encourage the aims of selfish ambition, and the lawlessness of the licentious mob. I grant it. They are lessons for the virtuous, and not for the lawless and disobedient, but the government of China would have been more of a grinding despotism, if it had not been for them.

On the readiness of the people to be governed Mencius only differs from Confucius in the more vehement style in which he expresses his views. He does not dwell so much on The influence the influence of personal virtue, and I pointed out, in of personal charthe sketch of his Life, how he all but compromised his character in his communications with king Hstan, telling him that his love of women, of war, and of wealth might be so regulated as not to interfere with his exercise of true royal government. Still he speaks at times correctly and emphatically on this subject. He quotes Confucius's language on the influence generally of superiors on inferiors, -that 'the relation between them is like that between the wind and grass; the grass must bend when the wind blows upon it1, and he says himself:-- 'It is not enough to remonstrate with a sovereign on account of the mal-employment of ministers, nor to blame errors of government. It is only the great man who can rectify what is wrong in the sovereign's mind. Let the prince be benevolent, and all his acts will be benevolent. Let the prince be righteous, and all his acts will be righteous. Let the prince be correct, and all his acts will be correct. Once rectify the prince, and the kingdom will be firmly settled "."

But the misery which he saw around him, in consequence of the prevailing anarchy and constant wars between State and State, led Mencius to insist on the necessity of what he called 'a benevolent government.' The king Hsiang asked him, 'Who can unite the kingdom under one sway?' and his reply was, 'He who has no pleasure in killing men can so unite it'.' His being so possessed with the sad condition of his time likewise gave occasion, we may suppose, to the utterance of another sentiment sufficiently remarkable. 'Never,' said he, 'has he who would by his excellence subdue men been able to subdue them. Let a prince seek by his excellence to nourish men, and he will be able to subdue the whole kingdom. It is impossible that any one should become ruler of the kingdom to whom it has not yielded the subjection of the heart'.' The highest style of excellence will of course have its outgoings in benevolence. Apart from that, it will be powerless, as Mencius says. His words are akin to those of Paul: - Scarcely for a righteous man will one die: yet peradventure for a good man some would even dare to die.'

¹ Bk. III. Pt. I. ii. 4. ² Bk. IV. Pt. I. xx. ³ Bk. I. Pt. I. vi. ⁴ Bk. IV. Pt. II. xvi.

On the effects of a benevolent rule he says:—'Chieh and Chau's losing the throne arose from their losing the people; and to lose the people means to lose their hearts. There is a way to get the throne: -get the people, and the throne is got. There is a way to get the people:—get their hearts, and the people are got. There is a way to get their hearts:—it is simply to collect for them what they like, and not to lay on them what they dislike. The people turn to a benevolent rule as water flows downwards, and as wild beasts fly to the wilderness. As the otter aids the deep waters, driving the fish into them, and as the hawk aids the thickets, driving the little birds to them, so Chieh and Chau aided Tang and Wû, driving the people to them. If among the present sovereigns of the kingdom there were one who loved benevolence, all the other princes would aid him by driving the people to him. Although he wished not to become sovereign, he could not avoid becoming so 1.'

Two principal elements of this benevolent rule, much insisted on by Mencius, deserve to be made prominent. They are to be found indicated in the Analects, and in the older To make the people prosperous, and Classics also, but it was reserved for our philosopher to educate them, are important elements in a benevo- and to show the connexion between them. are:--that the people be made well off, and that they be educated; and the former is necessary in order to the efficiency of the other.

Once, when Confucius was passing through Wei in company with Yen Yû, he was struck with the populousness of the State. disciple said, 'Since the people are thus numerous, what more shall be done for them?' Confucius answered, 'Enrich them.' 'And when they have been enriched, what more shall be done for them?' The reply was—'Teach them .' This brief conversation contains the germs of the ideas on which Mencius delighted to dwell.

We read in one place :-- 'Let it be seen to that their fields of grain and hemp are well cultivated, and make the taxes on them light:so the people may be made rich.

1 Bk. IV. Pt. I. ix.

² Confucian Analocts, XIII. ix.

'Let it be seen to that they use their resources of food seasonably, and expend their wealth only on the prescribed ceremonies:—so their wealth will be more than can be consumed.

'The people cannot live without water and fire; yet if you kneck at a man's door in the dusk of the evening, and ask for water and fire, there is no man who will not give them, such is the abundance of these things. A sage governs the kingdom so as to cause pulse and grain to be as abundant as water and fire. When pulse and grain are as abundant as water and fire, how shall the people be other than virtuous¹?'

Again he says:—'In good years the youth of a country are most of them good, while in bad years they abandon themselves to evil'.'

It is in his conversations, however, with king Hstan of Ch'i and duke Wan of Tang, that we find the fullest exposition of the points 'It is only scholars'—officers, men of a superior order— 'who, without a certain livelihood, are able to maintain a fixed heart. As to the people, if they have not a certain livelihood, it follows that they will not have a fixed heart. And if they have not a fixed heart, there is nothing which they will not do in the way of self-abandonment, of moral deflection, of depravity, and of wild When they have thus been involved in crime, to follow them up and punish them:—this is to entrap the people. fore an intelligent ruler will regulate the livelihood of the people, so as to make sure that, above, they shall have sufficient wherewith to serve their parents, and, below, sufficient wherewith to support their wives and children; that in good years they shall always be abundantly satisfied, and that in bad years they shall escape the danger of perishing. After this he may urge them, and they will proceed to what is good, for in this case the people will follow after that with ease ...

It is not necessary to remark here on the measures which Mencius recommends in order to secure a certain livelihood for the people. They embrace the regulation both of agriculture and commerce. And education would be directed simply to illustrate the human relations. What he says on these subjects is not without shrewdness, though many of his recommendations are inappropriate to the present state of society in China itself as well as in other countries. But his principle, that good government should contemplate, and

Bk. VII. Pt. I. xxiii.
 Bk. VI. Pt. I. vii.
 Bk. I. Pt. I. vii. 20, 21; Bk. III. Pt. I.
 Bk. III. Pt. I. iii; Bk. I. Pt. II. iv; Bk. II. Pt. I. v, et al.
 Bk. III. Pt. I. iii, 10.
 VOL. II.

will be seen in, the material wellbeing of the people, is worthy of all honour. Whether government should interfere to secure the education of the people is questioned by not a few. The religious denomination to which I have the honour to belong has distinguished itself by opposing such a doctrine in England,—more zealously perhaps than wisely. But when Mencius teaches that with the mass of men education will have little success where the life is embittered by a miserable poverty, he shows himself well acquainted with human nature. Educationists now seem generally to recognise it, but I think it is only within a century that it has assumed in Europe the definiteness and importance with which it appeared to Mencius here in China two thousand years ago.

We saw how Mencius, when he was residing in T'ang, came into contact with a class of enthusiasts, who advocated a return to the primitive state of society,

'When Adam delved and Eve span.'

They said that wise and able princes should cultivate the ground equally and along with their people, and eat the fruit of their labour,

Necessity for a division of labour, an oppressing of the people.' Mencius exposed these ment be conducted errors very happily, showing the necessity to society of a division of labour, and that the conduct of government should be in the hands of a lettered class. 'I suppose,' he said to a follower of the strange doctrines, 'that Hsü Hsing sows grain and eats the produce. Is it not so?' 'It is so,' was the answer. 'I suppose that he also weaves cloth, and wears his own manu-Is it not so?' 'No; Hsu wears clothes of hair-cloth.' 'Does he wear a cap?' 'He wears a cap.' 'What kind of cap?' 'A plain cap.' 'Is it woven by himself?' 'No; he gets it in exchange for grain.' 'Why does Hsu not weave it himself?' 'That would injure his husbandry.' 'Does Hsu cook his food in boilers and earthenware pans, and does he plough with an iron share?' 'Yes.' 'Does he make those articles himself?' 'No; he gets them in exchange for grain.' On these admissions Mencius proceeds:-- The getting those various articles in exchange for grain is not oppressive to the potter and the founder, and the potter and the founder in their turn, in exchanging their various articles for grain, are not oppressive to the husbandman. How should such a thing be supposed? But why does not Hsu, on his principles, act the potter and founder, supplying himself with the articles which he uses solely from his own establishment? Why does he go confusedly dealing and exchanging with the handicraftsmen? Why does he not spare himself so much trouble?' His opponent attempted a reply:—'The business of the handicraftsman can by no means be carried on along with the business of husbandry.' Mencius resumed:—'Then, is it the government of the kingdom which alone can be carried on along with the practice of husbandry? Great men have their proper business, and little men have their proper business. Moreover, in the case of any single individual, whatever articles he can require are ready to his hand, being produced by the various handicraftsmen;—if he must first make them for his own use, this way of doing would keep all the people running about upon the roads. Hence there is the saying:-- "Some men labour with their minds, and some with their strength. Those who labour with their minds govern others; those who labour with their strength are governed by others. Those who are governed by others.support them; those who govern others are supported by them." This is a principle universally recognised.'

Sir John Davis has observed that this is exactly Pope's line,

'And those who think still govern those who toil'.'

Mencius goes on to illustrate it very clearly by referring to the labours of Yao and Shun. His opponent makes a feeble attempt at the end to say a word in favour of the new doctrines he had embraced:- 'If Hsti's doctrines were followed there would not be two prices in the market, non any deceit in the kingdom. If a boy were sent to the market, no one would impose on him; linen and silk of the same length would be of the same price. So it would be with bundles of hemp and silk, being of the same weight; with the different kinds of grain, being the same in quantity; and with shoes which were the same in size.' Mencius meets this with a decisive reply:—'It is the nature of things to be of unequal quality; some are twice, some five times, some ten times, some a hundred times, some a thousand times, some ten thousand times as valuable as others. If you reduce them all to the same standard, that must throw the world into confusion. If large shoes were of the same price with small shoes, who would make them?

¹ Bk. III. Pt. L iv.

² The Chinese, vol. ii. p. 56.

people to follow the doctrines of Hsti would be for them to lead one another on to practise deceit. How can they avail for the government of a State?'

There is only one other subject which I shall here notice, with Mencius's opinions upon it,—the position, namely, which he occupied himself with reference to the princes of his time. He Mencius's calls it that of 'a Teacher,' but that term in our position as language very inadequately represents it. He wished to meet with some ruler who would look to him as 'guide, philosopher, and friend,' regulating himself by his counsels, and thereafter committing to him the entire administration of his Such men, he insisted, there had been in China government. from the earliest ages. Shun had been such to Yao; Yü and Kao-yao had been such to Shun; I Yin had been such to Tang; Tai-kung Wang had been such to king Wan; Chau-kung had been such to the kings Wu and Chang; Confucius might have been such to any prince who knew his merit; Tsze-sze was such, in a degree, to the dukes Hûi of Pî and Mû of Lû1. The wandering scholars of his own day, who went from court to court, sometimes with good intentions and sometimes with bad, pretended to this character; but Mencius held them in abhorrence. They disgraced the character and prostituted it, and he stood forth as its vindicator and true exemplifier.

Never did Christian priest lift up his mitred front, or show his shaven crown, or wear his Geneva gown, more loftily in courts and palaces than Mencius, the Teacher, demeaned himself. We have seen what struggles sometimes arose between him and the princes who would fain have had him bend to their power and place. 'Those,' said he, 'who give counsel to the great should despise them, and not look at their pomp and display. Halls several fathoms high, with beams projecting several cubits:—these, if my wishes were to be realised, I would not have. Food spread before me over ten cubits square, and attendant women to the amount of hundreds:—these, though my wishes were realised, I would not have. Pleasure and wine, and the dash of hunting, with thousands of chariots following after me:—these, though my wishes were realised, I would not have. What they esteem are what I would have nothing to do with; what I esteem are the rules of the ancients.—Why should

1 See Bk. V. Pt. II. iii. vii, et al.

I stand in awe of them¹?' Before we bring a charge of pride against Mencius on account of this language and his conduct in accordance with it, we must bear in mind that the literati in China do in reality occupy the place of priests and ministers in Christian kingdoms. Sovereign and people have to seek the law at their lips. The ground on which they stand,—'the rules of the ancients,'—affords but poor footing compared with the Word of God; still it is to them the truth, the unalterable law of right and duty, and, as the expounders of it, they have to maintain a dignity which will not compromise its claims. That 'scholars are the first and head of the four classes of the people' is a maxim universally admitted. I do desiderate in Mencius any approach to humility of soul, but I would not draw my illustrations of the defect from the boldness of his speech and deportment as 'a Teacher.'

But in one respect I am not sure but that our philosopher failed to act worthy of the character which he thus assumed. The great men to whom he was in the habit of referring as his The charge against him of living on the princes. patterns nearly all rose from deep poverty to their subsequent eminence. 'Shun came from among the channelled fields; Fû Yüeh was called to office from the midst of his building-frames; Kao Ko from his fish and salts.' 'I Yin was a farmer in Hsin. When Tang sent persons with presents of silk, to entreat him to enter his service, he said, with an air of indifference and self-satisfaction. "What can I do with those silks with which Tang invites me? Is it not best for me to abide in the channelled fields, and there delight myself with the principles of Yao and Shun'?"' It does not appear that any of those worthies accepted favours while they were not in office, or from men whom they disapproved. With Mencius it was very different: he took largely from the princes whom he lectured and denounced. Possibly he might plead in justification the example of Confucius, but he carried the practice to a greater extent than that sage had ever done,—to an extent which staggered even his own disciples and elicited their frequent inquiries. For instance, 'P'ang Kang asked him, saying, "Is it not an extravagant procedure to go from one prince to another and live upon them, followed by several tens of carriages, and attended by several hundred men?" Mencius replied, 'If there be not a proper ground for taking it, a single bemboo-cup of rice may not be received from a man. If there be such a proper ground, then Shun's receiving the empire from Yao is not to be considered excessive. Do you think it was excessive?' 'No,' said the other, 'but for a scholar performing no service to receive his support notwithstanding is improper.' Mencius answered, 'If you do not have an intercommunication of the productions of labour, and an interchange of men's services, so that one from his overplus may supply the deficiency of another, then husbandmen will have a superfluity of grain, and women will have a superfluity of cloth. If you have such an interchange, carpenters and carriage-wrights may all get their food from you. Here now is a man who, at home, is filial, and, abroad, respectful to his elders, and who watches over the principles of the ancient kings, awaiting the rise of future learners,and yet you will refuse to support him. How is it that you give honour to the carpenter and carriage-wright, and slight him who practises benevolence and righteousness?' Pang Kang said, 'The aim of the carpenter and carriage-wright is by their trades to seek for a living. Is it also the aim of the superior man in his practice of principles to seek for a living?' 'What have you to do,' returned Mencius, 'with his purpose? He is of service to you. He deserves to be supported, and should be supported. And let me ask-Do you remunerate a man's intention, or do you remunerate his service?' To this Kang replied, 'I remunerate his intention.' Mencius said, 'There is a man here who breaks your tiles and draws unsightly figures on your walls;—his purpose may be thereby to seek for his living, but will you indeed remunerate him?' 'No,' said Kang; and Mencius then concluded, 'That being the case, it is not the purpose which you remunerate, but the work done1.

¹ Bk. VII. Pt. II. xxxiv. This passage was written on the pillars of a hall in College Street, East, where the gospel was first preached publicly by myself in their own tongue to the people of Canton, in February, 1858.

² Bk.VI. Pt. II. xv. 1.

³ Bk.V. Pt. I. vii. 2, 3.

The ingenuity of Mencius in the above conversation will not be questioned. The position from which he starts in his defence, that society is based on a division of labour and an interchange of services, is sound, and he fairly hits and overthrows his disciples on the point that we remunerate a man not for his aim but for his work done. But he does not quite meet the charge against himself. This will better appear from another brief conversation with Kung-sun Ch'au on the same subject. 'It is said, in the Book of Poetry,' observed Chau,

"He will not eat the bread of idleness."

1 Bk. III. Pt. II. iv.

How is it that we see superior men eating without labouring?' Mencius replied, 'When a superior man resides in a country, if the sovereign employ his counsels, he comes to tranquillity, wealth, honour, and glory; if the young in it follow his instructions, they become filial, obedient to their elders, true-hearted, and faithful.—What greater example can there be than this of not eating the bread of idleness¹?'

The argument here is based on the supposition that the superior man has free course, is appreciated by the sovereign, and venerated and obeyed by the people. But this never was the case with Mencius. Only once, the short time that he was in Tang, did a ruler listen favourably to his counsels. His lessons, it may be granted, were calculated to be of the greatest benefit to the communities where he was, but it is difficult to see the 'work done,' for which he could claim the remuneration. His reasoning might very well be applied to vindicate a government's extending its patronage to literary men. where it recognised in a general way the advantages to be derived from their pursuits. Still more does it accord with that employed in western nations where ecclesiastical establishments form one of the institutions of a country. The members belonging to them must have their maintenance, independently of the personal character of the rulers. But Mencius's position was more that of a reformer. His claims were of those of his personal merit. It seems to me that Pang Kang had reason to doubt the propriety of his course, and characterise it as extravagant.

Another disciple, Wan Chang, pressed him very closely with the inconsistency of his taking freely the gifts of the princes on whom he was wont to pass sentence so roundly. Mencius had insisted that, where the donor offered his gift on a ground of reason and in a manner accordant with propriety, even Confucius would have received it. 'Here now,' said Chang, 'is one who stops and robs people outside the city gates. He offers his gift on a ground of reason and in a proper manner;—would it be right to receive it so acquired by robbery?' The philosopher of course said it would not, and the other pursued:—'The princes of the present day take from their people just as a robber despoils his victim. Yet if they put a good face of propriety on their gifts, the superior man receives them. I venture to ask you to explain this.' Mencius answered:—

Bk. VII. Pt I. xxxii.

'Do you think that, if there should arise a truly imperial sovereign, he would collect the princes of the present day and put them all to death? Or would he admonish them, and then, on their not changing their ways, put them to death? Indeed to call every one who takes what does not properly belong to him a robber, is pushing a point of resemblance to the utmost, and insisting on the most refined idea of righteousness.'

Here again we must admire the ingenuity of Mencius; but it amuses us more than it satisfies. It was very well for him to maintain his dignity as 'a Teacher,' and not go to the princes when they called him, but his refusal would have had more weight, if he had kept his hands clean from all their offerings. I have said above that if less awe-ful than Confucius, he is more admirable. Perhaps it would be better to say he is more brilliant. There is some truth in the saying of the scholar Ch'ang, that the one is the glass that glitters, and the other the jade that is truly valuable.

Without dwelling on other characteristics of Mencius, or culling from him other striking sayings,—of which there are many,—I proceed to exhibit and discuss his doctrine of the goodness of human nature.

5. If the remarks which I have just made on the intercourse of Mencius with the princes of his day have lowered him somewhat in the estimation of my readers, his doctrine of human nature; its identity with that of Bishop mular, and the force with which he advocates it, will not fail to produce a high appreciation of him as a moralist and thinker. In concluding my exhibition of the opinions of Confucius in the former volume, I have observed that 'he threw no light on any of the questions which have a world-wide interest.' This Mencius did. The constitution of man's nature, and how far it supplies to him a rule of conduct and a law of duty, are inquiries than which there can hardly be any others of more importance. They were largely discussed in the Schools of Greece. A hundred vigorous and acute minds of modern Europe have occupied themselves with them. It will hardly be questioned in England that the palm for clear and just thinking on the subject belongs to Bishop Butler, but it will presently be seen that his views and those of Mencius are, as nearly as possible, identical. There is a difference of nomenclature and a combination of parts, in which the advantage is with the Christian prelate. Felicity of illustration and charm of style belong to the Chinese philosopher. The doctrine in both is the same.

1 Bk.V. Pt. II. iv.

The utterances of Confucius on the subject of our nature were few and brief. The most remarkable is where he says:—'Man is view of Confactus. born for uprightness. If a man be without uprightness and yet live, his escape from death is the effect of mere good fortune. This is in entire accordance with Mencius's view, and as he appeals to the sage in his own support, though we cannot elsewhere find the words which he quotes, we may believe that Confucius would have approved of the sentiments of his follower, and frowned on those who have employed some of his sayings in confirmation of other conclusions. I am satisfied in my own mind on this point. His repeated enunciation of 'the golden rule,' though only in a negative form, is sufficient evidence of it.

The opening sentence of 'The Doctrine of the Mean,'—'What Heaven has conferred is called THE NATURE; an accordance with

The path is called THE PATH; the regulation of the path is called INSTRUCTION,—finds a much better illustration from Mencius than from Tsze-sze himself. The germ of his doctrine lies in it. We saw reason to discard the notion that he was a pupil of Tsze-sze; but he was acquainted with his treatise just named, and as he has used some other parts of it, we may be surprised that in his discussions on human nature he has made no reference to the above passage.

What gave occasion to his dwelling largely on the theme was the prevalence of wild and injurious speculations about it. In Prevalent view of man's nature in Kung-tû, one of his disciples, once went to him and said, 'The philosopher Kao says:—"Man's nature is neither good nor bad." Some say:—"Man's nature may be made to practise good, and it may be made to practise evil; and accordingly, under Wan and Wû, the people loved what was good, while, under Yû and Lî, they loved what was cruel." Others say:—"The nature of some is good, and the nature of others is bad. Hence it was that under such a sovereign as Yao there yet appeared Hsiang; that with such a father as Kû-sâu there yet appeared Shun; and that with Chau for their sovereign, and the son of their elder brother besides, there were found Ch'i, the viscount of Wei, and the prince Pi-kan." And now you say:—"The nature is good." Then are all those opinions wrong 1?"

'Analests, VI. xvii. 'Bk. VI. Pt. I. vi. 8; viii. 4. 'See the annotations of the editor of Yang-tsze's (楊子, the 楊 is often written 楊) Work, 俗身篇, in the 十子全警 (vol. i. proleg. p. 132).

'The nature of man is good,'—this was Mencius's doctrine. By many writers it has been represented as entirely antagonistic to Christianity; and, as thus broadly and briefly enunciated, it sounds startling enough. As fully explained by himself, however, it is not so very terrible. Butler's scheme has been designated 'the system of Zeno baptised into Christ'.' That of Mencius, identifying closely with the master of the Porch, is yet more susceptible of a similar transformation.

But before endeavouring to make this statement good, it will be well to make some observations on the opinion of the philosopher He was a contemporary of Mencius, and they Kao. View of the philosopher Kao. came into argumentative collision. One does not see immediately the difference between his opinion, as stated by Kung-ta, and the next. Might not man's nature, though neither good nor bad, be made to practise the one or the other? Kao's view went to deny any essential distinction between good and evil,—virtue and vice. A man might be made to act in a way commonly called virtue and in a way commonly called evil, but in the one action there was really nothing more approvable than in the other. 'Life,' he said, 'was what was meant by nature'.' The phenomena of benevolence and righteousness were akin to those of walking and sleeping, eating and seeing. This extravagance afforded scope for Mencius's favourite mode of argument, the reductio ad absurdum. He showed, on Kao's principles, that 'the nature of a dog was like the nature of an ox, and the nature of an ox like the nature of a man.'

The two first conversations between them are more particularly worthy of attention, because, while they are a confutation of his Mencius's exposure of KAo's errors, and statement of his own doctrine. opponent, they indicate clearly our philosopher's own theory. Kão compared man's nature to a willow tree, and benevolence and righteousness to the cups and bowls that might be fashioned from its wood. Mencius replied that it was not the nature of the willow to produce cups and bowls; they might be made from it indeed, by bending and

¹ Bk. VI. Pt. I. vi. 1-4.

² Wardlaw's Christian Ethics, edition of 1833, p. 119.

³ Bk. VI. Pt. I. iii

⁴ Bk. VI. Pt. I. i. ii.

cutting and otherwise injuring it; but must humanity be done such violence to in order to fashion the virtues from it? Kao again compared the nature to water whirling round in a corner:open a passage for it in any direction, and it will flow forth accordingly. 'Man's nature,' said he, 'is indifferent to good and evil, just as the water is indifferent to the east and west.' Mencius answered him:-- Water indeed will flow indifferently to the east or west, but will it flow indifferently up or down? The tendency of man's nature to good is like the tendency of water to flow downwards. There are none but have this tendency to good. just as all water flows downwards. By striking water and causing it to leap up, you may make it go over your forehead, and, by damming and leading it, you may force it up a hill; but are such movements according to the nature of water? It is the force applied which causes them. When men are made to do what is not good, their nature is dealt with in this way.'

Mencius has no stronger language than this, as indeed it would be difficult to find any stronger, to declare his belief in the goodness of human nature. To many Christian readers it proves a stumblingblock and offence. But I venture to think that this is without sufficient reason. He is speaking of our nature in its ideal, and not as it actually is,—as we may ascertain from the study of it that it ought to be, and not as it is made to become. My rendering of the sentences last quoted may be objected to, because of my introduction of the term tendency; but I have Mencius's express sanction for the representation I give of his meaning. Replying to Kung-th's question, whether all the other opinions prevalent about man's nature were wrong, and his own, that it is good, correct, he said:-From the feelings proper to it, we see that it is constituted for the practice of what is good. This is what I mean in saying that the nature is good. If men do what is not good, the blame cannot be imputed to their natural powers 1.' Those who find the most fault with him, will hardly question the truth of this last declaration. When a man does wrong, whose is the blame,—the sin? He might be glad to roll the guilt on his Maker, or upon his nature,—which is only an indirect charging of his Maker with it:-but it is his own burden, which he must bear himself.

The proof by which Mencius supports his view of human nature

¹ Bk. YI. Pt. I. vi. 5, 6.

as formed only for virtue is twofold. First, he maintains that there Proofs that human nature is formed for virtue—First, from its moral constituare in man a natural principle of benevolence, a natural principle of righteousness, a natural principle of propriety, and a natural principle of apprehending moral truth. 'These,' he says, 'are not infused into us from without. We are certainly possessed of them; and a different view is simply from want of reflection 1.' In further illustration of this he argued thus:-- 'All men have a mind which cannot bear to see the sufferings of others; -my meaning may be illustrated thus; -- Even now-a-days,' i.e. in these degenerate times, 'if men suddenly see a child about to fall into a well, they will without exception experience a feeling of alarm and distress. They will feel so, not as a ground on which they may gain the favour of the child's parents, nor as a ground on which they may seek the praise of their neighbours and friends, nor from a dislike to the reputation of having been unmoved by such a thing. From this case we may see that the feeling of commiseration is essential to man, that the feeling of shame and dislike is essential to man. that the feeling of modesty and complaisance is essential to man, and that the feeling of approval and disapproval is essential to These feelings are the principles respectively of benevolence, righteousness, propriety, and the knowledge of good and evil. Men have these four principles just as they have their four limbs2.

Let all this be compared with the language of Butler in his three famous Sermons upon Human Nature. He shows in the first of these:—'First, that there is a natural principle of benevolence in man; secondly, that the several passions and affections, which are distinct both from benevolence and self-love, do in general contribute and lead us to public good as really as to private; and thirdly, that there is a principle of reflection in men, by which they distinguish between, approve and disapprove their own actions.'

¹ Bk. VI. Pt. I. vi. 7.

² Bk. II. Pt. I. vi. 3, 4, 5, 6.

² I am indebted to Butler for fully understanding Mencius's fourth feeling, that of approving and disapproving, which he calls 'the principle of knowledge,' or wisdom. In the notes, Bk. II. Pt. I. vi. 5, I have said that he gives to this term 'a moral sense.' It is the same with Butler's principle of reflection, by which men distinguish between, and approve or disapprove, their own actions.—I have heard gentlemen speak contemptuously of Mencius's case in point, to prove the existence of a feeling of benevolence in man. 'This,' they have said, 'is Mencius's idea of virtue, to save a child from falling into a well. A mighty display of virtue, truly!' Such language arises from misconceiving Mencius's object in putting the case. 'If there be,' says Butler, 'any affection in human nature, the object and end of which is the good of another, this is itself benevolence. Be it ever so short, be it in ever so low a degree, or ever so unhappily confined, it proves the assertion and points out what we were designed for, as

Is there anything more in this than was apprehended and expressed by Mencius? Butler says in the conclusion of his first discourse that 'Men follow their nature to a certain degree but not entirely; their actions do not come up to the whole of what their nature leads them to; and they often violate their nature.' This also Mencius declares in his own forceful manner:—'When men having these four principles, yet say of themselves that they cannot develop them, they play the thief with themselves, and he who says of his prince that he cannot develop them, plays the thief with his prince.' 'Men differ from one another in regard to the principles of their nature;—some as much again as others, some five times as much, and some to an incalculable amount:—it is because they cannot carry out fully their natural powers?'

So much for the first or preliminary view of human nature insisted on by Mencius, that it contains principles which are disinterested and virtuous. But there wants something more to make good the position that virtue ought to be supreme, and that it is for it, in opposition to vice, that our nature is formed. To use some of the 'licentious talk' which Butler puts into the mouth of an opponent:—'Virtue and religion require not only that we do good to others, when we are led this way, by benevolence and reflection happening to be stronger than other principles, passions, or appetites; but likewise that the whole character be formed upon thought and reflection; that every action be directed by some determinate rule, some other rule than the strength or prevalence of any principle or passion. What sign is there in our nature (for the inquiry is only about what is to be collected from thence) that this was intended by its Author? Or how does so various and fickle a temper as that of man appear adapted thereto? . . . As brutes have various instincts, by which they are carried on to the end the Author of their nature intended them for, is not man in the same condition, with this difference really as though it were in a higher degree and more extensive." 'It is sufficient that the seeds of it be implanted in our nature.' The illustration from a child falling into a well must be prenounced a keppy one. How much lower Mencius could go may be seen from his conversation with king Hstan, Bk. I. Pt. I. vii, whom he leads to a consciousness of his commissrating mind from the fact that he had not been able to bear the frightened appearance of an ox which was being led by to be killed, and ordered it to be spared. The kindly heart that was moved by the suffering of an animal had only to be carried out, to suffice for the love and protection of all within the four seas.

Second proof that human nature is formed for virtue: —that it is a constitution, where the higher principles abould serve the lower.

¹ Bk. II. Pt. I. vi. 6. ² Bk. VI. Pt. I. vi. γ.

only, that to his instincts (i.e. appetites and passions) is added the principle of reflection or conscience? And as brutes act agreeably to their nature in following that principle or particular instinct which for the present is strongest in them; does not man likewise act agreeably to his nature, or obey the law of his creation, by following that principle, be it passion or conscience, which for the present happens to be strongest in him? . . . Let every one then quietly follow his nature; as passion, reflection, appetite, the several parts of it, happen to be the strongest; but let not the man of virtue take it upon him to blame the ambitious, the covetous, the dissolute; since these, equally with him, obey and follow their nature 1.'

To all this Butler replies by showing that the principle of reflection or conscience is 'not to be considered merely as a principle in the heart, which is to have some influence as well as others, but as a faculty, in kind and in nature, supreme over all others, and which bears its own authority of being so; that the difference between this and the other constituents of human nature is not 'a difference in strength or degree,' but 'a difference in nature and in kind;' that 'it was placed within to be our proper governor; to direct and regulate all under principles, passions, and motives of action:—this is its right and office; thus sacred is its authority.' It follows from the view of human nature thus established, that 'the inward frame of man is a system or constitution; whose several parts are united. not by a physical principle of individuation, but by the respects they have to each other, the chief of which is the subjection which the appetites, passions, and particular affections have to the one supreme principle of reflection or conscience 2.'

Now, the substance of this reasoning is to be found in Mencius. Human nature—the inward frame of man—is with him a system or constitution as much as with Butler. He says, for instance:—'There is no part of himself which a man does not love; and as he loves all, so he must nourish all. There is not an inch of skin which he does not love, and so there is not an inch of skin which he will not nourish. For examining whether his way of nourishing be good or not, what other rule is there but this, that he determine by reflecting on himself where it should be applied?

'Some parts of the body are noble and some ignoble; some great

¹ See Sermon Second.

² See note to Sermon Third.

and some small. The great must not be injured for the small, nor the noble for the ignoble. He who nourishes the little belonging to him is a little man, and he who nourishes the great is a great man 1.

Again:—'Those who follow that part of themselves which is great are great men; those who follow that part which is little are little men.

The great part of ourselves is the moral elements of our constitution; the lower part is the appetites and passions that centre in self. He says finely:—'There is a nobility of Heaven, and there is a nobility of man. Benevolence, righteousness, self-consecration, and fidelity, with unwearied joy in what is good;—these constitute the nobility of Heaven. To be a duke, a noble, or a great officer;—this constitutes the nobility of man 3.'

There is one passage very striking:—'For the mouth to desire sweet tastes, the eye to desire beautiful colours, the ear to desire pleasant sounds, the nose to desire fragrant odours, and the four limbs to desire ease and rest;—these things are natural. But there is the appointment of Heaven in connexion with them; and the superior man does not say of his pursuit of them, "It is my nature." The exercise of love between father and son, the observance of righteousness between sovereign and minister, the rules of ceremony between host and guest, the display of knowledge in recognising the worthy, and the fulfilling the heavenly course by the sage;—these are the appointment of Heaven. But there is an adaptation of our nature for them; and the superior man does not say, in reference to them, "It is the appointment of Heaven 4.""

From these paragraphs it is quite clear that what Mencius considered as deserving properly to be called the nature of man, was not that by which he is a creature of appetites and passions, but that by which he is lifted up into the higher circle of intelligence and virtue. By the phrase, 'the appointment of Heaven,' most Chinese scholars understand the will of Heaven, limiting in the first case the gratification of the appetites, and in the second the exercise of the virtues. To such limitation Mencius teaches there ought to be a cheerful submission so far as the appetites are concerned, but where the virtues are in question, we are to be striving after them notwithstanding adverse and opposing circumstances. They are

¹ Bk. VI. Pt. I. xiv. ² Bk. VI. Pt. I. xv. ³ Bk. VI. Pt. I. xvi. ⁴ Bk. VII. Pt. II. xxiv.

OUR NATURE, what we were made for, what we have to do. I will refer but to one other specimen of his teaching on this subject. 'The will,' he said, using that term for the higher moral nature in activity,—'the will is the leader of the passion-nature. The passion-nature pervades and animates the body. The will is first and chief, and the passion-nature is subordinate to it 1.'

My readers can now judge for themselves whether I exaggerated at all in saying that Mencius's doctrine of human nature was, as nearly as possible, identical with that of Bishop Butler. Sir James Mackintosh has said of the sermons to which I have made reference. and his other cognate discourses, that in them Butler 'taught truths more capable of being exactly distinguished from the doctrines of his predecessors, more satisfactorily established by him, more comprehensively applied to particulars, more rationally connected with each other, and therefore more worthy of the name of discovery, than any with which we are acquainted; if we ought not, with some hesitation, to except the first steps of the Grecian philosophers towards a Theory of Morals ?.' It is to be wished that the attention of this great scholar had been called to the writings of our philosopher. Mencius was senior to Zeno, though a portion of their lives synchronised. Butler certainly was not indebted to him for the views which he advocated; but it seems to me that Mencius had left him nothing to discover.

But the question now arises—'Is the view of human nature propounded by Mencius correct?' So far as yet appears, I see not how the question can be answered otherwise than in The proper use of Mencius's the affirmative. Man was formed for virtue. Be it views thus far that his conduct is very far from being conformed to virtue, that simply fastens on him the shame of guilt. Fallen as he may be,—fallen as I believe and know he is,—his nature still bears its testimony, when properly interrogated, against all unrighteousness. Man, heathen man, a Gentile without the law, is still a law to himself. So the apostle Paul affirms; and to no moral teacher of Greece or Rome can we appeal for so grand an illustration of the averment as we find in Mencius. I would ask those whom his sayings offend, whether it would have been better for his countrymen if he had taught a contrary doctrine, and told them that man's nature is bad, and that the more they obeyed all its lusts and passions, the more would they be in accordance with it, and the more pursuing the right path? Such a question does not need a reply. The proper use of Mencius's principles is to reprove the Chinese—and ourselves as well—of the thousand acts of sin of which they and we are guilty, that come within their sweep and under their condemnation.

¹ Bk. II. Pt. I. ii. 9.

² Encyclopædia Britannica (8th edition), Second Preliminary Dissertation; on Butler.

From the ideal of man to his actualism there is a vast descent. Between what he ought to be and what he is, the contrast is

How Mencius admitted much actual evil, and how he accounted for it. melancholy. 'Benevolence,' said our philosopher, 'is the characteristic of man'.' It is 'the wide house in which the world should dwell,' while propriety is 'the correct position in which the world should ever be correct position in which the world should ever be found,' and righteourness is 'the great path which men should ever be pursuing 2. In opposition to this, however, hatred, improprieties, unrighteousness are constant phenomena of human life. We find men hateful and hating one another, quenching the light that is in them, and walking in darkness to perform all deeds of shame. 'There is none that doeth good; no, not one.' Mencius would have denied this last sentence, claiming that the sages should be excepted from it; but he is ready enough to admit the fact that men in general do evil and violate the law of their nature. They sacrifice the noble portion of themselves for the gratification of the ignoble; they follow that part which is little, and not that which is great. He can say nothing further in explanation of the fact. He points out indeed the effect of injurious circumstances, and the power of evil example; and he has said several things on these subjects worthy of notice:—'It is not to be wondered at that the king is not wise! Suppose the case of the most easily growing thing in the world;—if you let it have one day's genial heat, and then expose it for ten days to cold, it will not be able to grow. It is but seldom that I have an audience of the king, and when I retire, there come all those who act upon him like the cold. Though I succeed in bringing out some buds of goodness, of what avail is ita?' 'In good years the children of the people are most of them good, while in bad years the most of them abandon themselves to evil. It is not owing to their natural powers conferred on them by Heaven that they are thus different: the abandonment is owing to the circumstances through which they allow their minds to be

¹ Bk. VII. Pt. II. xvi.

² Bk. III. Pt. II. ii. 3.

³ Bk. VI. Pt. I. ix.

VOL. II.

F

ensnared and drowned in evil. There now is barley: let it be sown and covered up; the ground being the same, and the time of sowing likewise the same, it grows rapidly up, and when the full time is come, it is all found to be ripe. Any inequalities of produce will be owing to the difference of the soil as rich or poor, the unequal nourishment afforded by the rains and dews, and to the different ways in which man has performed his business.'

The inconsistencies in human conduct did not escape his observation. After showing that there is that in human nature which will sometimes make men part with life sooner than with righteousness, he goes on:- 'And yet a man will accept ten thousand chung without any consideration of propriety and righteousness. can they add to him? When he takes them, is it not that he may obtain beautiful mansions, that he may secure the services of wives and concubines, or that the poor and needy may be helped by him?' The scalpel is used here with a bold and skilful hand. The lust of the flesh, and the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life are laid bare, nor does our author stop, till he has exposed the subtle workings of the delusion that the end may sanctify the means, that evil may be wrought that good may come. He pursues:-- 'In the former case the offered bounty was not received, though it would have saved from death, and now the emolument is taken for the sake of beautiful The bounty that would have preserved from death was mansions. not received, and the emolument is taken to get the services of wives and concubines. The bounty that would have saved from death was not received, and the emolument is taken that one's poor and needy acquaintance may be helped. Was it then not possible likewise to decline this? This is a case of what is called—"Losing the proper nature of one's minda."'

To the principle implied in the concluding sentences of this quotation Mencius most pertinaciously adheres. He will not allow Original bad. that original badness can be predicated of human ness cannot be predicated from any amount of actual wickedness. 'The received from a trees,' said he, 'of the Niû Mountain were once beautiful. Being situated, however, in the borders of a large State, they were hewn down with axes and bills;—and could they retain their beauty! Still, through the activity of the vegetative life day and night, and the nourishing influence of the rain and dew, they were not without buds and sprouts springing forth;—but then came the cattle and goats, and browsed upon them. To these things is owing the bare and stripped appearance of the mountain, which when people see, they think it was never finely wooded. But is this the proper nature of the mountain? And so also of what properly belongs to man:-shall it be said that the mind of any man was without benevolence and righteousness! The way in which a man loses his proper goodness of mind is like the way in which the trees are denuded by axes and bills. Hewn down day after day, can the mind retain its beauty? But there is a development of its life day and night; and in the calm air of the morning, just between night and day, the mind feels in a degree the desires and aversions which are proper to humanity; but the feeling is not strong, and it is fettered and destroyed by what takes place during the day. This fettering takes place again and again; the restorative influence of the night is not sufficient to preserve the proper goodness of the mind; and when this proves insufficient for that purpose, the nature becomes not much different from that of the irrational animals, which when people see, they think that it never had those powers which I assert. But does this condition represent the feelings proper to humanity 1?

1 Bk. VI. Pt. I. vii.

³ Bk. VI. Pt. I. xii. 7, 8.

Up to this point I fail to perceive anything in Mencius's view of human nature that is contrary to the teachings of our Christian scriptures, and that may not be employed with advantage by the missionary in preaching the Gospel to the Chinese. It is far from covering what we know to be the whole duty of man, yet it is defective rather than erroneous. Deferring any consideration of this for a brief space, I now inquire whether Mencius, having an ideal of the goodness of human nature, held also that it had been and could be realised? The answer is that he did. The actual realisation he found in the sages, and he contended that it was within the reach of every individual. 'All things which are the same in kind,' he says, 'are like one another;—why should we doubt in regard to man, as if he were a solitary exception to this? The sage and we are the same in kind?' The feet, the mouths, the eyes of the sages were not different from those of other people, neither were their minds. 'Is it so,' he was once asked, 'that all men may be Yaos and Shuns?' and he answered, 'It is,' adding by way of explanation:—'To walk slowly, keeping behind his elders, is to perform the part of a younger brother, and to walk quickly and precede his elders is to violate that duty. Now, is it what a man cannot do,—to walk slowly? It is what he does not do. The course of Yao and Shun was simply that of filial piety and fraternal duty. Wear the clothes of Yao, repeat the words of Yao, and do the actions of Yao;—and you will just be a Yao.'.'

The actual perfection of the mages, and possible perfection of all.

1 Bk. VI. Pt. L viii. 1, 2.

Bk. VI. Pt. L vii. g.

Among the sages, however, Mencius made a distinction. Yao and Shun exceeded all the rest, unless it might be Confucius. Those three never came short of, never went beyond, the law of their nature. The ideal and the actual were in them always one and the same. The others had only attained to perfection by vigorous effort and culture. Twice at least he has told us this. 'Yao and Shun were what they were by nature; T'ang and Wû were so by returning to natural virtue?' The actual result, however, was the same, and therefore he could hold them all up as models to his countrymen of the style of man which they all ought to be and might be. What the compass and square were in the hands of the workman, enabling him to form perfect circles and squares, the sages, 'perfectly exhibiting the human relations,' might be to every earnest individual, enabling him to perfect himself as they were perfect?

Here we feel that the doctrine of Mencius wants an element which Revelation supplies. He knows nothing of the fact that 'by one Mencius's doctrine contains no scknowledgment of the universal pronences to evil. His ideal has been realised by sages, and may be realised by all. man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death pussed' (passed on, extended, διῆλθεν) to all men, because all sinned.' We have our ideal as well as he; but for the living reality of it we must go back to Adam, as he was made by God in His own image, after His likeness. In him the model is soon I we do not discover it again, till God's own Son shattered, and we do not discover it again, till God's own Son appears in the world, made in the likeness of sinful flesh, yet without sin. While He died for our transgressions, He left us also an example, that we should walk in His steps; and as we do so, we are carried on to glory and virtue. At the same time we find a law in our members warring against the law in our minds, and bringing us into captivity to sin. However we may strive after our ideal, we do not succeed in reaching it. The more we grow in the knowledge of Christ, and see in Him the glory of humanity in its true estate, the greater do we feel our own distance to be from it, and that of ourselves we cannot attain to it. There is something wrong about us; we need help from without in order to become even what our nature, apart from Revelation, tells us we ought to be.

¹ Bk. VI. Pt. II. ii. 1, 4, 5. ² Bk. VII. Pt. I. xxx. 1; Pt. II. xxxiii. 1. ³ Bk. IV. ⁴ Pt. I. ii. 1.

When Mencius therefore points us to Yao, Shun, and Confucius, and says that they were perfect, we cannot accept his statement. Understanding that he is speaking of them only in the sphere of human relations, we must yet believe that in many things they came short. One of them, the greatest of the three in Mencius's estimation, Confucius, again and again confesses so of himself. He was seventy years old, he says, before he could follow what his heart desired without transgressing what was right. It might have been possible to convince the sage that he was under a delusion in this important matter even at that advanced age; but what his language allows is sufficient to upset Mencius's appeal to him. The image of sagely perfection is broken by it. It proves to be but a brilliant and unsubstantial phantasm of our philosopher's own imagining.

When he insists again, that every individual may become what he fancies that the sages were, -i. e. perfect, living in love, walking in righteousness, observant of propriety, approving whatsoever is good, and disapproving whatever is evil,—he is pushing his doctrine beyond its proper limits; he is making a use of it of which it is not capable. It supplies a law of conduct, and I have set it forth as entitled to our highest admiration for the manner in which it does so; but law gives only the knowledge of what we are required to do; it does not give the power to do it. We have seen how when it was necessary to explain accurately his statement that the nature of man is good, Mencius defined it as meaning that 'it is constituted for the practice of that which is good.' Because it is so constituted, it follows that every man ought to practise what is good. But some disorganisation may have happened to the nature; some sad change may have come over it. The very fact that man has, in Mencius's own words, to recover his 'lost mind'.' shows that the object of the constitution of the nature has not been realised. Whether he can recover it or not, therefore, is a question altogether different from that of its proper design.

In one place, indeed, Mencius has said that 'the great man is he who does not lose his child's-heart 1.' I can only suppose that, by that expression—'the child's-heart,' he intends the ideal goodness which he affirms of our nature. But to attribute that to the child as actually existing in it is absurd. It has neither done good nor evil. It possesses the capacity for either. It will by-and-by awake to the consciousness that it ought to follow after the one and eschew the other; but when it does so,-I should rather say when he does so for the child has now emerged from a mere creature existence, and assumed the functions of a moral being, he will find that he has already given himself to inordinate affection for the objects of sense; and in the pursuit of gratification he is reckless of what must be acknowledged to be the better and nobler part, reckless also of the interest and claims of others, and glows, whenever thwarted, into passion and fury. The youth is more pliant than the man in whom the dominion of self-seeking has become ingrained as a habit; but no sooner does he become a subject of law, than he is aware of the fact that when he would do good, evil is present with him. The boy has to go in search of his 'lost heart,' as truly as the man of Even in him there is an 'old man, corrupt according to fourscore. the deceitful lusts,' which he has to put off.

¹ Confucian Analects, II. iv. 6. ² Bk.VI. Pt. I. xi. 4.

Butler had an immense advantage over Mencius, arising from his knowledge of the truths of Revelation. Many, admiring his sermons, have yet expressed a measure of dissatisfaction, because he does not in them make explicit reference to the condition of man as fallen and depraved. That he fully admitted the fact we know. He says elsewhere:—'Mankind are represented in scripture to be in a state of ruin.' 'If mankind are corrupted and depraved in their moral character, and so are unfit for that state which Christ is gone to prepare for His disciples; and if the assistance of God's Spirit be necessary to renew their nature, in the degree requisite to their being qualified for that state; all which is implied in the express, though figurative declaration, Except a man be born of the Spirit, he cannot see the kingdom of God'.'... How is it, then, that there is no mention of this in the sermons? Dissatisfaction, I have said, has been expressed on account of this silence, and it would have taken the form of more pointed utterance, and more decided condemnation, but for the awe of his great name, and the general appreciation of the service he rendered to Christianity in his work on 'The Analogy of Religion.' truth, dissatisfaction at all is out of place. Butler wrote his sermons as he wrote his Analogy, in consequence of the peculiar necessity More particularly against Hobbes, denying all moral of his times. sentiments and social affections, and making a regard to personal advantage the only motive of human action, it was his business to prove that man's nature is of a very different constitution, comprehending disinterested affections, and above all the supreme element of conscience, which, 'had it strength as it has right, would govern the world.' He proves this, and so accomplishes his work. He had merely to do with the ideal of humanity. It did not belong to him to dwell on the actual feebleness of man to perform what is good. He might have added a few paragraphs to this effect; but it was not the character of his mind to go beyond the task which he had set himself. What is of importance to be observed here is, that he does not make the application of their common principles which Mencius does. He knows of no perfect men; he does not tell his readers that they have merely to set about following their nature. and that, without any aid from without, they will surely and easily go on to perfection.

Butler's advantage over Mencius, and that he does not make the same application of their common principles.

¹ Bk. IV. Pt. II. xii. ² The Analogy of Religion, Part II. chap. i.

Mencius is not to be blamed for his ignorance of what is to us the Doctrine of the Fall. He had no means of becoming acquainted Mencius's lacking in humility, and sympathy with human nature produced in him no deep feeling on account of men's produced in him no deep feeling on account of the men's produced in him no deep feeling on account of the men's produced in him no deep feeling on account of the me account of men's proneness to go astray. He never betrays any consciousness of his own weakness. In this respect he is again inferior to Confucius, and is far from being, as I have said of him in another aspect of his character, 'more admirable' than In the former volume I have shown that we may sometimes he. recognise in what the sage says of himself the expressions of a genuine humility. He acknowledges that he comes short of what he knows he ought to be. We do not meet with this in Mencius. His merit is that of the speculative thinker. His glance is searching and his penetration deep; but there is wanting that moral sensibility which would draw us to him, in our best moments, as a man of like passions with ourselves. The absence of humility is naturally accompanied with a lack of sympathy. There is a hardness about his teachings. He is the professor, performing an operation in the class-room, amid a throng of pupils who are admiring his science and dexterity, and who forgets in the triumph of his skill the suffering of the patient. The transgressors of their nature are to Mencius 'the tyrants of themselves,' or 'the self-abandoned.' The utmost stretch of his commiseration is a contemptuous 'Alas for them'!' The radical defect of the orthodox moral school of China, that there only needs a knowledge of duty to insure its performance, is in him exceedingly apparent. Confucius, Tsze-sze, and Mencius, most strangely never thought of calling this principle in question. It is always as in the formula of Tsze-sze:—'Given the sincerity, and there shall be the intelligence; given the intelligence, and there shall be the sincerity.'

I said above that Mencius's doctrine of human nature was defective, inasmuch as even his ideal does not cover the whole field of duty. He says very little of what we owe Mencius's ideal to God. There is no glow of natural piety in his of human nature does not embrace pages. Instead of the name God, containing in duty to God. itself a recognition of the divine personality and supremacy, we hear from him more commonly, as from Confucius. Butler has said:—'By the love of God, I would of Heaven. understand all those regards, all those affections of mind, which are due immediately to Him from such a creature as man, and which rest in Him as their ends.' Of such affections Mencius knows nothing. In one place he speaks of 'delighting in Heaven',' but he is speaking, when he does so, of the sovereign who with a great State serves a small one, and the delight is seen in certain condescensions to the weak and unworthy. Never once, where he is treating of the nature of man, does he make mention of any exercise of the mind as due directly to God. The services of religion come in China under the principle of propriety, and are only a cold formalism; but even here, other things come with Mencius before them. We are told:—'The richest fruit of love is this.—the service of one's parents; the richest fruit of righteousness is this,—the obeying one's elder brothers; the richest fruit of wisdom is this,—the knowing those two things, and not departing from them; the richest fruit of propriety is this,—the ordering and adorning those two things. How different is this from the

Bk. IV. Pt. I. x. * First Sermon Upon the Love of God. * Bk. I. Pt. II. ii. g. * Bk. IV. Pt. I. xxvii. My friend, the Rev. Mr. Moule, (now Bishop) of Mingpo, has supplied me with the following interesting coincidence with the sentiments of Mencius in this passage, from one of the letters of Charles Lamb to Coleridge, dated November 14, 1796:—'Oh, my friend, cultivate the filial feelings; and let no one think himself relieved from the kind charities of reiterated declaration of the Scriptures, that 'the fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom!' The first and great commandment, 'Thou shalt love the Lord thy God, with all thy heart and soul and mind and strength,' was never thought of, much less delivered, by any Chinese philosopher or sage. Had Mencius apprehended this, and seen how all our duties to our fellow-men are to be performed as to God, he could not have thought so highly as he did of man's powers; a suspicion might have grown up that there is a shadow on the light which he has in himself.

This absence from Mencius's ideal of our nature of the recognition of man's highest obligations is itself a striking illustration of man's estrangement from God. His usage of the term Heaven has combined with the similar practice of his Master to prepare the way for the grosser conceptions of the modern literati, who would often seem to deny the divine personality altogether, and substitute for both God and Heaven a mere principle of order or fitness of things. It has done more: it has left the people in the mass to become an easy prey to the idolatrous fooleries of Buddhism. Yea, the unreligiousness of the teachers has helped to deprave still more the religion of the nation, such as it is, and has made of its services a miserable pageant of irreverent forms.

It is time to have done with this portion of my theme. It may be thought that I have done Mencius more than justice in the first part of my remarks, and less than justice at the last; but I hope it is not so. A very important use is to be made both of what he succeeds in, and where he fails, in his discoursing upon human nature. His principles may be, and, I conceive, ought to be, turned against himself. They should be pressed to produce the conviction of sin. There is enough in them, if the conscience be but quickened by the Spirit of God, to make the haughtiest scholar cry out, 'O wretched man that I am! who shall deliver me from this body of death?' Then may it be said to him with effect, 'Behold the Lamb of God, who taketh away the sin of the world!' Then may Christ. as a new and true exemplar of all that man should be, be displayed, 'altogether levely,' to the trembling mind! Then may a new heart be received from Him, that shall thrill in the acknowledgment of the claims both of men and God, and girding up the loins of the mind, address itself to walk in all His commandments and ordinances relationship: these shall give him peace at the last; these are the best foundation for every species of benevolence."

blameless! One thing should be plain. In Mencius's lessons on human duty there is no hope for his countrymen. If they serve as a schoolmaster to bring them to Christ, they will have done their part; but it is from Christ alone that the help of the Chinese can come.

6. Besides giving more explicit expression to the doctrine of the goodness of man's nature than had been done before him, Mencius has the credit also of calling attention to the nourishment of the passion-nature. It may be questioned whether I translate his language exactly by this phrase. What I render the vassion-nature. Julien renders by 'vitalis spiritus.' The philosopher says himself that it is difficult to describe what he intends. Attempting such a description, he says:—'This is it:—It is exceedingly great and exceedingly strong. Being nourished by rectitude, and sustaining no injury, it fills up all between heaven and earth. This is it:-It is the mate and assistant of righteousness and reason. Without it man is in a state of starvation. It is produced by the accumulation of righteous deeds; it is not to be taken, as by surprise, by incidental acts of righteousness. If the mind does not feel complacency in the conduct, this is starved 1. From such predicates we may be sure that it is not anything merely or entirely physical of which he is speak-'The righteous,' said Solomon, 'are bold as a lion.' Hebrew saying is very much in Mencius's style. That boldness is the result of the nourishment for which he thought he had a peculiar aptitude. Strong in it and in a knowledge of words, a faculty of discovering the moral aberrations of others from their forms of speech, he was able to boast of possessing 'an unperturbed mind;' he could 'sit in the centre' of his being, 'and enjoy bright day, whatever clouds and storms gathered around him.

The nourishment, therefore, of 'the passion-nature,' 'the vital spirit,' or whatever name we choose to give to the subject, is only an effect of general good-doing. This is the practical lesson from all Mencius's high-sounding words. He has illustrated it amusingly:
—'There was a man of Sung, who was grieved that his growing corn was not longer, and pulled it up. Having done this, he returned home, looking very wearied, and said to his people, "I am tired to-day. I have been helping the corn to grow long." His son ran to look at it, and found the corn all withered. There are few in the world, who do not assist the corn of their passion-nature to grow long. Some consider it of no benefit to them, and let it alone:—they do not weed their corn. Those who assist it to grow long, pull out their corn. What they do is not only of no benefit to the nature, but it also injures it¹.'

¹ Bk, II. Pt. I. ii. 13-15.

This portion of Mencius's teaching need not detain us. He has put a simple truth in a striking way. That is his merit. It hardly seems of sufficient importance to justify the use which has been made of it in vindicating for him a place among the sages of his country.

7. I said I should end the discussion of Mencius's opinions by pointing out what I conceive to be his chief defects as a moral and political teacher. His defects, however, in the former respect have been already not lightly touched on. So far as they were the consequence of his ignorance, without the light which Revelation sheds on the whole field of human duty, and the sanctions which it discloses of a future state of retribution, I do not advance any charge against his character. That he never indicates any wish to penetrate futurity, and ascertain what comes after death; that he never indicates any consciousness of human weakness, nor moves his mind Godward, longing for more light:—these are things which exhibit strongly the contrast between the mind of the East and the West. His self-sufficiency is his great fault. To know ourselves is commonly supposed to be an important step to humility; but it is not so with He has spoken remarkably about the effects of calamity and He says:—'When Heaven is about to confer a great difficulties. office on a man, it first exercises his mind with suffering, and his sinews and bones with toil; it exposes his body to hunger, and subjects him to extreme poverty; it confounds his undertakings. By all these methods it stimulates his mind, hardens his nature, and supplies his incompetencies.' Such have been the effects of Heaven's exercising some men with calamities; but if the issue has been a fitting for the highest offices, there has been a softening of the nature rather than a hardening of it. Mencius was a stranger to the humbling of the lofty looks of man, and the bowing down of his haughtiness, that the Lord alone may be exalted.

His faults as a political teacher are substantially the same as those of Confucius. More than was the case with his sayings of a political character, the utterances of Mencius have reference to the condition and needs of his own age. They were for the time then being, and not for all time. He knew as little as Confucius of any other great and independent nation besides his own; and he has left one maxim which is deeply treasured by the rulers and the people of China at the present day, and feeds the supercilious idea which they are so unwilling to give up of their own superiority to foreigners. 'I have heard,' said he, 'of men using the doctrines of our great land to change barbarians, but I have never yet heard of any being changed by barbarians.' 'I have heard of birds leaving dark valleys to remove to lofty trees, but I have not heard of their descending from lofty trees to enter into dark valleys1.' Mongol and Tartar sway have not broken the charm of this dangerous flattery, because only in warlike energy were the Mongols and Tartars superior to the Chinese, and when they conquered the country they did homage to its sages. During the last five-andtwenty years. Christian Powers have come to ask admission into China, and to claim to be received as her equals. They do not wish to conquer her territory, though they have battered and broken her defences. With fear and trembling their advances are contemplated. The feeling of dislike to them arises from the dread of their power, and suspicion of their faith. It is feared that they come to subdue; it is known that they come to change. The idol of Chinese superiority is about to be broken. Broken it must be ere long, and a new generation of thinkers will arise, to whom Mencius will be a study but not a guide.

¹ Bk. II. Pt. I. ii. 16. ² Bk. VI. Pt. II. xv.

SECTION III.

HIS IMMEDIATE DISCIPLES.

The disciples of Mencius were much fewer in number, and of less distinction than those of Confucius. The longest list does not make them amount to twenty-five; and it is only to complete my plan that I devote a page or two here to their names and surnames.

The chief authority in reference to them is Chao Ch'i. In A.D. 115, the then emperor of the Sung dynasty conferred titles on all mentioned by Ch'i as disciples or pupils of Mencius, and enacted that they should share in the sacrifices offered to their master in his temple in the district of Tsau. Chû Hsî gives his verdict in the 'Collected Comments' against two of them, and no subsequent scholar has ventured to restore them to their place in the Mencian school. Other names, however, have been found by different writers to supply their room. It is not worth our while to take notice of their discussions.

Bk. III. Pt. I. iv. 12, 15.

- 1. Yo-chang K'o, styled Taze-Ao (樂正克,字子敖), a native of Lû. He was titled in 1115 as the 'State-advantaging Marquis' (利國侯). Under the present dynasty, in 1724, he had a place assigned him in the temples of Confucius, the 35th on the west, in the outer court, with the common title of 'The Ancient Worthy, the Philosopher Yo-chang.'
- 2. Wan Chang (萬章). He was titled in 1115 as the 'Baron of Extensive Arousing' (博典伯). He has now the next place to the preceding in the Confucian temples.
- 3. Kung-sun Ch'au (公孫士), a native of Ch'i. He was also elevated to the temple of Confucius, and has now the place, east, corresponding to that of Wan Chang, on the west. His title conferred in 1115 was—'Baron of Longevity and Glory'(秦光伯).
- 4. Kung-ta (公都), immediately precedes Kung-sun Ch'au in the temples. In the temple of Mencius he was the 'Baron of Tranquillity and Shadiness' (平陰伯).

The above four are the only disciples of Mencius who have places assigned to them in the temples of Confucius.

5. Ch'ăn Tsin (陳 禁). 6. Ch'ung Yü (克 威). 7. Chi-sun (季 孫). 8. Tsze-shû Î (子 叔 疑).

These two last are held by Chu Hsi not to have been disciples of Mencius.

- 9. Kao (高子). This is to be distinguished from another scholar of the same name, referred to in Bk.VI. Pt. II. iii.
 - 10. Hati Pi (徐辟). 11. Haien-ch'iù Măng (成丘蒙).
- 12. Ch'an Tài (陳代). 13. P'ang Kang (彭更). 14. Û-lû Lien (屋蘆連). 15. T'ao Ying (桃應).

These fifteen are said by Chao Ch'i to have been disciples of Mencius. The four that follow are said to have studied under him, or to have been his pupils.

15. Ming Chung (孟仲子). 17. Kin (告子). This Kin can hardly be said to have studied under Mencius; he only argued with him. 18. Tang Kang, or Kang of Tang (聯更). 19. Panchang Kwo (金成括).

These nineteen rest on the authority of Chao Ch'i. Others have added to them—20. Kung-ming Kao (公明高). 21. K'wang Chang (匡章). 22. Ch'ăn Chung (陳仲). 23. Li Lâu (離 套).

APPENDIX.

I have thought it would be interesting to many readers to append here the Essays of two distinguished scholars of China on the subject of Human Nature. The one is in direct opposition to Mencius's doctrine; according to the other, his doctrine is insufficient to explain the phenomena. The author of the first, Hsun K'wang (荀 [al. 孫] 況), more commonly called Hsün Ching (軸), was not very much posterior to Mencius. He is said to have borne office both in Ch'i and Ch'û, and to have had at one time Li Sze (季縣), the prime minister of Shih Hwang-ti, as a pupil. His Works which still remain form a considerable volume. The second essay is from the work of Han Yu, mentioned above, Chap. I. Sect. IV. 4. I shall not occupy any space with criticisms on the style or sentiments of the writers. If the translation appear at times to be inelegant or obscure, the fault is perhaps as much in the original as in myself. A comprehensive and able sketch of 'The Ethics of the Chinese, with special reference to the Doctrines of Human Nature and Sin,' by the Rev. Griffith John, was read before the North China Branch of the Royal Asiatic Society, in November, 1859, and has been published separately. The essays of Hsun and Han are both reviewed in it.

L. THAT THE NATURE IS EVIL.—By THE PHILOSOPHER HSUN

The nature of man is evil; the good which it shows is factitious. There belongs to it, even at his birth, the love of gain, and as actions are in accordance with this, contentions and robberies grow up, and self-denial and yielding to others are not to be found; there belong to it envy and dislike, and as actions are in accordance with these, violence and injuries spring up, and self-devotedness and faith are not to be found; there belong to it the desires of the cars and the eyes, leading to the love of sounds and beauty, and as the actions are in accordance with these, lewdness and disorder spring up, and righteousness and propriety, with their various orderly displays, are not to be found. It thus appears, that to follow man's nature and yield obedience to its feelings will assuredly conduct to contentions and distinctions, till the issue will be in a state of savagism; and that there must be the influence of teachers and laws, and the guidance of propriety and righteousness, from which will spring self-denial, yielding to others, and an observance of the well-ordered regulations of conduct, till the issue will be a state of good government.—From all this it is plain that the nature of man is evil; the good which it shows is factitious.

To illustrate.—A crooked stick must be submitted to the pressing-frame to soften and bend it, and then it becomes straight; a blunt knife must be submitted to the grindstone and whetstone, and then it becomes sharp: so, the nature of man, being evil, must be submitted to teachers and laws, and then it becomes correct; it must be submitted to propriety and righteousness, and then it comes under government. If men were without teachers and laws, their condition would be one of deflection and insecurity, entirely incorrect; if they were without propriety and righteousness, their condition would be one of rebellious disorder, rejecting all government. The sage kings of antiquity, understanding that the nature of man was thus evil, in a state of hazardous deflection, and incorrect, rebellious and disorderly, and refusing to be governed, set up the principles of righteousness and propriety, and framed laws and regulations to straighten and ornament the feelings of that nature and correct them, to tame and change those same feelings and guide them, so that they might all go forth in the way of moral government and in agreement with reason. Now, the man who is transformed by teachers and laws, gathers on himself the ornament of learning, and proceeds in the path of propriety and righteousness is a superior man; and he who gives the reins to his nature and its feelings, indulges its resentments, and walks contrary to propriety and righteousness is a mean man. Looking at the subject in this way, we see clearly that the nature of man is evil; the good which it shows is factitious.

合於道者也今之人化師法積文學道禮義合於道者也今之人化師法積文學道禮義之性惡以爲偏險而不正悖亂而不治是以不正無禮義則悖亂而不治古者聖王以人不正無禮義則悖亂而不治古者聖王以人不正無禮義則悖亂而不治古者聖王以人不正無禮義則悖亂而不治古者聖王以人不正無禮義則悖亂而不治古者聖王以人不正無禮義則悖亂而不治古者聖王以人

Mencius said, 'Man has only to learn, and his nature appears to be good;' but I reply,—It is not so. To say so shows that he had not attained to the knowledge of man's nature, nor examined into the difference between what is natural in man and what is factitious. The natural is what the constitution spontaneously moves to :--it needs not to be learned, it needs not to be followed hard after; propriety and righteousness are what the sages have given birth to :--it is by learning that men become capable of them, it is by hard practice that they achieve them. That which is in man, not needing to be learned and striven after, is what I call natural; that in man which is attained to by learning, and achieved by hard striving, is what I call factitious. This is the distinction between those two. By the nature of man, the eyes are capable of seeing, and the ears are capable of hearing. But the power of seeing is inseparable from the eyes, and the power of hearing is inseparable from the ears;—it is plain that the faculties of seeing and hearing do not need to be learned. Mencius says, 'The nature of man is good, but all lose and ruin their nature, and therefore it becomes bad; ' but I say that this representation is erroneous. Man being born with his nature, when he thereafter departs from its simple constituent elements, he must lose it. From this consideration we may see clearly that man's nature is evil. What might be called the nature's being good, would be if there were no departing from its simplicity to beautify it, no departing from its elementary dispositions to sharpen it. Suppose that those simple elements no more needed beautifying, and the mind's thoughts no more needed to be turned to good, than the power of vision which is inseparable from the eyes, and the power of hearing which is inseparable from the ears, need to be learned, then we might say that the nature is good, just as we say that the eyes see and the ears hear. It is the nature of man, when hungry, to desire to be filled; when cold, to desire to be warmed; when tired, to desire rest: -these are the feelings and nature of man. But now, a man is hungry, and in the presence of an elder he does not dare to eat before him :-he is yielding to that elder; he is tired with labour, and he does not dare to ask for rest:—he is working for some one. A son's yielding to his father and a younger brother to his elder, a son's labouring for his father and a younger brother for his elder:— these two instances of conduct are contrary to the nature and against the feelings; but they are according to the course laid down for a filial son, and to the refined distinctions of propriety and rightecusness. It appears that if there were an accordance with the feelings and the nature, there would be no self-denial and yielding to others. Self-denial and yielding to others are contrary to the feelings and the nature. In this way we come to see how clear it is that the nature of man is evil; the good which it shows is factitious.

用 而 此 成 ㅁ 而 所必 미 則 而 安迩 便 미 性惡而 用 可. 朴 性 耳 目 夫 煯 H 鄋 미 미 丽 生 然 봡 而 凶 成 分 失耳 分而 則而 見 者 也 麗、也 不明 可不

An inquirer will ask, 'If man's nature be evil, whence do propriety and rightecusness arise?' I reply:—All propriety and rightecusness are the artificial production of the sages, and are not to be considered as growing out of the nature of man. It is just as when a potter makes a vessel from the clay;—the vessel is the product of the workman's art, and is not to be considered as growing out of his nature. Or it is as when another workman cuts and hews a vessel out of wood;—it is the product of his art, and is not to be considered as growing out of his nature. The sages pendered long in thought and gave themselves to practice, and so they succeeded in producing propriety and rightecusness, and setting up laws and regulations. Thus it is that propriety and rightecusness, laws and regulations, are the artificial product of the sages, and are not to be considered as growing properly from the nature of man.

If we speak of the fondness of the eyes for beauty, or of the mouth for pleasant flavours, or of the mind for gain, or of the bones and skin for the enjoyment of ease;—all these grow out of the natural feelings of man. The object is presented and the desire is felt; there needs no effort to produce it. But when the object is presented, and the affection does not move till after hard effort, I say that this effect is factitious. Those cases prove the difference between what is produced by nature and what is produced by art.

Thus the sages transformed their nature, and commenced their artificial work. Having commenced this work with their nature, they produced propriety and right-courses. When propriety and right-courses were produced, they proceeded to frame laws and regulations. It appears, therefore, that propriety and right-coursess, laws and regulations, are given birth to by the sages. Wherein they agree with all other men and do not differ from them, is their nature; wherein they differ from and exceed other men, is this artificial work.

度聖木然於問性禮乎代而欲 者、人而則 矣.義 兄.也.不 飽 是積成器 表 生 目 愿 生 思 器、生 色 於 m 然 則 怒、然 故 生則 性 11/ 以 於 於 口 生. 非 義 感味.故禮 人故 惡 m 義之 心生 4 而 性 於 低.於 B 好 丽 13, 非 然和 起 改 故 法 、待 性 生 歷. 性 求 也 也.然 於也、延禮 護而 m 而理 벳 人 故狙 義 偽 貝 4 起 役 者、也 工师 生 人為 裠 性 法也、斵器、生

Digitized by Google

Now to love gain and desire to get;—this is the natural feeling of men. Suppose the case that there is an amount of property or money to be divided among brothers, and let this natural feeling to love gain and to desire to get come into play ;—why, then the brothers will be opposing, and snatching from, one another. But where the changing influence of propriety and rightecourness, with their refined distinctions, has taken effect, a man will give up to any other man. Thus it is that if they act in accordance with their natural feelings, brothers will quarrel together; and if they have come under the transforming influence of propriety and righteousness, men will give up to other men, to say nothing of brothers. Again, the fact that men were to do what is good, is because their nature is bad. The thin wishes to be thick; the ugly wish to be beautiful; the narrow wishes to be wide; the poor wish to be rich; the mean wish to be noble:—when anything is not possessed in one's self, he seeks for it outside himself. But the rich do not wish for wealth; the noble do not wish for position :--when anything is possessed by one's self, he does not need to go beyond himself for it. When we look at things in this way, we perceive that the fact of men's westers to do what is good is because their nature is evil. It is the case indeed, that man's nature is without propriety and benevolence:—he therefore studies them with vigorous effort and seeks to have them. It is the case that by nature he does not know propriety and righteousness:—he therefore thinks and reflects and seeks to know them. Speaking of man, therefore, as he is by birth simply, he is without propriety and righteousness, without the knowledge of propriety and righteousness. Without propriety and righteousness, man must be all confusion and disorder; without the knowledge of propriety and righteousness, there must ensue all the manifestations of disorder. Man, as he is born, therefore, has in him nothing but the elements of disorder, passive and active. It is plain from this view of the subject that the nature of man is evil; the good which it shows is factitious.

When Meneius says that 'Man's nature is good,' I affirm that it is not so. In ancient times and now, throughout the kingdom, what is meant by good is a condition of correctness, regulation, and happy government; and what is meant by evil, is a condition of deflection, insecurity, and refusing to be under government:—in this lies the distinction between being good and being evil. And now, if man's nature be really so correct, regulated, and happily governed in itself, where would be the use for ease kines? where would be the use for propriety and righteousness? Although there were the sage kings, propriety, and righteousness, what could they add to the nature se correct, regulated, and happily ruled in itself? But it is not se; the nature of man is bad. It was on this account, that anciently the sage kings, understanding that man's nature was bad, in a state of deflection and insecurity, instead of being correct; in a state of rebellious disorder, instead of one of happy rule, set up therefore the majesty of princes and governors to awe it; and set forth propriety and righteousness to change it; and framed laws and statutes of correctness to rule it; and devised severe punishments to restrain it: so that its outgoings might be under the dominion of rule, and in accordance with what is good. This is the true account of the governance of the eage kings, and the transforming power of propriety and righteousness. Let us suppose a state of things in which there shall be no majesty of rulers and governors, no influence of propriety and rightecourness, no rule of laws and statutes, no restraints of punishment:—what would be the relations of men with one another, all under heaven? The strong would be injuring the weak, and spoiling them; the many would be tyrannizing over the few, and hooting them; a universal disorder and mutual destruction would speedily ensue. When we look at the subject in this way, we see clearly that the nature of man is evil; the good which it shows is factitious.

義 則 性 惡 者 求 惡 國 國 兄 兄 夫 者 不也。必於願人人弟資好性 벬 知今 不外,美,矣,矣,相財 然 則 義、 生 不 故 外 而 知 思固 善 丽 用 無 歽 m 求義 不也。悸 知 故 而 娘 彊 性 欲 团亿 願 苟 正 刞 然而 也 欲 理 茍 者、有 벬 則 郑而之 冶

He who would speak well of ancient times must have undoubted references in the present; he who would speak well of Heaven must substantiate what he says from the state of man. In discourse and argument it is an excellent quality when the divisions which are made can be brought together like the halves of a token. When it is so, the arguer may sit down, and discourse of his principles; and he has only to rise up, and they may be set forth and displayed and carried into action. When Mencius says that the nature of man is good, there is no bringing together in the above manner of his divisions. He sits down and talks, but there is no getting up to display and set forth his principles, and put them in operation:—is not his error very gross? To say that the nature is good does away with the sage kings, and makes an end of propriety and righteousness; to say that the nature is be exaits the sage kings, and dignifies propriety and righteousness. As the origin of the pressing-boards is to be found in things not being straight; so the rise of princes and governors, and the illustration of propriety and righteousness, are to be traced to the badness of the nature. It is clear from this view of the subject that the nature of man is bad; the good which it shows is factitious.

合而人故性之則無今符可凡毒惡悖夫刑當 治.起治.睾加 驗.設 過 論 明亂 試 音 者者 坐 張、 矣、而 头 合 Z 法故 其相 禁.君 m m Œ 其必 印 亡、 殧 有 並 有 不 故之、施 而 而 性起 行。辨、節 待 勢.是 觀 合於 也.頃 天 惡也 無 m 則 。衆 不 孟 有 个。 矣 下 禮 刑 以 去 符 甲 用者民 治、以 さ 鯰、 音 此暴人 設 以偏 故天 寡之 張 觀 化、而 臨險 坐 者. 息 Im 之、而 相 去 之.而 譯之 然 法 使 不性 而必 興 明 性枸莪 ㅁ 善、 則 也 Œ 也。患木矣、施無乙、酸 若 化 下 。也、性行、辨起於 是、治、也、皆 以

A straight piece of wood does not need the pressing-boards to make it straight;—it is so by its nature. A crooked piece of wood must be submitted to the pressing-boards to soften and straighten it, and then it is straight; it is not straight by its nature. So it is that the nature of man, being evil, must be submitted to the rule of the sage kings, and to the transforming influence of propriety and righteousness, and then its outgoings are under the dominion of rule, and in accordance with what is good. This shows electly that the nature of man is had; the good which it shows is factitious.

An inquirer may say again, 'Propriety and righteousness, though seen in an accumulation of factitious deeds, do yet belong to the nature of man; and thus it was that the sages were able to produce them.' I reply:—It is not so. A potter takes a piece of clay, and produces an certhen dish from it; but are that dish and clay the nature of the potter? A carpenter plice his tools upon a piece of wood, and produces a vessel; but are that vessel and wood the nature of the carpenter? So it is with the sages and propriety and righteousness; they produced them, just as the potter works with the clay. It is plain that there is no reason for saying that propriety and righteousness, and the accumulation of their factivious actions, belong to the proper nature of man. Speaking of the nature of man, it is the same in all,—the same in Yao and Shun and in Chieh and the robber Chih, the same in the superior man and in the mean man. If you say that propriety and righteousness, with the factitious actions accumulated from them, are the nature of man, on what ground do you proceed to ennoble Yao and Yu, to ennoble generally the superior man? The ground on which we ennoble Yao, Yū, and the superior man, is their ability to change the nature, and to produce factitious conduct. That factitious conduct being produced, out of it there are brought propriety and righteconsuces. The sages stand indeed in the same relation to propriety and righteousness, and the factitions conduct resulting from them, as the potter does to his clay :--we have a product in either This representation makes it clear that propriety and righteousness, with their factitious results, do not properly belong to the nature of man, .On the other hand, that which we consider mean in Chieh, the robber Chih, and the mean man generally, is that they follow their nature, act in accordance with its feelings, and indulge its recentments, till all its outgoings are a greed of gain, contentions, and rapine.—It is plain that the nature of man is bad; the good which it shows is factitious.

也 陶木埴也 豈 應 、與 陶 凡而 也、善 日, 也 性 也 哉 乘 則 舜禮 夫 彻 則 癿 娅 斵 偽 埴 禮 m 4 後 4 起 義 其 刑費 積 HIT 而 哉。偽 .出 世 必 爬 也、本 辟則 則

Heaven did not make favourities of Thing Shin, Min Thus-ch'ien, and Haito-chi, and deal unkindly with the rest of men. How then was it that they alone were distinguished by the greatness of their filial deeds, that all which the name of filial piety implies was complete in them? The reason was that they were entirely subject to the restraints of propriety and righteoremess.

Heaven did not make favourites of the people of Ch'1 and I.A, and deal unkindly with the people of Ch'1n. How then was it that the latter were not equal to the former in the rich manifestation of the filial piety belonging to the rightecourness of the relation between father and son, and the respectful observance of the proprieties belonging to the separate functions of husband and wife? The reason was that the people of Ch'in followed the feelings of their nature, indulged its resentments, and contemned propriety and rightecourness. We are not to suppose that they were different in their nature.

What is the meaning of the mying, that 'Any traveller on the road may become like Ya?' I answer :-All that made Yt what he was, was his practice of benevolence, rightecusness, and his observance of laws and rectitude. But benevolence, rightecoursess, laws, and rectitude are all espable of being known and being practised. Moreover, any traveller on the road has the capacity of knowing these, and the ability to practice them :--it is plain that he may become like Yd. If you say that benevolence, rightcourness, laws, and rectifude are not capable of being known and practised, then Yu himself could not have known, could not have practiced them. If you will have it that any traveller on the road is really without the capacity of knowing these things, and the ability to practice them, then, in his home, it will not be competent for him to know the righteousness that should rule between father and son; and, abroad, it will not be competent for him to know the rectitude that should rule between sovereign and minister. But it is not so. There is no one who travels along the read, but may know both that righteousness and that rectitude :-- it is plain that the capacity to know and the ability to practise belong to every traveller on the way. Let him, therefore, with his capacity of knowing and ability to practice, take his ground on the knowableness and practicableness of benevolence and righteousness;—and it is clear that he may become like Yu. Yea, let any traveller on the way addict himself to the art of learning with all his heart and the entire bent of his will, thinking, searching, and closely examining;—let him do this day after day, through a long space of time, accumulating what is good, and he will penetrate as far as a spiritual Intelligence, he will become a ternion with Heaven and Earth. It follows that the characters of the sages were what any man may reach by accumulation.

人唯矣.皆之以 今 有 理 其 法 团 可義。 以可 然 而 性、別、習 外 知 以 미 可 冒 塗さ 以安 知 能 毛 恣 可 知 法 如 而孝 法正義 以 也. 知則 正、爲 也 法 而 於而 塗之 法不 能 团 外 外 4 臣 Œ 能 無 H 叮 Ħ 義 知 然 以 敬 也 而法 知 且 可則 知法 彻 然 能 Œ 内固 Œ 也。而 而 미 不 杪 所 其 榝 H 理 凶 法 비 뮈 邪、爲 TH 爲 以 И Œ 異 便 禹 能 H 知 然禹 童 之則明質、能

It may be said :- 'To be sage may thus be reached by accumulation ;-why is it that all men cannot accumulate to this extent?' I reply:—They may do so, but they cannot be made to do so. The mean man might become a superior man, but he is not willing to be a superior man. The superior man might become a mean man, but he is not willing to be a mean man. It is not that the mean man and the superior man may not become the one the other; their not becoming the one the other is because it is a thing which may be, but cannot be made to be. Any traveller on the road may become like Yu: -the case is so; that any traveller on the road can really become like Yu:—this is not a necessary conclusion. Though any one, however, cannot really become like Y6, that is not contrary at all to the truth that he may become so. One's feet might travel all over the world, but there never was one who was really able to travel all over the world. There is nothing to prevent the mechanic, the farmer, and the merchant from practising each the business of the others, but there has never been a case when it has really been done. Looking at the subject in this way, we see that what may be need not really be; and although it shall not really be, that is not contrary to the truth that it might be. It thus appears that the difference is wide between what is really done or not really done, and what may be or may not be. It is plain that these two cases may not become the one the other.

Yao asked Shun what was the character of the feelings proper to man. Shun replied, 'The feelings proper to man are very unlovely; why need you ask about them? When a man has got a wife and children, his filial piety withers away; under the influence of lust and gratified desires, his good faith to his friends withers away; when he is full of dignities and emoluments, his loyalty to his sovereign withers away. The natural feelings of man! The natural feelings of man! They are very unlovely. Why need you ask about them? It is only in the case of men of the highest worth that it is not so.'

禹.則而 恤 矣.則 H Z 4 而舜 翻 能 能 然 1 通 則 與 비 m T 如 然 爲 4 而 彻 也 何 君 龍 也 禹 行 胢 ㅁ 無 Ħ 加 m В 盆、 何 H 丽 甲

There is a knowledge characteristic of the sage; a knowledge characteristic of the scholar and superior man; a knowledge characteristic of the mean man; and a knowledge characteristic of the mean man; and a knowledge characteristic of the mere servant. In much speech to show his cultivation and maintain consistency, and though he may discuss for a whole day the reasons of a subject, to have a unity pervading the ten thousand changes of discourse:—this is the knowledge of the sage. To speak seldom, and in a brief and sparing manner, and to be orderly in his reasoning, as if its parts were connected with a string:—this is the knowledge of the scholar and superior man. Flattering words and disorderly conduct, with undertakings often followed by regrets:—these mark the knowledge of the mean man. Hasty, officious, smart, and swift, but without consistency; versatlle, able, of extensive capabilities, but without use; decisive in discourse, rapid, exact, but the subject unimportant; regardless of right and wrong, taking no account of crooked and straight, to get the vistory over others the guiding object:—this is the knowledge of the mean servant.

There is bravery of the highest order; bravery of the middle order; bravery of the lowest order. Boldly to take up his position in the place of the universally acknowledged Mean; beldly to carry into practice his views of the doctrines of the ancient kings; in a high situation, not to defer to a had soversign, and in a low situation not to follow the current of a had people; to consider that there is no poverty where there is virtue, and no wealth or honour where virtue is not; when appretiated by the world, to desire to share in all men's joys and sorrows; when unknown by the world, to stand up grandly alone between heaven and earth, and have no fears:—this is the bravery of the highest order. To be reverently observant of propriety, and sober-minded; to attach importance to adherence to fidelity, and set little store by material wealth; to have the boldness to push forward men of worth and exalt them, to hold back undeserving men, and get them deposed:—this is the bravery of the middle order. To be devoid of self-respect and set a great value on wealth; to feel complement in calamity, and always have plenty to say for himself; saving himself in any way, without regard to right and wrong; whatever be the real state of a case, making it his object to get the victory over others:—this is the bravery of the lowest order.

The sun-sie and the chi-ch? were the best bows of antiquity; but without their regulators, they could not adjust themselves. The sung of duke Hwan, the chick of Tai-kung, the M of king Wan, the A4 of prince Chwang, the han ising, mi-34, chi-chick and p't-li of Ho-li—these were the best swords of antiquity; but without the grindstone and whotstone they would not have been sharp; without the strength of the arms that wielded them they would not have out anything.

下解,者意則貴,俗身,有知急,給言 苟敢儉、傀天於先上也、不便也而 也.免 梭 大然下亂 王勇 惶 緻 不而齊獨知世有者、 黍古之良弓也然而不得排椒 是而其論 恤廢信 立之. 非、無行而變、知知 道、有 焉、天 則 民敢中 不 類 也 法.其 非.是 而 地 欲 仁 論雜悖若統 行勇 者. 與 其 曲能 其佚類言 開 天 所 直、旁 意. 則君 然 以魄 以也、 也.財、 在 m 不 期而 多繩是 輕 Ħ 者. 勝無悔、是聖類 苦 情、身 是 窮.於 用、是 人終者 以而蚁 爲折小君 重推 ᆲ 7 渊 Ŀ 世 貨、而 勝 勇 有 意.速 知議小 輿 恬甸也.下所 之中、 是粹之 之也.其 亡、君、敢 役孰知知少所之 不 能 知 意而不恭 而也。也. 7 廣肖而之 不齊其則

The hed his, the N-ch's, the Asian H, and the M-r—these were the best horses of antiquity; but there were still necessary for them the restraints in front of bit and bridle, the stimulants behind of whip and cane, and the skilful driving of a Tuto-fü, and then they could accomplish a thousand H in one day.

So it is with man:—granted to him an excellent capacity of nature and the faculty of intellect, he must still seek for good teachers under whom to place himself, and make choice of friends with whom he may be intimate. Having got good masters and placed himself under them, what he will hear will be the doctrines of Yao, Shun, Yū, and Tang; having got good friends and become intimate with them, what he will see will be deeds of self-consecration, fidelity, reverence, and complainance:—he will go on from day to day to benevolence and righteousness, without being conscious of it: a natural following of them will make him do so. On the other hand, if he live with bad men, what he will hear will be language of deceit, calumny, imposture, and hypotrisy; what he will see will be conduct of filthiness, insolance, lewdness, corruptness, and greed:—he will be going on from day to day to punishment and diagrace, without being conscious of it; a natural following of them will make him do so.

The Record says, 'If you do not know your son, look at his friends; if you do not know your prince, look at his confidents.' All is the influence of association! All is the influence of association!

II. AN EXAMINATION OF THE NATURE OF MAN.—By HAN WAN-KUNG.

The MATURE dates from the date of the life; the FEBLINGS date from contact with external things. There are three crades of the nature, and it has five CHARACTERISTICS. There are also three gradus of the feelings, and they have seven characteristics. To explain myself:-The three grades of the nature are-the Superior, the Middle, and the Inferior. The superior grade is good, and good only; the middle grade is capable of being led: it may rise to the superior, or sink to the inferior; the inferior is evil, and evil only. The five characteristics of the nature are—Benevolence, Righteousness, Propriety, Sincerity, and Knowledge. In the Superior Grade, the first of these characteristics is supreme, and the other four are practised. In the Middle Grade, the first of these characteristics is not wanting: it exists, but with a little tendency to its opposite; the other four are in an ill-assorted state. In the Inferior Grade there is the opposite of the first characteristic, and constant rebelliousness against the other four. The grade of the nature regulates the manifestation of the feelings in it. Again: -The three grades of the feelings are the Superior, the Middle, and the Inferior; and their seven characteristics are-Joy, Anger, Sorrow, Feer, Love, Hatred, and Desire. In the Superior Grade, these seven all move, and each in its due place and degree. In the Middle Grade, some of the characteristics are in excess, and some in defect; but there is a seeking to give them their due place and degree. In the Inferior Grade, whether they are in excess or defect, there is a reckless acting according to the one in immediate predominance. The grade of the feelings regulates the influence of the nature in reference to them.

Speaking of the nature, Meneius said:—'Man's nature is good;' the philosopher Hsün said:—'Man's nature is bad;' the philosopher Yang said:—'In the nature of man good and evil are mixed together.' Now, to say that the nature, good at first, subsequently becomes bad; or that, bad at first, it subsequently becomes good; or that, mixed at first, it subsequently becomes, it may be, good, it may be, bad:—in each of these cases only the nature of the middle grade is dealt with, and the superior and inferior grades are neglected. Those philosophers are right about one grade, and wrong about the other two.

孟品。七甚、於喜、品。之也五者而 也、有七日情於不也、五、 五少、主 其 日品、也、有京、有反為、 日, 於 m 其 少 於 反 者 所 44 馬 焉 善荀 於 信、而 惡所 四 爲 於 也 E 情也。乙 者 智 性四 日以 欲 也 其中 五、於 焉 於 混 於 肵 也。爲 者 情. 以 性 者 下 五 爲 也、 七視 P 日其者 於

Digitized by Google

When Shū-yū was born, his mother knew, as soon as she looked at him, that he would fall a victim to his love of bribes. When Yang Sze-wo was born, the mother of Shū-hsiang knew, as soon as she heard him cry, that he would cause the destruction of all his kindred. When Yüch-tsiāo was born, Tsze-wan considered it was a great calamity, knowing that through him the ghosts of the Zo-ao family would all be famished.—With such cases before us, can it be said that the nature of man (i. e. all men) is good?

When How-chi was born, his mother had no suffering; and as soon as he began to creep, he displayed all elegance and intelligence. When king Wan was in his mother's womb, she experienced no distress; after his birth, those who tended him had no trouble; when he began to learn, his teachers had no vexation.—With such cases before us, can it be said that the nature of man (i. e. all men) is evil?

Chu was the son of Yao, and Chun the son of Shun; Kwan and Tr'ai were sons of king Wan. They were instructed to practise nothing but what was good, and yet they turned out villains. Shun was the son of Ku-sau, and Yu the son of Kwan. They were instructed to practise nothing but what was bad, and yet they turned out sages.—With such cases before us, can it be said that in the nature of man (i.e. all men) good and evil are blended together?

Having these things in view, I say that the three philosophers, to whom I have referred, dealt with the middle grade of the nature, and neglected the superior and the inferior; that they were right about the one grade, and wrong about the other two.

It may be asked, 'Is it so, then, that the superior and inferior grades of the nature can never be changed?' I reply:—The nature of the superior grade, by application to learning, becomes more intelligent, and the nature of the inferior grade, through awe of power, comes to have few faults. The superior nature, therefore, may be taught, and the inferior nature may be restrained; but the grades have been pronounced by Confucius to be unchangeable.

師 乎.文 墨 進 Û 生 ${f \Xi}$ 闸 混 毋、 在 性 毋 也, 禹 也 知 之 靐 毋 威 號 t 而 不 敖 也. 不 氏 釈 曼,始 而 匍 也・始 是 牛 也. 匐 滅 也.故. 而 也、也 宗.死. 枞 面 也. 不歧 也 越 而 歧 也 性.

It may be asked, 'How is it that those who nowadays speak about the nature do so differently from this?' I reply:—Those who nowadays speak about the nature blend with their other views those of Buddhism and Lao-tsse; and doing so, how could they speak otherwise than differently from me?

異。而奚言老雜言老雜音今也。此、異性之曰、不言者,而佛也,而佛者、之曰、何於者、言今

CHAPTER III.

OF YANG CHÛ AND MO TÎ.

SECTION I.

THE OPINIONS OF YANG CHÛ.

1. 'The words of Yang Chû and Mo Ti,' said Mencius, 'fill the world. If you listen to people's discourses throughout it, you will find that they have adopted the views of the one or of the other. Now, Yang's principle is—"Each one for himself," which does not acknowledge the claims of the sovereign. Mo's principle is—"To love all equally," which does not acknowledge the peculiar affection due to a father. To acknowledge neither king nor father is to be in the state of a beast. If their principles are not stopped, and the principles of Confucius set forth, their perverse speakings will delude the people, and stop up the path of benevolence and righteousness.

'I am alarmed by these things, and address myself to the defence of the doctrines of the former sages, and to oppose Yang and Mo. I drive away their licentious expressions, so that such perverse speakers may not be able to show themselves. When sages shall rise up again, they will not change my words 1.'

His opposition to Yang and Mo was thus one of the great labours of Mencius's life, and what he deemed the success of it one of his great achievements. His countrymen generally accede to the justice of his claim; though there have not been wanting some to say—justly, as I think and will endeavour to show in the next section—that Mo need not have incurred from him such heavy censure. For Yang no one has a word to say. His leading principle as stated by Mencius is certainly detestable, and so far as we can judge from the slight accounts of him that are to be gathered from other quarters, he seems to have been about 'the least erected spirit,' who ever professed to reason concerning the life and duties of man.

2. The generally received opinion is that Yang belonged to the period of 'The Warring States,' the same era of Chinese history as Mencius. He was named Chû, and styled Tsze-chü¹. In a note on Bk. III. Pt. II. ix. 9, I have supposed that he was of the times of Confucius and Lao-tsze, having then before me a passage of the Taoist philosopher Chwang, in which he gives an account of an interview between Lao-taze and Yang Chu?. That interview, however, must be an invention of Chwang. The natural impression which we receive from all the references of Mencius is that Yang must have been posterior to Confucius, and that his opinions had come into vogue only in the times of our philosopher himself. This view would be placed beyond doubt if we could receive as genuine the chapter on Yang, which is contained in the writings of the philosopher Lieh. And so far we may accept it, as to believe that it gives the sentiments which were attributed to him in the first century before our era. The leading principle ascribed to him by Mencius nowhere appears in it in so many words, but the general tenour of his language is entirely in accordance with it. This will appear from the following specimens, which are all to be found in the seventh chapter of the Books of Lieh. The corresponding English and Chinese paragraphs are indicated by the same letters prefixed to them:—

1 Bk. III. Pt. II. ix. 9, 10.

"Yang Chu said, "A hundred years are the extreme limit of longevity; and not one man in a thousand enjoys such a period of life. Suppose the case of one who does so:—infancy borne in the arms, and doting old age, will nearly occupy the half; what is forgotten in sleep, and what is lost in the waking day, will nearly occupy the half; pain and sickness, sorrow and bitterness, losses, anxieties, and fears, will nearly occupy the half. There may remain ten years or so; but I reckon that not even in them will be found an hour of smiling self-abandonment, without the shadow of solicitude.—What is the life of man then to be made of? What pleasure is in it?

"Is it to be priced for the pleasure of food and dress? or for the enjoyments of music and beauty? But one cannot be always satisfied with those pleasures; one cannot be always toying with beauty and listening to music. And then there are the restraints of punishments and the stimulants of rewards; the urgings and the repressings of fame and laws:—these make one strive restlessly for the vain praise of an hour, and calculate on the residuary glory after death; they keep him, as with body bent, on the watch against what his ears hear and his eyes see, and attending to the right and the wrong of his conduct and thoughts. In this way

'楊朱,字子居. '800 莊子, 雜篇, 第五, the 寓言, at the end.

Dr. Morrison says of Lieh (Dictionary, character —):—'Lieh-tene, an eminent writer of the Tho sect; lived about the same time as Lio-tene, the founder of the sect (n.o. 585).' Lieh's Works are published, with the preface of Lift Heiang written n.o. 13. Heiang says Lieh was a native of Chäng (M), and a contemporary of duke Mû (M) or M). But Mû's reign extended from n.o. 6s7 to 6s4. There is evidently an anachronism somewhere. Haiang goes on to speak of Lieh's writings, specifying the chapter on Yang Chû, in which there are references to Confucius and his acknowledged fame. Another of Lieh's chapters is all devoted to Confucius's sayings and doings.—This is not the place to attempt an adjustment of the difficulties. The chapter about Yang Chû was current in Liû Heiang's time, and we may ould from it to illustrate the character of the man.

94

he loses the real pleasure of his years, and cannot allow himself for a moment.—In what does he differ from an individual manacled and fettered in an inner prison? The people of high antiquity knew both the shortness of life, and how suddenly and completely it might be closed by death, and therefore they obeyed the movements of their hearts, refusing not what it was natural for them to like, nor seeking to avoid any pleasure that occurred to them. They paid no heed to the incitements of fame; they enjoyed themselves according to their nature; they did not resist the common tendency of all things to self-enjoyment; they cared not to be famous after death. They managed to keep, clear of punishment; as to fame and praise, being first or last, long life or short life,—these things did not come into their calculations."

"Yang Chû said, "Wherein people differ is the matter of life; wherein they agree is death. While they are alive, we have the distinctions of intelligence and stupidity, honourableness and meanness; when they are dead, we have so much stinking rottenness decaying away:—this is the common lot. Yet intelligence and stupidity, honourableness and meanness, are not in one's power; neither is that condition of putridity, decay, and utter disappearance. A man's life is not in his own hands, nor is his death; his intelligence is not his own, nor is his stupidity, nor his honourableness, nor his meanness. All are born and all die;—the intelligent and the stupid, the honourable and the mean. At ten years old some die; at a hundred years old some die. The virtuous and the sage die; the ruffian and the fool also die. Alive, they were Yao and Shun; dead, they were so much rotten bone. Alive, they were Chieh and Châu; dead, they were so much rotten bone. Who could know any difference between their rotten bones? While alive, therefore, let us hasten to make the heat of life; what leisure have we to be thinking of anything after death?"

4 Mäng-sun Yang asked Yang-tere; saying, "Here is a man who sets a high value on his life, and takes loving care of his body, hoping that he will not die :--does he do right?" "There is no such thing as not dying," was the reply. "But if he does so, hoping for long life, is he right?" Yang-tsze answered, "One cannot be assured of long life. Setting value upon life will not preserve it; taking care of the body will not make it greatly better. And, in fact, why should long life be made much of? There are the five feelings with their likings and dislikings, -now as in old time; there are the four limbs, now at ease, now in danger,—now as in old time; there are the various experiences of joy and sorrow,—now as in old time; there are the various changes from order to disorder, and from disorder to order,—now as in old time :—all these things I have heard of, and seen, and gone through. A hundred years of them would be more than enough, and shall I wish the pain protracted through a longer life?" Mang-sun said, "If it be so, early death is better than long life. Let a man go to trample on the pointed steel, or throw himself into the caldron or flames, to get what he desires." Yang-taze answered, "No. Being once born, take your life as it comes, and endure it; and seeking to enjoy yourself as you desire, so await the approach of death. When you are about to die, treat the thing with indifference and endure it; and seeking to accomplish your departure, so abandon yourself to annihilation. Both death and life should be treated with indifference; they should both be endured :--why trouble one's self about earliness or lateness in connexion with them?"' a 'Ch'in-taze asked Yang Cht, saying, "If you could benefit the world by parting with one hair of your body, would you do it?" "The world is not to be benefited by a hair," replied Yang. The other urged, "But suppose it could be, what would you do?" To this Yang gave no answer, and Ch'in went out, and reported what had passed to Ming-sun Yang. Mingsun said, "You do not understand our Master's mind:—let me explain it to you. If by enduring a slight wound in the flesh, you could get ten thousand pieces of gold, would you endure it?" "I would." "If by cutting off one of your limbs, you could get a kingdom, would you do it?" Ch'in was silent; and after a little, Ming-sun Yang resumed, "To part with a hair is a slighter matter than to receive a wound in the flesh, and that again is a slighter matter than to lose a limb:—that you can discern. But consider:—A hair may be multiplied till it becomes as important as the piece of flesh, and the piece of flesh may be multiplied till it becomes as important as a limb. A single hair is just one of the ten thousand portions of the bedy;—why should you make light of it? " Ch'in-tane replied, "I cannot answer you. If I could refer your words to Lao Tan or Kwan Yin, they would say that you were right; but if I could refer my words to the great Yū or Mo Ti, they would say that I was right." Mang-sun Yang, on this, turned round, and entered into conversation with his disciples on another subject.'

₫盡.欲得 樂、五牛 平 無以所孫 不俟 猶好 志 既 矣.日. 間 麔. 於 更 死. 不 然孟 請 固 日 任 死 8 Ĥ 速 孫 則 何 H 然 歷 愈 體 遲 而旣 之 之速 任 盂 生 久 之.則 孫所 於 陽斷 生 陽.濟.毛.其 究 廢 肌 則 况 孟會以間 其而踐 乎。所任鋒 成 毛 孫子 濟 即、獲 物、肌、微、得、萬 陽 刃, 日、 日、假世 以究 矣、世 金 國、者 子濟.汝 放其 輕肌 庸子 若 不 爲 爲 於所火、乎。見

"Yang Chû said, "All agree in considering Shun, Yû, Châu-kung, and Confucius to have been the most admirable of men, and in considering Chieh and Châu to have been the most wicked.

"Now, Shun had to plough the ground on the south of the Ho, and to play the potter by the Lei lake. His four limbs had not even a temporary rest; for his mouth and belly he could not find pleasant food and warm clothing. No love of his parents rested upon him; no affection of his brothers and sisters. When he was thirty years old, he had not been able to get the permission of his parents to marry. When Yao at length resigned to him the throne, he was advanced in age; his wisdom was decayed; his son Shang-chun proved without ability; and he had finally to resign the throne to Yü. Sorrowfully came he to his death. Of all mortals never was one whose life was so worn out and empoisoned as his. Kwan was required to reduce the deluged land to order; and when his labours were ineffectual, he was put to death on mount Yū, and Yū, Ms son, had to undertake the task, and serve his enemy. All his energies were spent on his labours with the land; a child was born to him, but he could not foster it; he passed his door without entering; his body became bent and withered; the skin of his hands and feet became thick and callous. When at length Shun resigned to him the throne, he lived in a low, mean house, while his sacrificial apron and cap were elegant. Sorrowfully came he to his death. Of all mortals never was one whose life was so saddened and embittered as his. On the death of king Wû, Ms son, king Ch'ang was young and weak. Chau-kung had to undertake all the royal duties. The duke of Shao was displeased, and evil reports spread through the kingdom. Châu-kung had to reside three years in the east; he slew his elder brother, and banished his younger; scarcely did he escape with his life. Sorrowfully came he to his death. Of all mortals never was one whose life was so full of hazards and terrors as his. Confucius understood the ways of the ancient sovereigns and kings. He responded to the invitations of the princes of his time. The tree was out down over him in Sung; the traces of his footsteps were removed in Wei; he was reduced to extremity in Shang and Châu; he was surrounded in Ch'an and Ts'ai; he had to bend to the head of the Chi family; he was disgraced by Yang Hû. Sorrowfully came he to his death. Of all mortals never was one whose life was so agitated and hurried as his.

子積度 弗體 禪、妹 然 ,問 毠 櫣 不 不以 年之 就 E 過 殛 室 死 而 盂 矣 毒 天 枯、 子 也 與 볘 惟鮫 足 居 幼 至 弱、於 腁 及 所 徒 腽 周死、胝、 土 水禺、受 天年.公此及功、

"Those four sages, during their life, had not a single day's joy. Since their death they have had a grand fame that will last through myriads of ages. But that fame is what no one who cares for what is real would choose. Celebrate them;—they do not know it. Reward them;—they do not know it. Their fame is no more to them than to the trunk of a tree or a clod of earth.

""On the other hand, Chieh came into the accumulated wealth of many generations; to him belonged the honour of the royal seat; his wisdom was enough to enable him to set at defiance all below; his power was enough to shake the world. He indulged the pleasures to which his eyes and ears prompted him; he carried out whatever it came into his thoughts to do. Brightly came he to his death. Of all mortals never was one whose life was so luxurious and dissipated as his. Similarly, Châu came into the accumulated wealth of many generations; to him belonged the honour of the royal seat; his power enabled him to do whatever he would; his will was everywhere obeyed; he indulged his feelings in all his palaces; he gave the roins to his lusts through the long night; he never made himself bitter by the thought of propriety and righteousness. Brightly came he to his destruction. Of all mortals never was one whose life was so abandoned as his.

"These two yillains, during their life, had the joy of gratifying their desires. Since their desth, they have had the swi fame of folly and tyranny. But the reality of enjoyment is what no fame can give. Represent them;—they do not know it. Praise them;—they do not know it. Their a fame is no more to them than to the trunk of a tree, or to a clod of earth.

"To the four sages all admiration is given; yet were their lives bitter to the end, and their common lot was death. To the two villains all condemnation is given; yet their lives were pleasant to the last, and their common lot was likewise death."

3. The above passages are sufficient to show the character of Yang Chû's mind and of his teachings. It would be doing injustice to Epicurus to compare Yang with him, for though the Grecian philosopher made happiness the chief end of human pursuit, he taught also that 'we cannot live pleasurably without living virtuously and justly.' The Epicurean system is, indeed, unequal to the capacity, and far below the highest complacencies of human nature; but it is widely different from the reckless contempt of all which is esteemed good and great that defiles the pages where Yang is made to tell his views.

迎 曲 然 至 欲 威 4 無 也 不 巸 紂 面 亦然恣 此 夜、行、 志 藉 以 民以無 至 錐 於 不世 從、 死、所 ĸ 轰 奚雖被縱自 肆 餐、此 娛、距 桀 苦、情 居 天剪墓籍

We are sometimes reminded by him of fragmentary utterances in the Book of Ecclesiastes.—'In much wisdom is much grief; and he that increaseth knowledge increaseth sorrow.' 'As it happeneth to the fool, so it happeneth even to me; and why was I then more wise? Then I said in my heart, that this also is vanity. For there is no remembrance of the wise more than of the fool for ever; seeing that which now is in the days to come shall all be forgotten. And how dieth the wise man? As the fool. Therefore I hated life; because the work that is wrought under the sun is grievous to me: for all is vanity and vexation of spirit.' 'There is a man whose labour is in wisdom, and in knowledge, and in equity....All his days are sorrows, and his travail grief; yea, his heart taketh not rest in the night:this is also vanity. There is nothing better for a man than that he should eat and drink, and that he should make his soul enjoy good in his labour.' 'That which befalleth the sons of men befalleth beasts; even one thing befalleth them: as the one dieth, so dieth the other; yea, they have all one breath; so that a man hath no pre-eminence above a beast: for all is vanity. All go to one place; all are of the dust, and all turn to dust again.... Wherefore I perceive that there is nothing better than that a man should rejoice in his own works; for that is his portion: for who shall bring him to see what shall be after him?'

But those thoughts were suggestions of evil from which the Hebrew Preacher recoiled in his own mind; and he put them on record only that he might give their antidote along with them. He vanquished them by his faith in God; and so he ends by saying, 'Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter:—Fear God, and keep His commandments: for this is the whole duty of man. For God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil.' Yang Chû has no redeeming qualities. His reasonings contain no elements to counteract the poison that is in them. He never rises to the thought of God. There are, he allows, such ideas as those of propriety and righteousness, but the effect of them is merely to embitter and mar the enjoyment of life. Fame is but a phantom which only the fool will pursue. It is the same with all at death.

There their being ends. After that there is but so much putridity and rottenness. With him therefore the conclusion of the whole matter is:—'Let us eat and drink; let us live in pleasure; gratify the ears and eyes; get servants and maidens, music, beauty, wine; when the day is insufficient, carry it on through the night; EACH ONE FOR HIMSELF.'

Mencius might well say that if such 'licentious talk' were not arrested, the path of benevolence and righteousness would be stopped up. If Yang's principles had been entertained by the nation, every bond of society would have been dissolved. All the foundations of order would have been destroyed. Vice would have become rampant, and virtue would have been named only to be scorned. would have remained for the entire State only what Yang saw in store for the individual man—'putridity and rottenness.' Doubtless it was owing to Mencius's opposition that the foul and dangerous current was stayed. He raised up against it the bulwark of human nature formed for virtue. He insisted on benevolence, righteousness, propriety, fidelity, as the noblest attributes of man's conduct. More was needed, but more he could not supply. If he had had a living faith in God, and had been in possession of His revealed will, the present state of China might have been very different. He was able to warn his countrymen of the gulf into which Yang Chû would have plunged them; but he could direct them in the way of truth and duty only imperfectly. He sent them into the dark cave of their own souls, and back to the vague lessons and imperfect examples of their sages; and China has staggered on, waxing feebler and feebler, to the present time. Her people need to be directed above themselves and beyond the present. When stars shine out to them in heaven and from eternity, the nation will perhaps renew its youth, and go forward from strength to strength.

SECTION II.

THE OPINIONS OF MO TI.

r. Very different from Yang Chû was Mo Tî. They stood at the opposite poles of human thought and sentiment; and we may wonder that Mencius should have offered the same stern opposition to the opinions of each of them. He did well to oppose the doctrine whose watchword was—'Each one for himself;' was he right in denouncing, as equally injurious, that which taught that the root of all social evils is to be traced to the want of mutual love?

It is allowed that Mo was a native and officer of the State of Sung; but the time when he lived is a matter of dispute. Sze-mā Ch'ien says that some made him to be a contemporary of Confucius, and that others placed him later. He was certainly later than Confucius, to whom he makes many references, not always complimentary, in his writings. In one of his Treatises, moreover, mention is made of Wān-tsze, an acknowledged disciple of Tsze-hsiā, so that he must have been very little anterior to Mencius. This is the impression also which I receive from the references to him in our philosopher.

In Liû Hsin's third catalogue the Mohist writers form a subdivision. Six of them are mentioned, including Mo himself to whom seventy-one p'ien, or Books, are attributed. So many were then current under his name; but eighteen of them have since been lost. He was an original thinker. He exercised a bolder, though not a more correct, judgment on things than Confucius or his followers. Antiquity was not so sacred to him, and he did not hesitate to condemn the literati—the orthodox—for several of their doctrines and practices.

Two of his peculiar views are adverted to by Mencius, and vehemently condemned. The one is about the regulation of funerals, where Mo contended that a spare simplicity should be the rule. On that I need not dwell. The other is the doctrine of 'Universal Love'.' A lengthy exposition of this remains in the Writings which go by Mo's name, though it is not from his own pen, but that of a disciple. Such as it is, with all its repetitions, I give a translation of it. My readers will be able, after perusing it, to go on with me to consider the treatment which the doctrine received at the hands of Mencius.

'史記,七十四卷;孟子,荀卿,列傳第十四, at the end.
'文子. 'BL. III. Pt. I.v.

UNIVERSAL LOVE! PART L

It is the business of the sages to effect the good government of the world. They must know, therefore, whence disorder and confusion arise, for without this knowledge their object cannot be effected. We may compare them to a physician who undertakes to cure men's diseases:—he must ascertain whence a disease has arisen, and then he can assail it with effect, while, without such knowledge, his endeavours will be in vain. Why should we except the case of those who have to regulate disorder from this rule? They must know whence it has arisen, and then they can regulate it.

It is the business of the sages to effect the good government of the world. They must examine therefore into the cause of disorder; and when they do so they will find that it arises from the want of mutual love. When a minister and a son are not filial to their sovereign and their father, this is what is called disorder. A son loves himself, and does not love his father; —he therefore wrongs his father, and seeks his own advantage: a younger brother loves himself, and does not love his elder brother;—he therefore wrongs his leder brother, and seeks his own advantage: a minister loves himself, and does not love his severeign;—he therefore wrongs his sovereign, and seeks his own advantage:—all these are cases of what is called disorder. Though it be the father who is not kind to his son, or the elder brother who is not kind to his younger brother, or the sovereign who is not gracious to his minister:—the case comes equally under the general name of disorder. The father loves himself, and does not love his son;—he therefore wrongs his son, and seeks his own advantage: the elder brother loves himself, and does not love his younger brother;—he therefore wrongs his younger brother, and seeks his own advantage: the sovereign loves himself, and does not love his minister;—he therefore wrongs his minister, and seeks his own advantage. How do these things come to pass? They all arise from the want of mutual love. Take the case of any thief or robber:—it is just the same with him. The thief loves his own house, and does not love his neighbour's house;—he therefore steals from his neighbour's house to benefit his own: the robber loves his own person, and does not love his neighbour;—he therefore does violence to his neighbour to benefit himself. How is this? It all arises from the want of mutual love. Come to the case of great officers throwing each other's Families into confusion, and of princes attacking one another's States:—it is just the same with them. The great officer loves his own Family, and does not love his neighbour's;—he therefore throws his neighbour's Family into disorder to benefit his own: the prince loves his own State, and does not love his neighbour's;—he therefore attacks his neighbour's State to benefit his own. All disorder in the kingdom has the same explanation. When we examine into the cause of it, it is found to be the want of mutual love.

1 兼要,—兼 represents a hand grasping two stalks of grain. 兼要 is 'a love that grasps or unites many in its embrace.' I do not know how to render it better than by 'universal love.' Mencius and the literati generally find the idea of equality in it also, and 兼愛 is with them = 'To love all equally.'

Suppose that universal, mutual love prevailed throughout the kingdom;—if men loved others as they love themselves, disliking to exhibit what was unfilial....¹ And moreover would there be those who were unkind? Looking on their sons, younger brothers, and ministers as themselves, and disliking to exhibit what was unkind.... the want of filial duty would disappear. And would there be thieves and robbers? When every man regarded his neighbour's house as his own, who would be found to steal? When every one regarded his neighbour's person as his own, who would be found to rob? Thieves and robbers would disappear. And would there be great officers throwing one another's Families into confusion, and princes attacking one another's States? When officers regarded the Families of others as their own, what one would make confusion? When princes regarded other States as their own, what one would make confusion? When princes regarded other States as their own, what one would begin an attack? Great officers throwing one another's Families into confusion, and princes attacking one another's States, would disappear.

If, indeed, universal, mutual love prevailed throughout the kingdom; one State not attacking another, and one Family not throwing another into confusion; thieves and robbers nowhere existing; rulers and ministers, fathers and sons, all being filial and kind:—in such a condition the nation would be well governed. On this account, how may sages, whose business it is to effect the good government of the kingdom, do but prohibit hatred and advise to love? On this account it is affirmed that universal mutual love throughout the country will lead to its happy order, and that mutual hatred leads to confusion. This was what our master, the philosopher Mo, meant, when he said, 'We must above all inculcate the love of others.'

故冢、家、利 此 攻 故諸 者 酒 批. 侯 有 6 盗 起 相 賊 利 賊 爱. .起 誰 攻 販 手 利 舆 故 不 故 起 天 臣 若 、與 相 盗り 諸 愛 賊 侯 其 其 視 T 各 不 .室 有 身. 相 :惡 伽其 相 猶 若 惡 攻 至 有 其 具 若 施 此 頗 不 則 IM 視 孝

¹ There are evidently some omissions and confusion here in the Chinese text.

也。人不不墨亂相愛下愛、惡得事天人治、者物可子故惡則兼故而不者下以故此愛以日、子則治、相天物禁惡爲治

UNIVERSAL LOVE. PART II.

Our Master, the philosopher Mo, said, 'That which benevolent men consider to be incumbent on them as their business, is to stimulate and promote all that will be advantageous to the nation, and to take away all that is injurious to it. This is what they consider to be their business.'

And what are the things advantageous to the nation, and the things injurious to it? Our master said, 'The mutual sitacks of State on State; the mutual usurpations of Family on Family; the mutual robberies of man on man; the want of kindness on the part of the ruler and of loyalty on the part of the minister; the want of tenderness and filial duty between father and son and of harmony between brothers:—these, and such as these, are the things injurious to the kingdom.'

And from what do we find, on examination, that these injurious things are produced 1? Is it not from the want of mutual love?

Our Master said, 'Yes, they are produced by the want of mutual love. Here is a prince who only knows to love his own State, and does not love his neighbour's;—he therefore does not shrink from raising all the power of his State to attack his neighbour. Here is the chief of a Family who only knows to love it, and does not love his neighbour's;—he therefore does not shrink from raising all his powers to seize on that other Family. Here is a man who only knows to love his own person, and does not love his neighbour's;—he therefore does not shrink from using all his resources to rob his neighbour. Thus it happens, that the princes, not loving one another, have their battle-fields; and the chiefs of Families, not loving one another, have their mutual usurpations; and men, not loving one another, have their mutual robberies; and rulers and ministers, not loving one another, become unkind and disloyal; and fathers and sons, not loving one another, lose their affection and filial duty; and brothers, not loving one another, contract irreconcileable enmities. Yes, men in general not loving one another, the strong make prey of the weak; the rich do despite to the poor; the noble are insolent to the mean; and the descritful impose upon the stupid. All the miseries, usurpations, enmities, and hatreds in the world, when traced to their origin, will be found to arise from the want of mutual love. On this account, the benevolent condemn it.'

1 Here I would read, in the Chinese text,察 for 崇 and 由 for 用.一然 則察此審亦何由生哉. The translation is accordingly.

They may condemn it; but how shall they change it?

Our Master said, 'They may change it by the law of universal mutual love and by the interchange of mutual benefits,'

How will this law of universal mutual love and the interchange of mutual benefits accomplish this?

Our Master said, 'It would lead to the regarding another's kingdom as one's own t another's family as one's own: another's person as one's own. That being the case, the princes, loving one another, would have no battle-fields; the chiefs of families, loving one another, would attempt no usurpations; men, loving one another, would commit no robberies 1; rulars and ministers, loving one another, would be gracious and loyal; fathers and sons, loving one another, would be kind and filial; brothers, loving one another, would be harmonious and easily reconciled. Yes, men in general loving one another, the strong would not make prey of the weak; the many would not plunder the few; the rich would not insult the poor; the noble would not be insolent to the mean; and the deceitful would not impose upon the simple. The way in which all the miseries,

The Chinese text is here very confused for several sentences. There are evidently transpositions, emissions, and additions. I have ventured to correct and arrange it as follows:—After 不相賊, I read, 君臣相愛則惠忠父子相愛則慈孝,兄弟相愛,則和調,天下之人皆相愛,强不執弱,衆不初寫,眾不初寫,眾不初寫,知不知為,以養相愛生也,是以仁者譽之。○然而今天下召出,君子,日,然乃若兼,則善矣,雖然,天下之難物也。○子墨子言日,天下之士,君子,特不識其利辯之故也,今若云云.

usurpations, enmittee, and hatreds in the world, may be made not to arise, is universal mutual love. On this account, the benevolent value and praise it.'

Yes; but the scholars of the kingdom and superior men say, 'True; if there were this universal lave, it would be good. It is, however, the most difficult thing in the world.'

Our Master said, 'This is because the scholars and superior men simply do not understand the advantageousness of the law, and to conduct their reasonings upon that. Take the case of assaulting a city, or of a battle-field, or of the sacrificing one's life for the sake of fame:—this is falt by the people everywhere to be a difficult thing. Yet, if the ruler be pleased with it, both officers and people are able to do it:—how much more might they attain to universal mutual love, and the interchange of mutual benefits, which is different from this! When a man loves others, they respond to and love him; when a man benefits others, they respond to and benefit him; when a man injures others, they respond to and injure him; when a man hates others, they respond to and hate him:—what difficulty is there in the matter? It is only that rulers will not carry on the government on this principle, and so officers do not carry it out in their practice.

Formerly, the duke Wan of Tain liked his officers to be coarsely dressed, and, therefore, they all wore rams' furs, a leathern swordbelt, and a cap of bleached cotton. Thus attired, they went in to the prince's loves, and came out and walked through the court. Why did they do this? The sovereign liked it, and therefore the ministers did it. The duke Ling of Ch'û liked his officers to have small waists, and, therefore, they all limited themselves to a single meal. They held in their breath in putting on their belts, and had to help themselves up by means of the wall. In the course of a year, they looked black, and as if they would die of starvation. Why did they do this!? The sovereign liked it, and, therefore, the ministers were able to do it. Exa-chi'en, the king of Yüch, liked his ministers to be brave, and taught them to be accustomed to be so. At a general assembly of them, he set on fire the ship where they were, and to try thom, said, "All the precious things of Yüch are here." He then with his own hands beat a drum, and urged them on. When they heard the drum thundering, they rushed confusedly about, and trampled in the fire, till more than a hundred of them perished, when he struck the gong, and called them back."

以皆者以 爲 之見將晉 此必之、利、 故於羊文行何從利則則此 臣君之公故難而爲出裘好也之惡 有、之、人異、能 句故然臣. 何後皆也 踐 火,好也,起,以昔 朝、带惡 上人從愛之 期飯 年、爲 故帛 爲必之、 文 政、從惡 何 必相也、戰 人從愛荷教 戏剧臣有肠好

In 是其故是也, the second 是 is plainly a misprint for 何. Here a sentence or two are wanting, to complete the paragraph in harmony with the two which preceds. The characters which follow—長故于墨子青日—should also be expanged. I have omitted them in the translation.

'Now, little food, bad clothes, and the sacrifice of life for the sake of fame;—these are what it is difficult for people to approve of. Yet, when the sovereign was pleased with it, they were all able, in these cases, to bring themselves to them. How much more could they attain to universal mutual love, and the interchange of mutual benefits, which is different from such things! When a man loves others, they respond to and love him; when a man benefits others, they respond to and benefit him; when a man hates others, they respond to and hate him; when a man injures others, they respond to and injure him. It is only that rulers will not carry on their government on this principle, and, so, officers do not carry it out in their practice.'

Yes; but now the officers and superior men say, 'Granted; the universal practice of mutual love would be good; but it is an impracticable thing. It is like taking up the Tai mountain, and leaping with it over the Ho or the Chi.'

Our Master said, 'That is not the proper comparison for it. To take up the Tai mountain, and leap with it over the Ho or the Chi, may be called an exercise of most extraordinary strength; it is, in fact, what no one, from antiquity to the present time, has ever been able to do. But how widely different from this is the practice of universal mutual love, and the interchange of mutual benefits!

'Anciently, the sage kings practised this. How do we know that they did so? When Yû reduced all the country to order:—in the west, he made the western Ho and the Yū-tau, to carry off the waters of Ch'ū-sun-wang; in the north, he made the Fang-yūan, the Pāi-chū, Hāu-chih-ti, and the Tāu of Fū-t'o; setting up also the Ti-ch'ū, and chiselling out the Lung-mān, to benefit Yen, Tāi, Hū, Mo, and the people of the western Ho; in the east, he drained the waters to Lū-fang and the marsh of Māng-chū, reducing them to nine channels, to limit the waters of the eastern country, and benefit the people of Ch'ī-chāu; and in the seuth, he made the Chiang, the Han, the Hwāi, the Zū, the course of the eastern current, and the five lakes, to benefit Ching, Ch'ū, and Yūch, the people of the wild south. These were the doings of Yū; and I am now for practising the same universal mutual love.

When king Wan brought the western country to good order, his light spread, like the sun 然政、 而 夫 他 亦 者 從 交 而 君 害之 故 從 而 而 此 洞 雕 ם 防 刧 変 r 從 不 丽 鼓 or the moon, over its four quarters. He did not permit great States to insult small ones; he did not permit the multitude to oppress the fatherless and the widow; he did not permit violence and power to take from the husbandmen their millet, pannicled millet, dogs, and swine. Heaven, as if constrained, visited king Wan with blessing. The old and childless were enabled to complete their years; the solitary and brotherless could yet mingle among the living; the young and parentless found those on whom they could depend, and grew up. These were the doings of king Wan; and I am now for practising the same universal matherlane.

'King Wû tunneled through the Tâi mountain. The Record says,"There is a way through the mountain, made by me, the descendant of the kings of Châu:—I have accomplished this great work. I have got my virtuous men, and rise up full of reverence for Shang, Hsiâ, and the tribes of the gouth, the east, and the north. Though he has his multitudes of relatives, they are not equal to my virtuous men. If guilt attach to the people anywhere throughout the kingdom, it is to be required of me, the One man."' This describes the doings of king Wû, and I am now for practising the same universal mutual love.

If, now, the rulers of the kingdom truly and sincerely wish all in it to be rich, and dislike any being poor; if they desire its good government, and dislike disorder; they ought to practise universal mutual love, and the interchange of mutual benefits. This was the law of the sage kings; it is the way to effect the good government of the nation; it may not but be striven after.

1 I do not recollect to have read elsewhere of king Wt's tunneling through the Tai mountain. In what Mo quotes from some Record, we have sentences from different parts of the Shû-ching brought together. The account of the labours of Yû contains names also not elsewhere found. There are, no doubt, many errors in the text.—I omit the 是故子墨子言曰, which follow 行兼矣.

UNIVERSAL LOVE. PART III.

Our Master, the philosopher Mo, said, 'The business of benevolent men requires that they should strive to stimulate and promote what is advantageous to the kingdom, and to take away what is injurious to it.'

Speaking, now, of the present time, what are to be accounted the most injurious things to the kingdom ¹? They are such as the attacking of small States by great ones; the inroads on small Families by great ones; the plunder of the weak by the strong; the oppression of the few by the many; the scheming of the crafty against the simple; the insolence of the noble to the mean. To the same class belong the ungraciousness of rulers, and the disloyalty of ministers; the unkindness of fathers, and the want of filial duty on the part of sons. Yes, there is to be added to these the conduct of the mean men, who employ their edged weapons and poisoned stuff, water and fire, to rob and injure one another.

Pushing on the inquiry new, let us ask whence all these injurious things arise. Is it from loving others and advantaging others? It must be answered. No; and it must likewise be said, They arise clearly from hating others and doing violence to others. If it be further ested whether those who hate and do violence to others hold the principle of loving all, or that of making distinctions, it must be replied, 'They make distinctions.' So than, it is this principle of making distinctions between man and man, which gives rise to all that is most injurious in the kingdom. On this account we conclude that that principle is wrong.

Our Master said, 'He who condemns others must have whereby to change them.' To condemn men, and have no means of changing them, is like saving them from fire by plunging them in water. A man's language in such a case must be improper. On this account our Master said, 'There is the principle of loving all, to take the place of that which makes distinctions.'

1 I suppose that the compiler—the disciple of Mo—begins to speak here. Throughout this part, however, the changes in the argument are indistinctly marked. 2 人與 should here be expunged from the Chinese text. 2 又與 should here be expunged.

1 I translate 分名 by 'clearly.'名 is probably a misprint for 明.

If, now, we ask, 'And how is it that universal love can change the consequences of that other principle which makes distinctions?' the answer is, 'If princes were as much for the States of others as for their own, what one among them would raise the forces of his State to attack that of another?—he is for that other as much as for himself. If they were for the capitals of others as much as for their own, what one would raise the forces of his capital to attack that of another?—he is for that as much as for his own. If chiefs regarded the Families of others as their own, what one would lead the power of his Family to throw that of another into confusion?—he is for that other as much as for himself. If, now, States did not attack, nor holders of capitals smite, one another, and if Families were guilty of no mutual aggressions, would this be injurious to the kingdom, or its benefit?' It must be replied, 'This would be advantageous to the kingdom.' Pushing on the inquiry, now, let us ask whence all these benefits arise. Is it from hating others and doing violence to others? It must be answered, 'No;' and it must likewise be said, 'They arise clearly from loving others and doing good to others.' If # be further called whether those who love others and do good to others hold the principle of making distinctions between man and man, or that of loving all, it must be replied, 'They love all.' So then it is this principle of un versal mutual love which really gives rise to all that is most beneficial to the nation. On this account we conclude that that principle is right1.

Our Master said, a little while ago, 'The business of benevolent men requires that they should strive to stimulate and promote what is advantageous to the kingdom, and to take away what is injurious to it.' We have now traced the subject up, and found that it is the principle of universal love which produces all that is most beneficial to the kingdom, and the principle of making distinctions which produces all that is injurious to it. On this account what our

與和賊 利 夫 哉 誰 爲 賊 e 瘽 彼 都 下 此也 猶 其 夫 然 其 爲誰 胡 卽 也 姑 從 本

I here transpose 子墨子曰, and put it after 兼是也. This is required by the preceding argument, which ends simply with 是故别非也. With this transposition, however, some other liberties must still be taken with the next paragraph. In 仁人之是者,是should evidently be 事. In the concluding phrase—出乎若方—the adoption of an old gloss, that 乎 should be 平, enables us to make sense of it. What follows, from 今吾將 down to 卽若其利, is confused and difficult. 與, in 與天下之利, is a misprint for 與; but there must be other corruptions and emissions as well. One can see the author's drift; and I have tried to translate accordingly.

Master said, 'The principle of making distinctions between man and man is wrong, and the erinciple of universal love is right,' turns out to be correct as the sides of a square

If, now, we just desire to promote the benefit of the kingdom, and select for that purpose the principle of universal love, then the acute ears and piercing eyes of people will hear and see for one another; and the strong limbs of people will move and be ruled for one another; and men of principle will instruct one another. It will some about that the old, who have neither wife nor children, will get supporters who will enable them to complete their years; and the young and weak, who have no parents, will yet find helpers that shall bring them up. On the contrary, if this principle of universal love is held not to be correct, what benefits will arise from such a view? What can be the reason that the scholars of the kingdom, whenever they hear of this principle of universal love, go on to condemn it? Plain as the case is, their words in condemnation of this principle do not stop;—they say, 'It may be good, but how can it be carried into practice?'

Our Master said, 'Supposing that it could not be practised, it seems hard to go on likewise to condemn it. But how can it be good, and yet incapable of being put into practice?'

Let us bring forward two instances to test the matter:—Let any one suppose the case of two individuals, the one of whom shall hold the principle of making distinctions, and the other shall hold the principle of universal love. The former of these will say, 'How can I be for the person of my friend as much as for my own person? how can I be for the persons of my friend as much as for my own person? how can I be for the persons of my friend as much as for my own person? How can I be for the persons of my friend as much as for my own persons? Reasoning in this way, he may see his friend hungry, but he will not bury him. Such will be the language of the individual holding the principle of distinction, and such will be the language of the other, holding the principle of universality, will be different, and also his conduct. He will say, 'I have heard that he who wishes to play a lofty part among men, will be for the person of his friend as much as for his own person, and for the parents of his friend as much as for his own persons. It is only thus that he can attain his distinction?' Reasoning in this way, when he sees his friend hungry, he will feed him; cold, he will clothe him; sick, he will nurse him; dead, he will bury him. Such will be the language of him who holds the principle of universal love, and such will be his conduct.

The words of the one of these individuals are a condemnation of those of the other, and their conduct is directly contrary. Suppose now that their words are perfectly sincere, and that their conduct will be carried out,—that their words and actions will correspond like the parts of a token, every word being carried into effect; and let us proceed to put the following questions on the case :--Here is a plain in the open country, and an officer, with coat of mail, gorget, and helmet 1s about to take part in a battle to be fought in it, where the issue, whether for life or death, cannot be foreknown; or here is an officer about to be dispatched on a distant commission from På to Yüch, or from Ch'i to Ching, where the issue of the journey, going and coming, is quite uncertain :- on either of these suppositions, to whom will the officer entrust the charge of his house, the support of his parents, and the care of his wife and children?—to one who holds the principle of universal love? or to one who holds that which makes distinctions? I apprehend there is no one under heaven, man or woman, however stupid, though he may condemn the principle of universal love, but would at such a time make one who helds it the subject of his trust. This is in words to condemn the principle, and when there is occasion to choose between it and the opposite, to approve it; --words and conduct are here in contradiction. I do not know how it is that throughout the kingdom scholars condemn the principle of universal love, whenever they hear it '.

Plain as the case is, their words in condemnation of it do not cease, but they say, 'This principle may suffice perhaps to guide in the choice of an officer, but it will not guide in the choice of a sovereign "."

Let us test this by taking two illustrations:—Let any one suppose the case of two sovereigns, the one of whom shall hold the principle of mutual love, and the other shall hold the principle which makes distinctions. In this case, the latter of them will say, 'How can I be as much for the persons of all my people as for my own? This is much opposed to human feelings. The life of man upon the earth is but a very brief space; it may be compared to the rapid

家否 者、若 及 有 下 其梛 承 否.君 而 故也 而 愚 戚可夫 不 提 識 遠 愚 將 挈 也。 婦、有 然 便 H 往 雖是 . 即 即,舞 丽 乎。而 者. 死較 敢 僆 間 寄 越 間 託 不 君 往 其識惡來可

'From 子墨子曰,用而不可 down to this, the general meaning is plain enough. But there must be several corruptions in the text. 哉, for instance, after 别之有是乎, is, plainly, for 我. 'Here there should follow, 'Our Master said,' and some observations introductory to the two illustrations of the sovereigns. This has been lost, however, and all that remains of it is the solitary 子, in 子姑甞云云.

movement of a team of horses whirling past a small chink.' Beasoning in this way, he may see his people hungry, but he will not feed them; cold, but he will not clothe them; sick, but he will not nume them; dead, but he will not bury them. Such will be the language of the sovereign who holds the principle of distinctions, and such will be his conduct. Different will be the language and conduct of the other who holds the principle of universal love. He will say, 'I have heard that he who would show himself a wittens and intelligent sovereign, ought to make his people the first consideration, and think of himself only after them. Reasoning in this way, when he sees any of the people hungry, he will feed them; cold, he will clothe them; sick, he will nurse them; dead, he will bury them. Such will be the language of the sovereign who holds the principle of universal love, and such his conduct. If we compare the two sovereigns, the words of the one are condemnatory of those of the other, and their actions are opposite. Let us suppose that their words are equally sincere, and that their actions will make them good,—that their words and actions will correspond like the parts of a token, every word being carried into effect; and let us proceed to put the following questions on the case:—Here is a year when a postilence walks abroad among the people; many of them suffer from cold and famine; multitudes die in the ditches and water-channels. If at such a time they might make an election between the two sovereigns whom we have supposed, which would they prefer? I apprehend there is no one under heaven, however stupid, though he may condemn the principle of universal love, but would at such a time prefer to be under the sovereign who holds it. This is in words to condemn the principle, and, when there is occasion to choose between it and the opposite, to approve it ;—words and cendust are here in contradiction. I do not know how it is that throughout the kingdom scholars condemn the principle of universal love, whenever they hear it.

Plain as the case is, their words in condemnation of it do not cease; but they say, 'This universal mutual loss is benevolent and righteous. That we grant, but how can it be practiced? The impracticability of it is like that of taking up the Tai mountain, and leaping with it over the Chiang or the Ho. We do, indeed, desire this universal love, but it is an impracticable thing!'

Our Master said, 'To take up the Tai mountain, and leap with it over the Chiang or the 故 甲 卽 相 飢 亦 退 民. 反 卽 與 身 鄮 坶 何 君者 也 無 君 泰 H 븳 行 흡 Ш 非 It 飢 拂 凶 明 m m 何 71 超 從 不 卽 君 也 死 行 江 江 何自古之及今生民 我 也,必 然 天 信 11 中 卽 死 是 ik 业 閸 於 退 相 m. 也、 有

He, is a thing which never has been done, from the highest antiquity to the present time, since men were; but the exercise of mutual love and the interchange of mutual benefits,—this was practised by the ancient sages and six kings.'

How do you know that the ancient sages and the six kings practised this?

Our Master said, 'I was not of the same age and time with them, so that I could myself have heard their voices, or seen their faces; but I know what I say from what they have transmitted to posterity, written on bamboo or cloth, cut in metal or stone, or engraven on their vessels.'

'It is said in "The Great Declaration,"—"King Wan was like the sun or like the moon; suddenly did his brightness shine through the four quarters of the western region !."

'According to these words, king Wan exercised the principle of universal love on a vast scale. He is compared to the sun or moon which shines on all, without partial favour to any spot under the heavens;—such was the universal love of king Wan.' What our Master insisted on was thus exemplified in him.

Again, not only does "The Great Declaration" speak thus ;—we find the same thing in "The Declaration of Yū." Yū said, "Ye multitudes, listen all to my words. It is not only I who dare t say a word in favour of war;—against this stupid prince of Mião we must execute the punishment appointed by Heaven. I am therefore leading your hosts, and go before you all to punish the prince of Mião?"

'Thus Y' punished the prince of Mião, not to increase his own riches and nobility, nor to obtain happiness and emolument, nor to gratify his ears and eyes;—he did it, seeking to promote what was advantageous to the kingdom, and to take away what was injurious to it. It appears from this, that Yū held the principle of universal love.' What our Master insisted on may be found in him.

'And not only may Yi thus be appealed to ;—we have "The words of Tang" to the same effect. Tang said, "I, the child Li, presume to use a dark-coloured victim, and announce to Thee, O supreme Heavenly Sovereign:—Now there is a great drought, and it is right I should

福以 即凝、征 禺 玆 巾 苗、 1E 田 丣 非 雕 時. 痙 惟 求 虫 石. B

VOL. II.

¹ See 'The Great Declaration,' III. 6. The language is somewhat different from the citation.
² 'The Declaration of Yū' is what is called 'The Counsels of Yū.' In the twentieth paragraph we find the passage here quoted, or rather we find something like it.

be held responsible for it. I do not know but that I have offended against the Powers above and below. But the good I dare not keep in obscurity, and the sinner I dare not pardon. The examination of this is with Thy mind, O God. If the people throughout the kingdom commit offences it is to be required of me. If I commit offences, it does not concern the people 1." From these words we perceive that Tang, possessing the dignity of sovereign, and the wealth of the kingdom, did not shrink from offering himself as a sacrifice which might be acceptable to God and other spiritual beings.' It appears from this that Tang held the principle of universal love. What our Master insisted on was exemplified in Tang.

And not only may we appeal in this way to the 'Declarations,' 'Charges,' and 'Words of Tang.'—we find the same thing in 'The Poems of Châu'.' One of those poems says,

'Wide and long is the Royal way, Without deflection, without injustice. The Royal way is plain and level, Without injustice, without deflection. It is straight as an arrow, It is smooth as a whetstone. The officers tread it; The lower people see it.'

Is not this speaking of the Royal way in accordance with our style *? Anciently, Wan and Wû, acting with exact justice and impartiality, rewarded the worthy and punished the oppressive, allowing no favouritism to influence them towards their own relatives. It appears from this that Wan and Wû held the principle of universal love. What our Master insisted on was examplified in them.—How is it that the scholars throughout the kingdom condemn this universal love, whenever they hear of it? Plain as the case is, the words of those who condemn the principle of universal love do not cease. They say, 'It is not advantageous to the entire devotion to parents which is required;—it is injurious to filial piety '.' Our Master said, 'Let us bring this objection to the test:—A flial son, having the happiness of his parents at heart, considers how it is to be secured. Now, does he, so considering, wish men to love and benefit his parents?' On this view of the question, it must be evident that he wishes men to love and benefit his parents. And what 1 See 'The Announcement of Tang' (場合) in various places. Compare also more particularly the Analects, XX. i. 3. In the quotation which is immediately subjoined, the first four lines are from a rhythmical passage of the Shû-ching, V. iv. 13. The remaining four are in the Shih-ching, II. v. Ode ix. st. 1. Such I suppose to be the meaning of 若吾言非語道之謂也, if it were amended. In the sentence is not clear,一意不思想之利而害為孝子. I have done what I could with it. The scope of the whole paragraph is sufficiently plain. The 選, farther on, is supposed to be for 偶.

must be himself first do in order to gain this object? If I first address myself to love and benefit men's parents, will they for that return love and benefit to my parents? or if I first address myself to hate mon's parents, will they for that return love and benefit to my parents? It is clear that I must first address myself to love and benefit men's parents, and they will return to me love and benefit to my parents. The conclusion is that a filial son has no alternative.—He must address himself in the first place to love and do good to the parents of others. If it be supposed that this is an accidental course, to be followed on emergency by a filial son, and not sufficient to be regarded as a general rule, let us bring it to the test of what we find in the Books of the ancient kings. —It is said in the Ta Ya,

> 'Every word finds its answer; Every action its recompense.

He threw me a peach; I returned him a plum.' 115

These words show that he who loves others will be loved, and that he who hates others will be hated. How is it that the scholars throughout the kingdom condemn this principle of universal love, when they hear it?

Is it that they deem it so difficult as to be impracticable? But there have been more difficult things, which yet have been done. For instance, king Ling of Ching was fond of small waists. In his time, the officers of Ching restricted themselves to a handful of rice, till they required a stick to raise themselves, and in walking had to hold themselves up by the wall. Now, it is a difficult thing to restrict one's self in food, but they were able to do it, because it would please king Ling.—It needs not more than a generation to change the manners of the people, such is their desire to move after the pattern of their superiors.

Again, Kau-chien, the king of Yüch, was fond of bravery. He spent three years in training his officers to be brave; and then, not knowing fully whether they were so, he set fire to the ship where they were, and urged them forward by a drum into the flames. They advanced, one rank over the bodies of another, till an immense number perished in the water or the flames; and it was not till he ceased to beat the drum, that they retired. Those officers of Yüch might be pronounced to be full of reverence. To sacrifice one's life in the flames is a difficult thing, but they were able to do it, because it would please their king.—It needed not mere than a generation to change the manners of the people, such is their desire to move after the pattern of their superiors. Once more, duke Wan of Tein was fond of garments of coarse flax. In his time, the officers of Tein wore wide clothes of that fabric, with rame' furs, leathern swordbelts, and coarse canvas sandals. Thus attired, they went in to the duke's leves, and went out and walked through the court. It is a difficult thing to wear such clothes, but they were able to do it, because it would please duke Wan.—It needs but a generation to change the manners of the people, such is their desire to move after the pattern of their superiors.

李.所 遇 刨 渞 而 此 不 從 而 丽 肵 而 \pm 回 以 而 從 可 士 忇 而 而 臣 非 丽 乎 而 而 韭 見 桃 黻 也 報 固、荆

Now, little food, a burning ship, and coarse clothes,—these are among the most difficult things to endure; but because the sovereign would be pleased with the enduring them, they were able in those cases to do it. It needed no more than a generation to change the manners of the people. Why? Because such is their desire to move after the pattern of their superiors. And now, as to universal mutual love ', it is an advantageous thing and easily practised, beyond all calculation. The only reason why it is not practised is, in my opinion, because superiors do not take pleasure in it. If superiors were to take pleasure in it, stimulating men to it by rewards and praise, and awing them from opposition to it by punishments and fines, they would, in my opinion, move to it,—the practice of universal mutual love, and the interchange of mutual benefits,—as fire rises upwards, and as water flows downwards:—nothing would be able to check them. This universal love was the way of the sage kings; it is the principle to secure peace for kings, dukes, and great men; it is the means to secure plenty of food and clothes for the myriads of the people. The best course for the superior man is to well understand the principle of universal love, and to exert himself to practise it. It requires the sovereign to be gracious, and the minister to be loyal; the father to be kind, and the son to be filial; the elder brother to be friendly, and the younger to be obedient. Therefore the superior man,—with whom the chief desire is to see gracious sovereigns and loyal rainisters; kind fathers and filial sons; friendly elder brothers and obedient younger ones,ought to insist on the indispensableness of the practice of universal love. It was the way of the mage kings; it would be the most advantageous thing for the myriads of the people.

已爲求 矣.也.以 故 忠 以 爲 不 並 慈 菹 申 食 也 也 也 世 服 丽 艮 不 相 世 羙 H 紀 而 所 故 相 K 也 以 必 相 利 可 刨 也 慈、而 若 於 此 利 移 至 束 莫 也. 也 其 桃 有 爲 何 利 者 衣 兼 猶 刑 A 恌 文 罰、而 易 即 後 也。公

1 For 兼相利 we should read 兼相愛.

2. Notwithstanding the mutilations and corruptions in the text of the preceding Essay, its general scope is clearly discernible, and we obtain from it a sufficient account of Mo's doctrine on the subject of 'Universal Love,' We have now to consider the opposition offered to this doctrine by Mencius. He was not the first, however, to be startled and offended by it. The Essay shows that it was resented as an outrage on the system of orthodox belief during all the lifetime of Mo and his immediate disciples. Men of learning did not cease to be clamorous against it. From the allusions made by Mencius to its prevalence in his days, it would appear that it had overcome much of the hostility which it at first encountered. He stepped forward to do battle with it, and though he had no new arguments to ply, such was the effect of his onset, that 'Universal Love' has ever since been considered save by some eccentric thinkers, as belonging to the Limbo of Chinese vanities, among other things 'abortive, monstrous, or unkindly mixed.'

We may approach the question conveniently by observing that Mo's attempts to defend his principle were in several points far from the best that could be made. His references to the examples of Yt, Tang, and the kings Wan and Wt, are of this nature. Those worthies well performed the work of their generation. They punished the oppressor, and delivered the oppressed. Earnest sentiments of justice and benevolence animated their breasts and directed their course. But they never laid down the doctrine of 'Universal Love,' as the rule for themselves or others.

When he insists, again, that the people might easily be brought to appreciate and practise his doctrine, if their rulers would only set them the example, he shows the same overweening idea of the influence of superiors, and the same ignorance of human nature, which I have had occasion to point out in both Confucius and Mencius. His references to duke Wan of Tsin, duke Ling of Ch'û, and Kau-chien of Yüch, and his argument from what they are said to have effected, only move us to smile. And when he teaches that men are to be awed to love one another 'by punishments and fines,' we feel that he is not understanding fully what he says nor whereof he affirms.

Still, he has broadly and distinctly laid it down, that if men would only universally love one another, the evils which disturb and embitter human society would disappear. I do not say that he has taught the duty of universal love. His argument is conducted on the ground of expediency. Whether he had in his own mind a truer, nobler foundation for his principle, does not immediately appear. Be that as it may, his doctrine was that men were to be exhorted to love one another,—to love one another as themselves. According to him, 'princes should be as much for the States of others as for their own. One prince should be for every other as for himself.' So it ought to be also with the Heads of clans, with ministers, with parents, and with men generally.

Here it was that Mencius joined issue with him. He affirmed that 'to love all equally did not acknowledge the peculiar affection due to a parent.' It is to be observed that Mo himself nowhere says that his principle was that of loving all EQUALLY.. His disciples drew this conclusion from it. In the third Book of Mencius's Works. we find one of them, I Chih, contending that the expression in the Shû-ching, about the ancient kings acting towards the people, 'as if they were watching over an infant,' sounded to him as if love were to be without difference of degree, the manifestation of it simply commencing with our parents. To this Mencius replied conclusively by asking, 'Does I really think that a man's affection for the child of his brother is merely like his affection for the child of his neighbour?' With still more force might he have asked, 'Is a man's affection for his father merely like his affection for the father of his neighbour?' Such a question, and the necessary reply to it, are implied in his condemnation of Mo's system, as being 'without father,' that is, denying the peculiar affection due to a father. If Mo had really maintained that a man's father was to be no more to him than the father of any other body, or if his system had necessitated such a consequence, Mencius would only have done his duty to his country in denouncing him, and exposing the fallacy of his reasonings. As the case is, he would have done better if he had shown that no such conclusion necessarily flows from the doctrine of 'Universal Love,' or its preceptive form that we are to love our neighbour as ourselves.

Of course it belonged to Mo himself to defend his views from the imputation. But what he has said on the point is not satisfactory. In reply to the charge that his principle was injurious to filial piety, he endeavoured to show, that, by acting on it, a man would best secure the happiness of his parents:—as he addressed himself in the first place to love, and do good to, the parents of others, they would recompense to him the love of, and good-doing to, his parents. might be so, or it might not. The reply exhibits strikingly in what manner Mo was conducted to the inculcation of universal love, and that really it had in his mind no deeper basis than its expediency. This is his weak point; and if Mencius, whose view of the constitution of human nature, and the binding force of the virtues, apart from all consideration of consequences, was more comprehensive and correct than that of Mo, had founded his opposition on this ground, we could in a measure have sympathised with him. But while Mo appeared to lose sight of the other sentiments of the human mind too much, in his exclusive contemplation of the power of love, he did not doubt but his principle would make sons more filial, and ministers more devoted, and subjects more loyal. The passage which I have just referred to, moreover, does not contain the admission that the love was to be without any difference of degree. The fact is, that he hardly seems to have realised the objection with which Mencius afterwards pressed the advocacy of it by his followers. If he did do so, he blinked the difficulty, not seeing his way to give a full and precise reply to it.

¹ This and several other points are well put by the Rev. Dr. Edkins, in his Resay, referred to on p. 133. See Journal of the North-China Branch of the Royal Asiatic Society, No. II, May, 1859.

² See Bk. III. Pt. I. v. 3.

This seems to be the exact state of the case between the two philosophers. Mo stumbled on a truth, which, based on a right foundation, is one of the noblest which can animate the human breast, and affords the surest remedy for the ills of society. There is that in it, however, which is startling, and liable to misrepresenta-Mencius saw the difficulty attaching to it, and tion and abuse. unable to sympathise with the generosity of it, set himself to meet it with a most vehement opposition. Nothing, certainly, could be more absurd than his classing Yang Chû and Mo Ti together, as equally the enemies of benevolence and righteousness. When he tries to ridicule Mo, and talks contemptuously about him, how, if he could have benefited the kingdom, by toiling till he rubbed off every hair of his body, he would have done it1,—this only raises up a barrier between himself and us. It reminds us of the hardness of nature which I have elsewhere charged against him.

3. Confucius, I think, might have dealt more fairly and generously with Mo. In writing of him, I called attention to his repeated enunciation of 'the golden rule' in a negative form,—'What you do not wish done to yourself, do not do to others'.' In one place, indeed, he rises for a moment to the full apprehension of it, and recognises the duty of taking the initiative,—of behaving to others in the first instance as he would that they should behave to him's. Now, what is this but the practical exercise of the principle of universal love? 'All things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them:'—this is simply the manifestation of the requirement, 'Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.' Confucius might have conceded, therefore, to Mo, that the rule of conduct which he laid down was the very best that could be propounded. If he had gone on to remove it from the basis of expediency, and place it on a better foundation, he would have done the greatest service to his countrymen, and entitled himself to a place among the sages of the world.

¹ Bk. VII. Pt. I. xxvi.

On this matter I am happy to find myself in agreement with the 'Prince of Literature,' Han Yus. 'Our literati,' says he, 'find fault with Mo because of what he has said on "The Estimation to be attached to Concords," on "Universal Love," on "The Estimation to be given to Men of Worths," on "The Acknowledging of Spiritual Beingss," and on "The Awe in which Confucius stood of Great Men, ¹ Vol. i. proleg. p. 109.

See proleg. on the 'Doctrine of the Mean,' pp. 48, 49, vol. i.

^{*} See the Works of Han Wän-kung, 十一卷, 讀墨子篇.

^{&#}x27;This is the title of one of Mo's Essays, the 自同, forming the third Book of his Works. Generalising after his fashion, he traces all evils up to a want of concord, or agreement of opinion; and goes on to assert that the sovereign must be recognised as the 'Infallible Head,' to lay down the rule of truth and right, saying 天子之所是,皆是之,天子之所非,皆非之,'What the sovereign approves, all must approve; what the sovereign condemns, all must condemn.' It is an unguarded utterance; and taken absolutely, apart from its counexion, may be represented very much to Mo's disadvantage. See 'Supplemental Observations on the Four Books,' on Mencius, Book I. art. lix. The coincidence between this saying and the language of Hobbes is remarkable.—'Quod legislator pracceperit, id pro bono, quod vetuerit, id pro malo habendum esse.' (De Cive, cap. xii. 1.)

s This is another of Mo's pieces,—

This is another of Mo's pieces,—

This is second Book of his Works. He finds a cure for the ills of the nation in princes' honouring and employing only men of worth, without paying regard to their relatives. This is contrary to the third of Confucius's nine standard rules for the government of the nation, set forth in his conversation with duke Ai, as related in the 'Doctrine of the Mean,' ch. xx. But Mo would only discountenance repottem, where it ought to be discountenanced.

This is found in the eighth Book of Mo. The first and second parts of the essay, however, are unfortunately lost. In the third he tells several queer ghost stories, and adduces other proofs, to show the real existence of spiritual beings, and that they take account of men's actions to reward or to punish them. He found another panaces for the ills of the kingdom in this truth. His doctrine here, however, is held to be inconsistent with Confucius's reply to and, when he resided in any State, did blame its Great Officers1" But when the Ch'un Ch'in finds fault with arrogant ministers, is not this attaching a similar value to concord? When Confucius speaks of "overflowing in love to all, and cultivating the friendship of the good," and of how "the extensive conferring of benefits constitutes a sage," does he not teach universal love? When he advises "the esteem of the worthy;" when he arranged his disciples into "the four classes," so stimulating and commending them; when he says that "the superior man dislikes the thought of his name not being mentioned after death:"-does not this show the estimation he gave to men of worth? When "he sacrificed as if the spiritual beings were present," and condemned "those who sacrificed as if they were not really sacrificing 2;" when he said, "When I sacrifice, I shall receive blessing:"-was not this acknowledging spiritual beings? The literati and Mo equally approve of Yao and Shun, and equally condemn Chieh and Chau; they equally teach the cultivation of the person, and the rectifying of the heart, reaching on to the good government of the nation, with all its States and Families:—why should they be so hostile to each other? In my opinion, the discussions which we hear are the work of their followers, vaunting on each side the sayings of their Teacher; there is no such contrariety between the real doctrines of the two Teachers. Confucius would have made use of Mo's views; and Mo would have made use of those of Confucius. If they would not have made use of each other's sentiments, they could not have been Kung and Mo.'

4. It seems proper, in closing this discussion of Mo's views, to notice the manner in which the subject of 'universal love' appears in Christianity. Its whole law is comprehended in the one word—Love; but how wide is the scope of the term compared with all which it ever entered into the mind of Chinese sage or philosopher to conceive!

Fan Ch'lh, Analosts, VI. XX, that wisdom consists in respecting spiritual beings, but at the same time keeping aloof from them. But as between Confucius and Mo, on this point we would agree rather with the latter. He holds an important truth, mingled with superstition; the sage would seem to be sceptical.

³ Han avoids saying anything on this point. The author of 'Supplemental Observations' is equally silent.

^{*} Han is here quoting Analosts, III. xii. a, 吾不與祭如不祭, which he points and interprets after a way of his own. He does not read 與 but 與, in the sense of 計, 'to grant to,' 'to approve of.'

It is most authoritative where the teachers of China are altogether silent, and commands:-- 'Thou shalt love the Lord, thy God, with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind.' For the Divine Being Christianity thus demands from all men supreme love:—the love of all that is majestic, awing the soul; the love of all that is beautiful, wooing the heart; the love of all that is good, possessing and mastering the entire nature. Such a love, existing, would necessitate obedience to every law, natural or revealed. Christianity, however, goes on to specify the duties which every man owes, as the complement of love to God, to his fellow-men: - 'Owe no man anything, but to love one another, for he that loveth another hath fulfilled the law. For this-"Thou shalt not commit adultery," "Thou shalt not kill," "Thou shalt not steal," "Thou shalt not bear false witness," "Thou shalt not covet;" and if there be any other commandment:—the whole is briefly comprehended in this saying, "Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself."' This commandment is 'like to' the other. differing from it only in not requiring the supreme love which is due to God alone. The rule which it prescribes,—such love to others as we feel for ourselves,—is much more definitely and intelligibly expressed than anything we find in Mo, and is not liable to the cavils with which his doctrine was assailed. Such a love to men, existing, would necessitate the performance of every relative and social duty; we could not help doing to others as we would that they should do to us.

Mo's universal love was to find its scope and consummation in the good government of China. He had not the idea of man as man, any more than Confucius or Mencius. How can that idea be fully realised, indeed, where there is not the right knowledge of one living and true God, the creator and common parent of all? The love which Christianity inculcates is a law of humanity; paramount to all selfish, personal feelings; paramount to all relative, local, national attachments; paramount to all distinctions of race or of religion. Apprehended in the spirit of Christ, it will go forth even to the love of enemies; it will energize in a determination to be always increasing the sum of others' happiness, limited only by the means of doing so.

But I stop. These prolegomena are not the place for disquisition; but I deemed it right to say thus much here of that true, universal love, which at once gives glory to God and effects peace on earth.

CHAPTER IV.

WORKS WHICH HAVE BEEN CONSULTED IN THE PREPARATION OF THIS VOLUME

The Works which have been consulted are mostly the same as those used in the preparation of the first volume, of which a list is there given. I have only to add to that:—

L-OF CHINESE WORKS.

墨子十五卷, 目一卷, 'The Philosopher Mo, in fifteen Books, with one Book on the Titles of his Essays.' This Work was edited and annotated in the forty-eighth year of Ch'ien-lung (A.D. 1784), by Pi Yttan (事元), lieutenant-governor of Shen-hst. From the notes appended to Mo's Essay on 'Universal Love' in the last chapter, it will be seen that the task of editing has been very imperfectly executed. I suppose it is vain to express a wish that some foreign scholar would take it in hand.

五百家註音辯韓昌黎先生全集, 'The Collected Writings of Han Ch'ang-lt, with the Verbal and Critical Notes of five hundred Scholsrs.' Ch'ang-lt is a local designation for Han Yu, styled T'u-chih (退之), and canonised as Wan-kung (文公), or 'Prince of Literature.' I have said, p. 12, that he was a scholar of the eighth century, but he extended on into the ninth, dying A.D. 824. He stands out as perhaps the most distinguished scholar of the long space between the Han and Sung dynasties. The edition of his Works which I have, with such a collation of commentators, was first published by a Hsu Tao-cht (許道基), in the twenty-eighth year of Ch'ien-lung (A.D. 1761).

II.-OF TRANSLATIONS AND OTHER WORKS.

MEMG TSEU, vel MENCIUM, inter Sinenses Philosophos, Ingenio, Doctrina, Nominisque Claritate, Confucio proximum, edidit, Latina interpretatione, ad interpretationem Tartaricam utramque recensita, instruxit, et perpetuo commentario, e Sinicis deprompto, illustravit Stanislaus Julien. Paris, 1824–1829.

THE WORKS OF MENCIUS.

BOOK I.

KING HÛI OF LIANG. PART I.

CHAPTER I. 1. Mencius west to see king Hûi of Liang.

2. The king said, 'Venerable sir, since vou have not counted it far to come here,'s distance of a thousand U, may I presume that you are provided with counsels to profit my kingdom?'

price of the Work thus simply bears the manner of the ware form by the sufficient of the matter. The Work thus simply bears the manner of the ware of him whose conversations and opinions it relates, and is said to have been compiled in its present form by the sufficient of the ware of the ware absorbed by the sufficient of the ware combined by the Romish missionaries, and latinized into Mencius, which it is well to adopt throughout the translation, and thereby sweld the constant repetition of the word 'philosopher,' Ming not being distinguished, like Kung (Confusius), by the crowning epithet of 'The Master.'

True or the Book.—聚惠王章句上, 'King Hûi of Liang, in chapters and sentences. Part I.' Libs the Books of the Confecian Analests, those of this Work are headed by two or three characters at or near their commencement. Each Book is divided into two parts, called 上下, 'Upper and Lower.' This arrangement was made by Châo Ch'! (超失), a scholar of the eastern Han dynasty (died A.D. soi), by whom the chapters and sentences were also divided, and the 童句上, 童句下 remain to the present day, a memorial of his

1. BERHVOLERON AND EXCEPTEDURINE MEN-CHUS'S CHER POVICE WITH THE PRINCES OF HIS THER; AND THE ONLY PRINCEPLES WHICH CAN HAKE A department of Yen-châu ()), in Shan-

3. Mencius replied, 'Why must your Majesty use that word "profit?" What I am provided with, are counsels to benevolence and righteousness, and these are my only topics.

4. 'If your Majesty say," What is to be done to profit my kingdom!" the great officers will say, "What is to be done to profit our families!" and the inferior officers and the common people will say. "What is to be done to profit our persons?" Superiors and inferiors will try to snatch this profit the one from the other, and the kingdom will be endangered. In the kingdom of ten thousand chariots, the murderer of his sovereign shall be the chief of a family of a thousand chariots. In a kingdom of a thousand chariots, the murderer of his prince shall be the chief of a family of a hundred chariots. To have a thousand in ten thousand, and a hundred in a thousand, cannot be said not to be a large allotment, but if righteousness be put last, and profit be put first, they will not be satisfied without snatching all.

tung. The king, in complimentary style, calls the distance from Tatu to Liang a thousand a. It is difficult to my what was the exact length of the ancient a. At present it is a little more merely a helping particle; especially does he rethan one-third of an English mile. The M. 'also,' occasions some difficulty.—With reference to what is it spoken? Some compare the 亦…乎with不亦乎, Analocta, Li. Others say that the king refers to the many scholars who at the time made it their business to wander from country to country, as advisors to the princes — 'You also, like other scholars,' &c. Then, when Mencius, in per. 3, replies— 亦有仁義, they may that he refers to Yao, Shun, &c., as his models :- 'I, life them,' &c. AF,-here = 12, 'to take.' AF, 'mutually gard it so after A in an interrogative eleuse. Observe the force of He, delicately and suggestively putting the question. 3. 27, -marking the answer of an inferior, used from re to the king. H is 'to say,' followed directly by the words spoken. It is not 'to speak of.' 而已矣 mark very decidedly Mencius's purpose to converse only of 🧲 and

5. 'There never has been a benevolent man who neglected his parents. There never has been a righteous man who made his sovereign an after consideration.

6. 'Let your Majesty also say, "Benevolence and righteousness, and let these be your only themes." Why must you use that word—" profit?" '

1. Mencius, another day, saw king Hûi of Liang. CHAP. II. The king went and stood with him by a pond, and, looking round at the large geese and deer, said, 'Do wise and good princes also find pleasure in these things?

2. Mencius replied, Being wise and good, they have pleasure in these things. If they are not wise and good, though they have these things, they do not find pleasure.

feriors from superiors. 🛒, in 4th tone, 'a carriage or charlot.' The sovereign's domain, z,ceo & square, produced 10,000 war chariots. A kingdom producing z,coo chariots was that of a Mos, or marquis. He is here called 白 秉 之家,instead of 百乘之君,because the sovereign has just been denominated by that term. 後 and 先 are verbs. See Analects, VLxx. 5. The 仁 and] to result from the sovereign's example.

2. Rulers must share their pleasures with THE PROPER. THEY CAN ONLY BE HAPPY WHEN THEY RULE OVER HAPPY SUBJECTS. 1. 王立,-'The king stood;' and the meaning is not that Memetus found him by the pond. The king seems to have received him graciously, and to have led him into the park. 於招上,一tion. 古之人 referring to king Wan, but to take;' i. e. superiors from inferiors, and in-|compare Analects, VI. vii, but for which passage I should translate here—'over a pond, some building over the water, such as is still very common in China. 🔑 mears 'large geese,' and 🌉 is the name for a large kind of deer, but they are joined here, as adjectives, to worthy princes.' It does not refer to Mencius, as some make it out. The reply makes this plain. The king's inquiry is prompted by a sudden dissatisfaction with himself, for being occupied so much with such material gratifications, and - 'Amid all their cares of government do these pleasures find a place with good princes?' 3. See the Shih-ching, III. i. Ode VIII. ct. I, s. The ode tells how his people delighted in king Wan. For the Shihching reads 🌉. 🏌 is read wû, an interjec-

3. 'It is said in the Book of Poetry,

"He measured out and commenced his marvellous tower;

He measured it out and planned it.

The people addressed themselves to it,

And in less than a day completed it.

When he measured and began it, he said to them—Be not so earnest:

But the multitudes came as if they had been his children.

The king was in his marvellous park;

The does reposed about,

The does so sleek and fat:

And the white birds shone glistening.

The king was by his marvellous pond;

How full was it of fishes leaping about!"

'King Wan used the strength of the people to make his tower and his pond, and yet the people rejoiced to do the work, calling the tower "the marvellous tower," calling the pond "the marvellous pond," and rejoicing that he had his large deer, his fishes, and turtles. The ancients caused the people to have pleasure as well as themselves, and therefore they could enjoy it.

4. 'In the Declaration of Tang it is said, "O sun, when wilt thou put generally. 4. See the Shū-ching, IV. Bk. I. | had pointed to the sun, saying that, as surely i. 3;—T'ang's announcement of his reasons for as the sun was in heaven, so firm was he on his proceeding against the tyrant Chieh. The throne. The people took up his words, and words quoted are those of the people. Chieh pointing to the sun, thus expressed their hatred

We will die together with thee." The people wished for expire? Chich's death, though they should die with him. Although he had towers, ponds, birds, and animals, how could he have pleasure alone?

CHAP. III. 1. King Hûi of Liang said, 'Small as my virtue is, in the government of my kingdom, I do indeed exert my mind to the utmost. If the year be bad on the inside of the river, I remove as many of the people as I can to the east of the river, and convey grain to the country in the inside. When the year is bad on the east of the river, I act on the same plan. On examining the government of the neighbouring kingdoms, I do not find that there is any prince who exerts his mind as I do. And yet the people of the neighbouring kingdoms do not decrease, nor do my people increase. How is this?'

2. Mencius replied, 'Your Majesty is fond of war ;—let me take of the tyrant, preferring death with him to life, princes in speaking to their people, = 1 ender him. 時-是; 害 is read ho; 喪, in 4th tone. Chao Ch'I gives quite another turn to the quota ion, making the words an address of the people to T'ang:—'This day he (Chieh) must die. We will go with you to kill him.' Cha Hsi's view is to be preferred. I do not think that the last two clauses are to be under-stood generally:—'When the people wish to die with a prince,' &c. They must specially refer to Chich.

2. Halp measures are of little us GREAT PRINCIPLES OF BOYAL GOVERNMENT MUST BE PARTMULLY AND IN THEIR SPIRST CARRIED OUT.

之人 'I, the man of small virtue.' I shall hereafter simply render it by 'I.' Liang was on the south of the river, i.e. the Ho, or Yellow river, but portions of the Wei territory lay on the other side, or north of the river. This was called the inside of the river, because the ancient royal capitals had mostly been there, in the province of Ch'i (), compre-hending the present Shan-hel; and the country north of the Ho, looked at from them, was of course 'within,' or on this side of it. z. The combination of particles 一篇 耳矣 now used commonly for millet and maize, but his own devotedness to his kingdom. 重人 literally, 'add few, add many.' To explain the an illustration from war.—The soldiers move forward to the sound of the drums; and after their weapons have been crossed, on one side they throw away their coats of mail, trail their arms behind them, and run. Some run a hundred paces and stop; some run fifty paces and stop. What would you think if those who run fifty paces were to laugh at those who run a hundred paces?' The king said, 'They should not do so. Though they did not run a hundred paces, yet they also ran away.' 'Since your Majesty knows this,' replied Mencius, 'you need not hope that your people will become more numerous than those of the neighbouring kingdoms.

If the seasons of husbandry be not interfered with, the grain will be more than can be eaten. If close nets are not allowed to enter the pools and ponds, the fishes and turtles will be more than can be consumed. If the axes and bills enter the hills and forests only at the proper time, the wood will be more than can be used.

所外多, 'not fewer, nor larger, than they should for such States be.' a. 資際 is said to spring there was the sowing; in summer, the express the sound of the drum. In 設之, those were the sessons and works of husbandry, 鼓 is used as a verb, and 之 refers to 殿 advance at the sound of the drum, and retreat 'to bear,' 'to be adequate to.' plumes himself in the 1st par. The 🔭 is People might only eat fish a feet long. 🔟 = from which the people might not be called off. , or soldiers. It was the rule of war to est the grain.' , here read tot, 'close-

When the grain and fish and turtles are more than can be eaten. and there is more wood than can be used, this enables the people to nourish their living and mourn for their dead, without any feeling against any. This condition, in which the people nourish their living and bury their dead without any feeling against any, is the first step of royal government.

4. 'Let mulberry trees be planted about the homesteads with their five mau, and persons of fifty years may be clothed with silk. In keeping fowls, pigs, dogs, and swine, let not their times of breeding be neglected, and persons of seventy years may eat flesh. Let there not be taken away the time that is proper for the cultivation of the farm with its hundred mdw, and the family of several mouths that is supported by it shall not suffer from hunger. Let careful attention be paid to education in schools, inculcating in it especially the filial and fraternal duties, and grey-haired men will wooded hills. # - forests in the plains. The only of 240 square passe, or 1200 square enhitima to most in the forests was according to and anciently it was much smaller, 140 squ time to work in the forests was, according to Chu Hat, in the autumn, when the growth of the trees for the year was stopped. But in the Chau-II, we find various rules about cutting down trees,—these on the south of the bill, for being called the H. or government that was the most being called the H. or government to the south of the bill, for down trees,—these on the south of the bill, for instance, in midwinter, those on the north, in summer, &c., which may be alluded to. I have translated, 'without any feeling against any,' the ruler being specially intended.

4. The higher principles which complete royal government. We can hardly translate many to have the ground all for their houses. And to have the ground all for growing by 'an acra,' it consisting, at present at least, grain, they were required to plant mulberry passe, of six cubits each, making a mea. ancient theory for allotting the land was to m it off in squares of 900 mes, the middle squ The other eight were assigned to eight husba men and their families, who cultivated the p lie field in common. But from this twenty not be seen upon the roads, carrying burdens on their backs or on their heads. It never has been that the ruler of a State, where such results were seen,—persons of seventy wearing silk and eating flesh, and the black-haired people suffering neither from hunger nor cold,—did not attain to the royal dignity.

5. 'Your dogs and swine eat the food of men, and you do not make any restrictive arrangements. There are people dying from famine on the roads, and you do not issue the stores of your granaries for them. When people die, you say, "It is not owing to me; it is owing to the year." In what does this differ from stabbing a man and killing him, and then saying—"It was not I; it was the weapon?" Let your Majesty cease to lay the blame on the year, and instantly from all the nation the people will come to you.

CHAP. IV. 1. King Húi of Liang said, 'I wish quietly to receive your instructions.'

of silkworms. 葉版 (a young pig) 始 (the subject, and presses home his faults upon the grain-fed, or edible dog) 燕 (the sow) 之 盃,—literally, 'as to the nourishing of the sowl, de. 數口之家—the ground was distinguished into three kinds;—best, medium, and inferior, feeding a varying number of mouths. To this the expression alludes. 庠 trees about their houses, for the nourishment | sovereign." 5. Meneius now boldly applies the king. 食人食;—the second食 is read ten, 4th tone. 检= phrase 不知檢 is not easy;—the translation given accords with the views of most of

4. A CONTINUATION OF THE PORMER CHAPTER, CARRYING ON THE APPRAI, IN THE LAST PARAGRAPH, F. See on Bk. III. Pt. I. iii. 10. F, 4th of the Gearmother of him Hût's own covernations, 'to come to reign,' 'to become regnant ment. 1. $\frac{1}{2}$, 'quietly,' i.e. sincerely and

2. Mencius replied, 'Is there any difference between killing a man with a stick and with a sword!' The king said, 'There is no difference.

3. 'Is there any difference between doing it with a sword and with the style of government?' 'There is no difference,' was the reply.

4. Mencius then said, 'In your kitchen there is fat meat; in your stables there are fat horses. But your people have the look of hunger, and on the wilds there are those who have died of famine. This is leading on beasts to devour men.

5. Beasts devour one another, and men hate them for doing so When a prince, being the parent of his people, administers his government so as to be chargeable with leading on beasts to devour men, where is his parental relation to the people?

6. Chung-ni said, 'Was he not without posterity who first made wooden images to bury with the dead? So he said, because without constraint. It is said 安對勉强, 黑, 4th tone, the verb. . 黑 在,—, 見其出于誠意 48 有以 there whereby they are different? 4. 11, — he ought to be. 6. 41, —in ancient times, outside a town were the (chido), suburbs, but without buildings; outside the chide were the (mú), pasture-grounds; and outside the mid were the (mú), pasture-grounds; and outside the mid were the (mí), pasture-grounds; and outside the mid outside the mid outside the mid outside the mid of the Châu dynasty, for those bundles of and yet, i.e. though they are beasts. So that a how much more is carried on, in effect, to the rest of the paragraph. to the rest of the paragraph. 人里之,— Hence they were called 偏, as if 俑-翼.

not tone, = 17. 'Being the parent of the 平有所以異乎,—literally, 'Is people,' i.e. this is his designation, and what whereby they are different?' 4. 图,— he ought to be. 6. 值,—in ancient times.

that man made the semblances of men, and used them for that purpose: - what shall be thought of him who causes his people to die of hunger?

1. King Hôi of Liang said, 'There was not in the CHAP. V. nation a stronger State than Tsin, as you, venerable Sir, know. But since it descended to me, on the east we have been defeated by Ch'i, and then my eldest son perished; on the west we have lost seven hundred it of territory to Ch'in; and on the south we have sustained disgrace at the hands of Ch'ú. I have brought shame on my departed predecessors, and wish on their account to wipe it away, What course is to be pursued to accomplish this?' once for all.

2. Mencius replied, 'With a territory which is only a hundred # square, it is possible to attain to the royal dignity.

By and by, came the practice of burying living persons with the dead, which Confuctuathought It was in the thirtieth year of his reign, as was an effect of this invention, and therefore B. c. 340, that the defeat was received from Ch. he branded the inventor as in the text. he branded the inventor as in the text. 無後平,—the 平 is partly interrogative, and partly an exclamation - nonne. 爲 grd tone, - because. In Z is by some taken as - what would be (viz. Confucius) have thought, &c.? I prefer taking it as in the translation. The designation of Confucius by pol is to be observed. See Doctrine of the Mean, il. z.

5. How a bulbe hay best take satisfaction me which his has sustained. That REPROCERT COVERSERS WILL RAME HIR RICH ABOVE ME EVENIES. I. After the partition of the translation. The same reference they also above me surprises of Tain by the three families of Wei, give to ### , as not said generally of the Chio, and Han (note, chap.i), they were known as the three Thin, but king Hiti would here seem to appropriate to his own principality the name of the whole State. He does not, however, refer wards died. That from Ch'in we a.c. goz, wi n the old cap by varie from Ch's was ale translated-'I as most commentators make 之 refer to 先 the translation. The same reference they also Hui's predecessors when Tain was stro dead, —those who had died in the various wars. This view is on the whole preferable to the other, and it gives a better antecedent for the to the strength of Tsin before its partition, but 之 in 🔏 之. — =by one blow, one great

3. 'If your Majesty will indeed dispense a benevolent government to the people, being sparing in the use of punishments and fines, and making the taxes and levies light, so causing that the fields shall be ploughed deep, and the weeding of them be carefully attended to, and that the strong-bodied, during their days of leisure, shall cultivate their filial piety, fraternal respectfulness, sincerity, and truthfulness, serving thereby, at home, their fathers and elder brothers, and, abroad, their elders and superiors,—you will then have a people who can be employed, with sticks which they have prepared, to oppose the strong mail and sharp weapons of the troops of Ch'in and Ch'û.

4. 'The rulers of those States rob their people of their time, so that they cannot plough and weed their fields, in order to support movement. If - It, the 4th tone, - | to be the proportion of the land-produce paid necessary to take the 🔭 in this and similar sees as in the translation. There is a pause at :- with territory, which is, &c. This is the reply to the king's wish for counsel to wipe away his disgraces. He may not only avenge himself on Ch'i, Ch'in, and Ch'û, but he may make himself chief of the whole nation. How, is shown in the next paragraph. 3. 🗳 volent government, out of which grow the other things specified. Hi am can hardly be separated. The dictionary says that Hill is the general name of ... If we make a distinction, it must be as in the translation; is the redemption-fine for certain crimes. So is the redemption-fine for certain crimes. So and Ch'û. A, the 4th tone. It is so toned in the case of children supporting their parents, and inferiors their superiors. See in Analcots, for.' a. See Part II. ii. I; but it seems to the government, and wall other contribu-A third party makes to be the tax of preduce, and the graduated collection thereof. This last view sulls the connexion here. read i, the grd tens, -治. 壯月 a man is said to be 壯. Translators have rendered it here by 'the young,' but the meaning is the strong-hodied,—those who could be employed to take the field against the enemy. or employ,' but to be pessive with special reference to the 壯月 above. 4 f, read shiing. -'to strike,' 'to sınite'—here = 'to oppese.' 4. 77, 'they'or 'those,' i. e. the rulers of Ch'in cance of the individual terms. Some make 税 II. vii. 5. 夫, the and tone, here - 则.

their parents. Their parents suffer from cold and hunger. Brothers, wives, and children are separated and scattered abroad.

5. 'Those rulers, as it were, drive their people into pit-falls, or drown them. Your Majesty will go to punish them. In such a case, who will oppose your Majesty?

6. 'In accordance with this is the saying,—"The benevolent has no enemy." I beg your Majesty not to doubt what I say.

CHAP. VI. 1. Mencius went to see the king Hsiang of Liang.

2. On coming out from the interview, he said to some persons. 'When I looked at him from a distance, he did not appear like a sovereign; when I drew near to him, I saw nothing venerable about him. Abruptly he asked me, "How can the kingdom be settled!" I replied, "It will be settled by being united under one sway."

3. "Who can so unite it?

4. 'I replied, "He who has no pleasure in killing men can so unite it."

5. "Who can give it to him?"

6. 'I replied, "All the people of the nation will unanimously

6. Hy, not 'therefore;' it may indicate a de- united under our swar. 1. On the death of the form what precedes, or be simply an king Hûi, he was succeeded by his son He illustration of it. Do not doubt. It is strange that Julien, in his generally accurate version, should translate this by 'me concerta.' Hesitancy would, indeed, be an effect of doubting Mencius's words, not the proverb just quoted, but specially the affirmation in par. 2. The interview here recorded seems to have taken place immediately after Ho's accession, and Mencius, it is said, was so disappointed by it quoted, but specially the affirmation in par. 2. But the words may not be so rendered.

HEIARG. BY WHOM THE TORK MATTON MAY BE of the philosopher, and is not to be taken get

6. DIRAPPODITMENT OF MERCHUS WITH THE KING tone. The A probably refers to some friends

Digitized by Google

Does your Majesty understand the way of the give it to him. growing grain? During the seventh and eighth months, when drought prevails, the plants become dry. Then the clouds collect densely in the heavens, they send down torrents of rain, and the grain erects itself, as if by a shoot. When it does so, who can keep it back? Now among the shepherds of men throughout the nation, there is not one who does not find pleasure in killing men. If there were one who did not find pleasure in killing men, all the people in the nation would look towards him with outstretched necks. Such being indeed the case, the people would flock to him, as water flows downwards with a rush, which no one can repress."

1. The king Hsüan of Ch'i asked, saying, 'May CHAP. VII.

ally. 平, read tr's. 平然,—compare 華 6. The 7th and 8th months of Chan were the 爾, Analects, XL xxiv. 4. On 堂之, 第之 compare Analects, XIX. ix. Châo Ch'i makes - to = 'It will be settled by him who nakes benevolent government his one object." But this is surely going beyond the text. 5. The is here explained, by Chû Hat and others, as equivalent to see, founding, no doubt, on the 民屬之in the end. But in BR.V. Pt. Lv, we have a plain instance of Et, used in con- SURE PATH TO THE ROYAL DESERTY. This long 5th and 6th of the Hsia dynasty, with which the months of the present dynasty agree. 今夫, 夫, the 1st tone, is used as in the Analogue, XI. ix. g. The Z at the end is to be referred to 水, the whole, from 由 (=猶), being an illustration of the people's turning with resistless energy to a benevolent ruler.

7. LOVING AND PROTECTING THE PROPLE IS THE CHARAL PRINTIC OF BOYAL COVERNMENT, AND THE mexion with the bestowment of the throne, as and interesting chapter has been arranged in in the translation which I have ventured to give, which seems to me, moreover, to accord equally well, if not better, with the rest of the chapter. and tells the king of Ch? that he peaseses

I be informed by you of the transactions of Hwan of Ch'i, and Wan of Tain?

2 Mencius replied, 'There were none of the disciples of Chung-ni who spoke about the affairs of Hwan and Wan, and therefore they have not been transmitted to these after-ages; -- your servant has not heard them. If you will have me speak, let it be about royal government.'

3. The king said, 'What virtue must there be in order to attain to royal sway?' Mencius answered, 'The love and protection of the people; with this there is no power which can prevent a ruler from attaining to it.'

4. The king asked again, 'Is such an one as I competent to shows the government that loves and protects the people in full development, and crowned with royal sway. r. The king Hstan ('The Distinguished, 聖善周聞日宜, the second of his family, who governed in Ch'i, by surname Tien (H), and named P1-chiang began his reign a. c. 332. By some the date of this event is placed nine years earlier. The time of Menetus's visit to him is also matter of dispute;—see 'Life of Menetus,' in the Prologomena. The ruler of Ch'i was properly only a duke (in posthumous title), or a marquis(while alive, 🙀); the title of ting was a usurpation. Hwan and Win,—see Analects, XIV. xvi. They were the greatest of the five leaders of the princes, who played so conspicu-ous a part in the middle time of the Charles

it. In the second part, pars. 6-8, he leads the king on to understand his own mind, and apprehend how he might exercise a royal government. In the third, pars. 9-12, he unfolds how the king may and ought to carry out the king may and ought to carry out the kindly heart which he possessed. In the fourth part, pars. 13-17, he shows the absurdity of the king's expecting to gain his end by the course he was pursuing, and how rapid would be the response to an opposite one. In the last part, he shows the government that loves and protects title it is to the order of the shapter. As the royal generally throughout the chapter. As the royal title, it is in the and tone, the simple name of dighity; as implying the attainment or exercise of that dignity, it is the 4th tone. By translating it by 'royal government,' 'royal sway,' we come nearer to giving Mencius's meaning than if we were to use any other term. 3. Here the nominatives of 'king' and 'Mencius' are dropped before [], as frequently afterwards. The I just serves the purpose of our points of quotation. It remains it, according to Cha Hat's account, as-愛麗. A pause is to be made at 民, and in E joined to the remainder of the sentense. 4. The hall, or fore, here mentioned, was probably that where the king was giving audience, and attending to the affairs of governous a part in the middle time of the Chau ment. 4 1 2,—the Z is the verb,—dynasty, but to whom Confucius and Mencius so positively refused their approval. s. 道 is 往. 舍,—also a verb, in 3rd tone. 諸= love and protect the people? Mencius said, 'Yes.' 'How do you know that I am competent for that?' 'I heard the following incident from Hû Ho: "The king," said he, "was sitting aloft in the hall, when a man appeared, leading an ox past the lower part of it. The king saw him, and asked, Where is the ox going? The man replied, We are going to consecrate a bell with its blood. king said, Let it go. I cannot bear its frightened appearance, as if it were an innocent person going to the place of death. The man answered, Shall we then omit the consecration of the bell? king said, How can that be omitted? Change it for a sheep." I do not know whether this incident really occurred.'

5. The king replied, 'It did,' and then Mencius said, 'The heart seen in this is sufficient to carry you to the royal sway. The people all supposed that your Majesty grudged the animal, but your servant knows surely, that it was your Majesty's not being able to bear the sight, which made you do as you did.

anciently 'almost all things,' connected with their religious worship, were among the Chinese purified with blood;—their temples, and the purified with blood;—their temples, and the vessels in them. See the Li Cht, Bk. XXII. The reference here is to the religious rite. The only thing is that, in using an or to consecrate his they killed an animal, took its blood, and the consecrate his they killed an animal, took its blood, and the consecrate his they have not been consecrated as a simple of the consecrate his consecrate his seared over the crevises.' But the first mean- privilege. 5. The may be taken as the finite ing of is—'a sacrifice by blood,' and verb, = 'you loved, i.e. grudged the animal,' or

6. The king said, 'You are right. And yet there really was an appearance of what the people condemned. But though Ch'i be a small and narrow State, how should I grudge one ox! Indeed it was because I could not bear its frightened appearance, as if it were an innocent person going to the place of death, that therefore

I changed it for a sheep.

7. Mencius pursued, 'Let not your Majesty deem it strange that the people should think you were grudging the animal. When you changed a large one for a small, how should they know the true reason? If you felt pained by its being led without guilt to the place of death, what was there to choose between an ox and a sheep?' The king laughed and said, 'What really was my mind in the matter? I did not grudge the expense of it, and changed it for a sheep!— There was reason in the people's saying that I grudged it.

8. 'There is no harm in their saying so,' said Mencius. conduct was an artifice of benevolence. You saw the ox, and had not as = 'to be niggardly,'--'you were parsimoni-| which I have given. [1] acknowledges the ous.' 6. It is better to make a pause after 777, truth of Mencius's explanation. 7. and give the meaning as in the translation. Chio Ch'i runs it on to the next clause. 有百姓者 is elliptical, and the particle in which Mencius has put the case. 8. 仁術, seen the sheep. So is the superior man affected towards animals, that, having seen them alive, he cannot bear to see them die; having heard their dying cries, he cannot bear to eat their flesh.

是誠何心哉 expresses the king's quan-dary. He is now quite perplexed by the way 者 denotes this, requiring the supplement |—compare Analects, VI. xxviii. 3, 仁之方・

he keeps away from his alaughter-house and cook-room.

9. The king was pleased, and said, 'It is said in the Book of Poetry, "The minds of others, I am able by reflection to measure;" —this is verified, my Master; in your discovery of my motive. I indeed did the thing, but when I turned my thoughts inward, and examined into it, I could not discover my own mind. you, Master, spoke those words, the movements of compassion began to work in my mind. How is it that this heart has in it what is equal to the royal sway?'

10. Mencius replied, 'Suppose a man were to make this statement to your Majesty:—"My strength is sufficient to lift three thousand catties, but it is not sufficient to lift one feather; - my eyesight is sharp enough to examine the point of an autumn hair,

We must take the two words M M together | speaking about you, my Master.' 10. 20, read as indicating the hitchen, where the victims hi, the 4th tone, often meaning to report the were both killed and cocked. 9. 3 - 1. execution of a mission, as in the phrase-2 For the eds, see the Book of Poetry, II.v. Ode IV at. 4, where the 他人 has a special reference. in order to bring out the force of the 獨, 'only, . it is necessary to make two sentences of this in but I do not see a waggon-load of faggots;"—would your Majesty allow what he said?' 'No,' was the answer, on which Mencius proceeded, 'Now here is kindness sufficient to reach to animals, and no benefits are extended from it to the people.—How is this? Is an exception to be made here? The truth is, the feather is not lifted, because strength is not used; the waggon-load of firewood is not seen, because the eyesight is not used; and the people are not loved and protected, because kindness is not employed. Therefore your Majesty's not exercising the royal sway, is because you do not do it, not because you are not able to do it.

11. The king asked, 'How may the difference between the not doing a thing, and the not being able to do it, be represented? Mencius replied, 'In such a thing as taking the Tai mountain under your arm, and leaping over the north sea with it, if you say to people—"I am not able to do it," that is a real case of not being able. In such a matter as breaking off a branch from a tree at the order of a superior, if you say to people—"I am not able to do it," that is a case of not doing it, it is not a case of not being able to do indeed, the famous distinction of 'moral' and 'physical' ability. II. The form, 'or figure;'—literally 'How may the figure.....

English. 不益也, it is said, -不肯 | be differenced?" 語人, 一語, in 4th tone, -

Therefore your Majesty's not exercising the royal sway, is not such a case as that of taking the T'ai mountain under your arm, and leaping over the north sea with it. Your Majesty's not exercising the royal sway is a case like that of breaking off a branch from a tree.

12. 'Treat with the reverence due to age the elders in your own family, so that the elders in the families of others shall be similarly treated; treat with the kindness due to youth the young in your own family, so that the young in the families of others shall be similarly treated:—do this, and the kingdom may be made to go round in your palm. It is said in the Book of Poetry, "His example affected his wife. It reached to his brothers, and his family of the State was governed by it."—The language shows how king Wan simply took his kindly heart, and exercised it towards those parties. Therefore the carrying out his kindness of heart by a prince will suffice for the love and protection of all within the four seas, and if he do not carry it out, he will not be able to protect his wife and children. The way in which the ancients came 天下可運於掌is made by most com- in the first. 御-迓, but the meaning is mentators to mean—'you may pervade the kingdom with your kindness so easily.' But I must believe that it is the gree, and not the means, which is thus represented. For the ode, see the Shith-ching, III. i. Ode VI. st. a. The original celebrates the virtue of king Wan, and we must translate in the third person, and not humane heart, which is necessary to raise to greatly to surpass other men, was no other but this:—simply that they knew well how to carry out, so as to affect others, what they themselves did. Now your kindness is sufficient to reach to animals, and no benefits are extended from it to reach the people.—How is this? Is an exception to be made here?

13. 'By weighing, we know what things are light, and what heavy. By measuring, we know what things are long, and what The relations of all things may be thus determined, and it is of the greatest importance to estimate the motions of the mind. I beg your Majesty to measure it.

14. 'You collect your equipments of war, endanger your soldiers and officers, and excite the resentment of the other princes;—do these things cause you pleasure in your mind?'

15. The king replied, 'No. How should I derive pleasure from these things? My object in them is to seek for what I greatly desire.'

16. Mencius said, 'May I hear from you what it is that you greatly desire?' The king laughed and did not speak.

the royal sway, but it is the from without, and going forth to affect, may be carrying out of this heart. All may have the light or heavy, long or short, i. a. may be right out that it shall affect all others. We cannot that it shall affect all others. We cannot wander that it is more important to estimate the character of its action, than to weigh or measure heart, but all may not be gifted, so to carry it out that it shall affect all others. We cannot wender that the princes whom Mencius lectured should have thought his talk 汪 淵, trunsanouse nave enoughs his talk if in, frame to measure his mind. If about the same amazure, the first is 4th tone, 16, 'a as our 'come now,' or 'well then.' Further on, measure,' the instrument for measuring. But its equally accepted meaning of 'er' suits the emdental. 23. The first 1 is 4th tone, 14, 'a 心宫基 means; that the mind, as affected | tive, in the end tone, and the 😩 are all in the other things. 14. Here Maneius helps the king both it and 🌉 are equivalent to active verbs. connexion botter. 16. The 🜉 are all interroga-resumed, 'Are you led to desire it, because you have not enough of rich and sweet food for your mouth? Or because you have not enough of light and warm clothing for your body? Or because you have not enough of beautifully coloured objects to delight your eyes? Or because you have not enough of attendants and favourites to stand before you and receive your orders? Your Majesty's various officers are sufficient to supply you with those things. How can your Majesty be led to entertain such a desire on account of them?' 'No,' said the king; 'my desire is not on account of them.' Mencius added, 'Then, what your Majesty greatly desires may be known. You wish to enlarge your territories, to have Ch'in and Ch'û wait at your court, to rule the Middle Kingdom, and to attract to you the barbarous tribes that surround it. But doing what you do to seek for what you desire is like climbing a tree to seek for fish.'

17. The king said, 'Is it so bad as that?' 'It is even worse,' was the reply. 'If you climb a tree to seek for fish, although you do the tone. 何, read y'on, the and tone, joined climb a tree,' but it simply is—'from a tree.' with the next character. 可知己,一己 r. The 旁, an introductory part, = 'yes, and.' gives a positiveness to the assertion. 序, to the king's object of ambition:—'By the phrase here, has some to be used for 'to course you are pursuing you cannot succeed, for, VOL. II.

not get the fish, you will not suffer any subsequent calamity. But doing what you do to seek for what you desire, doing it moreover with all your heart, you will assuredly afterwards meet with calamities.' The king asked, 'May I hear from you the proof of that?' Mencius said, 'If the people of Tsau should fight with the people of Ch'û, which of them does your Majesty think would conquer?' 'The people of Ch'û would conquer.' 'Yes;—and so it is certain that a small country cannot contend with a great, that few cannot contend with many, that the weak cannot contend with the strong. The territory within the four seas embraces nine divisions, each of a thousand it square. All Ch'î together is but one of them. If with one part you try to subdue the other eight, what is the difference between that and Tsau's contending with Ch'û? For, with such a desire, you must turn back to the proper course for its attainment.

18. 'Now, if your Majesty will institute a government whose action shall be benevolent, this will cause all the officers in the kingdom to wish to stand in your Majesty's court, and all the farmers to wish to plough in your Majesty's fields, and all the merchants, both travelling and stationary, to wish to store their goods in your Majesty's market-places, and all travelling strangers to wish to make their tours on your Majesty's roads, and all throughout the kingdom who feel aggrieved by their rulers to wish to come and complain to your Majesty. And when they are so bent, who will be able to keep them back?'

19. The king said, 'I am stupid, and not able to advance to I wish you, my Master, to assist my intentions. Teach me clearly; although I am deficient in intelligence and vigour, I will essay and try to carry your instructions into effect.'

20. Mencius replied, 'They are only men of education, who, without a certain livelihood, are able to maintain a fixed heart. As to the people, if they have not a certain livelihood, it follows that they will not have a fixed heart. And if they have not a fixed heart, there is nothing which they will not do, in the way of selfabandonment, of moral deflection, of depravity, and of wild license. When they thus have been involved in crime, to follow them up and 表,—'feeling aggrieved, but must restrain generally means 'the whole life.' Perhaps we should translate, If come years be good, they will all their lives have plenty,' i.e. they will all their lives have plenty,' i.e. they will in those years lay by a sufficient provision for bad years. This supposes that the people have felt the power of the instruction and meral punish them;—this is to entrap the people. How can such a thing as entrapping the people be done under the rule of a benevolent man?

21. 'Therefore an intelligent ruler will regulate the livelihood of the people, so as to make sure that, for those above them, they shall have sufficient wherewith to serve their parents, and, for those below them, sufficient wherewith to support their wives and children; that in good years they shall always be abundantly satisfied, and that in bad years they shall escape the danger of perishing. this he may urge them, and they will proceed to what is good, for in this case the people will follow after it with ease.

22. 'Now, the livelihood of the people is so regulated, that, above, they have not sufficient wherewith to serve their parents, and, below, they have not sufficient wherewith to support their wives and children. Notwithstanding good years, their lives are continually embittered, and, in bad years, they do not escape perishing. In such circumstances they only try to save themselves from death, and are afraid they will not succeed. What leisure have they to cultivate propriety and righteousness?

training that is a part of royal government, obsequences,' and rightly. But I am not sure which, however, is set forth as consequent on the regulation of the livelihood. Similarly, below. below. 之書,—之is the verb,—往. 民 supposed to exemplify, as well as to urge to,

,—Julien consures Noel the good course, and the well-off people have here for rendering 從之 by 'spei (principi) no difficulty in following him. 🖘 反其

23. 'If your Majesty wishes to effect this regulation of the livelihood of the people, why not turn to that which is the essential step to it?

24. 'Let mulberry-trees be planted about the homesteads with their five mdu, and persons of fifty years may be clothed with silk. In keeping fowls, pigs, dogs, and swine, let not their times of breeding be neglected, and persons of seventy years may eat flesh. Let there not be taken away the time that is proper for the cultivation of the farm with its hundred mdu, and the family of eight mouths that is supported by it shall not suffer from hunger. Let careful attention be paid to education in schools,—the inculcation in it especially of the filial and fraternal duties, and grey-haired men will not be seen upon the roads, carrying burdens on their backs or on their heads. It never has been that the ruler of a State where such results were seen,—the old wearing silk and eating flesh, and the black-haired people suffering neither from hunger nor cold,—did not attain to the royal dignity.'

本, as in par. 17, but with reference to the there, we have 八口之家, eight mouths immediate subject. 24. See ch. iii, the only being the number which 100 mass of medium difference being that, for 數口之家 land were computed to feed.

KING HÛI OF LIANG. PART II.

1. Chwang Pao, seeing Mencius, said to him, CHAPTER I. 'I had an interview with the king. His Majesty told me that he loved music, and I was not prepared with anything to reply to him. What do you pronounce about that love of music?' replied, 'If the king's love of music were very great, the kingdom of Ch'i would be near to a state of good government!

2. Another day, Mencius, having an interview with the king, said, 'Your Majesty, I have heard, told the officer Chwang, that you love music; -- was it so?' The king changed colour, and said, 'I am unable to love the music of the ancient sovereigns; I only love the music that suits the manners of the present age."

1. How the love of music may be made, 'near to;' sometimes we find III alone, as in SUBSERVIEST TO GOOD GOVERNEEST, AND TO A Analogs XI. Evili. I. The subject, nearness PRINCE'S OWN ADVANCEMENT. The chapter is a to which is indicated, is often left to be -how he ood specimen of Mencius's manner, alips from the point in hand to introduce his gathered from the context, as here. The own notions, and would win princes over to benevolent government-by their very vices. He was no stern moralist, and the Chinese have done well in refusing to rank him with Confucius. z. Chwang Pao appears to have been a minister at the court of Ch'i. The preceding 好樂如何 is unnecessary. If we translate it, we must render—'He then of 'only.' 'Ancient sovereigns' (i.e. Yao, Shun, said.' But the paraphrasts all neglect it. Yü, Tang, Wan, and Wû) is a better transla-腰舞 (the 1st tone) is a phrase signifying tion of 先王 than 'former kings.' 3. 由=

之好樂甚is a platitude. It ahould be the text of the chapter, but Mencius proceeds to substitute 樂 b for 樂 ps, in his own manner. a. 直, as in last Pt. ch. iii. s; observe how the final II adds to the force

3. Mencius said, 'If your Majesty's love of music were very great, Ch'i would be near to a state of good government! The music of the present day is just like the music of antiquity, as regards effecting that.'

4. The king said, 'May I hear from you the proof of that?' Mencius asked, 'Which is the more pleasant,—to enjoy music by yourself alone, or to enjoy it with others?' 'To enjoy it with others,' was the reply. 'And which is the more pleasant,—to enjoy music with a few, or to enjoy it with many?' 'To enjoy it with many.'

5. Mencius proceeded, 'Your servant begs to explain what I have said about music to your Majesty.

6. 'Now, your Majesty is having music here.—The people hear the noise of your bells and drums, and the notes of your fifes and pipes, and they all, with aching heads, knit their brows, and say to one another, "That's how our king likes his music! But why does he reduce us to this extremity of distress?—Fathers and sons cannot see one another. Elder brothers and younger brothers, wives and children, are separated and scattered abroad." Now, your Majesty is hunting here.—The people hear the noise of your carriages and horses, and see the beauty of your plumes and streamers, and they all, with aching heads, knit their brows, and say to one another. "That's how our king likes his hunting! But why does he reduce us to this extremity of distress?—Fathers and sons cannot see one another. Elder brothers and younger brothers, wives and children, are separated and scattered abroad." Their feeling thus is from no other reason but that you do not allow the people to have pleasure as well as yourself.

着,可得聞與, as in the preceding verb—作. The ancient dictionary, the 說 chapter. 獨樂美,—the second 樂 is to, 'joy,' 'delight' So, in the next clause, and same word for 'drum,' saying this is formed from after 製. 5. 篇 (the 4th tone) 王, 'for the sake of your Majesty.' 6. 世學,—誌 is a 士. The difference of fform is not regarded

7. 'Now, your Majesty is having music here. The people hear the noise of your bells and drums, and the notes of your fifes and pipes, and they all, delighted, and with joyful looks, say to one another, "That sounds as if our king were free from all sickness! If he were not, how could he enjoy this music?" Now, your Majesty is hunting here.—The people hear the noise of your carriages and 於此, 'here,' used as we use here coding吾王之好鼓樂 is incomplete. in English, putting a case with little local The paraphrasts add, to complete it, 固然 reference. 舉-俱 or 皆, 'all.' 歷 領 expresses anguish, not anger. 夫 is here the introductory particle, and is better rendered by our than seen. It will be seen that the pre- as our sound or noise and tone or note.

记. 7. Ⅲ is used synonymously with Ⅲ女, 'to hunt.' 整 and 音 are to each other much horses, and see the beauty of your plumes and streamers, and they all, delighted, and with joyful looks, say to one another, "That looks as if our king were free from all sickness! If he were not, how could he enjoy this hunting?" Their feeling thus is from no other reason but that you cause them to have their pleasure as you have yours.

8. 'If your Majesty now will make pleasure a thing common to the people and yourself, the royal sway awaits you.'

1. The king Hsuan of Ch'i asked, 'Was it so, that CHAP. II. the park of king Wan contained seventy square 4?' Mencius replied, 'It is so in the records.'

2. 'Was it so large as that?' exclaimed the king. 'The people,' said Mencius, 'still looked on it as small.' The king added, 'My is applied appropriately to the fifes and pipes, | M must be understood—'containing seventy and also to the carriages and horses, having reference to the music of the bells with which square it, not 'seventy it square.' In the these were adorned. Of 羽 旄 Cha Hel simply says that they were 12 , 'belonging to the banners.' The Were feathers adorning the top of the flag-staff; the number of ox-tails suspended on a rope, one after another, from the top. 與民同樂, compare Pt. I. ii. 3.

2. How a buler must not induler his love POR PARKS AND HUNTING TO THE DISCOMPORT OF an historical narration handing down events to faintity (傳於後人) 方七十 the fodderers, the phoesenters, &c. 3. 郊 is 講, the meaning of 方 here (not similarly, however, in Pt. I. v. 2; vii. 17) is given by [1], 'in circumference.' The glossarist on Cháo Ch'i explains it by 方 灩, which, I think, confirms the meaning I have given. The book or books giving account of this park of king Wän are now lost. 2. are distinguished thus :— gatherers of grass to feed animals, and gatherers of grass for fuel." Observe how these nouns, and 🌿 and 📆 that follow, get a verbal force from the 27;-

park contains only forty square \mathcal{U} , and the people still look on it as large. How is this? 'The park of king Wan,' was the reply, 'contained seventy square U, but the grass-cutters and fuel-gatherers had the privilege of entrance into it; so also had the catchers of pheasants and hares. He shared it with the people, and was it not with reason that they looked on it as small?

3. 'When I first arrived at the borders of your kingdom, I inquired about the great prohibitory regulations, before I would venture to enter it; and I heard, that inside the barrier-gates there was a park of forty square u, and that he who killed a deer in it, was held guilty of the same crime as if he had killed a man.—Thus those forty square U are a pitfall in the middle of the kingdom. Is it not with reason that the people look upon them as large?'

CHAP. III. 1. The king Hstian of Ch'i asked, saying, 'Is there any way to regulate one's maintenance of intercourse with used here in the sense simply of 'borders,' and | iahed with the loss of his eyes, and with death on the borders of the various States there were | if the statutes were repeatedly violated. 'passes' or 'gates,' for the taxation of merchandize, the examination of strangers, &c.

肥, see Pt. L.ii. r. These forest laws of Ch'i were

8. How friendly intercourse with neigh-BOURING KINGDOMS MAY BE MAINTAINED, AND THE LOVE OF VALOUR MADE SUBSERVIEST TO THE GOOD OF THE PEOPLE, AND THE GLORY OF THE PRINCE. hardly worse than those enacted by the first Norman sovereigns of England, when whoever killed a deer, a boar, or even a hare, was pun-ably from the two last, and they are explained neighbouring kingdoms?' Mencius replied, 'There is. requires a perfectly virtuous prince to be able, with a great country, to serve a small one,—as, for instance, T'ang served Ko, and king Wan served the Kwan barbarians. And it requires a wise prince to be able, with a small country, to serve a large one,—as the king T'ai served the Hsun-yu, and Kau-ch'ien served Wu.

2. 'He who with a great State serves a small one, delights in He who with a small State serves a large one, stands in He who delights in Heaven, will affect with his awe of Heaven. love and protection the whole kingdom. He who stands in awe of Heaven, will affect with his love and protection his own kingdom.

3. 'It is said in the Book of Poetry, "I fear the Majesty of Heaven, and will thus preserve its favouring decree."

intending, loving Power of the universe. Chảo cheriahing,' and 'obeying,' respectively, but the translation need not be varied. For the affairs of Tang with Ko, see III. Pt. II. v. Of those of king Wan with the Kwan tribes we have nowhere an account which satisfies Mencius's reference to them. Both Châo Ch'i and Chât Hat make reference to the Shih-ching, have nowhere an account which satisfies Mencius's reference to them. Both Châo Ch'i and Châ Hai make reference to the Shih-ching, III. i. Ode III. st. 8; but what is there said would seem to be of things antecedent to king Win. Of king T'ai and the Hsün-yü, see below, chap. xv. A very readable, though romanced account of Kau-ch'ien's service of Wû is in the Lich Kwc Chih (列圖志), Bk. lxxx. 是 被 and 被, 'therefore,' introducing illustrations of what has been said, are = our 'as.' 2. 天, says Châ Hai, 理而记矣, 'Heaven

This view gives to $\mathcal K$ a positive, substantial meaning, though the personality of the Power is not sufficiently prominent. The commentstor 王觀濤 says :— 'The Heaven here is indeed the Supreme Heaven, but after all it is equivalent to principle and nothing more!' 保, as in Pt. L vil. 3. 3. See the Shih-ching, IV. i. Bk. I. Ode VII. st. 3. (R, 'to preserve,' is just principle, and nothing more.' It is a good instance of the way in which he and others often try to expunge the idea of a governing Power and a personal God from their classics. Heaven is here evidently the super-ing of +. 6. See the Shih-ching, III. i. Ode

4. The king said, 'A great saying! But I have an infirmity;—I love valour.'

5. 'I beg your Majesty,' was the reply, 'not to love small valour. If a man brandishes his sword, looks fiercely, and says, "How dare he withstand me?"—this is the valour of a common man, who can be the opponent only of a single individual. I beg your Majesty to greaten it.

6. 'It is said in the Book of Poetry,

"The king blazed with anger,
And he marshalled his hosts,
To stop the march to Chü,
To consolidate the prosperity of Chau,
To meet the expectations of the nation."

This was the valour of king Wan. King Wan, in one burst of his anger, gave repose to all the people of the kingdom.

7. 'In the Book of History it is said, "Heaven having produced the inferior people, made for them rulers and teachers, with the purpose that they should be assisting to God, and therefore distinguished them throughout the four quarters of the land. Whoever VII. st. 5, where we have 按 for 過, and 读 the same probably that in the ode is called for 芭. 芭 is the name of a State or place, 共. 以過租已, to stop the march to are offenders, and whoever are innocent, here am I to deal with them. How dare any under heaven give indulgence to their refractory wills?" There was one man pursuing a violent and disorderly course in the kingdom, and king Wû was ashamed of it. the valour of king Wû. He also, by one display of his anger, gave repose to all the people of the kingdom.

8. 'Let now your Majesty also, in one burst of anger, give repose to all the people of the kingdom. The people are only afraid that your Majesty does not love valour.'

CHAP. IV. 1. The king Hstian of Ch'i had an interview with Mencius in the Snow palace, and said to him, 'Do men of talents and worth likewise find pleasure in these things?' Mencius replied, 'They do; and if people generally are not able to enjoy themselves, they condemn their superiors.

2. 'For them, when they cannot enjoy themselves, to condemn. their superiors is wrong, but when the superiors of the people do

Chû, unless we take, with some, ¶ also to be the name of a place. 7. See the Shû ching, V. i. be afraid, the preceding clause being — 'If your Seet. I. 7, but the passage as quoted by Mencius is rather different from the original text. 能日其助上帝,—literally, 'just say-

4. A RULER'S PROSPERITY DEPENDS ON HIS TELLET UPL 市,—literally, 'just saying They shall be aiding to God.' The sentiment is that of Paul, in Rom. xiii. 1—4, 'The powers ordained of God are the ministers of God.' In 天下島敢有越原志 there is an allusion to the tyrant Chieh, who is the —人 in Monoiss's subjoined explanation. 8. 惟 view there. 賢者亦有此樂平 is not make enjoyment a thing common to the people and themselves, they also do wrong.

3. 'When a ruler rejoices in the joy of his people, they also rejoice in his joy; when he grieves at the sorrow of his people, they also grieve at his sorrow. A sympathy of joy will pervade the kingdom; a sympathy of sorrow will do the same:—in such a state of things, it cannot be but that the ruler attain to the royal dignity.

4. 'Formerly, the duke Ching of Ch'l asked the minister Yen, saying," I wish to pay a visit of inspection to Chwan-fû, and Châo-wû, and then to bend my course southward along the shore, till I come to Lang-ye. What shall I do that my tour may be fit to be compared with the visits of inspection made by the ancient sovereigns?

5. 'The minister Yen replied, "An excellent inquiry! the Son of Heaven visited the princes, it was called a tour of inspecdifferent from the question, in nearly the same | 天下, 基以天下, which sum up the words, in Pt. I. ii. 賢者 being there worthy princes,' and here 'scholars,' men of worth generally, with a reference to Mencius himself. 人不得,一人 is to be taken as - 民, 'the people,' men generally, and 不得, it is said, 是不得安居之樂,非指雪宮, is = 'do not get the pleasure of quiet living and onjoyment, not referring to the Snow palace." #其上,—非is used as a verb,—'to blame,' with (i.e. from) one individual, but from the vehele 'to condemn.' So in the next paragraph. 3. I kingdom.' 王, the 4th tone. 4. 最子, see have given the meaning of the phrases 樂以 | Confucian Analests, V. xvi. The duke Ching preceding part of the paragraph, and are not to be understood as spoken of the ruler only. The 合講 says :-- 'These two sentences are to be explained from the four previous sentences. The phrase 天下 is only a forcible way of saying what is said by 民. The 以 is to be explained as if we read—不以一身,乃 以天下耳, 'the joy and sorrow is not tion, that is, he surveyed the States under their care. When the princes attended at the court of the Son of Heaven, it was called a report of office, that is, they reported their administration of their Thus, neither of the proceedings was without a purpose. And moreover, in the spring they examined the ploughing, and supplied any deficiency of seed; in the autumn they examined the reaping, and supplied any deficiency of yield. There is the saying of the Hsia dynasty,—If our king do not take his ramble, what will become of our happiness? If our king do not make his excursion, what will become of our help? That ramble, and that excursion, were a pattern to the princes.

6. "Now, the state of things is different.—A host marches in attendance on the ruler, and stores of provisions are consumed. The hungry are deprived of their food, and there is no rest for those who are called to toil. Maledictions are uttered by one to another occupied the throne for 58 years, from n.c. six years. From $\frac{1}{45}$, 'in the spring,' the $46-488. Chwan-fa and Châo-wa were two practices appropriate to the various princes. as 546-488. Chwan-ft and Chao-wu were two hills, which must have been in the north of Ch', and looking on the waters now called the Gulf of Pei-chih-li. Lang-ye was the name both of a mountain and an adjacent city, referred to the present department of Chu-, 'to do.' 5. 新黨, see the Shû-ching, II. i. 8, 9. 新 is used as = . It does not seem necessary to repeat the 巡狩 and 這 職 in the transthomselves at court (), read ch'de) once in subject for the clause before.

practices appropriate to the various princes, as well as the sovereign, are described, though, as appears from the last clause, with special reference to the latter. 囊 or 預 -遊 By - 🎁 the spring and autumn visitations are intended, each called ---. 6. Ref., properly a body of 2,500 men, but here generally -a host, a multitude. 脂脂香薷 乃作思 are referred to the people, and the next two clauses to the princes. Yet the lation. This tour of inspection appears to have been made, under the Chau dynasty, once in twelve years, while the princes had to present T after would rather indicate a different with eyes askance, and the people proceed to the commission of wickedness. Thus the royal ordinances are violated, and the people are oppressed, and the supplies of food and drink flow away like water. The rulers yield themselves to the current, or they urge their way against it; they are wild; they are utterly lost:—these things proceed to the grief of the inferior princes.

7. '" Descending along with the current, and forgetting to return, is what I call yielding to it. Pressing up against it, and forgetting to return, is what I call urging their way against it. Pursuing the chase without satiety is what I call being wild. Delighting in wine without satiety is what I call being lost.

8. "The ancient sovereigns had no pleasures to which they gave themselves as on the flowing stream; no doings which might be so characterized as wild and lost.

9. "It is for you, my prince, to pursue your course."

10. 'The duke Ching was pleased. He issued a proclamation throughout his State, and went out and occupied a shed in the borders. From that time he began to open his granaries to supply the wants of the people, and calling the Grand music-master, he said to him—" Make for me music to suit a prince and his minister pleased

器 侯, by Chû Hai and others, is explained things in which they delighted were a 'griet' as in the translation, though this view seems to them? IO. 太郎, see Analests, VIII. rather forced. Châo Ch i makes them refer to the princes proper; but how can it be said that these xv. ② (read eM, the 3rd tone) and ④ are the with each other." And it was then that the Chi-shao and Chio-shao were made, in the words to which it was said, "Is it a fault to restrain one's prince?" He who restrains his prince loves his prince.'

CHAP. V. 1. The king Hstian of Ch'i said, 'People all tell me to pull down and remove the Hall of Distinction. Shall I pull it down, or stop the movement for that object?'

2. Mencius replied, 'The Hall of Distinction is a Hall appropriate to the sovereigns. If your Majesty wishes to practise the true royal government, then do not pull it down.

3. The king said, 'May I hear from you what the true royal government is?' 'Formerly,' was the reply, 'king Wan's govern-names of two of the five notes in the Chinese &a., were 'displayed' by means of them. The scale, the fourth and third. It is used for one in the text was at the foot of the Tai mountain in Ch'1, and as the Son of Heaven no longer made use of it, the suggestion on which This was said to be preserved in Ch'i, and the same name was given to all Ch'i music. The Chi-shāo and Chio-shāo were, I suppose, two tunes or pieces of music, starting with the notes 徽 and 角 respectively.

5. THUR BOTAL GOVERNMENT WILL ASSURBBLY RAISE TO THE SUPERIE DIGHTY, AND MRITHER ED OF WHALEH, NOR LOVE OF WOMAN, MEED REFER WITH ITS EXERCISE. However his instance were. Its aximonar. However his admirers may try to defend him, here, and in other chapters, Mencius, if he does not counsel to, yet suggests, rebellion. In his days, the Chita dynasty was nearly a century distant from its extinction. And then his accepting the princes, with all their confirmed habits of vice and luxury, and telling them those need not interfere with the benevolence of their averages.

longer made use of it, the suggestion on which he consulted Mencius was made to king Histan. In 製譜已乎 we have two questions,— 'Shall I destroy it (, the interrogative of hesitancy, so common in Mencius), or, Shall I stop?' a. The first and third $\overline{+}$ here might have the 4th tone; they quite differ from the second, which is merely the style of king Hattan. I may give here a note from the 集餐 (Pt. I. i. 1) on the force of the terms 君 and 王-'He who is followed by the people till they form a flook (基), is a chilm. He to whom they turn the princes, with all their confirmed habits of vice and luxury, and telling them those need not interfere with the benevolence of their government, shows very little knowledge of man, or of men's affairs. I. If the name given to the palaces occupied in different parts of the country by the sovereigns in their tours of inspection mentioned in the last chapter. See the Book of Rites, Rk. XII. The name Ming was given to them, because royal government, Shen-hai, bordering on Kan-sû.

VOL. II.

ment of Ch'i was as follows:—The husbandmen cultivated for the government one-ninth of the land; the descendants of officers were salaried; at the passes and in the markets, strangers were inspected, but goods were not taxed: there were no prohibitions respecting the ponds and weirs; the wives and children of criminals were not involved in their guilt. There were the old and wifeless, or widowers; the old and husbandless, or widows; the old and childless, or solitaries; the young and fatherless, or orphans:—these four classes are the most destitute of the people, and have none to whom they can tell their wants, and king Wan, in the institution of his government with its benevolent action, made them the first objects of his regard, as it is said in the Book of Poetry,

"The rich may get through life well;
But alas! for the miserable and solitary!"

4. The king said, 'O excellent words!' Mencius said, 'Since your Majesty deems them excellent, why do you not practise them?' 'I have an infirmity,' said the king; 'I am fond of wealth.' The

-, a square ä was divided into nine parts, ponds were artificial. 先斯四,一先 is the ch containing roomds; eightfarming families verb. For the ode, see the Shih-ching, II. iv. each containing 100 mdw; eight farming families were located upon them, one part being reserved for government, which was cultivated by the joint labours of the husbandmen;—see III. Pt.I. 仕者世禄,一'officers, hereditary emolument; 'that is, descendants of meritorious officers, if men of ability, received office, and, even if they were not, they had pensions, in reward of the merit of their fathers. 'Ponds'), in Shen-hat. The account of his doing so and weirs,'—it is not to be understood that the is found in the ode quoted, Shih-ching, III. ii.

family. By him the waning fortunes of his house were revived, and he founded a settle-reply was, 'Formerly, Kung-liû was fond of wealth. the Book of Poetry,

"He reared his ricks, and filled his granaries,

He tied up dried provisions and grain,

In bottomless bags, and sacks,

That he might gather his people together, and glorify his State.

With bows and arrows all-displayed,

With shields, and spears, and battle-axes, large and small,

He commenced his march."

In this way those who remained in their old seat had their ricks and granaries, and those who marched had their bags of provisions. It was not till after this that he thought he could begin his march. If your Majesty loves wealth, give the people power to gratify the same feeling, and what difficulty will there be in your attaining the royal sway?

5. The king said, 'I have an infirmity; I am fond of beauty.' The reply was, 'Formerly, king Tai was fond of beauty, and loved his wife. It is said in the Book of Poetry,

"Kû-kung Tan-fû

Came in the morning, galloping his horse,

By the banks of the western waters,

Ode IV. st. z. For J'y we have in the Shih-ching III, and for III, iII. iii, read to se, in 4th tone, 'to store up,' 'stores.' Chû Hat name Tan-fû (in 3rd tone). He removed from

As far as the foot of Ch'i hill. Along with the lady of Chiang;

They came and together chose the site for their settlement." At that time, in the seclusion of the house, there were no diseatisfied women, and abroad, there were no unmarried men. If your Majesty loves beauty, let the people be able to gratify the same feeling, and what difficulty will there be in your attaining the royal sway?

CHAP. VI. 1. Mencius said to the king Hsüan of Ch'i, 'Suppose that one of your Majesty's ministers were to entrust his wife and children to the care of his friend, while he himself went into Ch'û to travel, and that, on his return, he should find that the friend had let his wife and children suffer from cold and hunger;—how ought he to deal with him?' The king said, 'He should cast him off.'

2. Menoius proceeded, 'Suppose that the chief criminal judge could not regulate the officers under him, how would you deal with him?' The king said, 'Dismiss him.'

3. Mencius again said, 'If within the four borders of your changed into 大王, 'the king, or sovereign, replies suggest the renderings of 如之

4. Bringing home his bad government to the Error or Cart. I. 之意,—之 is the verb = lects, XVIII. ii. 治 is the and tone. In the 往. 比, in 4th tone,—及 as in Analects, well illustrate the difference of signification, XI. xxv. 4, 5. and and -active, Mphil which the tone makes.

which I have given. 2. ______ no on Ana-kingdom there is not good government, what is to be done?' king looked to the right and left, and spoke of other matters.

1. Mencius, having an interview with the king CHAP. VII. Hstan of Ch'i, said to him, 'When men speak of "an ancient kingdom," it is not meant thereby that it has lofty trees in it, but that it has ministers sprung from families which have been noted in it for generations. Your Majesty has no intimate ministers even. Those whom you advanced yesterday are gone to-day, and you do not know it.

2. The king said, 'How shall I know that they have not ability, and so avoid employing them at all?

3. The reply was, 'The ruler of a State advances to office men of talents and virtue only as a matter of necessity. Since he will thereby cause the low to overstep the honourable, and distant to overstep his near relatives, ought he to do so but with caution?

4. 'When all those about you say,—"This is a man of talents

7. The care to be employed by a prince in tary ministers.' The 調 in 非調 might be the employment of minimum; and their resea- omitted, and yet it adds something in the turn THE EMPLOYMENT OF MINISTERS; AND THEIR RELA-TION TO HIMSELP AND THE STABILITY OF HIS KING-DOR. 1. On the idiom Z iii, see Prémare, on character Z; but the samples which he adduces are not quite similar to those in this passage. Literally, the opening sentence would be:—'That which is called an ancient kingdom, is not the saying (之謂) of saying it go,' 'to dismiss.' 3.如不得已,—literhas lofty trees; it is the saying of—it has heredi- ally, 'as a thing in which he cannot stop."

of the sentence. As opposed to 今日,昔月 -'yesterday.' Châo Ch'i strangely mistakes the meaning of the last clause, which he makes to be:-'Those whom you advanced on the past day, do evil to-day, and you do not know to out them off!' 2. 舍= 捨, the grd tone, 'to let and worth," you may not therefore believe it. When your great officers all say,—"This is a man of talents and virtue," neither may you for that believe it. When all the people say,—" This is a man of talents and virtue," then examine into the case, and when you find that the man is such, employ him. When all those about you say,—"This man won't do," don't listen to them. When all your great officers say,—"This man won't do," don't listen to them. When the people all say,—"This man won't do," then examine into the case, and when you find that the man won't do, send him away.

5. 'When all those about you say,-" This man deserves death," don't listen to them. When all your great officers say,—"This man deserves death," don't listen to them. When the people all say,-"This man deserves death," then inquire into the case, and when you see that the man deserves death, put him to death. In accordance with this we have the saying, "The people killed him."

6. 'You must act in this way in order to be the parent of the people.

Compare the Chung Yung, xx. 13. 4 未切, the Great Learning, Commentary x. 3. We may 'you may not yet believe that the man is so and use the second person in translating or, more so 'See on Analests, XIII. xxiv. 6. Compare indefinitely, the third.

CHAP. VIII. 1. The king Hstian of Ch'i asked, saying, 'Was it so, that Tang banished Chieh, and that king Wû amote Chau! Mencius replied, 'It is so in the records.'

2. The king said, 'May a minister then put his sovereign to death?

3. Mencius said, 'He who outrages the benevolence proper to his nature, is called a robber; he who outrages righteousness, is called a ruffian. The robber and ruffian we call a mere fellow. I have heard of the cutting off of the fellow Chau, but I have not heard of the putting a sovereign to death, in his case.'

CHAP. IX. 1. Mencius, having an interview with the king Hstian of Ch'i, said to him, 'If you are going to build a large mansion, you will surely cause the Master of the workmen to look out for large trees, and when he has found such large trees, you will

8. KILLING A SOVERHOU IN NOT ENGINEERING ACCORDING TO THE COUNSEL OF THE NEW OF TALEFTS RESELLING NOR MURDER. I. Of Tang's banishment of Chich, see the Shu-ching, IV. ii, iii; and of the smiting of Châu, see the same, V. i. In one important point Mencius's illustrations a. It is the word appropriated to regicide, fail. A prince is not supposed to understand either house-building or stone-cutting; he which Mencius in his reply exchanges for must delegate those matters to the men who do. But government he ought to understand he may not delegate it to any scholars or of 8. 11, as a verb, - 15, 'to nurt and injure,' as in the Analects, several times. 'To outrage' answers well for it here. In the use of 夫, Mencius seems to refer to the expression 夫勳, Shu-ching, V. i. Sect. III. 4.

I. The I having was a special officer having charge of all the artisans, &c.; -- see the Li Chi, IV. Sect. I. iii 13, and Sect. IV. i. 17. the 1st tone,—see Pt. I. iii. 3. 其任 (the THE ABSURDETY OF A RULES'S NOT ACTING 4th tone), - its use,' i.e. the building of the be glad, thinking that they will answer for the intended object. Should the workmen hew them so as to make them too small, then your Majesty will be angry, thinking that they will not answer for the purpose. Now, a man spends his youth in learning the principles of right government, and, being grown up to vigour, he wishes to put them in practice; -if your Majesty says to him, "For the present put aside what you have learned, and follow me," what shall we say?

2. 'Here now you have a gem unwrought, in the stone. Although it may be worth 240,000 tacls, you will surely employ a lapidary to cut and polish it. But when you come to the government of the State, then you say,—" For the present put aside what you have learned, and follow me." How is it that you herein act so differently from your conduct in calling in the lapidary to cut the gem!'

house. The 之 after 學 and 行 are to be tone, -便 or 合, 'to make,' not 'to teach.' dear to the king, and yet he would certainly would he not do so with the State? 展家, sions of the nobles. - - - - - - , the 1st favour, and accordingly I have adopted it.

understood as referring to and to or as in From A to, however, was explained by the translation. He denotes the maturity of thirty years, when one was supposed to be fit 'But in the matter of the government of your for effice. a. The was twenty-four Chinese ennose or tests (of gold). Chu Hat, after Chao Ch'i, erroneously makes it twenty ounces. The gen in question, worth so much, would be very dear to the king, and yet he would certainly confide to another the polishing of it; -why to me the better. The first the is a difficulty in Chao Ch'i's view; the second, in the other. the kingdom, embracing the families and posses. But the final in turns the balance in its

CHAP. X. 1. The people of Ch't attacked Yen, and conquered it. 2. The king Hstian asked, saying, 'Some tell me not to take possession of it for myself, and some tell me to take possession of it. For a kingdom of ten thousand chariots, attacking another of ten thousand chariots, to complete the conquest of it in fifty days, is an achievement beyond mere human strength. If I do not take possession of it, calamities from Heaven will surely come upon me. What do you say to my taking possession of it?'

3. Mencius replied, 'If the people of Yen will be pleased with your taking possession of it, then do so.—Among the ancients there was one who acted on this principle, namely king Wt. people of Yen will not be pleased with your taking possession of it, then do not do so.—Among the ancients there was one who acted on this principle, namely king Wan.

4. 'When, with all the strength of your country of ten thousand

10. The desposal of reservoir rests with the | no resistance to them. 2. 💻 🗷 is explained we shall find this doestrine often put forth very fereibly by Memcius. Here the king of Ch'i instinuates that it was the will of Heaven that he should take Yen, and Mencius sends him to the will of the people, by which only the other could be ascertained. I. The State of Yen (the 1st tone) lay north-west from Ch'i, forming part of the present province of Chih-li. Reprince, a poor weakling, had resigned his throne to his prime minister, and great confusion ensued, so that the people welcomed the appearance of the troops of Ch'i, and made Wû. 4. C', read isse, 4th tone, 'rice.'  is minds of the proper. You popule vox dat.

as-勝之, 'to conquer it;' but 畢 has not chariots, you attacked another country of ten thousand chariots. and the people brought baskets of rice and vessels of congee, to meet your Majesty's host, was there any other reason for this but that they hoped to escape out of fire and water! If you make the water more deep and the fire more fierce, they will in like manner make another revolution.

1. The people of Ch'1, having smitten Yen, took CHAP, XI, possession of it, and upon this, the princes of the various States deliberated together, and resolved to deliver Yen from their power. The king Hstian said to Mencius, 'The princes have formed many plans to attack me:—how shall I prepare myself for them?' Mencius replied, 'I have heard of one who with seventy & exercised all the functions of government throughout the king-That was T'ang. I have never heard of a prince with a thousand U standing in fear of others.

2. 'It is said in the Book of History, As soon as T'ang began properly congee, but here used generally for beverages; some say wine. , 'a goblet,' AND BRING DESARTEM. SAFETY AND PROFESSITY

'a jug,' 'a vase,' a vessel for liquids generally.—
The first paragraph, it is said, is constructed according to the rules of composition attributed

A Confession in the Confession to Confucius in his 'Spring and Autumn,' the A refusing honour to the king of Oh's. expresses the ill deserts of Yen. And intimates that the conquest was from the disinclination of Yen to fight, not from the power of Ch'l.

11. AMERICAN AND AVARSON ONLY MAKE EMERCIAN to be still in the future. 潘 in 翻 makes the clause like one in English beginning with a nominative absolute. 得之,—literally, 'await them.' s. See the Shu-ching, IV. ii. 6. Mencius has introduced the clause 天 his work of executing justice, he commenced with Ko. The whole kingdom had confidence in him. When he pursued his work in the east, the rude tribes on the west murmured. So did those on the north, when he was engaged in the south. Their cry was—"Why does he put us last?" Thus, the people looked to him, as we look in a time of great drought to the clouds and rainbows. The frequenters of the markets stopped not. The husbandmen made no change in their operations. While he punished their rulers, he consoled the people. His progress was like the falling of opportune rain, and the people were delighted. It is said again in the Book of History, "We have waited for our prince long; the prince's coming will be our reviving!"

3. 'Now the ruler of Yen was tyrannizing over his people, and your Majesty went and punished him. The people supposed that you were going to deliver them out of the water and the fire, and brought baskets of rice and vessels of congee, to meet your Majesty's host. But you have slain their fathers and elder brothers, and put ences from the original text. Ke was a small in time of drought, long to see it.' The second territory, which is referred to the present quotation is from the same paragraph of the district of Ning-ling (事 度) in Kwei-teh Shu-ching, where we have 于 for 我. 3. (歸 德), in Honan. 望 雲 霓,—the Compare last chapter. 书, in 书 农 云 modern commentators ingeniously interpret:— 云, is not our 'if,' but rather 'since.' The modern commentators ingeniously interpret:—二元, is not our 'if,' but rather 'since.' The people look for rain in drought, and murmur at his not coming, as they dread the critics my 是指數之詞,不作設調 appearance of a rainbow, on which the rain will stop. This is perhaps over-refining, and making too much of the 堂. Châo Ch'i says:— 另,,一父 is not fathers only, but uncles as well.

下信之, and there are some other differ-| 'The rainbow appears when it rains, so people, their sons and younger brothers in confinement. You have pulled down the ancestral temple of the State, and are removing to Ch't its precious vessels. How can such a course be deemed proper? The rest of the kingdom is indeed jealously afraid of the strength of Ch'1; and now, when with a doubled territory you do not put in practice a benevolent government;—it is this which sets the arms of the kingdom in motion.

4. 'If your Majesty will make haste to issue an ordinance, restoring your captives, old and young, stopping the removal of the precious vessels, and saying that, after consulting with the people of Yen, you will appoint them a ruler, and withdraw from the country; in this way you may still be able to stop the threatened attack.

CHAP. XII. 1. There had been a brush between Tsau and Lû, when the duke Mû asked Mencius, saying, 'Of my officers there were killed thirty-three men, and none of the people would die in their defence. Though I sentenced them to death for their conduct, it is impossible to put such a multitude to death. If I do not put them 其宗廟,其宗器,-其-'its or his,' an abourso tensous A sensous coverence. i.e. the kingdom's or the prince's, not their, the people's. 4. As they are dead or the prince's, and their, the people's. 4. As they are dead or the people's. 4. The clauses whose name is still retained, in the district of after the first are to be understood as the sub- Teau-heien, in Yen-chau of Shan-tung.

stance of the order or ordinance, which Mancius is explained—'the noise of a struggle.' It is advised the king to issue.

13. The approximation of the property can only long against the forces of La. Mû,—'the Dis-to death, then there is the crime unpunished of their looking angrily on at the death of their officers, and not saving them. How is the exigency of the case to be met?'

2. Mencius replied, 'In calamitous years and years of famine, the old and weak of your people, who have been found lying in the ditches and water-channels, and the able-bodied who have been scattered about to the four quarters, have amounted to several thousands. All the while, your granaries, O prince, have been stored with grain, and your treasuries and arsenals have been full, and not one of your officers has told you of the distress. Thus negligent have the superiors in your State been, and cruel to their inferiors. The philosopher Tsang said, "Beware, beware. What proceeds from you, will return to you again." Now at length the people have paid back the conduct of their officers to them. Do not you, O prince, blame them.

3. 'If you will put in practice a benevolent government, this peacer of virtue, and Maintainer of righteous pastilence, and other calamities, such as are ness, outwardly showing inward feeling. —is immediately described. 夫, 1st tone, indicates the posthumous epithet of the duke. 有可 are to be taken together, = 'officers;'-see 乙灰; compare Analects, XIV. xvii. 见云云" - they will hereafter look mgrily on, &c.; the reference is to the crime the officers only. 死其長, that had taken place. 2. A = years of mented, as in par. 1.

Analests, VIII. iv. Q Z The is to be com- show their feeling, but only now had they found the opportunity. 又之,—Z refers to the 有司· 8 其上,—embracing the prince and officers generally; 其是(the grd tone), people will love you and all above them, and will die for their officers.

此。

CHAP. XIII. 1. The duke Wan of Tang asked Mencius, saying, 'Tang is a small kingdom, and lies between Ch'i and Ch'û. I serve Ch'i? Or shall I serve Ch'û?'

2. Mencius replied, 'This plan which you propose is beyond me. If you will have me counsel you, there is one thing I can suggest. Dig deeper your moats; build higher your walls; guard them as well as your people. In case of attack, be prepared to die in your defence, and have the people so that they will not leave you;—this is a proper course.'

CHAP. XIV. 1. The duke Wan of Tang asked Mencius, saying, 'The people of Ch'1 are going to fortify Hsieh. The movement occasions me great alarm. What is the proper course for me to take in the case?'

2. Mencius replied, 'Formerly, when king T'ai dwelt in Pin, the barbarians of the north were continually making incursions upon it. He therefore left it, went to the foot of mount Oh's, and there took

r. Tang still gives its name to a district of Yenchâu in the south of Shau-tung. North of it was Ch'i, and, in the time of Mencius, Ch'û was

13. A PRINCE SECULD DEPEND OF STREET, AND threatening it from the south. III, 4th tone, NOT RELY OF, OR THE TO PROPERTIES, OTHER POWERS. 'to occupy a space between,' a. 無己, 興 - 焉,—compare Pt. L. vil. 2,—無 以, up his residence. He did not take that situation, as having selected it. It was a matter of necessity with him.

3. 'If you do good, among your descendants, in after generations, there shall be one who will attain to the royal dignity. A prince lays the foundation of the inheritance, and hands down the beginning which he has made, doing what may be continued by his successors. As to the accomplishment of the great result, that is with Heaven. What is that Ch'1 to you, O prince? Be strong to do good. That is all your business.'

CHAP. XV. I. The duke Wan of Tang asked Mencius, saying, 'Tang is a small State. Though I do my utmost to serve those large kingdoms on either side of it, we cannot escape suffering from them. What course shall I take that we may do so?' Mencius 斯子克斯, 他一"these," = your 'moata.'

校死,一次 = 至久, as that is used in Analesta, I. vii, st et. A good deal must be supplied here in the translation, to bring out Mencius's the next. 去之酸山下,—it is best to

14. A PRIMOR, THERATHERD BY HIS RESERVOURS, WILL PIED HIS BRIEF DEFINIOR AND COMBOLATION IN DORSE WHAT IS SEED AND RESERV. Meancing was at his wit's end, I suppose, to give duke Win as at his wit's end, I suppose, to give duke Win as asswer. It was all very well to tell him to de good, but the promise of a royal descendant would hardly be much comfort to him. The reward to be realised in this world in the person of another, and the reference to Heaven, as to a fate more than to a personal God,—are melancholy. Contrast Paalm xxxvii. 3,—'Trust in the Lord and do good; se shalt thou dwell in the land, and verily thou shalt be fed.' I. Was the name of an ancient principality, adjointer Time. It had long been incorporated with Ch'I, which now resumed an old design of fortifying it,—that is, I supposes, of repairing the wall of its principal town, as a basis of operations against Tang. a. See chap. iii, and also the next. 去之岐山下,—it is best to take Z here as the verb,—往. 3.君子,— generally, 'a prince.' 垂続,—统' the end of a ecocom, or clue,' 'a beginning.' 若夫, the 夫 is not a mere explotive, but is used as in Analcots, XI. ix. 3, st sl., 'as to this—the accomplishing,' &c. 一元, the grd tone, is the verb.

as to a fixte more than to a personal God,—are melanchely. Contrast Paulm exxvii. 3,—'Trust in the Lord and do good; so shalt thou dwell in the land, and verily thou shalt be fed.' I. was the name of an ancient principality, adjointage Ting. It had long been incorporated with replied, 'Formerly, when king Tai dwelt in Pin, the barbarians of the north were constantly making incursions upon it. He served them with skins and silks, and still he suffered from them. He served them with dogs and horses, and still he suffered from them. He served them with pearls and gems, and still he suffered from them. Seeing this, he assembled the old men, and announced to them, saying, "What the barbarians want is my territory. I have heard this,—that a ruler does not injure his people with that wherewith he nourishes them. My children, why should you be troubled about having no prince? I will leave this." Accordingly, he left Pin, crossed the mountain Liang, built a town at the foot of mount Ch'i. and dwelt there. The people of Pin said, "He is a benevolent man. We must not lose him." Those who followed him looked like crowds hastening to market.

2. On the other hand, some say, "The kingdom is a thing to be kept from generation to generation. One individual cannot under-何思乎無君 seems to mean :—'If I When I am gone, whoever can secure your remain here, I am sure to die from the bar- repose, will be your prince and chief. I will barians. I will go and preserve your ruler for leave this, and go elsewhere.' 歸市 is difyou.' So the paraphrast in the fiff fig. The firent rather from the same phrase in chap, vii. There it means traders, here market goest generally. a. This paragraph is to be understood as need you be troubled about having no prince? spoken to a ruler, in his own person. Compare take to dispose of it in his own person. Let him be prepared to die for it. Let him not quit it."

3. 'I ask you, prince, to make your election between these two courses.'

CHAP. XVI. 1. The duke Ping of Lû was about to leave his palace, when his favourite, one Tsang Ts'ang, made a request to him, saying, 'On other days, when you have gone out, you have given instructions to the officers as to where you were going. But now, the horses have been put to the carriage, and the officers do not yet know where you are going. I venture to ask.' The duke said, 'I am going to see the scholar Mang.' 'How is this?' said the other. 'That you demean yourself, prince, in paying the honour of the first visit to a common man, is, I suppose, because you think that he is a man of talents and virtue. By such men the rules of ceremonial proprieties and right are observed. But on the occasion of this Mang's second mourning, his observances exceeded those of the former. Do not go to see him, my prince.' The duke said, 'I will not.

2. The officer Yo-chang entered the court, and had an audience. chap. vii. _____, 'to take the whole dis-posal of,' to deal with. It is not to be referred and go elsewhere.' The meaning comes to the to the idea paraphrasia make the whole speken by the ruler;—thus:—'The territory of the State was handed down by my ancestors to their descendants, that they should keep it from generation to generation. It is not what I can assume in my person the disposal of. If calami-

VOL. II.

He said, 'Prince, why have you not gone to see Mang K'o?' duke said, 'One told me that, on the occasion of the scholar Mang's second mourning, his observances exceeded those of the former. It is on that account that I have not gone to see him.' 'How is this!' answered Yo-chang. 'By what you call "exceeding," you mean, I suppose, that, on the first occasion, he used the rites appropriate to a scholar, and, on the second, those appropriate to a great officer; that he first used three tripods, and afterwards five tripods.' The duke said, 'No; I refer to the greater excellence of the coffin, the shell, the grave-clothes, and the shroud.' Yo-chang said, 'That cannot be called "exceeding." That was the difference between being poor and being rich.'

3. After this, Yo-chang saw Mencius, and said to him, 'I told so, to offer the due respect to him as a professor of moral and political science, by visiting him and asking his services. The author of the // 和餘說 approves of the view that the at in this chapter is to be referred to the 4th year of the sovereign 🛺, n. c. 311, but the chronology of the duke Ping is very confused. 所之,一之-往.何哉 is an exclamaof surprise, extending back to 野平, the 平 is hardly so much gation. I have given its force by H does not indicate the origin of rites and right, but only their exhibi-tion. The first occasion of Mencius's mourning referred to was that, it is said, for his father, ching had said, the duke was going to visit going out, half-ashamed at the same time to do | But his father died, according to the received accounts, when he was only a child of three years old. We must suppose that the favourite invented the story. I have retained the surname Mänghere, as suiting the paragraph better than Monotus. a. is a double surn This individual, whose name was K'e (§ see par. 3), was a disciple of Men surname probably areas from one of tors having been the music-maste State, and the name of his office pessing to become the designation of his descen The tripods contained the offerings of n in sacrifice. The sovereign used nine, the prince of a State seven, a great officer five, and a scholar three. To each tripod belonged its app kind of Seek. 8 君為來,一為 = 'therefore,' i.e. in o

the prince about you, and he was consequently coming to see you, when one of his favourites, named Tsang Ts'ang, stopped him, and therefore he did not come according to his purpose.' Mencius said, 'A man's advancement is effected, it may be, by others, and the stopping him is, it may be, from the efforts of others. But to advance a man or to stop his advance is really beyond the power of other men. My not finding in the prince of La a ruler who would confide in me, and put my counsels into practice, is from Heaven. How could that scion of the Tsang family cause me not to find the ruler that would suit me?'

Mencius. R is read in the grd and 4th really conveys all the meaning in the tenes, both with the same meaning, - L, 'to translation, however periphrastic that may stop.' 不過去者 is not spoken merely seem. With this reference of Mencius to with reference to the duke's not coming, as he had purposed, to most him. The phrase Analots, VIL xxii; IX. v; XIV. xxxviii.

BOOK II.

KUNG-SUN CH'ÂU. PART I.

CHAPTER I. I. Kung-sun Ch'au asked Mencius, saying, 'Master, if you were to obtain the ordering of the government in Ch'i, could you promise yourself to accomplish anew such results as those realized by Kwan Chung and Yen?'

2. Mencius said, 'You are indeed a true man of Ch'i. You know about Kwan Chung and Yen, and nothing more.

3. 'Some one asked Tsang Hat, saying, "Sir, to which do you give the superiority,—to yourself or to Tsze-lû?" Tsang Hat looked uneasy, and said, "He was an object of veneration to my grandfather."

Trees or rans Book,—The name of Kung-sun literally, 'in a way.' Châo Ch'i says,— The Ch'au, a disciple of Mencius, heading the first chapter, the book is named from him accordingly. On 重句上 see note on the title of the first Book.

1. WHILE MERCIUS WESTED TO SEE A TRUE BOTAL GOVERNMENT AND SWAY IN THE KINGDOM, AND COULD BARRLY HAVE REALIZED IT, FROM THE PROULIAR CERCUMSTANCES OF THE TIME, HE WOULD NOT, TO DO SO, MAVE MAD RECOURSE TO ANY WATE ENCOMMENTENT WITH ITS IDEA. I. Kung-sun Ch'Au, one of Mencius's disciples, belonged to Ch'i, and was probably a cadet of the ducal family. The sons of the princes were generally & +; their sons again, 🔬 🐺, 'ducal grandsons,' and those two characters became the surname of their descendants, who mingled with the undistinguished classes of the people. [2] 题, | 张 晋,—compare Analests, XI. xv.

K, 'in an official way,' and Chû Hat, 居要 刘凯, 'to occupy an important position.' gloss in the 雷音says :-- '雪路 is 程 政献, to grasp the handle of government. The analogous phrase— is used now to describe an officer's appointment. 44 (11), see Confucian Analesta, III. xxii ; XIV. x, xvii, zviii. 晏子,—see Analesta, V. zvi ; Menciue, I. Pt. II. iv. 3. Thing Hat was the grand-son, according to Chao Ch'i and Cha Hat, of Tring Shin, the famous disciple of Confuc Others my he was Shan's son. It is a most-

"Then," pursued the other, "Do you give the superiority to yourself or to Kwan Chung !" Tsang Hsi, flushed with anger and displeased, said, "How dare you compare me with Kwan Chung? Considering how entirely Kwan Chung possessed the confidence of his prince, how long he enjoyed the direction of the government of the State, and how low, after all, was what he accomplished,—how is it that you liken me to him?"

4. 'Thus,' concluded Mencius, 'Tsang Hai would not play Kwan Chung, and is it what you desire for me that I should do so?'

5. Kung-sun Ch'du said, 'Kwan Chung raised his prince to be the leader of all the other princes, and Yen made his prince illustrious, and do you still think it would not be enough for you to do what they did?'

6. Mencius answered, 'To raise Ch'i to the royal dignity would be as easy as it is to turn round the hand.

7. 'So!' returned the other. 'The perplexity of your disciple according to Chû, is 不安貌, as in the the duke Hwan. 4. 色我,一篇, 4th tone, translation. The distionary gives it, 截鎖, 'on my behalf.' Sun Shih (孫 蘭), the the appearance of reverence.' 先于,—we paraphrast of Châo Ch'i, takes it as — 以為:

see what a wide application this character 于 does not appear to be Ch'i own interpretation is not to be taken as if it were the sign of the present complete tense, though in the dictionary this passage is quoted under that signification of the character. It is not sufficient to be played?' 7. 若是一'in here - 5 or 73. For more than forty years this case; but by using our exclamatory 80! Kwan Chung possessed the entire confidence of the spirit of the remark is brought out.

5 普仲晏子猶不足爲與

is hereby very much increased. There was king Wan, moreover, with all the virtue which belonged to him; and who did not die till he had reached a hundred years :—and still his influence had not penetrated throughout the kingdom. It required king Wt and the duke of Chau to continue his course, before that influence greatly prevailed. Now you say that the royal dignity might be so easily obtained:—is king Wan then not a sufficient object for imitation?'

8. Mencius said, 'How can king Wan be matched? From Tang to Wû-ting there had appeared six or seven worthy and sage sovereigns. The kingdom had been attached to Yin for a long time, and this length of time made a change difficult. Wû-ting had all the princes coming to his court, and possessed the kingdom as if it had been a thing which he moved round in his palm. Thon, Chau was removed from Wû-ting by no great interval of time. There were still remaining some of the ancient families and of the old manners, of the influence also which had emanated from the earlier sovereigns, and of their good government. Moreover, there were the viscount of Introduces a new subject, and a stronger one for eighteen sovereigns, exclusive of themselves, the point in hand. King Win died at 97.— and from Wû-ting to Châu (1323-1153) seven. Ch'an uses the round number. 若易然。一个雪王齊若是之易」。6, stat 微子, 比干, 箕子 Now you say that Ch I might be raised to lects, XVIII. i. The latter two are I I. the royal sway thus easily.' 8. From Tang to Wê-ting (a. c. 2765–1323) there were altegether as being uncles of Châu, 'royal sons.'

Wei and his second son, their Royal Highnesses Pi-kan and the viscount of Ch'i, and Kao-ko, all men of ability and virtue, who gave their joint assistance to Chau in his government. In consequence of these things, it took a long time for him to lose the throne. There was not a foot of ground which he did not possess. There was not one of all the people who was not his subject. So it was on his side, and king Wan at his beginning had only a territory of one hundred square M. On all these accounts, it was difficult for him immediately to attain to the royal dignity.

The people of Ch'i have a saying—"A man may have wisdom and discernment, but that is not like embracing the favourable opportunity. A man may have instruments of husbandry, but that is not like waiting for the farming seasons." The present time is one in which the royal dignity may be easily attained.

10. 'In the flourishing periods of the Hsia, Yin, and Chau dynasties, the royal domain did not exceed a thousand II, and Ch'i embraces so much territory. Cocks crow and dogs bark to Kao-ko was a distinguished man and minister takes the place of 由. 9. 低基.—written of the time,—whose worth was first discovered by king Wan, but who continued loyal to the variously, 兹基. 鑑鉱,—was the name House of Yin. 輔相,一相, 4th tone. 失 for s hes. zo. 夏后, 殷, 周, see Analesta, 2,−之 refers to the throne. 女王猫 III. xxi. 辟-闢. The last sentence, as in was the second son (some say brother) of 像子. 方云云,一独, the opp. of former cases, one another, all the way to the four borders of the State:—so Ch'i possesses the people. No change is needed for the enlarging of its territory: no change is needed for the collecting of a population. If its ruler will put in practice a benevolent government, no power will be able to prevent his becoming sovereign.

11. 'Moreover, never was there a time farther removed than the present from the rise of a true sovereign: never was there a time when the sufferings of the people from tyrannical government were more intense than the present. The hungry readily partake of any food, and the thirsty of any drink.

12. 'Confucius said, "The flowing progress of virtue is more rapid than the transmission of royal orders by stages and couriers."

13. 'At the present time, in a country of ten thousand chariots. let benevolent government be put in practice, and the people will be delighted with it, as if they were relieved from hanging by the With half the merit of the ancients, double their achievements

Bk. L. Pt. L. vil. 3. II. The 當 in 易 爲 laid on the 爲. Perhaps the expressions = 食,易當數 is perplexing. We might put is in the grd tone, and and in the same. But in Bk. VII. Pt. L xxvii, we have the expressions 飢者甘食, 渴者甘 飲, where 食 and 飲 must have their rapid. So much seems plain. See the 集體, ordinary tones. Stress therefore is not to be in ioc. 13. 11 11 (11) 11. Cha Hat simply 'easily do eating, easily do drinking. 12. The distinction between and K is much disputed. Some make the former a foot-post, but that is unlikely. It denotes the slower con-veyance of despatches, and the other the more is sure to be realized. It is only at this time that such could be the case.

CHAP. II. 1. Kung-sun Ch'au asked Mencius, saying, 'Master, if you were to be appointed a high noble and the prime minister of Ch'i, so as to be able to carry your principles into practice, though you should thereupon raise the ruler to the headship of all the other princes, or even to the royal dignity, it would not be to be wondered at.--In such a position would your mind be perturbed or not?' Mencius replied, 'No. At forty, I attained to an unperturbed mind.

2. Ch'au said, 'Since it is so with you, my Master, you are far beyond Mang Pan.' 'The mere attainment,' said Mencius, 'is not says: 问题像因苦, 何题 expresses the term 氣, and embracing generally the bitter suffering. Literally, it is 'as if they were emotions, desires, appetites). The moral and loosed from being turned upside down and sus-

2. THAT MERCIUS HAD ATTAINED TO AN UNPER-TURBED MIND; TRAT THE MEANS BY WHICH HE EAD DOSE SO WAS RES ENOWLEDGE OF WORDS AND THE SOURSMESST OF HIS PASSION-NATURE; AND mat in this he was a pollower of Computities. The chapter is divided into four parts:—the first, pars. 1-8, showing generally that there are various ways to attain an unperturbed mind; the second, pars. 9, 10, exposing the error of the way taken by the philosopher Kao; the third, pars. 11-17, unfolding Mencius's own way; and the fourth, pars. 18-28, showing that Mencius followed Confucius, and praising that Sage as the first of mortals. It is chiefly owing to what Mencius says in this chapter about the nourishment of the passionnature, that a place has been accorded to him roximity to them. His views are substane of China, or in immediate tially these:—Man's nature is composite; he possesses moral and intellectual powers (comprehended by Mencius under the term 'heart,' 'mind,' interchanged with At, 'the is here to be taken passively,—'If on you were will'), and active powers (summed up under conferred the dignity of, &c. 117, 4th tone.

emotions, desires, appetites). The moral and intellectual powers ought to be supreme and govern, but there is a close connexion between them and the others which give effect to them. them and the others which give effect to them. The active powers may not be stunted, for them the whole character will be feeble. But on the other hand, they must not be allowed to take the lead. They must get their tone from the mind, and the way to develop them in all their completeness is to do good. Let them be vigorous, and the mind clear and pure, and we shall have the man, whom nothing external to himself can particular. Horson's feature of to himself can perturb, --Horace's justim of tenacem propositi virum. In brief, if we take the sames corpus of the Roman adage, as not expressing the mere physical body, but the emotional and physical nature, what Mencius exhibits here, may be said to be 'mens sama me corpore same.' The attentive reader will, I think, find the above thoughts dispersed through this chapter, and be able to separate them from the irrelevant matter (that especially relating to Confucius), with which they are put forth. 1.), 'to add,' and generally 'to confer upon,' difficult. The scholar Kao had attained to an unperturbed mind at an earlier period of life than I did.'

3. Ch'du asked, 'Is there any way to an unperturbed mind?'

The answer was, 'Yes.

4. 'Pi-kung Yû had this way of nourishing his valour:-He did not flinch from any strokes at his body. He did not turn his eyes aside from any thrusts at them. He considered that the slightest push from any one was the same as if he were beaten before the crowds in the market-place, and that what he would not receive from a common man in his loose large garments of hair, neither should he receive from a prince of ten thousand chariots. He viewed stabbing a prince of ten thousand chariots just as stabbing a fellow dressed in cloth of hair. He feared not any of all the princes. A bad word addressed to him he always returned.

5. 'Mang Shih-she had this way of nourishing his valour:-

胸相 are not to be separated by an or, as nected with its ruling family. 不屑撓 must be; see on A, Analecta, IX xv. Ch'au's meaning is that, with so great an office and heavy a charge, the mind might well be perturbed:—would it be so with his master? With Mencius's reply, compare Confucius's account of himself, Analecta, II. iv. 3.

2. Mäng Pän was a celebrated bravo, who could pull the horn from an ox's head, and feared no man. Kao is the same who gives the name to the 6th Book of Mencius. 是不難 is not to be understood so much with reference to the case of Mang Pan, as to the attainment of an unperturbed mind, without reference to the way of attaining to it. 3. 道 here - 方法, 'way,' or 'method.' 4. Pt-kung Yû was a bravo, belonging probably to Wei (45), and con- There is a difficulty with the in in

(and tone), 不自然, literally, 'not skin bend, not eye avoid.' The meaning is not that he had first been wounded in those parts, and still was indifferent to the pain, but that he would press forward, careless of all risks. covers down to - 基 桦, = 'the least 市朝 (ch'do, and tone) are push,' = diagrace. not to be separated, and made—'the market-place or the court.' The latter character is used, because anciently the different parties in the markets were arranged in their respective ranks and places, as the officers in the court. But compare Analects, XIV. xxxviii. 1. 寬博-褐寬博之夫(☞段)

He said, "I look upon not conquering and conquering in the same way. To measure the enemy and then advance; to calculate the chances of victory and then engage:—this is to stand in awe of the opposing force. How can I make certain of conquering? I can only rise superior to all fear."

6. 'Mang Shih-she resembled the philosopher Tsang. Pi-kung Yû resembled Tsze-hsia. I do not know to the valour of which of the two the superiority should be ascribed, but yet Mang Shih-she attended to what was of the greater importance.

7. 'Formerly, the philosopher Tsang said to Tsze-hsiang," Do you love valour? I heard an account of great valour from the Master. It speaks thus:—'If, on self-examination, I find that I am not upright, shall I not be in fear even of a poor man in his loose garments of hair-cloth? If, on self-examination, I find that I am upright, I will go forward against thousands and tens of thousands."

graph simply calls himself. Hence the Ming Shih-she of himself,—of not being afraid. The basis of the reference to the two disciples is taken like our 'h'm;'—Mäng H'm-she. The use of A before the name, especially in the south of China, is analogous to this. Notwithstanding the min in the first clause of this paragraph, for in the first clause of this paragraph, the mind and translate differently from the first. we need not translate differently from the first of Thing. Thing. properly, the straight seams, clause of the preceding. p., — see Anafrom the top to the edge, with which an ancient cap was made, metaphorically used for 'the cap was made, metaphorically used for 'traight's party. enemy.' 6. 孰賢,—as in last chapter. 'upright.' 吾不備爲-吾豈不

8. 'Yet, what Mang Shih-she maintained, being merely his physical energy, was after all inferior to what the philosopher Tsang maintained, which was indeed of the most importance.

9. Kung-sun Ch'du said, 'May I venture to ask an explanation from you, Master, of how you maintain an unperturbed mind, and how the philosopher Kao does the same?' Mencius answered, 'Kao says,—"What is not attained in words is not to be sought for in the mind; what produces dissatisfaction in the mind, is not to be helped by passion-effort." This last,—when there is unrest in the mind, not to seek for relief from passion-effort, may be conceded. But not to seek in the mind for what is not attained in words cannot be conceded. The will is the leader of the passion-nature. The passion-nature pervades and animates the body. The will is first and chief, and the passion-nature is subordinate to it. Therefore I say,—Maintain firm the will, and do no violence to the passion-nature.

篇, the interrogation being denoted by the springs from its being used as correlate to 心, tone of the voice. Still the is the final 'the mind,' taken in connexion with the idea particle, and not the initial 'how,' with a of 'energy' inherent in it, from its composition. Thus it signifies the lower portion of man's first meet the character 🛒, so important in constitution; and here, that lower part in its this chapter. Its different meanings may be seen in Morrison and Medhurst. Originally it was the same as 4, 'cloudy vapour.' With the addition of , 'rice,' or , 'fire,' which or pause after the two ; 9. Kao's principle was an old form, it should indicate 'steam of seems to have been this,rice, or steam generally. The sanse in which Mencius uses it is indicated in the translation and in the preliminary note. The sense is to be found the essence of Buddhism,—that lowest sense,—animal vigour or courage. The in par. 6. I translate as if there were a comma -atter indifference

10. Ch'au observed, 'Since you say—"The will is chief, and the passion-nature is subordinate," how do you also say, "Maintain firm the will, and do no violence to the passion-nature?" Mencius replied, 'When it is the will alone which is active, it moves the passion-nature. When it is the passion-nature alone which is active, it moves the will. For instance now, in the case of a man falling or running, that is from the passion-nature, and yet it moves the mind.

11. 'I venture to ask,' said Ch'au again, 'wherein you, Master, surpass Kdo.' Mencius told him, 'I understand words, I am skilful in nourishing my vast, flowing passion-nature.'

12. Ch'au pursued, 'I venture to ask what you mean by your vast, flowing passion-nature!' The reply was, 'It is difficult to describe it.

the object of his attainment was the Buddhistic | and 心 synonymously. 氣-謂之充. savana, and perhaps this helps us to a glimpse of his meaning. Commentators take sides on 不得於言, whether the 'words' are Kao's own words, or those of others. To me it is hardly doubtful that they must be taken as the words of others. Mencius's account of himself below, as 'knowing words,' seems to require this. At the same time, a reference to Kao's arguments with Mencius, in Bk. VI, where he changes the form of his assertions, without seeming to be aware of their refutation, gives some plausibility to the other view. Chao Ch'i understands the expression thus:—'If men's words are bad, I will not inquire about their hearts; if their hearts are bad, I will not inquire about their words!' The [7] is not an approval of Kao's second proposition, but a concossion of it simply as not so bad as his first. Moneius goes en to show wherein he considered it as defective. From his language here, and in the next) paragraph, we see that he uses 末

'the t is the filling up of the body.' might seem here to be little more than the 'breath,' but that meaning would come altogether short of the term throughout the chapter.
10. Ch'au did not understand what his master had said about the relation between the mind and the passion nature, and as the latter was subordinate, would have had it disregarded altogether:—hence his question. Mencius shows that the passion-nature is really a part of our constitution, acts upon the mind, and is acted on by it, and may not be disregarded. —. The D meets Chau's disregard of the passion-nature, as not worth attending to. 11. The illustration here is not a very happy one, leading us to think of 🙀 in its merely material signification, as in the last paragraph. On 知言,  par. 17. On 浩然之 there is much vain babbling in the comm taries, to show how the a of heaven and earth

13. 'This is the passion-nature:—It is exceedingly great, and exceedingly strong. Being nourished by rectitude, and sustaining no injury, it fills up all between heaven and earth.

14. 'This is the passion-nature:—It is the mate and assistant of righteousness and reason. Without it, man is in a state of starvation.

15. 'It is produced by the accumulation of righteous deeds; it is not to be obtained by incidental acts of righteousness. If the mind does not feel complacency in the conduct, the nature becomes starved. I therefore said, "Kao has never understood righteousness, because he makes it something external."

16. There must be the constant practice of this righteousness, but without the object of thereby nourishing the passion-nature. Let not the mind forget its work, but let there be no assisting the growth of that nature. Let us not be like the man of Sung. a man of Sung, who was grieved that his growing corn was not is the salso of man. Mencius, it seems to par. 9. It is better, however, in the translat se, has before his mind the ideal of a perfect to supply 'man,' than 'body.' 15. complete in all the parts of his constitution. It is this which gives its elevation to his take an enemy by surprise; and ,—as in the latter part of par. 15. still the 塞乎天地之間 is one construct of us at. On the latter sentence o up.' Still the 塞乎天地之間 is one of those Acroic expressions, which fill the ear, but do not inform the mind. 14. A pause must be made after the 是, which refers to the 浩然

'incidental acts of righteousness.' Proto the passion-nature itself. The analysis of the text-必有事爲,而勿正必 made after the 是, which refers to the 浩然 勿忘, 勿助是 after Châo Ch'i, terwhem 之氣. W refers to 體, in 體之充, in Ohd Hat also inclines. But for their help, we longer, and so he pulled it up. Having done this, he returned home, looking very stupid, and said to his people, "I am tired to-day. I have been helping the corn to grow long." His son ran to look at it, and found the corn all withered. There are few in the world, who do not deal with their passion-nature, as if they were assisting the corn to grow long. Some indeed consider it of no benefit to them, and let it alone:—they do not weed their corn. They who assist it to grow long, pull out their corn. What they do is not only of no benefit to the nature, but it also injures it.'

17. Kung-sun Ch'au further asked, 'What do you mean by saying that you understand whatever words you hear?' Mencius replied. 'When words are one-sided, I know how the mind of the speaker is clouded over. When words are extravagant, I know how the mind When words are all-depraved, I know how the is fallen and sunk. mind has departed from principle. When words are evasive, I know how the mind is at its wit's end. These evils growing in the mind, should hardly know what to make of it. If in all the rest of the chapter. I have supplied to taken in the same of FE HH to do with the lacunae after Chû Hat, who himself follows is taken in the sense of 預期, 'to do with is taken in the sense of 有 助, 'to do with anticipation of, or a view to, an ulterior object.'

This meaning of the term is supported by an example from the 事故傳. 病='tired.'
17. Here, as sometimes before, we miss the pre-liminary 日, noting a question by Mencius's than on the other, so he is still less eatisfactory, interceptor, and the same omission is frequent.

The sense of 有 助, 'to do with the launch who himself follows the industry of the Chil' cometimes error egregiously in the last part, through not distinguishing the speakers. With regard to the first ground of Mencius's superiority over Kao,—his 'knowledge of words,' as he is briefer than on the other, so he is still less eatisfactory, interceptor, and the same object.' Interlocutor, and the same omission is frequent | —to my mind at least. Perhaps he means to do injury to government, and, displayed in the government, are hurtful to the conduct of affairs. When a Sage shall again arise, he will certainly follow my words.'

18. On this Ch'au observed, 'Tsai Wo and Tsze-kung were skilful in speaking. Zan Niû, the disciple Min, and Yen Yuan, while their words were good, were distinguished for their virtuous conduct. Confucius united the qualities of the disciples in himself, but still he said, "In the matter of speeches, I am not competent."—Then, Master, have you attained to be a Sage !'

19. Menoius said, 'Oh! what words are these? Formerly Tszekung asked Confucius, saying, "Master, are you a Sage?" Confucius answered him, "A Sage is what I cannot rise to. I learn without satiety, and teach without being tired." Tsze-kung said, "You learn without satiety:—that shows your wisdom. You teach without and ability in referring incorrect and injurious speeches to the mental defects from which they sprang, would keep him from being deluded, and preserve his mind unperturbed. One of the and preserve his mind unperturbed. One of the sebolars Ch'ang uses this illustration:—'Mencius with his knowledge of words was like a man seated aloft on the dais, who can distinguish all the movements of the people below the hall, which he could not do, if it were necessary for which he could not do, it it were necessary for him to descend and mingle with the crowd.' The concluding remark gives rise to the rest of the chapter, it seeming to Ch'au that Mencius placed himself by it on the platform of sages. 18. Compare Analests, XI. ii. 2, to the enumeration of the chapter of the country of the Confucius's disciples there seems to be here a reference. There, however, it is said that Zan Mit, Min, and Yen Yûan were distinguished for kung is not found in the Analests. Compare my, that however great the dignity to which the first he might be raised, his knowledge of words, , which give a good deal of trouble. Some take 晋 as a verb,—'were skilful to speak of virtuous conduct.' So the Tartar version, according to Julien. Sun Shih makes it a noun, as I do. The references to the disciples are quite inept. The point of Chau's inquiry lies in Confucius's remark, found nowhere else, and in Confucius's remark, found nowhere else, and obscure enough. He thinks Mencius is taking more to himself than Confucius did. Châo Ch'l, however, takes 我於醉云云as a remark of Mencius, but it is quite unnatural to do so. Observe the force of the to you have come to being tired:—that shows your benevolence. Benevolent and wise: -Master, you ARE a Sage." Now, since Confucius would not allow himself to be regarded as a Sage, what words were those?'

20. Ch'du said, 'Formerly, I once heard this: - Tsze-hsiâ, Tsze-yû, and Tsze-chang had each one member of the Sage. Zan Niû, the disciple Min, and Yen Yttan had all the members, but in small proportions. I venture to ask,—With which of these are you pleased to rank yourself?

21. Mencius replied, 'Let us drop speaking about these, if you please.

22. Ch'au then asked, 'What do you say of Po-1 and I Yin?' 'Their ways were different from mine,' said Mencius. 'Not to serve a prince whom he did not esteem, nor command a people whom he did not approve; in a time of good government to take office, and on the occurrence of confusion to retire:—this was the way of Po-1. To say-" Whom may I not serve? My serving him makes him my What people may I not command? My commanding them

Analests, VII. ii, xxviii, which latter chapter 22. Po-1,—see Analests, V. xxii. 1 Yin,—see may possibly be another version of what Mencius says here. so. is used with other verbs to give a deferential tone to what they say. sr. Compare Bk. I. Pt. II. xxi. Does Mencius here indicate that he thought himself superior to all the worthies referred to—even to Yen Yuan? Hardly so much as that; but that he could not be content with them for his model. 我君,得民则健,何所使而 makes them my people." In a time of good government to take office, and when disorder prevailed, also to take office :—that was the way of When it was proper to go into office, then to go into it; when it was proper to keep retired from office, then to keep retired from it; when it was proper to continue in it long, then to continue in it long; when it was proper to withdraw from it quickly, then to withdraw quickly: -that was the way of Confucius. These were all sages of antiquity, and I have not attained to do what they did. But what I wish to do is to learn to be like Confucius.

Analects, XII. xxii. 非其君,非其民,-the emphatic his, i.e. as paraphrased in the translation. 何事非君何便非民 - 得 君 則 事, 何 所 事 而 非

23. Ch'au said, 'Comparing Po-1 and I Yin with Confucius, are they to be placed in the same rank?' Mencius replied, 'No. Since there were living men until now, there never was another Confucius.'

24. Ch'du said, 'Then, did they have any points of agreement with him?' The reply was,—'Yes. If they had been sovereigns over a hundred u of territory, they would, all of them, have brought all the princes to attend in their court, and have obtained the throne. And none of them, in order to obtain the throne, would have committed one act of unrighteousness, or put to death one innocent person. In those things they agreed with him.'

非我民. I have given the meaning, but | 道; that of the second was office —以任益 the conciseness of the text makes it difficult to a learner. The different ways of Po-1, 1 Yin, and Confucius are thus expressed:—'The prin-required—以時為其道.' 23. The meansiple of the first was purity-以清倉其 ing of this paragraph is expressed rightly in the Ch'du said, 'I venture to ask wherein he differed from Menoius replied, 'Tsåi Wo, Tsze-kung, and Yû Zo had wisdom sufficient to know the sage. Even had they been ranking themselves low, they would not have demeaned themselves to flatter their favourite.

26. 'Now, Tshi Wo said, "According to my view of our Master, he was far superior to Yao and Shun."

27. 'Tsze-kung said, "By viewing the ceremonial ordinances of a prince, we know the character of his government. By hearing his music, we know the character of his virtue. After the lapse of a hundred ages I can arrange, according to their merits, the kings of a hundred ages;—not one of them can escape me. From the birth of mankind till now, there has never been another like our

28. 'Yt Zo said," Is it only among men that it is so? There is the Ch'i-lin among quadrupeds, the Fang-hwang among birds, the translation. If we understand a 🕏 before enlogium of Confucius, in the Chang Yang, chap the the the idiom is like that of 2 30-32, and Analocts, XIX xxiii-xxv. set, 'low-lying water,' used here simply for 'low,' with reserves to the wisdom of Tail Wo and Trae-hung, in their own estimation. In the sense of 'partial,' = 'to fatter,' so. With this and the two next paragraphs, company the name of the male, and the list, the female of the animal own, with reserves to the wisdom of Tail Wo and Trae-hung, in their own estimation. In the sense of 'partial,' = 'to fatter,' so. With this and the two next paragraphs, company the this and the two next paragraphs, compare the names of the male and female are put together, Tai mountain among mounds and ant-hills, and rivers and seas among rain-pools. Though different in degree, they are the same in kind. So the sages among mankind are also the same in kind. But they stand out from their fellows, and rise above the level, and from the birth of mankind till now, there never has been one so complete as Confucius."

CHAP. III. 1. Mencius said, 'He who, using force, makes a pretence to benevolence is the leader of the princes. A leader of the princes requires a large kingdom. He who, using virtue, practises benevolence is the sovereign of the kingdom. To become the sovereign of the kingdom, a prince need not wait for a large kingdom. Tang did it with only seventy U, and king Wan with only a hundred.

2. 'When one by force subdues men, they do not submit to him in heart. They submit, because their strength is not adequate to resist to indicate one individual of either sex. The | THE FRIECES AND A SOVEREIGN OF THE EIRGDOM; image in 拔平其萃 is that of stalks of AND BETWEEN SUBMISSION SECURED BY POSCE AND grass or grain, shooting high above the level of the waving field. 未有庭於孔子,— 'there has not been one more complete than Confucius' But this would be no more than atting Confucius on a level with other sage I have therefore translated after the example of Cha Hat, who says—目古聖人,面 督異於衆人·然禾有如孔子 之威者也。That於-如is one of the planations of the character given by 引之, in his Treatise on the Particles.

THAT PRODUCED BY VIRTUR. 1. TI And I are here the recognised titles and not = 'to acquire the chieftaincy,' 'to acquire the sovereignty.' In the 集證, we find much said on the meaning of the two characters.

— is from three strokes (=), denoting heaven, earth, and man, with a fourth stroke, --- or unity, going through them, grasping and uniting them together, thus affording the highest possible conception of power or ability. is synonymous with 111, and of kindred meaning with 3. The definition service a chieffall of the words, of nearly the same sound, 🚚, 'to

When one subdues men by virtue, in their hearts' core they are pleased, and sincerely submit, as was the case with the seventy disciples in their submission to Confucius. What is said in the Book of Poetry,

"From the west, from the east,

From the south, from the north,

There was not one who thought of refusing submission," is an illustration of this.'

CHAP. IV. 1. Mencius said, 'Benevolence brings glory to a prince, and the opposite of it brings disgrace. For the princes of the present day to hate disgrace and yet to live complacently doing what is not benevolent, is like hating moisture and yet living in a low situation.

2. 'If a prince hates disgrace, the best course for him to pursue, is to esteem virtue and honour virtuous scholars, giving the worthiest among them places of dignity, and the able offices of trust. throughout his kingdom there is leisure and rest from external grasp with the hand,' and 11, 'to urge,' 'to 12 12, a statesman and scholar of the press.' a. 力不贈 is translated by Julien, - 'quia nampe vires (i.e. vis armorum) ad id obtinen-tum non sufficient.' Possibly some Chinese commentators may have sanctioned such an interpretation, but it has nowhere come under my notice. The 'seventy disciples' is giving a round number, the enumeration of them differing in different works. We find them reckoned at 73, 76, &c. See in the prolegomena to vol. i, p. 112. For the ode see the Shih-ching, III. i. Ode X. st. 6, celebrating the influence of the kings Wan and Wt. The four quarters are to be viewed to be taken as an abstract noun, = 'thought.' lent. a. 夏如 covers as far as to 政刑, eleventh century, says on this chapter:—'He who subdues men by force, has the intention of subduing them, and they dare not but submit. He who subdues men by virtue, has no intention to subdue them, and they cannot but submit. From antiquity downwards there have been many dissertations on the leaders of the princes, and the true sovereign, but none so deep, incisive, and perspicuous as this chapter.' 4. GLORY IS THE SURE RESULT OF BENEVOLENT GOVERNMENT. CALAMITY AND HAPPINESS ARB men's own seeking. I. 居不仁, literally, from Hao (), king Wa's capital. His is not to go on in the practice of what is not benevo-troubles, let him, taking advantage of such a season, clearly digest the principles of his government with its legal sanctions, and then even great kingdoms will be constrained to stand in awe of him.

3. 'It is said in the Book of Poetry,

"Before the heavens were dark with rain,

I gathered the bark from the roots of the mulberry trees, And wove it closely to form the window and door of my nest;

Now, I thought, ye people below,

Perhaps ye will not dare to insult me."

Confucius said, "Did not he who made this ode understand the way of governing?" If a prince is able rightly to govern his kingdom, who will dare to insult him?

4. 'But now the princes take advantage of the time when throughout their kingdoms there is leisure and rest from external troubles, to abandon themselves to pleasure and indolent indifference;—they in fact seek for calamities for themselves.

5. 'Calamity and happiness in all cases are mens own seeking.

and 賢者在位 and the next clause are jet. 2, where for 今此下民 we have 今 to be taken as in apposition simply with the one preceding See the Doctrine of the Mean, sense. The ode is an appeal by some small bird in chap. xx. The 資者在位 here correto an owl not to destroy its nest, which bird, in sponds to the 尊賢 there, and the 能者 represent a wise prince taking all precautionary 在豐 may embrace both the 磁大臣 and measures. 4. 般,—read p'ess, and tone, nearly E. 开,—not punishments, but synonymous with the next character,—单(4).

penal laws. 2. See the Shih-ching, I. xv. Ode II. 6. For the ode see the Shih-ching, III. i. Ode I.

6. 'This is illustrated by what is said in the Book of Poetry.— "Be always studious to be in harmony with the ordinances of God.

So you will certainly get for yourself much happiness;" and by the passage of the Tai Chiah,—" When Heaven sends down calamities, it is still possible to escape from them; when we occasion the calamities ourselves, it is not possible any longer to live."

CHAP. V. 1. Mencius said, 'If a ruler give honour to men of talents and virtue and employ the able, so that offices shall all be filled by individuals of distinction and mark;—then all the scholars of the kingdom will be pleased, and wish to stand in his court.

- 2. 'If, in the market-place of his capital, he levy a ground-rent on the shops but do not tax the goods, or enforce the proper regulations without levying a ground-rent;—then all the traders of the kingdom will be pleased, and wish to store their goods in his market-place.
- sh 6. 言念, 'to think of.' For the other ing to Chu Hel, in the 語類, we are to quotation, see the Shu-ching, IV. v. Sect. II. 3, understand the market-place here as that in where we have E, 'to escape,' for E, but the meaning is the same.
- 5. Various points of true boyal government BESTED BY THE PRINCES OF MERCIUS'S TIME, ATTENTION TO WHICH WOULD SURELY CARRY ANY ORE OF THER TO THE BOYAL THRONE. 1. Compare last chapter, par. 2. The wisest among 1,000 men is called ; the wisest among ten is called ... Numbers, however, do not enter into the signification of the terms here. 大下之士

the capital, which was built on the plan of the division of the land, after the figure of the character #. The middle square behind was the 📆 ; the centre one was occupied by the palace; the front one by the ancestral and other temples, government treasuries, arsenals, &c.; and the three squares on each side were compied by the people. He adds that, when traders became too many, a ground-rent was levied; when they were few, it was remitted, and only z, compare Bk. I. Pt. I. vii. 18. 2. 2. a surveillance was exercised of the markets by the proper officers. That surveillance extended 'a shop, or market-stance,' is used here as a verb, to the inspection of weights and measures, regu-to levy ground-rent for such a shop.' Accord-lation of the price, &c. See its duties detailed 1

3. 'If, at his frontier-passes, there be an inspection of persons, but no taxes charged on goods or other articles, then all the travellers of the kingdom will be pleased, and wish to make their tours on his

4. 'If he require that the husbandmen give their mutual aid to cultivate the public field, and exact no other taxes from them ;then all the husbandmen of the kingdom will be pleased, and wish to plough in his fields.

5. 'If from the occupiers of the shops in his market-place he do not exact the fine of the individual idler, or of the hamlet's quota of cloth, then all the people of the kingdom will be pleased, and wish to come and be his people.

6. 'If a ruler can truly practise these five things, then the people in the neighbouring kingdoms will look up to him as a parent. From the first birth of mankind till now, never has any one led in the Châu-li, XIV. vii. 3. Compare Bk. I. the 夫布? And what the 里布? It Pt. II. v. 3; Pt. I. vii. 18. All critics refer for appears from the Châu-li, that there was a fine. the illustration of this rule to the account of the duties of the 📆 🔣, in the Chau-li, XV. xi. But from that it would appear that the levying no duties at the passes was only in bad years, and hence some have argued that Mencius's lesson was only for the emergency of the time. To avoid that conclusion, the author of the 四書名餘說 contends that the Chau-li has been interpolated in the place,—rightly, as it seems to me. 4. The rule of 助而不稅 is the same as that of 耕者九一, Bk. L. Pt. II. v. 3. 5. It is acknowledged by commen-tators that it is only a vague notion which we an obtain of the meaning of this paragraph. Is to be taken as in the translation, or verbally as in the second paragraph? What was a new rule.

appears from the Chau-li, that there was a fine, exacted from idlers or loafers in the towns, called 夫 布, and it is said that the family which did not plant mulberry trees and flax according to the rules, was condemned to pay one hamlet, or twenty-five families', quota of cloth. But ## may be taken in the sense of money, simply - , which is a signification attaching to it. We must leave the passage in the obscurity which has always rested on it. Mencius is evidently protesting against some injurious exactions of the time. i = E, but the addition of the character T intended to convey the idea of the people of other States coming to put themselves under 6. 信=暫, 'truly.' Observe children to attack their parent, and succeeded in his design. Thus, such a ruler will not have an enemy in all the kingdom, and he who has no enemy in the kingdom is the minister of Heaven. Never has there been a ruler in such a case who did not attain to the royal dignity.'

及其父母自生民以來未有能濟者也如此則無敵 有能濟者也如此則無敵 於天下無敵於天下者天 之心先王有不忍人之政矣以不 之心先王有不忍人之心 為一人之心行不忍人之心 為一人之心行不忍人之心 為天下可運之掌上所以

CHAP. VI. 1. Mencius said, 'All men have a mind which cannot bear to see the sufferings of others.

2. 'The ancient kings had this commiserating mind, and they, as a matter of course, had likewise a commiserating government. When with a commiserating mind was practised a commiserating government, to rule the kingdom was as easy a matter as to make anything go round in the palm.

the reciprocal influence of 其 in 率其子 第 ('sons and younger brothers'-ehildren) and 攻其父母. 天吏,-'The minister or officer of Heaven.' On this designation the commentator 底氏變緣 observes:-'An officer is one commissioned by his sovereign; the officer of Heaven is he who is commissioned by Heaven. He who bears his sovereign's commission can punish men and put them to death. He may deal so with all criminals. He who bears the commission of Heaven, can execute judgment on men, and smite them. With all who are oppressing and misgoverning their kingdoms, he can deal so.'

6. That besuvolence, right dusiness, property, and enoughed belong to man as maturally as his four lines, and hay as adverbially, as in Analotts, X. X. I.

EASILY RE EXERCISED. The assertions made in this chapter are universally true; but they are to be understood as spoken here with special reference to the oppressive ways and government of the princes of Mencius's time. I. I alone is used in Bk. I. Pt. I. vii. 4, 5, 6. I is added here, because the discourse is entirely of a man's feelings, as exercised towards other men. A',—'the mind,' embracing the whole mental constitution. The fig., after Châo Ch'i, says that R. M. Means—'cannot bear to injure others.' But it is not only cannot bear to injure others.' But it is not only cannot bear to see suffering. The examples in Bk. I. Pt. I. vii, make this plain. 2. M,—used

3. 'When I say that all men have a mind which cannot bear to see the sufferings of others, my meaning may be illustrated thus: even now-a-days, if men suddenly see a child about to fall into a well, they will without exception experience a feeling of alarm and distress. They will feel so, not as a ground on which they may gain the favour of the child's parents, nor as a ground on which they may seek the praise of their neighbours and friends, nor from a dislike to the reputation of having been unmoved by such a thing.

4. 'From this case we may perceive that the feeling of commiseration is essential to man, that the feeling of shame and dislike is essential to man, that the feeling of modesty and complaisance is essential to man, and that the feeling of approving and disapproving is essential to man.

5. 'The feeling of commiseration is the principle of benevolence.

round,' &c. Perhaps the latter construction is to be preferred. The whole is to be translated in the past sense, being descriptive of the ancient , 'an infant at the breast,' here -'a very young child.' 💢 reed as, and – 🚜. 内 忍,—'to form a friendship with,' 'to get cep, —the ist tone, = T. -compare Analects, VI. iii. 4. is to be joined to ,—'men of the present of goodness, and the approbation of it accordingly, and disapproving is the knowledge of what must be taken generally, = 'a thing,' or as | 4. The two negatives me—i in the different giving a passive signification to the verb.—'The clauses make the strongest possible affirmation, government of the kingdom could be made to go Literally, 'Without the feeling of commissration there would not be man,'do., or 'If a person be without this, he is not a mar, ' &c. pain and distress,' but as it is in illustr of the 不忍之心, we may render it by 'commiseration.' 'Shame and dislike,'—the shame is for one's own want of goodness, as the distile is of the want of it in other me 'Modesty and complaisance,'unlossing and separating from one's self, and complaisance is out-giving to others. Approving and disapproving, —approving is the knowled 'Approving

The feeling of shame and dislike is the principle of righteousness. The feeling of modesty and complaisance is the principle of pro-The feeling of approving and disapproving is the principle priety. of knowledge.

6. 'Men have these four principles just as they have their four limbs. When men, having these four principles, yet say of themselves that they cannot develop them, they play the thief with themselves, and he who says of his prince that he cannot develop them plays the thief with his prince.

7. 'Since all men have these four principles in themselves, let them know to give them all their development and completion, and the issue will be like that of fire which has begun to burn, or that of a spring which has begun to find vent. Let them have their complete development, and they will suffice to love and protect all is evil, and disapprobation of it accordingly. | feelings which he has specified, Mencius reasons Such is the account of the terms in the text, to the moral elements of our nature. It will given by Chu Hat and others. The feelings described make up, he says, the mind of man, and Mencius discoursing about commiseration goes on to enumerate them all. This seems to be the true account of the introduction of the various principles. They lie together, merely in apposition. In the 或問 and 語 類, however, Chu Hai labours to develop the other three from the first.—Observe that 'the feeling of shame and dislike,' &c., in the original, is— 'the mind that feels and dislikes,' &c. 5. is explained by 端梢, 'the end of a clue, that point outside, which may be laid hold of,

be seen how to A, 'knowledge,' 'wisdom,' he gives a moral sense. Compare Gen. ii. 17, iii. 5, 6; Job xxxviii. 36. 6. 📆,—compare Bk. I. Pt. II. viii. 3, but we can retain its primitive meaning in the translation. ,凡有四 端於我者, not 'all who have,' &c., but 'all having,' &c., 於我,—quast dicut, 'in their ego-ity.'知管,一管 belongs to the 播 below, and refers to the U 🕮 .—The 🛍 and will guide us to all within. From the says:—知字重看, the character 知 is they will not suffice for a man to serve his parents with CHAP. VII. 1. Mencius said, 'Is the arrow-maker less benevolent than the maker of armour of defence? And yet, the arrow-maker's only fear is lest men should not be hurt, and the armour-maker's only fear is lest men should be hurt. So it is with the priest and the coffin-maker. The choice of a profession, therefore, is a thing in which great caution is required.

Let them be denied that development, and within the four seas.

2. 'Confucius said, "It is virtuous manners which constitute the excellence of a neighbourhood. If a man, in selecting a residence, do not fix on one where such prevail, how can he be wise?" Now. benevolence is the most honourable dignity conferred by Heaven, and the quiet home in which man should dwell. Since no one can hinder us from being so, if yet we are not benevolent;—this is being not wise.

3. 'From the want of benevolence and the want of wisdom will to have weight attached to it.' This is true, | 101. has the meaning of 'all armour Mencius may well say—'Let men know,' or 'If men know.' How is it that after all his analyses of our nature to prove its goodness, the application of his principles must begin with an IF?

7. As exhostation to besevolence from the DISGRACE WHICH MUST ATTEND THE WANT OF IT, LIKE THE DESCRACE OF A MAN WHO DOES NOT KNOW MIS PROFESSION. I. 矢人豈不仁於, the 不 belongs not to the 🖨, but to the 仁. If we might construe it with the 😝, we should have an instance parallel to 💆 🏌

of defence.' A, -- see Analects, XIII. xxii, where I have translated it 'wizard.' Asopposed to | (here = 'a coffin-maker'), one who makes provision for the death of men, it indicates one who prays for men's life and prosperity. But Mencius pursues his illustration too far arrow maker need not be inhumane. 2. See Analects, IV. i. The commentators begin to bring in the idea of a profession at 擇 不 震仁, but the whole quotation must be taken first in its proper sense. The X 22 at the end refer to the same characters in the quotain ii. 28,— 'cenevolent as,' the 🏌 being = | tion. 3. 🏨 succeeding 🛣 shows that the ensue the entire absence of propriety and righteousness:—he who is in such a case must be the servant of other men. To be the servant of men and yet ashamed of such servitude, is like a bowmaker's being ashamed to make bows, or an arrow-maker's being ashamed to make arrows.

- 4. 'If he be ashamed of his case, his best course is to practise benevolence.
- 5. 'The man who would be benevolent is like the archer. archer adjusts himself and then shoots. If he misses, he does not murmur against those who surpass himself. He simply turns round and seeks the cause of his failure in himself.

1. Mencius said, 'When any one told Tsze-lû that CHAP. VIII.

he had a fault, he rejoiced.

2. 'When Yu heard good words, he bowed to the speaker.

3. 'The great Shun had a still greater delight in what was good. He regarded virtue as the common property of himself and others, giving up his own way to follow that of others, and delighting to learn from others to practise what was good.

second clause ensues from the first. 由,-|example of this in Yü. It is said,-禹拜昌 used for 猶. 5.仁者=欲爲仁之 N. Compare Analects, III. vii and xvi.

8. How sages AND WORTHING DELIGHTED IN 下之善而不為私也, 'He considered as public—common—the good of the sidered as public—common—the good of the whole world, and did not think it private to world; XI. xxi. But the particular point any.' Shun's distinction was that he did not wastinged in the text is nowhere also related of think of himself or Toronia did non and the constitution of the text is nowhere also related of think of himself or Toronia did non and the constitution. mentioned in the text is nowhere else related of think of himself, as Taze-lu did, nor of others.

壽,'Yü bowed at these excellent words.' 3. 耄 與人同 is explained by Chu Hat 公天 him. s. In the Shu-ching, II. iii. 1, we have an las Yu did, but only of what was good, and un-

4. 'From the time when he ploughed and sowed, exercised the potter's art, and was a fisherman, to the time when he became emperor, he was continually learning from others.

5. 'To take example from others to practise virtue, is to help them in the same practice. Therefore, there is no attribute of the superior man greater than his helping men to practise virtue.

1. Mencius said, 'Po-1 would not serve a prince whom CHAP. IX. he did not approve, nor associate with a friend whom he did not He would not stand in a bad prince's court, nor speak with To stand in a bad prince's court, or to speak with a bad man, would have been to him the same as to sit with his court robes and court cap amid mire and ashes. Pursuing the examination of his dislike to what was evil, we find that he thought it necessary, if he happened to be standing with a villager whose cap was not consciously was carried to it, wherever he saw of M, 'to help.' The meaning is that others, it. 4. Of Shun in his early days it is related in the 'Historical Records,' that 'he ploughed at the Li (mountain, did potter's work on the banks of the Yellow River, fished in the Lei lake (雷澤), and made various implements on the Shau hill (), and often resided to Shun. Dr. Medhurst supposes them to have been in Shan-hai. See his Translation of the Shû-ching, p. 33s. 5. Hill is here in the sense seeing their virtue so imitated, would be stimulated to greater diligence in the doing of it.

9. PICTURES OF PO-1 AND HOT OF LEO-MILA, AND MENCIUS'S JUDGMENT CONCERNING TREM. I. Compare chap. ii. 22. In 脇人之期,人 refers to the preceding 27, and may be translated prince, but in 與惡人立,人 refers to the preceding 友, and must be translated man. 涂炭, 'mire and charcoal.' 推選 混之心;一推 is Mencius's speaking in his rightly adjusted, to leave him with a high air, as if he were going to be defiled. Therefore, although some of the princes made application to him with very proper messages, he would not receive their gifts.—He would not receive their gifts, counting it inconsistent with his purity to go to them.

2. 'Hūi of Liū-hsia was not ashamed to serve an impure prince, nor did he think it low to be an inferior officer. When advanced to employment, he did not conceal his virtue, but made it a point to carry out his principles. When neglected and left without office, he did not murmur. When straitened by poverty, he did not grieve. Accordingly, he had a saying, "You are you, and I am I. Although you stand by my side with breast and arms bare, or with your body naked, how can you defile me?" Therefore, self-possessed, he companied with men indifferently, at the same time not losing When he wished to leave, if pressed to remain in office, he himself. would remain.—He would remain in office, when pressed to do so, not counting it required by his purity to go away.'

own person. Ill is the 'thought' of Po-1. positiveness to the affirmation of the preceding clause. 2. Hûi of Liû-hsiâ,—see Analecta, XV. ance of going away without looking round.' xiii; XVIII. ii, viii. 與之僧,—the 之Châo Ch'l makes it 'the appearance of being properly refers to the party addressed, 'you are ashamed ;'-net so well.' The final 已 gives you.' 3. Compare chap.ii. 22. 君子,-by this 也。不君不隘不下隘,伯子 由子恭與恭惠柳夷

3. Mencius eaid, 'Po-1 was narrow-minded, and Hûi of Liû-hsia was wanting in self-respect. The superior man will not manifest either narrow-mindedness, or the want of self-respect.

term we must suppose that Mencius makes invitate I and Hûi, but he is there speaking to a tacit reference to himself, as having proposed the weak and the mean. When here he advises not to follow I and Hûi, he is speaking for those who wish to do the right thing at the right time.'

KUNG-SUN CH'ÂU. PART II.

之、乳、城、和、利、如

CHAPTER I. I. Mencius said, 'Opportunities of time voucheafed by Heaven are not equal to advantages of situation afforded by the Earth, and advantages of situation afforded by the Earth are not equal to the union arising from the accord of Men.

2. 'There is a city, with an inner wall of three it in circumference. and an outer wall of seven.—The enemy surround and attack it, but they are not able to take it. Now, to surround and attack it, there

1. No advantages which a gules can obtain what is said at much length in Chinese com-exalt him over others are to be compared mentaries about ascertaining the 'time of the his certain the hearts of hes. Because Heaven' by divination and astrology, it is to be TO EXALT HIM OVER OTHERS ARE TO BE COMPARED WITH HIS CRITING THE HEARTS OF MEN. Bocause of this chapter Mencius has got a place in China among the writers on the art of war, which surely he would not have wished to claim for it may be adduced from the records of antiquity. himself, his design evidently being to supersede the necessity of war and the recourse to arms altogether. z. In the 天, 地, 人, we have set aside, as foreign to the mind of Mencius in the text, though many examples of the recort to 2. The city here supposed, with its double circle of fortification, is a small one, the better to illustrate the superiority of advantages of situa-tion, just as the next is a large one, to bring the doctrine of the 一方, or 'Three Powers,' out the still greater superiority of the union of which is brought out so distinctly in the fourth part of the Chang Fung, and to show this in a translation requires it to be diffuse. As to a baronial State (子男之城), see the 集 must have been vouchsafed to them by Heaven the opportunity of time, and in such case their not taking it is because opportunities of time vouchsafed by Heaven are not equal to advantages of situation afforded by the Earth.

3. 'There is a city, whose walls are distinguished for their height, and whose moats are distinguished for their depth, where the arms of its defenders, offensive and defensive, are distinguished for their strength and sharpness, and the stores of rice and other grain are very large. Yet it is obliged to be given up and abandoned. This is because advantages of situation afforded by the Earth are not equal to the union arising from the accord of Men.

4. 'In accordance with these principles it is said, "A people is bounded in, not by the limits of dykes and borders; a State is secured, not by the strengths of mountains and rivers; the kingdom is overawed, not by the sharpness and strength of arms." He who finds the proper course has many to assist him. He who loses the proper course has few to assist him. When this,—the being assisted by few,—reaches its extreme point, his own relations revolt from the 龗, in loc. 3. 非不, the repeated negation, | boundary, ''a border,' is used verbally. 媛良, not only affirms, but with emphasis :—據非 不高, 'the wall is not but high,' i.e. is high indeed. F, sharp weapons of offence. ,- 'leather,' intending, principally, the buff-coat, but including all other armour of desence. 米,--'rice,' without the husk; 果, position to 山, -rivers or streams. The 道, or - 'grain,' generally in the husk. 4. 11, 'a 'proper course,' intended is that style of govern-

VOL. IL.

-- 'to bound a people,' i. e. to separate them from other States. is 'a dyke,' or 'mound.' The commentator 会仁山 says:—'Anciently, in every State, they made a dyke of earth to show its boundary (對土為疆)." 點, -'a valley with a stream in it; here, in op-prince. When the being assisted by many reaches its highest point, the whole kingdom becomes obedient to the prince.

5. 'When one to whom the whole kingdom is prepared to be obedient, attacks those from whom their own relations revolt, what must be the result? Therefore, the true ruler will prefer not to fight;

but if he do fight, he must overcome."

CHAP. II. I. As Mencius was about to go to court to see the king, the king sent a person to him with this message,—'I was wishing to come and see you. But I have got a cold, and may not expose myself to the wind. In the morning I will hold my court. I do not know whether you will give me the opportunity of seeing you then.' Menoius replied, 'Unfortunately, I am unwell, and not able to go to the court.

ment—benevolence and righteousness—which king wished his counsel, it was for him to show will secure the 'union of men.' his sense of his worth by going to him, and asking him for it. z. The first, third, and relatives by blood and by affinity. 5. The case put in the two first clauses is here left by Mencius to suggest its own result. The chiestess is the prince intended above, who finds the proper course. Oht Hat and others com-·有不戰 by 則已, 'If he do not t, well; ' but the translation gives, I think, er meaning.

2. How, Menceus commidment that it was PRING MIM FOR A' PRINCE TO CALL MIN BY MORRE TO GO TO SEE HIM, AND THE SHIPTS ME WAS PUT TO TO GET THIS UNDERSTOOD. It must be understood that, at the time to which this chapter refers, liencius was merely an homoured guest in Ch'l, and had no official situation or emolument. It was for him to pay his respects fourth are ch'de, in and tone, - 'to go to, or wait upon, at court.' So in all the other paragraphs. The second is olde, in 1st tone, morning. The morning as soon as it was light, was the regular time for the sovereign, and princes, to give audience to their nobles and leers, and proceed to the administration of usiness. The modern practice corresponds with the ancient in this respect. "It is said to be here - 25, 'to wish,' which sense se to be necessary, though we do not find it in the dictionary. 造, read tr'do, the 4th tome, 'to go to.' The king's cold was merely a pretence. He wanted Mencius to wait on him. Mencius's at court, if he felt inclined to do so; but if the cold was equally a pretence. Compare Com-

- 2. Next day, he went out to pay a visit of condolence to some one of the Tung-kwoh family, when Kung-sun Ch'au said to him, 'Yesterday, you declined going to the court on the ground of being unwell, and to-day you are going to pay a visit of condolence. May this not be regarded as improper?' 'Yesterday,' said Mencius, 'I was unwell; to-day, I am better:—why should I not pay this visit?'
- 3. In the mean time, the king sent a messenger to inquire about his sickness, and also a physician. Mang Chung replied to them. 'Yesterday, when the king's order came, he was feeling a little unwell, and could not go to the court. To-day he was a little better, and hastened to go to court. I do not know whether he can have reached it by this time or not.' Having said this, he sent several men to look for Mencius on the way, and say to him, 'I beg that, before you return home, you will go to the court."

4. On this, Mencius felt himself compelled to go to Ching Ch'au's, feetus's conduct, Analects, XVII. xx. 2. Tung-lewish is not exactly a surname. The individual whether Ming Chung was Mescius's con, or intended was a descendant of the duke Hwan, merely a relative. The latter is more likely. intended was a descendant of the duke Hwan, and so surnamed Chiang(姜), but that branch 余薪之憂,—literally, sorrow of gather-of Hwan's descendants to which he belonged having their peacestions in the 'eastern' part of the State, the style of Tung-kwith appears to have been given to them to distinguish them from the other branches. In going to pay the visit of condolence, Mencius's idea was that the king might hear of it, and understand that he king might hear of it, and understand that he hed merely feigned sickness, to show his sense of the disrespect done to him in trying to in-lips of an officer, such language was indicative and there stop the night. Mr. Ching said to him, 'In the family, there is the relation of father and son; abroad, there is the relation of prince and minister. These are the two great relations among men. Between father and son the ruling principle is kindness. Between prince and minister the ruling principle is respect. I have seen the respect of the king to you, Sir, but I have not seen in what way you show respect to him.' Mencius replied, 'Oh! what words are Among the people of Ch'i there is no one who speaks to the king about benevolence and righteousness. Are they thus silent because they do not think that benevolence and righteousness are admirable? No, but in their hearts they say, "This man is not fit to be spoken with about benevolence and righteousness." they manifest a disrespect than which there can be none greater. I do not dare to set forth before the king any but the ways of Yao and Shun. There is therefore no man of Ch'i who respects the king so much as I do.'

of humility.' , the 1st tone, = 🔀. Mang Ching Ch'au, who was an officer of Ch'1. After Chung, having committed himself to a false hood, in order to make his words good, was he told him all the previous incidents. No anxious that Mencius should go to court. What compelled Mencius to go to Ching Ch'au's was his earnest wish that the king should know that his sickness was merely feigned, and that he had not gone to court, only because he would not be CALLED to do so. As Mang Chung's falsehood interfered with his first plan, he wished those following for an explanation of the that his motive should get to the king through there were a fix the after that his motive should get to the king through there were a fix the fixed that his motive should get to the king through the fixed that his motive should get to the king through the fixed that his motive should get to the king through the fixed that his motive should get to the king through the fixed that his motive should get to the king through the fixed that his motive should get to the king through the fixed that his motive should get to the king through the fixed that his motive should get to the king through the fixed that his motive should get to the king through the fixed that his motive should get to the king through the fixed that his motive should get to the king through the fixed that his motive should get to the king through the fixed that his motive should get to the king through the fixed that his motive should get to the king through the fixed that his motive should get to the king through the fixed through through the fixed through the fixed through the fixed through the fixed through through the fixed th he told him all the previous incidents.' No doubt, he did so. , the 1st tone, 'oh!' as 人····者, observe in Pt. L ii. 19. the force of the Z, carrying on the clause to those following for an explanation of it, as if

5. Mr. Ching said, Not so. That was not what I meant. the Book of Rites it is said, "When a father calls, the answer must be without a moment's hesitation. When the prince's order calls, the carriage must not be waited for." You were certainly going to the court, but when you heard the king's order, then you did not carry your purpose out. This does seem as if it were not in accordance with that rule of propriety.'

6. Mencius answered him, 'How can you give that meaning to my conduct? The philosopher Tsang said, "The wealth of Tsin and Ch'û cannot be equalled. Let their rulers have their wealth:— I have my benevolence. Let them have their nobility:—I have my righteousness. Wherein should I be dissatisfied as inferior to them?" Now shall we say that these sentiments are not right? Seeing that the philosopher Tsang spoke them, there is in them, I apprehend, a real principle.—In the kingdom there are three things universally acknowledged to be honourable. Nobility is one of them; age is see Analests, VII. xviii. 5. Different passages this?' has two opposite meanings, either are here quoted together from the Book of Rites. 'dissatisfied,' or 'satisfied,' in which latter 'A son must cry P隹 to his father, and not 謎,' making it the same as 賺, 'something held in which latter is a lingering response. 君命 召不侯駕 is found substantially in idea is that of dissatisfaction. BL XI Sect iii. a. 夫, in 1st tone, = 斯, as 義, 義 is here 當然之理, = 'what is in Analosts, XI. iz. 3, et al. 6. 世謂是與 proper and right, the subject being the remarks (the snd tone),—literally, how means (it) of Toing. 而 十言之云云 is 文召無話,—see Bk. I. Sect. I. iii. 3, 14, sense it is also asiah. Chû Hei explains this by the mouth,' according to the nature of which will be the internal feeling. In the text, the one of them; virtue is one of them. In courts, nobility holds the first place of the three; in villages, age holds the first place; and for helping one's generation and presiding over the people, the other two are not equal to virtue. How can the possession of only one of these be presumed on to despise one who possesses the other two?

7. 'Therefore a prince who is to accomplish great deeds will certainly have ministers whom he does not call to go to him. he wishes to consult with them, he goes to them. The prince who does not honour the virtuous, and delight in their ways of doing, to this extent, is not worth having to do with.

8. 'Accordingly, there was the behaviour of Tang to I Yin:—he first learned of him, and then employed him as his minister; and so without difficulty he became sovereign. There was the behaviour of the duke Hwan to Kwan Chung:—he first learned of him, and then employed him as his minister; and so without difficulty he became chief of all the princes.

expanded thus in the fife :- 'And, Thing- was only after being five times solicited by the virtuous, but I prefer the meaning adopted tene speaking them, they contain, perhaps special messengers that he went to the prince's another principle different from the vulgar presence;—see the 集體, on Analests, XII. the virtuous, but I prefer the meaning adopted him, and therefore, having first caused him to in the translation.

8. In the 'Historical be relieved of his fetters, and otherwise honeurably treated, he drove himself out of his capital to meet and receive him with all distinction, I Yin's becoming minister to Tang is, that it listening to a long discourse on government;

9. 'Now throughout the kingdom, the territories of the princes are of equal extent, and in their achievements they are on a level. Not one of them is able to exceed the others. This is from no other reason, but that they love to make ministers of those whom they teach, and do not love to make ministers of those by whom they might be taught.

10. 'So did Tang behave to I Yin, and the duke Hwan to Kwan Chung, that they would not venture to call them to go to them. Kwan Chung might not be called to him by his prince, how much less may he be called, who would not play the part of Kwan Chung!

CHAP. III. 1. Ch'an Tsin asked Mencius, saving, 'Formerly, when you were in Ch'1, the king sent you a present of 2,400 taels of When you were in Sung, fine silver, and you refused to accept it. 1,680 taels were sent to you, which you accepted; and when you were in Haieh, 1,200 taels were sent, which you likewise accepted. If your declining to accept the gift in the first case was right, your accepting see the 集證, on Analesta, III. xxii. 9. 臣, | metal' (I suppose 白金, or silver), called ed as a verb. 10. Compare Pt. L.i.

8. By what principles Mencius was guided ordinary; —see Analects, XI. exi. IN DECLINING OR ACCEPTING THE CIPTS OF PRINCES. i. e. 100 pf (), which, as in Bk. I. Pt. 11. ix. r. Ch'an Tsin was one of Mencius's disciples, but this is all that is known of him.

A comparison of the comparison

'double, as being worth twice as much as the

If your accepting it in the latter it in the latter cases was wrong. cases was right, your declining to do so in the first case was wrong. You must accept, Master, one of these alternatives.'

2. Mencius said, 'I did right in all the cases.

3. 'When I was in Sung, I was about to take a long journey. Travellers must be provided with what is necessary for their expenses. The prince's message was, "A present against travelling-expenses." Why should I have declined the gift?

4. 'When I was in Hsieh, I was apprehensive for my safety, and taking measures for my protection. The message was, "I have heard that you are taking measures to protect yourself, and send this to help you in procuring arms." Why should I have declined the gift?

But when I was in Ch'i, I had no occasion for money. send a man a gift when he has no occasion for it, is to bribe him. How is it possible that a superior man should be taken with a bribe?'

前日,今日, mark the relation of written as from the point of view of the prince time between the cases simply. \clubsuit is not to be taken as = 'to-day.' 必居literally, 'must occupy (dwell in) one of these (places).' The meaning is that on either of the suppositions he would be judged to have done errong. 3. E or , 'a gift to a traveller against the expenses of his journey.' ,—it is difficult to assign its precise force to of Sung:-in regard to travellers, he considered it was requisite to use the ceremony of 4. We must paraphrase 🎹 ሺ considerably to bring out the meaning. (5), in 4th tone. Fr, 'a weapon of war,' or the character may be taken here for 'a weapon-bearer,' 'a soldier." 5. 未有處也,,-Julian says,-'sicut nos Gallice; d'n'y a pas lieu a,' but if it were so 處 the . I consider the whole clause to be would be the noun, in the 4th tone, whereas it

1. Mencius having gone to Ping-lû, addressed the governor of it, saying, 'If one of your spearmen should lose his place in the ranks three times in one day, would you, Sir, put him to death or not?' 'I would not wait for three times to do so,' was the reply.

2. Mencius said, 'Well then, you, Sir, have likewise lost your place in the ranks many times. In bad calamitous years, and years of famine, the old and feeble of your people, who have been found lying in the ditches and water-channels, and the able-bodied, who have been scattered about to the four quarters, have amounted to several thousand.' The governor replied, 'That is a state of things in which it does not belong to me Chü-hsin to act.'

3. 'Here,' said Mencius, 'is a man who receives charge of the cattle and sheep of another, and undertakes to feed them for him ;-

is the verbia the 3rd, - 'to manage,' 'to dispose 3rd tone, 'to away with.' Commentators conof. 去有谁去有所意. our in the meaning given in the translation. of. 未有選·未有所選·

the southern border of Ch'i; -in the present department of Yen-chau in Shan-tung. The officer's name, as we learn from the last paragraph, was K'ung Chū-hain. 大夫 herevariously described. Some say it had three points; others that it had a branch or blade on authority of the State, and not on him. 3. Com-

4. How MERICUS REDUEST? CONVICTION OF THEIR 2. A How MERICUS REDUEST? CONVICTION OF THEIR XLI. S. Julien finds a difficulty in the 'several thousand,' as not applicable to the population of Ping-lt was a city on of Ping-lt. But it was Mencius's way to talk roundly. To make 千人 'one thousand,' we must read in in 1st tone, and suppose the preposition I suppressed. The meaning of one side. No doubt, its form varied. 去, the pare 非身之所能為.Bk. I. Pt. II. xv.s.

of course he must search for pasture-ground and grass for them. If, after searching for those, he cannot find them, will he return his charge to the owner? or will he stand by and see them die?' 'Herein,' said the officer, 'I am guilty.'

4. Another day, Mencius had an audience of the king, and said to him, 'Of the governors of your Majesty's cities I am acquainted with five, but the only one of them who knows his faults is K'ung Chu-hsin.' He then repeated the conversation to the king, who said,

'In this matter, I am the guilty one.'

CHAP. V. 1. Mencius said to Ch'i Wa, 'There seemed to be reason in your declining the governorship of Ling-ch'iû, and requesting to be appointed chief criminal judge, because the latter office would afford you the opportunity of speaking your views.

= pasture-grounds. 'the man,' i.e. their owner. In the cities from which nobles and great of force of the is-'or-here is another sup- derived their support were called mention—will he, &c.?' Mencius means that I, A in 4th tone. Chū-hain ahould not held office in such circum-(s) The cities conferred on the sons and younger Bk. I. Pt. II. vi. s. 鱼其同以

The first by is the verb; the second a noun, | brothers of the princes were called and; in fact, every city with an ancestral temple containing the tablets of former rulers. (3) The

5. THE PRESIDENT BELONGING TO MEMORUS IN stances. 4. 見 in 4th tone. 為都者, RELATION TO THE MEASURES OF THE MINE OF CAP'S has the sense of 'to administer,' 'to govern;' compare Analects, IV. xiii.

The properly 'a capital city,' but also used more generally. In the dictionary we find:—(I)

Where the sovereign has his palace is called to might be near the king.

The might be mean the king. PROSE MIS PROULIAR POSITION, AS UNSALABLED.

several months have elapsed, and have you yet found nothing of which you might speak?'

2. On this, Ch'i Wa remonstrated on some matter with the king, and, his counsel not being taken, resigned his office and went away.

3. The people of Ch'i said, 'In the course which he marked out for Ch'i Wa he did well, but we do not know as to the course which he pursues for himself."

4. His disciple Kung-tû told him these remarks.

5. Mencius said, 'I have heard that he who is in charge of an office, when he is prevented from fulfilling its duties, ought to take his departure, and that he on whom is the responsibility of giving his opinion, when he finds his words unattended to, ought to do the But I am in charge of no office; on me devolves no duty of speaking out my opinion:—may not I therefore act freely and without any constraint, either in going forward or in retiring?"

CHAP. VI. 1. Mencius, occupying the position of a high dignitary in Ch'i, went on a mission of condolence to Tang. The king hiterally, 'because of the possibility to speak.' ition. 4. Kung-tû was a disciple of Moneius. As criminal judgs, Ch'i Wa would be often in communication with the king, and could remonphysically and could remone the communication with the king, and could remone the communication with the king. strate on any failures in the administration of justice that came under his notice. 2. 平久, to resign, 'give up,' as in Analests, I. vii, o' al. Associars. 1. 'Complet the position of a high 3. 所以鱼(in grd tone), literally, 'whereby dignitary:'--so I translate here for,'-所以為之臟, as in the transla- Mencius's situation appears to have been only phrase 綽綽有裕, with the same meaning as the more enlarged form in the text.

6. MERCIUS'S BEHAVEOUR WITH AN UNWORTHY

also sent Wang Hwan, the governor of KA, as assistant-commissioner. Wang Hwan, morning and evening, waited upon Mencius, who, during all the way to Tang and back, never spoke to him about the business of their mission.

2. Kung-sun Ch'au said to Mencius, 'The position of a high dignitary of Ch'i is not a small one; the road from Ch'i to T'ang is not short. How was it that during all the way there and back, you never spoke to Hwan about the matters of your mission?' Mencius replied, 'There were the proper officers who attended to them. What occasion had I to speak to him about them?

1. Mencius went from Ch'i to Lû to bury his mother. On his return to Ch'i, he stopped at Ying, where Ch'ung Yu begged to put a question to him, and said, 'Formerly, in ignorance of my incompetency, you employed me to superintend the making of the coffin. As you were then pressed by the urgency of the business, employed him on this occasion to give weight by his character to the mission. The officer of by his character to the mission. (read ist) was an unworthy favourite of the of Wang:—'He perhaps attended to the interest of the perhaps attended to the interest of the perhaps attended to the interest of the perhaps attended to the order in the interest of the perhaps attended to the interest of the perhaps attended to the interest of the perhaps attended to the perhaps 77, not 'to assist him on the jourmey, but with reference to what was the business (所行) of it. 見,—4th tone. 反 implies point to Mencius's explanation of his conduct. the 14, or 'going,' as well as 'returning.'

honorary, without emolument, and the king | 'Now there were some '--i.e. the proper officers 光之, 'who attended to them.' The glossarist of Chao Ch'I understands this as spoke

7. That one quest to do his uthost in the burial of his parents;—illustrated by Mes-2. A A Compare Bk. I. Pt. II. IVI. I. The tradition is that Mencius had been temporarily raised to that dignity for had his mother with him in Ch2, and that he the occasion. 夫 (in snd tone) 题 或,— carried her body to the family sepulchre in La.

I did not venture to put any question to you. Now, however, I wish to take the liberty to submit the matter. The wood of the coffin, it appeared to me, was too good.'

2. Mencius replied, 'Anciently, there was no rule for the size of either the inner or the outer coffin. In middle antiquity, the inner coffin was made seven inches thick, and the outer one the same. This was done by all, from the sovereign to the common people, and not simply for the beauty of the appearance, but because they thus satisfied the natural feelings of their hearts.

3. 'If prevented by statutory regulations from making their coffins in this way, men cannot have the feeling of pleasure. have not the money to make them in this way, they cannot have the feeling of pleasure. When they were not prevented, and had the money, the ancients all used this style. Why should I alone not do so?

Pt. II. xvi. 1, 'to beg to put a question.' N present day. 3. 不得, being opposed to 無 , 'to attend to.' F, as in Pt. Lvii. 1. Et, requires to be supplemented, as in the

How long he remained in Lû is uncertain;

perhaps the whole three years proper to the mourning for a perent. Whether his stopping at Ying was for a night merely, or a longer peried, is also disputed. Ch'ung Yû was one of his disciples. It has appeared strange that the western a long transport of the meritary of the m

4. 'And moreover, is there no satisfaction to the natural feelings of a man, in preventing the earth from getting near to the bodies of his dead?

5. 'I have heard that the superior man will not for all the world be niggardly to his parents.

CHAP. VIII. 1. Shan Tung, on his own impulse, asked Monoius, saying, 'May Yen be smitten?' Mencius replied, 'It may. Tsze-k'wai had no right to give Yen to another man, and Tsze-chih had no right to receive Yen from Tsze-k'wai. Suppose there were an officer here, with whom you, Sir, were pleased, and that, without informing the king, you were privately to give to him your salary and rank; and suppose that this officer, also without the king's orders, were privately to receive them from you:—would such a transaction be allowable? And where is the difference between the case of Yen and this?'

translation. For 為有財, some would give |a son's feelings?' 5. 不以天下云 而有財. The ini reads better, but the —Châo Ch'i interprets this :—'will not deny anything in all the world which he can commeaning is the same. 4. 1 (the 4th tone) mand to his parents. So, substantially, the 化者,-the same as 比死者 in Bk. I. modern paraphrasts. Pt. I. v. 1. It is used appropriately with BUT BY PROPER AUTHORITY. A STATE OR MATTON reference to the dissolution of the bodies of the dead. 声, 'skin'—the bodies. 校, the 4th tene, Asido. 海無 文平,—the meaning is —'shall this thing slowe give no satisfaction to that Tase-chih would decline the honour, and

8. Deserved purimenent may not be invested

2. The people of Ch't smote Yen. Some one asked Mencius, saying, 'Is it really the case that you advised Ch't to smite Yen?' He replied, 'No. Shan Tung asked me whether Yen might be smitten, and I answered him, "It may." They accordingly went and smote it. If he had asked me—"Who may smite it? I would have answered him, "He who is the minister of Heaven may smite it." Suppose the case of a murderer, and that one asks me—"May this man be put to death?" I will answer him—"He may." If he ask me—"Who may put him to death?" I will answer him,—"The chief criminal judge may put him to death." But now with one Yen to smite another Yen:—how should I have advised this?'

that thus he would be praised as acting the part of the ancient Yao, while he retained his kingdom. These-hih, however, accepted the tender, and Taxe-hih, however, accepted the tender, and taxe-hih, T'ung, but we cannot translate it literally in English. 夫士也夫, in the and tone, 一新; 士 is the same person as 仕 above, 'a scholar seeking official employment.' a. 原, the 4th tone. 彼然,一彼 refers to the king and people of Ch'l. 彼如日,一彼 refers only to Sh'an T'ung. 天吏, see Pt. I. v. 6. The one Yen is of course Ch'l, as oppressive as Yen itself.

CHAP. IX. 1. The people of Yen having rebelled, the king of Ch's said, 'I feel very much ashamed when I think of Mencius.'

2. Ch'an Chia said to him, 'Let not your Majesty be grieved. Whether does your Majesty consider yourself or Chau-kung the more benevolent and wise?' The king replied, 'Oh! what words are those?' 'The duke of Chau,' said Chid, 'appointed Kwan-shu to oversee the heir of Yin, but Kwan-shu with the power of the Yin State rebelled. If knowing that this would happen he appointed Kwan-shû, he was deficient in benevolence. If he appointed him, not knowing that it would happen, he was deficient in knowledge. If the duke of Chau was not completely benevolent and wise, how much less can your Majesty be expected to be so! I beg to go and see Mencius, and relieve your Majesty from that feeling.

3. Ch'an Chia accordingly saw Mencius, and asked him, saying, 'What kind of man was the duke of Chau?' An ancient sage,

9. How Mescrus Bear Down THE ATTEMPT TO of his own two brothers, Holes (#) and 76 ARGUE IN EXCUSE OF REPORT AND MINCONDUCT. ARSUE IN EXCUSS OF REBORN AND MISCOMPUCT.

The people of Yen set up the son of Taxek'wâi as king, and rebelled against the yoke which Ch'i had attempted to impose on them.
'Ashamed when I think of Mencius,'—i. e. because of the advice of Mencius in regard to Yen which he had neglected. See Bk. I. Pt. II.
x, xi. a. Ch'an Chia was an officer of Ch'i.
Châu-kung,—see Analects, VII. v, et al. The case Chia refers to was this:—On king Wû's extinction of the Yin dynasty, sparing the life of Châu's son, he conferred on him the small State of Yin from which the dynasty had taken

That below is the name of the State. xtinction of the Yin dynasty, sparing the life —the the here is the son of the sovereign Charles on, he conferred on him the small taken That below is the name of the State.

度), one of them older, and the other younger, than his brother Tan (), who was Châu-kung. Heien has come down to us under the title of Kwan-shu, Kwan being the name of the principality which he received for himself. After Wû's death, and the succession of his son, Heien and Tu rebelled, when Châu-kung took action assinst them, not the former to death. action against them, put the former to death, its name, but placed him under the surveillance -I take in the sense of 'to lease,' 'to free

'Is it the fact, that he appointed Kwan-shû to was the reply. oversee the heir of Yin, and that Kwan-shu with the State of Yin rebelled?' 'It is.' 'Did the duke of Chau know that he would rebel, and purposely appoint him to that office?' Mencius said, 'He did not know.' 'Then, though a sage, he still fell into error?' 'The duke of Chau,' answered Mencius, 'was the younger brother. Kwan-shu was his elder brother. Was not the error of Chau-kung in accordance with what is right?

4. 'Moreover, when the superior men of old had errors, they reformed them. The superior men of the present time, when they have errors, persist in them. The errors of the superior men of old were like eclipses of the sun and moon. All the people witnessed them, and when they had reformed them, all the people looked up to them with their former admiration. But do the superior men of the present day only persist in their errors? They go on to apologize for them likewise.'

from, with reference to the feeling of shame, what Mencius means in conclusion is, that not 'to explain.' 3. Before the chart it is better to be deceived than to impute ■人且有過與一旦 implies a succeeding clause—'how much more may one Shall we refer it to the sun and moon, or to the inferior to him!'—况下于公者乎。ancient worthies? Primarily, its application is should be a 日, as it is the retort of Ch'an Chia. evil. 4 In 今之君子, the 君子 must

VOL. II.

1. Mencius gave up his office, and made arrangements for returning to his native State.

2. The king came to visit him, and said, 'Formerly, I wished to see you, but in vain. Then, I got the opportunity of being by your side, and all my court joyed exceedingly along with me. Now again you abandon me, and are returning home. I do not know if hereafter I may expect to have another opportunity of seeing you. Mencius replied, 'I dare not request permission to visit you at any particular time, but, indeed, it is what I desire.

3. Another day, the king said to the officer Shih, 'I wish to give Mencius a house, somewhere in the middle of the kingdom, and to support his disciples with an allowance of 10,000 chung, that all the officers and the people may have such an example to reverence and.

Had you not better tell him this for me?

4. Shih took advantage to convey this message by means of the disciple Ch'an, who reported his words to Mencius.

to the heavenly bodies. So the below, 'I do not venture to ask you to come in person to see me,' which is surely absurd double object after 😩. The remark was a severe thrust at Ch an Chia's own conduct.

10. Menoius in leaving a country or remain-ING IN IT WAS NOT INFLUENCED BY PECUNIARY COM-SEDERATIONS, BUT BY THE OPPORTURITY DERIED OR ACCORDED TO MIN OF CARRYING HIS PRINCIPLES INTO PRACTICE. i. 致為臣,—至父 as in chap.v. a, ealy it is here simply 'resignation,' with little of

The meaning must be what I ha enough. * 前日given. before Mencius first came to Ch'l. (ch'4c, and tone)-同朝之臣, 山 officers of the court with himself.' 健此見, 'in continuation of this seeing.' the idea of sacrifice. In S., 'and returned.' Mencius sees that the king with his complimentary expressions is really bidding him adieu, and answers, accordingly, in as complimentary a way, intimating his purpose to be

5. Mencius said, 'Yes; but how should the officer Shih know that the thing could not be? Suppose that I wanted to be rich, having formerly declined 100,000 chung, would my now accepting 10,000 be the conduct of one desiring riches?

6. 'Chi-sun said, "A strange man was Taze-shu I. He pushed himself into the service of government. His prince declining to employ him, he had to retire indeed, but he again schemed that his son or younger brother should be made a high officer. Who indeed is there of men but wishes for riches and honour? But he only, among the seekers of these, tried to monopolize the conspicuous mound.

7. '"Of old time, the market-dealers exchanged the articles which they had for others which they had not, and simply had certain officers to keep order among them. It happened that there was gone. 3. The king after all does not like the Tass-shû Î we know only what is mentioned ides of Mencius's going, and thinks of this plan to retain him, which was in reality what Mencius, and that Chi-sun made his remark of Mencius, and that Chi-sun made his remark with a view to induce Mencius to push forward his disciples into the employment which he could not get for himself. But such a view is could not get for himself. But such a view is of chap. iii. 因 is explained by 依託, 'entrusted to.' But it is more, and—to take advantage of, with reference to Chan's being a disciple of Mencius. 5. Mencius does not find it convenient to state plainly his real reason for going,—that he was not permitted to see his principles carried into practice, and therefore repels simply the idea of his being accessible to pecuniary considerations. Ico,coo chang was the fixed allowance of a which Mencius 'a mound.' 4th tone, 'cut,' 'abrupt,' had declined to receive. 6. Of Chi-sun and 'well defined.' 7. 12, and tone. Observe inedmissible. 便已,便其子弟——the first (fi), it is said, merely refers to the prince's employment of him, and the second to his contrising and bringing about the employment of his son or younger brother; but why should we not give the character the same force in both cases? 2, the grd tone, read as and = a mean fellow, who made it a point to look out for a conspicuous mound, and get up upon it. Thence he looked right and left, to catch in his net the whole gain of the market. The people all thought his conduct mean, and therefore they proceeded to lay a tax upon his wares. The taxing of traders took its rise from this mean fellow."'

CHAP. XI. 1. Mencius, having taken his leave of Ch'i, was passing the night in Chau.

2. A person who wished to detain him on behalf of the king, came and sat down, and began to speak to him. Mencius gave him no answer, but leant upon his stool and slept.

3. The visitor was displeased, and said, 'I passed the night in careful vigil, before I would venture to speak to you, and you, Master, sleep and do not listen to me. Allow me to request that I may not again presume to see you.' Mencius replied, 'Sit down, the force of E, 'only,' which also belongs to Mencius withdrew leisurely, hoping that the it in par. 2, weakening the 不敢論. 征 Z,—the Z should be referred to the mean individual spoken of.

11. How MENCIUS REPELLED A MAN, WHO, OFFICIOUSLY AND ON HIS OWN IMPULAR, TRIED TO be written a, and refer it to a place in the present district of 15, but this would place it north from La, whither Mencius was retiring. a vigil, "to fast." 著宿,—'fasted and passed low his counsels. s. 篇(4th tone)王,—'for the king,' i.e. knowing it would please the king. th,-4th tone. ,-the 3rd tone, 'to lean upon.' The JL was a stool or bench, on which BERAIN HIM IN CH'f. I. was a city on the individuals might lean forward, or otherwise, as they sat upon their mats. It could be carried in the hand. See the Li Chi, Bk. I. Sect. I. ii. I. 一謀於長者,必操几杖以從 之. 3. 唐 (chái), the 1st tone, - 本, to keep and I will explain the case clearly to you. Formerly, if the duke Mû had not kept a person by the side of Tsze-sze, he could not have induced Tsze-sze to remain with him. If Hsieh Liu and Shan Hsiang had not had a remembrancer by the side of the duke Mû, he would not have been able to make them feel at home and remain with him.

4. 'You anxiously form plans with reference to me, but you do not treat me as Tsze-sze was treated. Is it you, Sir, who cut me! Or is it I who cut you?'

CHAP. XII. 1. When Mencius had left Ch'i. Yin Shih spoke about him to others, saying, 'If he did not know that the king could not be made a Tang or a Wû, that showed his want of intelligence. If he knew that he could not be made such, and came the night.' 請勿復(in 4th tone) 故見 was cherished. Hsieh Lift and Shin Hsiang is merely the complimentary way of complaining of what the guest considered the rudeness of his reception. 🔠, the 4th tone, = 告. here read M4, was the honorary epithet of the duke Hsien (III), B.c. 409-875. Teze-aze,grandson of Confucius. Shan Hsiang,—the son of Taze-chang (子張), one of Confucius's disciples. Heich Liû was a native of Lû, a disciple of the Confucian school. See the Li Chi, Bk. II. Seet. I. ii. 34, and Bk. XVIII. Sect. II. ii. 11. this last passage Liû should be Haich Liû. 🕦 -在or在乎. 安 is said to - 留, simply 'to detain,' but its force is more than that, and to make contented, and so induce to remain. Great respect, it seems, was shown to Tuze-are, and he had an attendant from the duke to assure there were one or more officers by the duke's side, to admonish him not to forget them and other worthies. .The visitor calls himself 子, 'your disciple.' 4. 🧥 4th tone. cius calls himself 長 (the 3rd tone) 老, the 為長者云云,—the stranger was anxious for (Mencius to remain in Chit, but the thing was entirely from himself, not from the king; and his thinking that he could detain him by such a visit showed the little store he set by him; was, in fact, a cutting him.

12. How MENCIUS EXPLAINED HIS SEENING TO LINGER IN CH'I, APPER ME HAD RESIGNED HIS OFFICE, AND LEFT THE COURT. I. All that w him continually of the respect with which he know of Yin Shih is that he was a man of Ch't.

notwithstanding, that shows he was seeking his own benefit. came a thousand # to wait on the king; because he did not find in him a ruler to suit him, he took his leave, but how dilatory and lingering was his departure, stopping three nights before he quitted Chau! I am dissatisfied on account of this.

2. The disciple Kao informed Mencius of these remarks.

3 Mencius said, 'How should Yin Shih know me! When I came a thousand it to wait on the king, it was what I desired to do. When I went away because I did not find in him a ruler to suit me, was that what I desired to do? I felt myself constrained to do it.

4. 'When I stopped three nights before I quitted Chau, in my own mind I still considered my departure speedy. I was hoping that the king might change. If the king had changed, he would certainly have recalled me.

5. 'When I quitted Chau, and the king had not sent after me, Julian properly blames Noel for translating constrained to leave by the conviction forced.

The by 'literatus community Yen' as if the on him that he could not in Ch'i carry his prin-尹士 by 'literatus cognomine Yin,' as if 士 ere here the noun-'a scholar.' But when he adds that it is here to be pronounced off, to mark that it is a name, this is what neither the dictionary nor any commentary mentions. 語, the 4th tone, =告. 干澤, 'to seek for favours,' i. e. his own benefit ;—see Analects, II. zviii. 🔨 🌉,—see Bk. I. Pt. II. zvi. 3. 茲−世, 'this.' What Shih chiefly means to charge against Mencius is the lingering character of his departure. 3. Mencius was 一種. 用 is by many taken as aimply — 以; ciples into practice. 王庶幾(the 1st tone) 散之, literally, 'The king fortunately near to change it.' This was the thought at the time in Mencius's mind, and III 28-'I hoped,' 'I was looking for.' 然後, 'then, and not till then.' 浩然, --see Pt. L. il. 11. 含- 格, the grd tone. 由 then, and not till then, was my mind resolutely bent on returning to Tedu. But, notwithstanding that, how can it be said that I give up the king? The king, after all, is one who may be made to do what is good. If he were to use me, would it be for the happiness of the people of Ch'i only? It would be for the happiness of the people of the whole kingdom. I am hoping that the king will change. I am daily hoping for this.

6. 'Am I like one of your little-minded people? They will remonstrate with their prince, and on their remonstrance not being accepted, they get angry; and, with their passion displayed in their countenance, they take their leave, and travel with all their strength for a whole day, before they will stop for the night.'

7. When Yin Shih heard this explanation, he said, 'I am indeed a small man.'

CHAP. XIII. 1. When Mencius left Ch'i, Ch'ung Yu questioned him upon the way, saying, 'Master, you look like one who carries

- the king is, after all, competent to do good, paragraph Confecius's defence of Kwan Chung, but H expresses more than that. F H 🚉 Analects, XIV. xviii.

Z conveys in itself no more than the translation, but the king's change of course involved (the king's change of course involved (the king's change of course involved (the king's recall to Ch'I. Perhaps we have in the words an amplification of Mencius's thoughts before he quitted Chau. 5. Compare with this 18. MERCIUS'S GRIEF AT NOT FINDING AN OPPORan air of dissatisfaction in his countenance. But formerly I heard you say-"The superior man does not murmur against Heaven, nor grudge against men."

2. Mencius said, 'That was one time, and this is another.

3. 'It is a rule that a true royal sovereign should arise in the course of five hundred years, and that during that time there should be men illustrious in their generation.

'-4. 'From the commencement of the Chau dynasty till now, more than seven hundred years have elapsed. Judging numerically, the date is past. Examining the character of the present time, we might expect the rise of such individuals in it.

5. 'But Heaven does not yet wish that the kingdom should enjoy tranquillity and good order. If it wished this, who is there besides me to bring it about? How should I be otherwise than dissatisfied?

in Confucius, see Analects, XIV. xxxvii. 3 of the last century, little more than fifty years '500 years,'—this is speaking in very round and loose numbers, even if we judge from the history of China prior to Mencius. 其間, 'By the time examining it, then may,' i.e. such 'during them,' but the meaning is—at the same time with the sovereign shall arise men able to things may be. 5. 合我其誰, literally, 'Letting me go, then who?' Compare last assist him. All for $25 III. character, par. 4, and many other places, where 4. The Chau dynasty lasted altogether 867 Mencius speaks of what he could accomplish years, and Mencius died, according to some On the reference to the will of Heaven, commaccounts, at the age of 10s, in the second year pare Analects, IX. v. 3.

CHAP, XIV. 1. When Mencius left Ch'i, he dwelt in Hsiû. There Kung-sun Ch'au asked him, saying, 'Was it the way of the ancients to hold office without receiving salary?'

2. Mencius replied, 'No; when I first saw the king in Ch'ung, it was my intention, on retiring from the interview, to go away. Because I did not wish to change this intention, I declined to receive any salary.

3. 'Immediately after, there came orders for the collection of troops, when it would have been improper for me to beg permission to leave. But to remain so long in Ch'i was not my purpose.'

14. THE REASON OF MERCIUS'S HOLDING AN | determined. It is not to be confounded with MONORARY OFFICE IN CH'I WITHOUT SALARY, THAT the ancient principality or barony of the same Hait was in the present district of Tang in the department of Yen-chau. Kung-sun Chau's inquiry was simply for information. This appears from the with which it is honorary adviser to the king. This is the interanswered. s. Ch'ung must be the name of pretation of the glossarist of Chao Ch'i, and is a place in Ch'i, which cannot be more exactly perhaps preferable to the former.

BOOK III.

TÅNG WÅN KUNG. PART L.

1. When the prince, afterwards duke Wan of Tang, had to go to Ch'û, he went by way of Sung, and visited Mencius.

2. Mencius discoursed to him how the nature of man is good, and when speaking, always made laudatory reference to Yao and Shun.

3. When the prince was returning from Ch'û, he again visited Mencius. Mencius said to him, 'Prince, do you doubt my words? The path is one, and only one.

4. 'Ch'ang Chi'en said to duke King of Ch'i, "They were men. Why should I stand in awe of them?" Yen Yuan said, I am a man.

Title of This Book.— A, 'The duke succession should be unbroken from generation a wan of Tang.' The Book is so named from other the Ch'a and Tang bordering on each of the chief the duke Wan, who is prominent in the first three chapters. Châo Ch'i compares this with the title of the Fifteenth Book of the Analects.

1. How all men by developing their natural GOODHES MAY BECOME EQUAL TO THE ANCIEST SACES. 1. The duke Wan of Tang, -see Bk. I. Pt.II. xiii. Wan is the posthumous title. The crown-prince's name appears to have been Hung (公). Previous to the Han dynasty, the heirs-apparent of the sovereigns and the princes of States were called indifferently other, the prince must have gone out of his other, the prince must have gone out of his way to visit Mancius. In the 'Topography of the Four Books, continued,' it is said:—' Since Ting and Ch'û adjoined, so that one had only to lift his feet and pass into Ch'û, why must the crown-prince go round about, a distance of more than 350 if, to pass by the capital of Sung? The reason was that Moncius was there, and the reines's patting himself to so much trouble. the prince's putting himself to so much trouble in going and returning, shows his worthiness 2. 道-壽, a verb, 'to speak or discourse in, not 'necessarily,' but 'he made it about. F and 大子. Since then, 太子 has been confined to the imperial heir. The title in the sense of to appeal to. This is supported by par. 3, but the word itself has only the meaning in the translation, with which, moreover, 世不絶, 'to indicate the wish that the Chao Ch'i agrees. 3. 道一而已,-

"What kind of man was Shun? What kind of man am I? who exerts himself will also become such as he was." Kung-ming I said, "King Wan is my teacher. How should the duke of Chau deceive me by those words?"

5. 'Now, Tang, taking its length with its breadth, will amount, I suppose, to fifty U. It is small, but still sufficient to make a good State. It is said in the Book of History, "If medicine do not raise a commotion in the patient, his disease will not be cured by it."

1. When the duke Ting of Ting died, the prince said to Yen Yû, 'Formerly, Mencius spoke with me in Sung, and in my mind I have never forgotten his words.

summation of high sageship and distinction to which it leads, which may be reached by treading it, and which can be reached in no other way. We have here for the first time the statement of Mensius's doctrine, which he subsequently dwells so much on, that 'the nature of man is good.' 4. Of Ch'ang Chi'en we only know what is here said. 彼丈夫,一彼 referring to the sages. \(\frac{1}{2},\tag{-used for 'man'}\) or 'men,' with the idea of vigour and capability. Kung-ming I was a disciple first of Taxe-chang, and then of Tsing Shin. 文王我師

,- spating the long to supplement the short.' Observe the force of the , as in the translation. implying—'It is small, but still.' 🖺 🔙, compare chap. iii :—'a good kingdom' is such an one as is there described. 太,—see the Shû-ching, IV. viii. Sect. 1.8. III, read mim, the 4th tone.

2. How Mencius advised the duke of T and TO COMDUCT THE MOURNING FOR HIS FATHER. 1. % is the proper term to express the death of any of the feudal princes of the kingdom. Yen would appear to have been a remark originally any of the feudal princes of the kingdom. Yen of Chau-kung, which I appropriates and vindi- Yû had been the prince's Grand tutor this great duty to my father devolves upon me; I wish to send you to ask the advice of Mencius, and then to proceed to its various services.

2. Zan Yû accordingly proceeded to Tsau, and consulted Mencius. Mencius said, 'Is this not good? In discharging the funeral duties to parents, men indeed feel constrained to do their utmost. The philosopher Tsang said, "When parents are alive, they should be served according to propriety; when they are dead, they should be buried according to propriety; and they should be sacrificed to according to propriety:—this may be called filial piety." ceremonies to be observed by the princes I have not learned, but I have heard these points:—that the three years' mourning, the garment of coarse cloth with its lower edge even, and the eating of congee, were equally prescribed by the three dynasties, and binding on all, from the sovereign to the mass of the people.

3. Zan Yû reported the execution of his commission, and the is a phrase applied to the funeral of, is more likely, Mencius here makes a alip of and mourning for, parents ;-- 'the great cause, or matter.' a 之 鄰,一之 is the verb,= 往. 不亦善乎,—spoken with reference to the prince's sending to consult him on such a subject. 親哭箇所自盡, compare Analects, XIX. zvii. The words attributed to Tsang Shan were originally spoken by memory. , 1st tone, read tou; see Analecta. 任, as used in the text, read like and = ff, denotes congee, like ff, but made thicker. 3. Ta, returned the commission, i.e. reported his execution of it and the reply. must be understood as the subject of Confucius; see Analects, II.v. Tsang may have 定. 交兄, 'his fathers and brothren,' i.e.

prince determined that the three years' mourning should be observed. His aged relatives, and the body of the officers, did not wish that it should be so, and said, 'The former princes of Lû, that kingdom which we honour, have, none of them, observed this practice, neither have any of our own former princes observed it. For you to act contrary to their example is not proper. Moreover, the History says,-" In the observances of mourning and sacrifice, ancestors are to be followed," meaning that they received those things from a proper source to hand them down.

4. The prince said again to Zan Ya, 'Hitherto, I have not given myself to the pursuit of learning, but have found my pleasure in horsemanship and sword-exercise, and now I don't come up to the wishes of my aged relatives and the officers. I am afraid I may not be able to discharge my duty in the great business that I have entered on; do you again consult Mencius for me.' On this, Zan Yû his uncles and elderly ministers of the ducal are wrong in attributing to them the neglect family. The phrase is commonly applied by Chinese to the elders of their own surname, whatever be the degrees of their relationship. ,—the ducal house of Tang was they refer to is not known. 吾有所受 (Shû-haiù, A shì), but by an inferior wife, while Châu-kung, the ancestor of Lû, was in the true sovereign line, the author of all the sivil inestitutions of the dynasty, and hence all the other States ruled by descendants of king Wim were supposed to look up to Lû. That Châu-kung and the first rulers of Tang had not clause kung and the first rulers of Tang had not clause. The crown-prince's remonstrants able, &c.' It is the sentiment of the prince went again to Tsau, and consulted Mencius. Mencius said. 'It is so, but he may not seek a remedy in others, but only in himself. Confucius said, "When a prince dies, his successor entrusts the administration to the prime minister. He sips the congee. is of a deep black. He approaches the place of mourning, and weeps. Of all the officers and inferior ministers there is not one who will presume not to join in the lamentation, he setting them this example. What the superior loves, his inferiors will be found to love exceed-The relation between superiors and inferiors is like that between the wind and grass. The grass must bend when the wind blows upon it." The business depends on the prince.

5. Zan Yû returned with this answer to his commission, and the prince said, 'It is so. The matter does indeed depend on me.' So for five months he dwelt in the shed, without issuing an order or All the officers and his relatives said, 'He may be said to understand the ceremonies.' When the time of interment arrived, himself, and My must be trunslated in the may be, the text of the Analests was different in does. In the I there is a reference to his first person, and not in the third, as Julien his time. See Analecta, XII. xxi, et al. does. In the it there is a reference to his antecedents, as occasioning the present difficulty, during the five months that elapsed between oulty. 不可以他来 is taken by Ch'so the death and interment. 5. The was a Ch'i, 'You may not seek (to overcome their opposition) by any other way (but carrying out what you have begun),' Chu Hai's view, as in the translation, is better. In the quotations from Confucius, Mencius has blended different places of the Analects together, and it is in the translation of the Analects together, and it is with means to be coverned or defective. enlarged them to suit his own purpose, or, it Hat, with reason, to be corrupted or defective.

they came from all quarters of the State to witness it. had come from other States to condole with him, were greatly pleased with the deep dejection of his countenance and the mournfulness of his wailing and weeping.

1. The duke Wan of Tang asked Mencius about CHAP. III.

the proper way of governing a kingdom.
2. Mencius said, 'The business of the people may not be remissly attended to. It is said in the Book of Poetry,

"In the day-light go and gather the grass,

And at night twist your ropes;

Then get up quickly on the roofs;— Soon must we begin sowing again the grain."

3. 'The way of the people is this:—If they have a certain

I have translated as if it were IIIIIII.

—Chût Hat introduces here the following remarks from the commentator Lin (大)—

In the time of Meneius, although the rites to the dead had fallen into neglect, yet the three years' mourning, with the sorrowing heart and afflictive grief, being the expression of what really belongs to man's mind, had not quite perished. Only, sunk in the slough of manners haceming more and more corrupt. men were large translated as if it were III in the impeached. Finally, when we consider how with what decision he finally acted, and how all, near and far, who saw and heard him, were delighted to seknowledge and admire his conduct, we have an instance of how, when that which belongs to all men's minds is in the without any previous purpose, to the pleased acknowledgment and approval of it:—is not this a proof that it is indeed true that the nature has maken to good? becoming more and more corrupt, men were losing all their moral nature without being conscious of it. When duke Wan saw Mencius, and heard him speak of the goodness of man's nature, and of Yao and Shun, that was the occasion of moving and bringing forth his better heart, and on this occasion—of the better heart, and on this occasiondeath of his father—he felt sineerely all the stirrings of sorrow and grief. Then, moreover, when his older relatives and his officers wished not to act as he desired, he turned inwards to reprove himself, and lamented his former conduct which made him not be believed in his present course, not presuming to blame his officers and relatives:—although we must con-cede an extraordinary natural excellence and ability to him, yet his energy in learning may the is to be taken lightly, as if the expression of man is good ?'

3. MERCIUS'S COURSELS TO THE DUKE OF TIME FOR THE GOVERNMENT OF HIS KINGDOM, AGRI-CULTURE AND EDUCATION ARE THE CHIEF THINGS to be attribed to, and the first as an emential preparation for the second. I. 篇, in the sense of 治, to govern.' a. By 民事, the business of the people, is intended husbandry. For the ode, see the Shih-ching, I. xv. Ode I. st. 7, written, it is said, by Chau-kung, to impress the sovereign Ch'ang with a sense of the importance and toils of husbandry. 3. Compere Bk. I. Pt. L. vil. 19. In 民之為道, livelihood, they will have a fixed heart; if they have not a certain livelihood, they have not a fixed heart. And if they have not a fixed heart, there is nothing which they will not do in the way of selfabandonment, of moral deflection, of depravity, and of wild license. When they have thus been involved in crime, to follow them up and punish them:—this is to entrap the people. How can such a thing as entrapping the people be done under the rule of a benevolent man?

4. 'Therefore, a ruler who is endowed with talents and virtue will be gravely complaisant and economical, showing a respectful politeness to his ministers, and taking from the people only in accordance with regulated limits.

5. 'Yang Hû said, "He who seeks to be rich will not be benevolent. He who wishes to be benevolent will not be rich."

6. 'The sovereign of the Hsia dynasty enacted the fifty mau allotment, and the payment of a tax. The founder of the Yin enacted the seventy man allotment, and the system of mutual aid. The the 🎬, but 'will be,' i.e. will be sure to be. The last two clauses are exegetical of the and putting it in grd tone, but that would give the 倫. 下must be understood of 臣, 'ministers,' observation a good meaning. 6. 夏后氏, in contradistinction from the 民, 'people,' 融人, 屬人,—see Analcots, III. xxi. By tho 爲. 爲當,爲仁,—'He who makes his business. This force riches founder of the Chau enacted the hundred man allotment, and the share system. In reality, what was paid in all these was a tithe. The share system means mutual division. The aid system means mutual dependence.

7. 'Lung said, "For regulating the lands, there is no better system than that of mutual aid, and none which is not better than that of taxing. By the tax system, the regular amount was fixed by taking the average of several years. In good years, when the grain lies about in abundance, much might be taken without its being oppressive, and the actual exaction would be small. But in bad years, the produce being not sufficient to repay the manuring of the fields, this system still requires the taking of the full amount. When the parent of the people causes the people to wear looks of distress, and, after the whole year's toil, yet not to be able to nourish their parents, so the Hsia statutes, every husbandman—head in accordance with the accounts in the Chau of a family—received fifty mós, and paid the Li is his own system recommended below to produce of five of them to the government. PI Chan. 7. Of the Lung quoted here, all that Chao Ch'l and Chu Hsi say, is that he This payment was the T. By those of Yin, 630 mdu were divided into nine equal allotments of seventy most each, the central one being reserved for the government, and eight families on the other allotments uniting in its families on the other allotments uniting in its sultivation. By those of Châu, to one family foo make were assigned, and ten families cultivated 1,000 acres in common, dividing the produce, and paying a tenth to government. Such is the account here given by Mencius, but it is very general, and not to be taken, especially as relates to the system of the Châu dynasty, as an accurate exposition of it. More was 'an ancient worthy.' 狼戾 is said to be synonymous with 1 1 1 meaning 'abundant.' That this is the signification is plain enough, but how the characters come to indicate that they proceed to borrowing to increase their means, till the old people and children are found lying in the ditches and water-channels: -where, in such a case, is his parental relation to the people?"

VOL II.

8. 'As to the system of hereditary salaries, that is already observed in Tang.

9. 'It is said in the Book of Poetry,

" May the rain come down on our public field,

And then upon our private fields!"

It is only in the system of mutual aid that there is a public field, and from this passage we perceive that even in the Chau dynasty this system has been recognised.

10. 'Establish heiang, hei, heio, and heido,—all those educational institutions,—for the instruction of the people. The name herang indicates nourishing as its object; heido indicates teaching; and hei indicates archery. By the Hsia dynasty the name hsido was used; by the Yin, that of hei; and by the Chau, that of heiang. the hsio, they belonged to the three dynasties, and by that name. The object of them all is to illustrate the human relations.

meaning. By the is taken by Chao Chi tion is to show that the system of mutual aid as in the translation, and by Chû Hai as—'an angry-looking appearance,' which does not suit in dynasty, and the way is prepared for the se well.

(the rat tone) 在其為民父

(the rat tone) 在其為民父

The second in the content of the people, must come the business of education. The second means the system to instructions given to Pi Chan below. 10. After the due regulation of husbandry, and provision for the 'certain livelihood' of the people, must come the business of education. The second means are considered in the second means and the second means are considered in the 四,—see Bk. I. Pt. Liv. 5. 8. 夫, and tone. ,-see Bk. L. Pt. II. v. g. 9. See the Shih-ching, II. vi. Ode VIII. st. 3, a description of husbandry under the Chau dynasty. -the verb, 4th tone. The object of the quota- | we find the helong mentioned in connexion with tioned were schools of a higher order in the capital of the kingdom and other chief cities of the various States. The others (, heldo, 4th tone) were schools in the villages and smaller towns. In the Li Chi, III. Sect. v. 10, those are thus illustrated by superiors, kindly feeling will prevail among the inferior people below.

11. 'Should a real sovereign arise, he will certainly come and take an example from you; and thus you will be the teacher of the true sovereign.

12. 'It is said in the Book of Poetry,

"Although Chau was an old country,

It received a new destiny."

That is said with reference to king Wan. Do you practise those things with vigour, and you also will by them make new your kiugdom.'

13. The duke afterwards sent Pi Chan to consult Mencius about the nine-squares system of dividing the land. Mencius said to him, 'Since your prince, wishing to put in practice a benevolent government, has made choice of you and put you into this employment, you must exert yourself to the utmost. Now, the first thing towards a benevolent government must be to lay down the boundaries. If the boundaries be not defined correctly, the division of the land into the time of Shun; hes in connexion with the have reference to the inculcation of those Heid dynasty; loss in connexion with the Yin; relations by the institution of schools. The and Chile () in connexion with the Chile.

There is thus some want of harmony between that necessary and the account in the text. Enterthat passage and the account in the text. Entertainments were given to the aged at different times, and in the schools, as an example to the young of the reverence accorded by the government to age. So the schools were selected for the ment to age. So the schools were selected for the character in needs only to be looked at. that passage and the account in the text. Enter-論明於上,—this can hardly mean, If we draw lines to enclose it—thus, 🖽 the human relations have been illus- we have a square portion of ground divitrated by the example of superiors,' but must into nine equal and smaller squares. But can squares will not be equal, and the produce available for salaries will not be evenly distributed. On this account, oppressive rulers and impure ministers are sure to neglect this defining of the boundaries. When the boundaries have been defined correctly, the division of the fields and the regulation of allowances may be determined by you, sitting at your ease.

14. 'Although the territory of T'ang is narrow and small, yet there must be in it men of a superior grade, and there must be in it country-men. If there were not men of a superior grade, there would be none to rule the country-men. If there were not countrymen, there would be none to support the men of superior grade.

15. 'I would ask you, in the remoter districts, observing the nine-squares division, to reserve one division to be cultivated on the system of mutual aid, and in the more central parts of the kingdom, to make the people pay for themselves a tenth part of their produce.

16. 'From the highest officers down to the lowest, each one must have his holy field, consisting of fifty mau.

we suppose it possible to divide a territory in this way? The natural irregularities of the surface would be one great obstacle. And we find below the 'holy field,' and other assignments, which must continually have been requiring districts.' The ## refers to ### III in par. 19. new arrangement of the boundaries, 14. 君 ____,—here, generally, for officers, men not carning their bread by the sweat of their brow. and the toil of their hands; see next chapter. , 'country-men,'=by their toil selfsupporting people generally. 第一码; 期 篇=殆必有. 15. Here the systems of all the three dynasties would seem to be employed, as the nature of the country permitted, | then is 'the clean field,' and as its produce was districts.' The 九 refers to 公 田 in par. 13, - to (翻 226. The former would be the best way in such positions of supporting the 野人, and the latter of supporting the 君子. Similarly, the other clause. 16. 圭 is explained by Chao Chi by , and Chu Hat follows him, though we do not find this meaning of the term in the dictionary. The \pm 田

17. 'Let the supernumerary males have their twenty-five mau.

18. 'On occasions of death, or removal from one dwelling to another, there will be no quitting the district. In the fields of a district, those who belong to the same nine squares render all friendly offices to one another in their going out and coming in, aid one another in keeping watch and ward, and sustain one another in sickness. Thus the people are brought to live in affection and harmony.

19. 'A square & covers nine squares of land, which nine squares contain nine hundred mau. The central square is the public field, and eight families, each having its private hundred mau, cultivate in common the public field. And not till the public work is finished, may they presume to attend to their private affairs. This is the way by which the country-men are distinguished from those of a superior grade.

Happily to Those are the great outlines of the system. modify and adapt it depends on the prince and you.

intended to supply the means of sacrifies, I occasions of death, i.e. in burying. 19. Under translate it by 'the holy field.' It was in addition to the hereditary salary mentioned in par. 8. 17. A family was supposed to embrace the grandfather and grandmother, the husband, tend that the fifty miss of Hais, the seventy of par. 8. 7. A family was supposed to embrace the grandfather and grandmother, the husband, wife, and children, the husband being the grandparents' eldest son. The extra fields were fer other sons whom they might have, and were given to them when they were sixteen. When they married and became heads of families themselves, they received the regular allotment for a family. This is Chû Hat's secount of this paragraph. 18. The social benefits flowing from softening and moistening, i.e. the modifying the nine-squares division of the land. 'On and adapting.

Yin, and the hundred of Chan, were actually of the same dimensions. 35,-the 4th tone, so spoken always, when the subject is the support of a superior by an inferior. 20.

1. There came from Ch'û to T'ang one Hati-Haing, who gave out that he acted according to the words of Shan-nang. Coming right to his gate, he addressed the duke Wan, saying, 'A man of a distant region, I have heard that you, Prince, are practising a benevolent government, and I wish to receive a site for a house, and to become one of your people.' The duke Wan gave him a dwelling-His disciples, amounting to several tens, all wore clothes of haircloth, and made sandals of hemp and wove mats for a living.

2. At the same time, Ch'an Hsiang, a disciple of Ch'an Liang, and his younger brother, Hsin, with their plough-handles and shares on

4. Memorius resultation of the document that reigns, extending with his own over 515 years. It should be reposed in this chronology, it would place him a.c. gets. In the appendix the develop of labour, and of a lettered to the Yi-ching, he is colebrated as the Father ass composing covernment. The first three of Husbandry. Other traditions make him the THE BULER OUGHT TO LABOUR AT HUBBANDRY WITH HIS OWN MANDS. HE VINDIGATES THE PROPRIETY OF THE DEVISION OF LABOUR, AND OF A LITTERED CLASS COMPOUNDS COVERNMENT. The first three paragraphs, it is said, relate how Heing, the herestiarch, and Haing, his follower, wished secretly to destroy the arrangements advised by Mancius for the division of the land. The next eight paragraphs expess the great error of Heing, that the ruler must labour at the toils of husbandry as well as the people. From the twelfth paragraph to the sixteenth, Heing is rebulked for foresking his master, and taking up with Hsing's heresy. In the last two para-graphs, Mencius proceeds, from the evasive replies of Hsiang, to give the coup de grace to the new pernicious teachings. z. 😩 is explained, by Chao Ch'1, by治為, and 青as-道, so that 篇... 言者='one who cultivated the destrines. Most others take 為-假託 'making a false pretence of.' Shin-ning, 'Wonderful husbandman,' is the style of the second of the five famous it, or early 'sovereigns,' of Chinese history. He is also called Yen (🎉) Ti, 'the Blazing Sovereign.' He is placed en Fû-hai and Hwang Ti, though separ-

Father of Medicine also. 之際,一之 is the verb, -往. 踵, in the dictionary, after Châe Ch'i is explained by $\frac{1}{2}$, 'came to.' Ch' Hat mysthat隨門-足至門. 廛and 幆 see Bk. II. Pt. L.v. 5, but the meaning of here is different, denoting the ground assigned for the dwelling of a husbandman. 🛣 (4th tone) 🔼,—it would appear from par. 4 that this 'haircloth' was a very inartificial structure, not woven at least with much art. 'mndals of hemp,' opposed to III, which were made of grass, and 🌇, which were made of leather 捆 is explained by 和 揉 'to beat and hammer. 席 properly denotes single mats made of rushes (美 浦). This manufacture of sandals and mate is supposed in the 篇旨to have been only a temporary employated from the latter by an intervention of seven ment of Haing's followers till lands should be their backs, came from Sung to Tang, saying, 'We have heard that you, Prince, are putting into practice the government of the ancient sages, showing that you are likewise a sage. We wish to become the subjects of a sage.' 3. When Ch'an Haiang saw Hati Haing, he was greatly pleased with him, and, abandoning entirely whatever he had learned, became his disciple. Having an interview with Mencius, he related to him with approbation the words of Hsti Hsing to the following effect:-'The prince of Tang is indeed a worthy prince. He has not yet heard, however, the real doctrines of antiquity. Now, wise and able princes should cultivate the ground equally and along with their people, and eat the fruit of their labour. They should prepare their own meals, morning and evening, while at the same time they carry on their government. But now, the prince of Tang has his granaries, treasuries, and arsenals, which is an oppressing of the people to nourish himself. How can he be deemed a real worthy prince?

4. Mencius said, 'I suppose that Hsu Hsing sows grain and eats assigned them. s. Of the individuals men-tioned here, we know nothing more than can ing the preparation of those meals. If and be gathered from this chapter. The 1111, or share, as originally made by Shan-nang, was of wood. In Mencius's time, it had come to be granary for rice, the former for other grain. made of iron; see par. 4. above. 3 道許行之青,道 is the these remarks would be to invalidate Menetus's ii. 1. 差距 denote the morning and evening 4. Observe the force of 派 ... 平, as in the

are to be distinguished, the latter is a 之態,-之ss 養, in 4th tone. The object of Hall Haing in doctrine given in the last chapter, par. 14, that 著, -as in Bk. I. Pt I. the ruler must be supported by the country-men.

the produce. Is it not so?' 'It is so,' was the answer. 'I suppose also he weaves cloth, and wears his own manufacture. Is it not so? 'No. Hsti wears clothes of haircloth.' 'Does he wear a cap?' 'He wears a cap.' 'What kind of cap?' 'A plain cap.' woven by himself?' 'No. He gets it in exchange for grain.' 'Why does Hat not weave it himself?' 'That would injure his husbandry.' 'Does Hatt cook his food in boilers and earthenware pans, and does he plough with an iron share?' 'Yes.' 'Does he make those articles himself?' 'No. He gets them in exchange for grain.

5. Mencius then said, 'The getting those various articles in exchange for grain, is not oppressive to the potter and the founder, and the potter and the founder in their turn, in exchanging their various articles for grain, are not oppressive to the husbandman. How should 衣, 4th tone. generally. cap is plain, i.e. undyed and unadorned. The distinction given by Cha Hai between 🌉 and is, that the former was used for boiling, the latter for steaming. Their composition indicates that they were made of iron and clay respectively. The 🌉 was distinguished from other iron boilers by having no feet. 5.

. 者='he who gets,' or, as in the transla-translation. , 'millet,' but here - grain | but also used synonymously with I have , 'His added a sentence to bring out the force of in 景色區云云. Cht Hat puis a point at 治, and taking 会 (in 3rd tone) in the sense of [, 'only,' construes it with what follows. This is better than to join it, in the sense of house or shop, with partial has here forced to make an admission, fatal to his new master's doctrine, that every man should do everything for himself. The only difficulty is tion, 'the getting' he, -properly 'stocks,' with the H, which here = 'but.' The two such a thing be supposed? And moreover, why does not Hsü act the potter and founder, supplying himself with the articles which he uses solely from his own establishment? Why does he go confusedly dealing and exchanging with the handicraftsmen? Why does he not spare himself so much trouble?' Ch'an Hsiang replied, 'The business of the handicraftsman can by no means be carried on along with the business of husbandry.

6. Mencius resumed, 'Then, is it the government of the kingdom which alone can be carried on along with the practice of husbandry? Great men have their proper business, and little men have their proper business. Moreover, in the case of any single individual, whatever articles he can require are ready to his hand, being produced by the various handicraftsmen:—if he must first make them for his own use, this way of doing would keep all the people running about upon the roads. Hence, there is the saying, "Some labour with their minds, and some labour with their strength. Those who labour with their minds govern others; those who labour with their strength and founder, &c.?' 6. In -·人之身·而 百工之所爲備the construction is not easy. The correct meaning seems to be that his dwelling-place, the productions of the given in the translation. Some take in various workers must all be completed in suf-of the 日講:—'Reckoning in the case of are governed by others. Those who are governed by others support them; those who govern others are supported by them."

a principle universally recognised.

7. 'In the time of Yao, when the world had not yet been perfectly reduced to order, the vast waters, flowing out of their channels, made a universal inundation. Vegetation was luxuriant, and birds and beasts swarmed. The various kinds of grain could not be grown. The birds and beasts pressed upon men. The paths marked by the feet of beasts and prints of birds crossed one another throughout the Middle Kingdom. To Yao alone this caused anxious sorrow. He raised Shun to office, and measures to regulate the disorder were set forth. Shun committed to YI the direction of the fire to be employed, and Y1 set fire to, and consumed, the forests and vegetation on the mountains and in the marshes, so that the birds and beasts fled away to hide themselves. Yii separated the nine streams, cleared the courses of the Tsi and T'a, and led them all to the sea. He opened anxiety support his children and parents.' This gives a good enough meaning in the connexion, but the signification attached to is hardly m s, 'and road otherwise authorised.

ficiency, and then he has abundantly everything | is the idea of a wild, confused, chaotic state, for profitable employment, and can without which the successive sages had been at work any lety support his children and parents. This without any great amount of success. Then is without any great amount of success. Then in the next paragraph we have Hau-chi doing over again the work of Shan-ning and teaching It is difficult to go beyond men husbandry. Yao for the founding of the Chinese kingdom. otherwise authorised. In 场 'and road The various questions which would arise here, them,'=奔走道路. 食, 4th tone, tsse. however, will be found discussed in the first part of the Shū-ching. It is only necessary to observe in reference to the calamity here. taken in the sense of 'world,' or 'earth.' There lation of water, but from the natural river5、44、熟、民 入、年 a vent also for the Zû and Han, and regulated the course of the Hwai and Sze, so that they all flowed into the Chiang. was done, it became possible for the people of the Middle Kingdom to cultivate the ground and get food for themselves. During that time, Yti was eight years away from his home, and though he thrice passed the door of it, he did not enter. Although he had wished to cultivate the ground, could he have done so?

8. 'The Minister of Agriculture taught the people to sow and reap, cultivating the five kinds of grain. When the five kinds of grain were brought to maturity, the people all obtained a subsistence. But men possess a moral nature; and if they are well fed, warmly clad, and comfortably lodged, without being taught at the same time, they become almost like the beasts. This was a subject of anxious solicitude to the sage Shun, and he appointed Hsieh to be the Minister of Instruction, to teach the relations of humanity:how, between father and son, there should be affection; between channels being all broken up and disordered. [anxiety. For the labours of Shun, Y1, and Y2, in 4th tone, 'disobedient,' 'unreason- see the Shû-ching, Parts I, II, III. able.' 📶 📆, 'the five kinds of grains,' are | 3rd tone. 📆,-read Ta. The nine streams pannicled millet, wheat, and pulse, but each of these terms must be taken as comprehending these terms must be taken as comprehending that the companion of the variable of the companion of the tion to T, is the portion of country which was first settled, and regarded as a centre to all the see. He supposes an error on the part of surrounding territories. # 2 2, the recorder of Mencius's words. 8. Hau-chi, now received as a proper name, is properly the official title of Shun's Minister of Agriculture, reign, in which it belonged to him to feel this Ch'1 () (read Heich) was the name sovereign and minister, righteousness; between husband and wife, attention to their separate functions; between old and young, a proper order; and between friends, fidelity. The highly meritorious sovereign said to him, "Encourage them; lead them on; rectify them; straighten them; help them; give them wings:—thus causing them to become possessors of themselves. Then follow this up by stimulating them, and conferring benefits on them." When the sages were exercising their solicitude for the people in this way, had they leisure to cultivate the ground?

o. 'What Yao felt giving him anxiety was the not getting Shun. What Shun felt giving him anxiety was the not getting Yu and Kao Yao. But he whose anxiety is about his hundred mau not being properly cultivated, is a mere husbandman.

of his Minister of Instruction. For these men, the opening sentence of the Shu-ching, who is and their works, see the Shu-ching, Part II. 数,—used synonymously with 森,—植, 'to plant,' or 'sow.' foreigners generally try to construe this expression as they do the 民之 in the preceding chapter, par. 2, not having regard to the difference of 民 and 人, of 怎 and 有, and the five repetitions of 有 farther he paragraph. The interpretation which I have adopted is that of Chu Hat, and every critic of note whom I have consulted. is supposed to be plural, - 'the sages. however, cannot be, as the p immediately following must be understood with reference to Shun only. What has made 12 人 be taken as plural, is that the instructions addressed to form of it is Q. It is difficult to determine Haich are said to be from in (3rd tone) which are two of the epithets applied to Yao in surname, or to keep them apart as surname therefore supposed to be the speaker. Yet it was Shun who appointed Hsieh, and gave him his instructions, and may not Mencius intend him by 'The highly meritorious'? The address itself is not found in the Shu-ching. 來are both in 4th tone. In 夫婦有別, | - 'separate functions,' according to which the husband is said to preside over all that is external, and the wife over all that is internal, while to the former it belongs to lead, and to the latter to follow. 9. An illustration of the 有大人之事·有小人之! par. 6. 病,—read i, in 4th tone, in the sense of 🎢 (in and tone). The Kao of Kao Yao is generally written as in the text, but the proper whether to unite the two characters as a double

'The imparting by a man to others of his wealth, is called "kindness." The teaching others what is good, is called "the exercise of fidelity." The finding a man who shall benefit the kingdom, is called "benevolence." Hence to give the throne to another man would be easy; to find a man who shall benefit the kingdom is difficult.

11. 'Confucius said, "Great indeed was Yao as a sovereign. is only Heaven that is great, and only Yao corresponded to it. How vast was his virtue! The people could find no name for it. Princely indeed was Shun! How majestic was he, having possession of the kingdom, and yet seeming as if it were nothing to him!" In their overning the kingdom, were there no subjects on which Yao and Shun employed their minds? There were subjects, only they did not employ their minds on the cultivation of the ground.

12. 'I have heard of men using the doctrines of our great land to change barbarians, but I have never yet heard of any being changed behalf of, - who shall benefit.

Tread as | Tread a in the text, and meening 'easy.' The diffi-culty spoken of arises from this, that to find the man in question requires the finder to go out of himself, and is beyond what is in his own power. The reader must beer in mind that 仁 is the minds, but still, &c.' 12. 夏 and 夷, name for the highest virtue, the combination used as in Analects, III. v. 🔭,—the verb, by barbarians. Ch'an Liang was a native of Ch'û. Pleased with the doctrines of Chau-kung and Chung-ni, he came northwards to the Middle Kingdom and studied them. Among the scholars of the northern regions, there was perhaps no one who excelled him. He was what you call a scholar of high and distinguished qualities. You and your brother followed him some tens of years, and when your master died, you forthwith turned away from him.

醛、入 沒、年、之

13. 'Formerly, when Confucius died, after three years had elapsed. his disciples collected their baggage, and prepared to return to their several homes. But on entering to take their leave of Tsze-kung, as they looked towards one another, they wailed, till they all lost their voices. After this they returned to their homes, but Tsze-kung went back, and built a house for himself on the altar-ground, where he lived alone other three years, before he returned home. another occasion, Tsze-hsiâ, Tsze-chang, and Tsze-yû, thinking that Yû Zo resembled the sage, wished to render to him the same in 4th tone. 子之兄弟,—not 'your kung had acted to all his co-disciples as master brothers, but as in the translation; compare of the ceremonies. Hence they took a fermal par. s. Hence they took a fermal leave of him. is a flat place, an area excluded from 'the Middle Kingdom' of Men. exceluded from 'the Middle Kingdom' of Mencies's time. 13. On the death of Confucius, his disciples remained by his grave for three years, mourning for him as for a father, but without wearing the mourning dress. 'L' L,—both by Taze-kung for himself! I saw it in 1873. On Yt Zo's resemblance to Confucius, see the observances which they had rendered to Confucius. They tried to force the disciple Tsang to join with them, but he said, "This may not be done. What has been washed in the waters of the Chiang and Han, and bleached in the autumn sun:—how glistening is it! Nothing can be added to it."

14. Now here is this shrike-tongued barbarian of the south, whose doctrines are not those of the ancient kings. You turn away from your master and become his disciple. Your conduct is different indeed from that of the philosopher Tsang.

15. 'I have heard of birds leaving dark valleys to remove to lofty trees, but I have not heard of their descending from lofty trees to enter into dark valleys.

16. 'In the Praise-songs of Lû it is said,

"He smote the barbarians of the west and the north,

He purished Ching and Shû."

Thus Chau-kung would be sure to smite them, and you become their disciple again; it appears that your change is not good.'

17. Ch'an Hsiang said, 'If Hsti's doctrines were followed, then Book of Rites, Bk. II. Sect. I. iii. 4. 一,—in grd tone. 果 is in the 4th tone. 一,—read of contempt or dislike, as applied to Hsti Hsing. 一件,—as above. 15. 下,—used as a verb, in Ade, in and tone, or kdo. 一方一加. Compare 4th tone. 16. See the Book of Poetry, IV. ii. ①de IV. st. 6. The two clauses quoted refer to there would not be two prices in the market, nor any deceit in the kingdom. If a boy of five cubits were sent to the market, no one would impose on him; linen and silk of the same length would be of the same price. So it would be with bundles of hemp and silk, being of the same weight; with the different kinds of grain, being the same in quantity; and with shoes which were of the same size.

18. Mencius replied, 'It is the nature of things to be of unequal Some are twice, some five times, some ten times, some a hundred times, some a thousand times, some ten thousand times as valuable as others. If you reduce them all to the same standard, that must throw the kingdom into confusion. If large shoes and small shoes were of the same price, who would make them? For people to follow the doctrines of Hsti, would be for them to lead one another on to practise deceit. How can they avail for the government of a State?"

the achievements of the duke Hst. Mencius i threads, and may be used of silk or flax. 🔀 ness them as if they expressed the approbation of his ancestor Chau-kung. 17. 7,—read abid, 4th tone, = 12. Analosta, VIII. vi. [版] joined together, I think, in pairs, in opposition to the 行用 above, the manufactured articles.

is explained, also in the 設文, by 化 'spoiled, or bad, floss.' Its general application is to floss of an inferior quality. 18. 任持, different from that in pars. 18, 15, meaning 'as much again.' 相-相 去, 'are separated from each other,' or 'are to each other as.' The is explained, in the 設 文, by 题, size of the shoes is mentioned as a thing more

1. The Mohist, I Chih, sought, through Hsti Pt, to see Mencius. Mencius said, 'I indeed wish to see him, but at present When I am better, I will myself go and see him. I am still unwell.

He need not come here again.'

2. Next day, I Chih again sought to see Mencius. Mencius said, 'To-day I am able to see him. But if I do not correct his errors, the true principles will not be fully evident. Let me first correct him. I have heard that this I is a Mohist. Now Mo considers that in the regulation of funeral matters a spare simplicity should be the rule. I thinks with Mo's doctrines to change the customs of the kingdom;—how does he regard them as if they were wrong, and not

5. How Menceus convinced a Morint of his or, that all men were to be loved equally, PERSON DEFPENDINGS OF DESERT. 1. Mo, by name (read IV), was a heresiarch between the lmes of Confectus and Menetus. His most distinguishing principle was that of universal and nal leve, which he contended would remedy all the evils of society ;—see next Part, chap. ix, of al. It has been contended, however, by the Bev. Dr. Edkins, that Mencius's account of Mo's views is unfair. See Journal of the North-China Branch of the Royal Asiatic Society, No. II. Some of Mo's writings remain, and some notice of them will be found in the prolegemena. 家译 (read F or P) was a disciple of Menstus. The philosopher, according to the opinion of Chû Hei, was well enough, but feigned sick- | 不見,一見,4th tena. 我且直之,一 palpable than their quality, and exposing more ness and told I Chih that he need not come easily the absurdity of Heti's proposition.

6. How MERCHUS CONVERGED A MORREY OF HIS be understood that Chih had intimated that he was dissatisfied with his Mohism, and Monetus would be guided in his judgment of his really being so, by testing his desire to obtain an inter-view with him. It is difficult to express the force of the particle | ;- 'myself' cothes near

> 夷子不來 is Monoton's remark, and Ohio Ch'l is wrong, when he carries it en to the next paragraph, and construes—'I in con-sequence did not then come, but another day, a. 他 日, 'another day;' probably, 'next tition of the application satisfied Maneius that Chih was really anxious to be in structed. 直, Ohd Hai says, - 盡言以相 II. 'to expound the truth fully to correct him.'

Notwithstanding his views, I buried his parents in a sumptuous manner, and so he served them in the way which his doctrines discountenance.

3. The disciple Hsu informed I of these remarks. I said, 'Even according to the principles of the learned, we find that the ancients acted towards the people "as if they were watching over an infant." What does this expression mean? To me it sounds that we are to love all without difference of degree; but the manifestation of love must begin with our parents.' Hett reported this reply to Mencius, who said, 'Now, does I really think that a man's affection for the child of his brother is merely like his affection for the infant of a neighbour? What is to be approved in that expression is simply this:—that if an infant crawling about is likely to fall into a well,

且 is here = 將, 'will.'. The 備 旨 says | quoted in the 'Great Learning.' Commentary, that 對未達見音, 'it is used with refer-ence to the not readily granting I an interview.' 盖, read to'se, 'uneven.' 盖 等, -'uneven.' Mencius wanted to put the applicant right, before conversing with him. We are to suppose that, after the acknowledgment in the concluding paragraph, he admitted I to his presence. This principle about conducting funerals, or mourning generally, in a spare and inexpensive manner, was a subordinate point of Mo's teaching, and Mencius knowing that I that had not observed it, say how he could Child had not observed it, saw how he could supplemented by the reader:—'The child's lead him on from it to see the error of the chief falling into the well being thus from no perprinciple of the sect. 黄 and 黄 are both verbs. 2. Chih attempts to show that the classical destrine likewise had the principle of equal and universal love. See the 古伊赤子, degrees.' 1 Chih does not attempt to vindicate the sumptuous interment of his parents;—he says 應由始親, not knowing what to 夫,--and tone. 彼有取留(say. 耳) 也, with what follows, requires to be it is no crime in the infant. Moreover, Heaven gives birth to creatures in such a way that they have one root, and I makes them to have two roots. This is the cause of his error.

4. 'And, in the most ancient times, there were some who did not inter their parents. When their parents died, they took them up and threw them into some water-channel. Afterwards, when passing by them, they saw foxes and wild-cats devouring them, and flies and gnats biting at them. The perspiration started out upon their foreheads, and they looked away, unable to bear the sight. It was not on account of other people that this perspiration flowed. The emotions in the words which he quotes.' Ohio Chil the sages had not yet delivered their rules for makes it refer to I Chih :—'he only takes a part of the meaning. He loses the scope of he whole, and clings to the word infant." is ingenious, but does not seem sound. The 'one root' is the parents (and the seed in reference to inanimate things, but the subject is all about men, and hence the 備旨 says that the is to be taken as - 人), to whom re should be given a peculiar affection. Mo mying that other men should be loved as much, and in the same way, as parents, made two roots. The ty is quite enigmatic, but it is explained as I have done. 4. 📆, not exactly 'for,' but as a more general continua-tive. Julien translates the first clause :-- 'Perre tive. Fullon translates the first clause: — revre in superioritus soulis nondom arout qui supriruni suce parantu, and he blames Hool for rendering — quidam flit parantes suce tunule non mandabant.' Memoius, he says, 'is treating of all men, and not of some only.' I cannot, however, get over the 看, which would seem to require the rendering given by Noel. Reference is made a proof of what is said before indeed to the highestantiquity(上世), when 反棄極, 'overturned baskets and shovels,' ceremonies, but from the clause 非 個人 we may infer that even then all were not equally unobservant of what was proper. ,—the 1st tone. The passing by is not to be taken as for-tuitous. Their natural solicitude brought them to see how it was with the bedies. The 'the for.' 🌉 or 🕮 is a name given to different animals. We have the Sh Am, or 'wild cat;' the , which appears to be the 'raccoon;' and others. 17, says Cha Hel, has no meaning, but is a drawl between the words before and after it. Some would take it for mi, a kind of cricket. 非個人說, -compare非所以要暴云云,Bk. II. Pt. I. vi. 3. The All their middle heart," the very centre of their being. - 'and forthwith,' but what follows contains of their hearts affected their faces and eyes, and instantly they went home, and came back with baskets and spades and covered the bodies. If the covering them thus was indeed right, you may see that the filial son and virtuous man, in interring in a handsome manner their parents, act according to a proper rule.'

5. The disciple Hsu informed I of what Mencius had said. I was thoughtful for a short time, and then said, 'He has instructed me.

in the tonal notes in most editions of Mencius), in the dictionary, is explained, as 'the appearin and tone. The meaning of is obscure; ance of being surprised.' In Analests, XVIII.

i.e. of earth. 重,—read is (not ill, as enjoined | handsome one must be right also. 5. 懦 默, chat of a spade or shovel (wooden, of course) is given, however, to it. The conclusion of the argument is this, that what affection prompted in the first case, was prompted similarly in its more sumptious exhibition in the progress of civilization. If any interment was right, a name.

TĂNG WĂN KUNG. PART II.

CHAPTER I. 1. Ch'an Tai said to Mencius, 'In not going to wait upon any of the princes, you seem to me to be standing on a small point. If now you were once to wait upon them, the result might be so great that you would make one of them sovereign, or, if smaller, that you would make one of them chief of all the other princes. Moreover, the History says, "By bending only one cubit, you make eight cubits straight." It appears to me like a thing which might be done.

2. Mencius said, 'Formerly, the duke Ching of Ch'i, once when he was hunting, called his forester to him by a flag. The forester would not come, and the duke was going to kill him. With reference to this incident, Confucius said, "The determined officer never forgets

1. How MERCIUS DEFENDED THE DIGHTY OF were greatly employed,' and 小一小用. EMBRYS BY WHICH HE RECULATED HIS INTER-COURSE WITH THE PRINCES OF HIS TIME. To understand the chapter, it must be borne in mind, that there were many wandering scholars in the days of Mencius, men who went from court to court, recommending themselves to the various princes, and trying to influence the course of events by their counsels. They would stoop for place and employment. Not so with our philosopher. He required that there should be shown to himself a portion of the respect which was due to the principles of which he was the expounder.

I. Ch'an Tai was one of Mencius's disciples.

Remoius's disciples.

Remoius's disciples. our philosopher. He required that there should be shown to himself a portion of the respect which was due to the principles of which he lation. The clauses must be expanded 一大 則以其君王,小則以其君霸. T,-4th tone. ,-see Pt. I. ii. 3. The 'thing that might be done' is Mencius's going to wait on the princes. 2. The 美人 was an 宜若小然,-'in reason is as if it were an account of the office, where it appears, that, on occasion of a great hunting, the forester small like.' 大is said to be 大用, 'if you had to clear the paths, and set up flags for the that his end may be in a ditch or a stream; the brave officer never forgets that he may lose his head." What was it in the forester that Confucius thus approved? He approved his not going to the duke, when summoned by the article which was not appropriate to him. If one go to see the princes without waiting to be invited, what can be thought of him?

3. 'Moreover, that sentence, "By bending only one cubit, you make eight cubits straight," is spoken with reference to the gain that may be got. If gain be the object, then, if it can be got by bending eight cubits to make one cubit straight, may we likewise do that?

4. 'Formerly, the officer Chao Chien made Wang Liang act as charioteer for his favourite Hal, when, in the course of a whole day, hunters to collect around. There the charges are the 'hills' and 'marshes,' and here, according to Châo Ch'i and Chû Hei, they were the 'pre-serves and parks.' In those times, the various efficers had their several tokens, which the prince's messenger bore when he was sent to call any of them. A forester's token was a furcap, and the one in the text would not answer amons with a flag. See the incident in the 左傳, 昭公, 二十年, where the details, however, and Confucius's judgment on it, are different. It is there said:—'The prince of Ch'i was hunting in P'i and summoned the forester with a loss. As the forester did not come, the prince had him seized, when he excused himself, saying, In the huntings of former princes, 大夫 have been summened with a banner; - , with a bow; and the forester with a far cap. As I did not see the fur cap, I did not venture to approach.

The duke on this dismissed the man. Chungni said, He observed the law of his affice, rather than the ordinary rule of answering the summons. Superior men will approve of his act.' H,-used for Hg or IH. The observations which must be taken as made by Confucius are found nowhere else. time—the 左 傳'and 圖 語—by different 元,-here-首, 'the head.' 不忘's a difficult phrase in the connexion. I have made the best of it I could. The first 直招 is plain enough—the summons appropriate to him, i.e. to a forester. We cannot lay so much stress, however, on the II in the same phrase in the last sentance, the subject of the chapter being the question of Mencius's waiting on the princes without being called by them at all. 3. 且夫 (sad tone) is more forcible and argumentative than 且 alone. 如以利 -如以計利爲心. The question in 亦可意思 is an appeal to Thi's own sense of what was right. Admitting what I e asked in par. , any amount of evil might be done that good might come. Was he prepared to allow that? 4. The Chien (in Chao Chien is the posthumous epithet. His name was (Yang), a noble of Tsin, in the time of Confucius, and Wang Liang was his charioteer, famous for his skill. Liang appears in the histories of the they did not get a single bird. The favourite Hal reported this result, saying, "He is the poorest charioteer in the world." Some one told this to Wang Liang, who said, "I beg leave to try again." By dint of pressing, this was accorded to him, when in one morning they got ten birds. The favourite, reporting this result, said, "He is the best charioteer in the world." Chien said, "I will make him always drive your chariot for you." When he told Wang Liang so, however, Liang refused, saying, "I drove for him, strictly observing the proper rules for driving, and in the whole day he did not get one bird. I drove for him so as deceitfully to intercept the birds, and in one morning he got ten. It is said in the Book of Poetry,

'There is no failure in the management of their horses;

The arrows are discharged surely, like the blows of an axe.' I am not accustomed to drive for a mean man. I beg leave to decline the office."

names. He is called 郵無恤, 郵無 manage the chariot-driving for you.' It is not 正, 郵 夏, as well as 干 夏;—see the 四書柘餘說, in loc. 與=爲, 'for,' not,' i.e. would not be induced to take the office. and 🚎 (4th tone), 'a chariot,' is used as a verb, 'to drive a chariot.' 反命,—see Pt. --and tone. 堂與女(=汝)秉;--'to used for憎. 5.比,--4th tone, in the see common in Chinese to separate, as here, the verb and its object. 良不可, 'Liang might 吾爲(4th tone)之範我馳塵,'Ifor him less-ed my racing my horses and whipping

'Thus this charioteer even was ashamed to bend improperly to the will of such an archer. Though, by bending to it, they would have caught birds and animals sufficient to form a hill, he would not do so. If I were to bend my principles and follow those princes, of what kind would my conduct be? And you are wrong. Never has a man who has bent himself been able to make others straight,

CHAP. II. 1. Ching Ch'un said to Mencius, 'Are not Kung-sun Yen and Chang I really great men! Let them once be angry, and all the princes are afraid. Let them live quietly, and the flames of trouble are extinguished throughout the kingdom.'

2. Mencius said, 'How can such men be great men? not read the Ritual Usages?—" At the capping of a young man, his of 'to flatter, 'a mound,' 'a hill.' The 彼,-'that, or those,' 列傳, chap.z. 丈夫,-see Pt. I.i.4. The referring to E & in par. 1. We must supply I, as the subject of 3. The concluding remark is just, but hardly consistent with the allowances for their personal misconduct which Mencius was prepared to make to the princes.

2. MENOTUS'S CONCEPTION OF THE GREAT MAN. 1. Ching Ch'un was a man of Mencius's days, 'a practicer of the art of up-and-across' (個 乙術者), i.e. one who plumed himself on his versatility. Kung-sun Yen and the I L1 (). He throws various pas Wei (311), and among the most celebrated of the ambitious scholars, who went from State to her mother admonish the bride, but her father State, seeking employment, and embroiling the also, and his concubines, and all to the effect

,-to be taken together, princes; -see the 'Historical Records,' Book C, phrase is used, however, in the next paragraph 熄 has, in the Shwo for 'a grown-up youth.' Wan, the opposite meanings of 'feeding a fire' and 'extinguishing a fire.' The latter is its meaning here. a. 是,—referring to Yen and I with what is said about them above. rogative, in 1st tone. The 'Rites' or 'Book of Rites,' to which Mencius here chisfly refer, is not the compilation now received among the higher classics, under the name of the Li Chi, but father admonishes him. At the marrying away of a young woman, her mother admonishes her, accompanying her to the door on her leaving, and cautioning her with these words, 'You are going to your home. You must be respectful; you must be careful. Do not disobey your husband." Thus, to look upon compliance as their correct course is the rule for women.

3. 'To dwell in the wide house of the world, to stand in the correct seat of the world, and to walk in the great path of the world; when he obtains his desire for office, to practise his principles for the good of the people; and when that desire is disappointed, to practise them alone; to be above the power of riches and honours to make dissipated, of poverty and mean condition to make swerve from principle, and of power and force to make bend:—these characteristics constitute the great man.'

that she is to be obedient, though the husband wives. 3. 'The wide house of the world' is (here called 夫子) is not expressly mentioned. See the 儀龍註疏, Bk. II. pp. 49, 50. For the ceremonies of Capping, see the same, Bk. L. In 送之門 and, more especially, in 往之女(汝)家 the 之 joins the verbs and nouns, and is construed as benevolence or love, the chief and home of all the virtues; 'the correct seat' is propriety; and 'the great path' is righteourness. 與民由之 (the Z refers to the virtues so metaphorically indicated),—'walks according to them along with the people.' The paraphrase in the 日語 says :-- 'Getting his desire, and being

CHAP. III. 1. Châu Hsiâo asked Mencius, saying, 'Did superior men of old time take office?' Mencius replied, 'They did.' Record says, "If Confucius was three months without being employed by some ruler, he looked anxious and unhappy. When he passed from the boundary of a State, he was sure to carry with him his proper gift of introduction." Kung-ming I said, "Among the ancients, if an officer was three months unemployed by a ruler, he was condoled with."

2. Hsido said, 'Did not this condoling, on being three months unemployed by a ruler, show a too great urgency?'

3. Mencius answered, 'The loss of his place to an officer is like the loss of his State to a prince. It is said in the Book of Rites, "A prince ploughs himself, and is assisted by the people, to supply

IT HAY NOT BE SOUGHT BUT BY ITS PROPER PATH. It will be seen that the questioner of Mencius in this chapter—a man of Wei, and one of the wandering scholars of the time—wished to condemn the philosopher for the dignity of reserve which he maintained in his intercourse with the maintained for the dignity of reserve with the maintained for the dignity of reserve with the maintained for the dignity of reserve with the maintained for the dignity of the state with the maintained for the state of the s the various princes. Mencius does not evade any of his questions, and very satisfactorily vindicates himself. I. 🔼,—the 4th tone, the 'Record;' whatever it was, it is now lost 無君,--'without a ruler,' i. e. without office. 里如 is 'the appearance of one who is seeking for something and cannot find it.' It is appropriate to a mourner in the first stages of W,-read all, in grief after bereavement. ard tone, symonymous with 🚾. Every person waiting on another,—a superior,—was supposed to pave his way by some introductory ii. pars. 5-7, and Bk. IV. Sect. L iii. 12, Sect. L iii. 12, Sect. L iii. 12, Sect. L iii. 13, Sect. L iii. 14, Sect. L iii. 15, Sect. L iii. 16, Sect. L iii. 17, Sect. L iii. 18, Sect. L iii. 18, Sect. L iii. 19. Chu Hat, to illustrate the text, gives

8. OFFICE IS TO BE HAGHELY DESIRED, AND YET IT DO BE USED FOR THAT BY HE SOUGHT BUT BY ITS PROPER PAYE. It. See the Li Chi, Ek. I. Pt. II. iii. 19. Continuity of the seen that the questioner of Mencius in this chapter—a man of Wei, and one of the lose any opportunity of getting to be in office and oring scholars of the time—wished to combine the philosopher for the dignity of reserve thick he maintained in his intercourse with he various princes. Mencius does not evade as worthy, but of what time and what the various princes. Mencius does not evade as worthy, but of what time and what the various princes. Mencius does not evade as worthy, but of what time and what the philosopher for the dignity of the seen that the questions of the individual of the agent of the princes. Mencius does not evade as worthy, but of what time and what the philosopher for the dignity of reserve. Julien translates []] []] incorrectly by—'Amo in lucks event.' The paraphrase of the H says :- 'Then people all came to condole with and to comfort them.' a 📙 is to be taken es symonymous with 已; 時不已急 平. 3. 圆家,—the State, embracing the families of the nobles. In his quotations from the Li Chi, Moneius combines and adapts to his

the millet for sacrifice. His wife keeps silkworms, and unwinds their cocoons, to make the garments for sacrifice." If the victims be not perfect, the millet not pure, and the dress not complete, he does not presume to sacrifice. "And the scholar who, out of office, has no holy field, in the same way, does not sacrifice. The victims for slaughter, the vessels, and the garments, not being all complete, he does not presume to sacrifice, and then neither may he dare to feel happy." Is there not here sufficient ground also for condolence?'

4. Heido again asked, 'What was the meaning of Confucius's always carrying his proper gift of introduction with him, when he passed over the boundaries of the State where he had been?

5. 'An officer's being in office,' was the reply, 'is like the ploughing of a husbandman. Does a husbandman part with his plough, because he goes from one State to another?'

another summary of the passages in the Li Chi, threads for the ornaments on the robes to be thus:—'It is said in the Book of Rites, The worn in sacrificing to the former kings and princes had their special field of 100 sees, in which, wearing their crown, with its blue flaps turned up, they held the plough to commence the ploughing, which was afterwards completed with the help of the common people. The produce of this field was reaped and stored in the deal grants to supply the years of the ducal granary, to supply the vessels of millet in the ancestral temple. They also caused the family women (世 婦) of their harem to attend to the silkworms, in the silkwere then presented to their wives, who received them in their secrificial headdress and robe, soaked them, and thrice draw and a thrice d scaked them, and thrice drew out a thread. They then distributed the coccons among the the 圭 field, Pt. L. iii. 16. 器 里 together = vessels. Chû Hai says the the were the covers of the 器. 以宴,—'to feast,'=to feel happy. worm house attached to the State mulberry The argument is that it was not the mere loss proper sacrifices, as here set forth.

6. Hsido pursued, 'The kingdom of Tsin is one, as well as others, of official employments, but I have not heard of anyone being thus earnest about being in office. If there should be this urgency, why does a superior man make any difficulty about taking it? Mencius answered, 'When a son is born, what is desired for him is that he may have a wife; when a daughter is born, what is desired for her is that she may have a husband. This feeling of the parents is possessed by all men. If the young people, without waiting for the orders of their parents, and the arrangements of the go-betweens, shall bore holes to steal a sight of each other, or get over the wall to be with each other, then their parents and all other people will despise them. The ancients did indeed always desire to be in office, but they also hated being so by any improper To seek office by an improper way is of a class with young people's boring holes.'

君子之難仕,—by the 君子, Hsiko the Châu Li, Pt. II. Bk. vi. para. 54—60; the Shithevidently intends Meneius himself, who, however, does not notice the insinuation. 丈夫 seems to have been the rule of the Chinese rece and女子,—here simply 'a son,' 'a daughter.' from time immemorial. 相從,一從-紋, A man marrying is said 有室, to have an 而往,一往-往見諸侯.

6. 'The kingdom of Tsin,'—see Bk. I. Pt. I. v. z. | apartment, 'and a woman marrying, 有家,'to 如道、侯

CHAP. IV. 1. P'ang Kang asked Mencius, saying, 'Is it not an extravagant procedure to go from one prince to another and live upon them, followed by several tens of carriages, and attended by several hundred men?' Mencius replied, 'If there be not a proper ground for taking it, a single bamboo-cup of rice may not be received from a man. If there be such a proper ground then Shun's receiving the kingdom from Yao is not to be considered Do you think it was excessive?' excessive.

2. Kana said, 'No. But for a scholar performing no service to receive his support notwithstanding is improper.'

3. Mencius answered, 'If you do not have an intercommunication of the productions of labour, and an interchange of men's services, so that one from his overplus may supply the deficiency of another, then husbandmen will have a superfluity of grain, and women will have a superfluity of cloth. If you have such an interchange,

4. The LABOURER IS WORTHY OF HIS HIRE, AND be a difficult one. Sun Shih explains it thus :— IERR IS NO LABOURER SO WORTHY AS THE SCHOLAR 'Mencius got his support from the princes, and mo instructs men in vintue. I. P'ang Käng the chariots and disciples got their support from as a disciple of Mencius. His object in ad-THERE IS NO LABOURER SO WORTHY AS THE SCHOLAR was a disciple of Mancius. I. Pling King was a disciple of Mancius. His object in addressing him, as in this chapter, seems to have been to stir him up to visit the princes and go into office. T,-4th-tone, following II, as 從者,一從,44 a numeral or classifier. tome, 'an attendant,' 'a follower,' not in a moral sense. 🚛 ,—the ard tone, explained in the kingdom from Yao. 🎥 may be construed very distionary by 🕮, 'to connect,' 'succeed to.' well as the nominative to the first 💢 🖺 以傳, 'by succession.'-The planese is felt to 8. 守先王之道以待後之學 was from the contributions of the princes, and hence it is said that by their mutual connexion they all lived on the princes.' 🌇 🌊,-(test), 4th tone, 'rice cooked.' Compare Analests, VI.iz. 堯之天下, 'Yao's world,' i.e. the carpenters and carriage-wrights may all get their food from you. Here now is a man, who, at home, is filial, and abroad, respectful to his elders; who watches over the principles of the ancient kings, awaiting the rise of future learners:—and yet you will refuse to support him. How is it that you give honour to the carpenter and carriage-wright, and slight him who practises benevolence and righteousness?'

4. Pang Kang said, 'The aim of the carpenter and carriagewright is by their trades to seek for a living. Is it also the aim of the superior man in his practice of principles thereby to seek for a living?' 'What have you to do,' returned Mencius, 'with his purpose? He is of service to you. He deserves to be supported, and should be supported. And let me ask,—Do you remunerate a man's intention, or do you remunerate his service.' To this Kang replied, 'I remunerate his intention.'

者,—the paraphrase in the 合識 is:—'He | work being in smaller things, such as vessels firmly guards the principles of benevelence and and articles of furniture, and the 🖟 🙏 in righteousness transmitted by the ancient kings, so that they do not get obscured or obstructed by perverse discourses, but hereby await future learners, and secure their having matter of instruction and models of imitation, whereby they may enter into truth and right. Thus he continues the past and opens the way for the future, and does service to the world.' 待, thus, - 'for the benefit of.' The 梓 and in _ 懂 食, but with a different meaning, F are both workers in wood, the 本 人's being='to feed' (active-or passive), 'te give large, such as building houses, &c. The made the wheels and also the cover of a carriage; the M the other parts. 4. Observe how appropriately 45, expressive of futurity or object, follows 志. 可食而食之一 here and the three that follow, are read as

5. Mencius said, 'There is a man here, who breaks your tiles, and draws unsightly figures on your walls;—his purpose may be thereby to seek for his living, but will you indeed remunerate him?' 'No,' said Kang; and Mencius then concluded, 'That being the case, it is not the purpose which you remunerate, but the work done.'

CHAP. V. I. Wan Chang asked Mencius, saying, 'Sung is a small State. Its ruler is now setting about to practise the true royal government, and Ch'i and Ch'u hate and attack him.

in this case is to be done?'

2. Mencius replied, 'When Tang dwelt in Po, he adjoined to the State of Ko, the chief of which was living in a dissolute state and neglecting his proper sacrifices. Tang sent messengers to inquire why he did not sacrifice. He replied, "I have no means of supplying the necessary victims." On this, Tang caused oxen and sheep to be sent to him, but he ate them, and still continued not to sacrifice.

rice to.' 5. (4th tone) 15,-15 means because we know that the duke of Sung (its cornaments on walls; -we must therefore take capital was in the present district of Shangin a bad sense, to correspond to the 🚇 . A man wishes to mend the roof, but he only breaks it; to ornament the wall, but he only disfigures it.

5. THE PRINCE WHO WILL SET HIMSELF TO PRACTISE A REMSVOLENT COVERRHEST ON THE PRINCIPLES OF THE ANCIEST KINGS HAS HORE TO BK. I. Pt. II. iii. I, and xi. 2. Po, the capital year. I. Wan Chang was a disciple of Mencius, the fifth book of whose Works is named from the fifth book of whose Works is named from ame name), is referred to the same department atm. What he says here may surprise us, of Ho-nan as the country of Ko, viz. that of ch'iû [] , in the Kwei-teh department of Ho-nan), or king, as he styled himself, was entirely werthless and oppressive; see the 'Historical Records,' Book XXXVIII, 宋 徽

Tang again sent messengers to ask him the same question as before, when he replied, "I have no means of obtaining the necessary millet." On this, Tang sent the mass of the people of Po to go and till the ground for him, while the old and feeble carried their food to them. The chief of Ko led his people to intercept those who were thus charged with wine, cooked rice, millet, and paddy, and took their stores from them, while they killed those who refused to give them up. There was a boy who had some millet and flesh for the labourers, who was thus slain and robbed. What is said in the Book of History, "The chief of Ko behaved as an enemy to the provision-carriers," has reference to this.

3. 'Because of his murder of this boy, Tang proceeded to punish All within the four seas said, "It is not because he desires the riches of the kingdom, but to avenge a common man and woman."

Kwei-teh. Its site is said to have been distant p,,-p, as above, 4th tone. from the site of the supposed capital of Ko only about 100 M, so that Tang might easily render the services here mentioned to the 伯, chief 說, in ica., 王厚齊 is quoted, to the effect er baron, of Ko. 無以性,—'no means of that if Menedus had not been thus] supplying,' i. e. of obtaining. - 但, 4th tone. (tess), 4th tone. III., 1st tone;—we find it defined it.,—'common men and women;'—see Anathe Shû-ching, IV. ii. 6.—In the in explaining what is alluded to in the word of the Shū-ching, the interpretations of the would have been endless. But that in his (and tone), -- see last chapter. time there were ancient books which could be appealed to 3. 色, 4th tone. 匹夫匹

4. 'When Tang began his work of executing justice, he commenced with Ko, and though he made eleven punitive expeditions, he had not an enemy in the kingdom. When he pursued his work in the east, the rude tribes in the west murmured. So did those on the north, when he was engaged in the south. Their cry was—"Why does he make us last." Thus, the people's longing for him was like their longing for rain in a time of great drought. The frequenters of the markets stopped not. Those engaged in weeding in the fields made no change in their operations. While he punished their rulers, he consoled the people. His progress was like the falling of opportune rain, and the people were delighted. It is said in the Book of History, "We have waited for our prince. When our prince comes, we may escape from the punishments under which we suffer."

5. 'There being some who would not become the subjects of Chau, king W4 proceeded to punish them on the east. He gave tranquillity to their people, who welcomed him with baskets full of their black and yellow silks, saying—"From henceforth we shall serve

4. Compare Bk.L.Pt.II. xi. a. There are, how in loc. 5. Down to 大邑周,—the subever, some variations in the phrases. 第一始. The quotation in the end is from a different part of the Shû-ching;—see Pt. IV. v. Section II. 5. The eleven punitive expeditions of Tang cannot all be determined. From the Shih-ching and Shû-ching six only are made out, while by some their number is given as twenty-stance of this paragraph is found in the Sha-ching;—see Pt. V. iii. 7; but this Book is con-fessed to require much emendation in its arrangement. 士女-男女. 匪,—nsed for 館. 匪厥立黄,—'basketed their azure and yellow etcha' It is said :—'Heaven two, and twenty-seven ;—see the # # is azure, and Earth is yellow. King Wa was the sovereign of our dynasty of Chau, that we may be made happy by him." So they joined themselves, as subjects, to the great city of Chau. Thus, the men of station of Shang took baskets full of Thus, the men of station of Shang took baskets full of black and yellow silks to meet the men of station of Chau, and the lower classes of the one met those of the other with baskets of rice and vessels of congee. Wa saved the people from the midst of fire and water, seizing only their oppressors, and destroying them."

VOL. II.

6. 'In the Great Declaration it is said, "My power shall be put forth, and, invading the territories of Shang, I will seize the oppressor. I will put him to death to punish him:—so shall the greatness of my work appear, more glorious than that of Tang."

7. 'Sung is not, as you say, practising true royal government, and so forth. If it were practising royal government, all within the four seas would be lifting up their heads, and looking for its prince, wishing to have him for their sovereign. Great as Ch't and Ch't are, what would there be to fear from them?

able to put away the evils of the Yin rule, and | Great Capital. The 日霊 has 管心情 gave the people rest. He might be compared to Heaven and Earth, overshadowing and sustaining all things in order to nourish men." (we have] in the Shu-ching),—'to cont understand a 'saying,' and bring out the meaning of 27 thus :-- Formerly we served Shang, and now we continue to serve, but our service is to Châu.' 大臣周, liter as a particle closing the sentence, but also ally, 'great city (or citied) Châu,' which is an refers to the whole of Wan Chang's statement irregular phrase, perhaps equal to Chau of the at the commencement of the conversation.

號隊,而盡 瞬射 渦· This quotation from Pt. V. i. Sect. II. to illustrate the last clause of the preceding paragraph. 7. 公開,

傅

CHAP. VI. 1. Mencius said to Tâi Pû-shăng, 'I see that you are desiring your king to be virtuous, and I will plainly tell you how he may be made so. Suppose that there is a great officer of Ch't here, who wishes his son to learn the speech of Ch't. Will he in that case employ a man of Ch'i as his tutor, or a man of Ch'û?' 'He will employ a man of Ch'i to teach him,' said Pu-shang. Mencius went on, 'If but one man of Ch'i be teaching him, and there be a multitude of men of Ch'û continually shouting out about him, although his father beat him every day, wishing him to learn the speech of Ch'i, it will be impossible for him to do so. the same way, if he were to be taken and placed for several years in Chwang or Yo, though his father should beat him, wishing him to speak the language of Ch'û, it would be impossible for him to do so.

2. 'You supposed that Hsieh Chü-chau was a scholar of virtue, and you have got him placed in attendance on the king. Suppose

6. The emplyings of readified and association. i.e. wishes his son to learn Ch'l. The information of maximum visual and amountains.

The information of maximum visual and amountains.

A soverment's remove. I. This Pô-shing was a minister of Sung, the descendant of one of its dukes who had received the posthumous epithet of Thi, which had been adopted as their surname by a branch of his posterity.

The information of maximum visual and and equal to its part of the capital of the capital of the former being the name of a street, and the latter the name of a neighbour of the capital of the latter the name of a neighbour of the latter the nam implying an affirmative reply. 微其于 s. Hsieh Chü-châu was also a minister Sung, a descendant of one of the princes 之事語, wishes the Ch'l speech of his son, Hsieh, whose family had adopted the man that all in attendance on the king, old and young, high and low, were Hsieh Chü-chaus, whom would the king have to do evil with? And suppose that all in attendance on the king, old and young, high and low, are not Hsieh Chü-chaus, whom will the king have to do good with? What can one Hsieh Chü-châu do alone for the king of Sung?'

1. Kung-sun Chau asked Menoius, saying, 'What Chap. VII. is the point of righteousness involved in your not going to see the princes?' Mencius replied, 'Among the ancients, if one had not been a minister in a State, he did not go to see the sovereign.

2. 'Twan Kan-mû leaped over his wall to avoid the prince. Hsieh Liû shut his door, and would not admit the prince.

of their original State as their surname. In the E, or 未仕於其國. In the Analests, 萬姓通譜 we read:—'Tai Pû-shang said to Hsie Chi-chau, "It is only the virtuous fucius, not then actually in office, but having been so, went to see the duke of La. a. Twan seholar (善士) who can set forth what is virtuous, and shut up the way of what is corupt. You are a scholar of virtue; cannot you take the king virtuous?"' But this and what follows was probably constructed from Meneius's remark, and so I prefer to take 👔 as = 'supposed,' 'believed,' not 'said.' -'to dwell in the ard tone. i.e. to be about him. king's place,

7. MERCIUS DEPENDS HIS NOT COING TO SEE THE PRINCIP BY THE EXAMPLE AND MAXIMS OF THE AMORRISM. I. is is not simply—'what is the meaning?' but 'what is the rightness?' Mencius, however, does not state distinctly the principle of the thing, but appeals to prescription and precedent. 不為臣-未為見矣,—literally, 'being urgent, this (or, Kan-ma was a scholar of Wei (refused to see the prince Wan (文). was the posthumous title of 🏬, n.c. 426-386. In the 'Historical Records,' it is mentioned that he received the writings of Taze-hala, and never drove past Kan-mu's house without bowing forward to the front bar of his carriage. 辟-避, 4th tone. Z refers to the prince Hsieh Lift was a scholar of Lû, who Wän. (); see Bk. II. Pt. II. xi. 3. The incident referred to here must have been previous to the time spoken of there. 追斯印以 two, however, carried their scrupulosity to excess. When a prince is urgent, it is not improper to see him.

3. 'Yang Ho wished to get Confucius to go to see him, but disliked doing so by any want of propriety. As it is the rule, therefore, that when a great officer sends a gift to a scholar, if the latter be not at home to receive it, he must go to the officer's to pay his respects, Yang Ho watched when Confucius was out, and sent him a roasted pig. Confucius, in his turn, watched when Ho was out. and went to pay his respects to him. At that time, Yang Ho had taken the initiative;—how could Confucius decline going to see him?

4. 'Tsang-tsze said, "They who shrug up their shoulders, and laugh in a flattering way, toil harder than the summer labourer in the fields." Tsze-lû said, "There are those who talk with people with whom they have no great community of feeling. If you look at their countenances, they are full of blushes. I do not desire to know such persons." By considering these remarks, the spirit which the superior man nourishes may be known.'

then) may be seen.' 3. 微見一見, it is words. 亡-無, and so read. 4 脅局, moted here, should be read in the 4th tone, with 'to rib,' i.e. to shrug, 'the shoulders.' a Mahil sense. Compare Analects, XVII. i. 飘,—the verb, in 4th tone. 大夫有賜 in Bk. II. Pt. L ii. 16. 夏唯-夏月治 本方,—see the Li Chi, XI. Sect. iii. so. ithose two superior men,' referring to Teing Mencius, however, does not quote the exact and Tane-lt, but this seems to be unnecessary.

CHAP. VIII. 1. Tâi Ying-chih said to Mencius, 'I am not able at present and immediately to do with the levying of a tithe only, and abolishing the duties charged at the passes and in the markets. With your leave I will lighten, however, both the tax and the duties, until next year, and will then make an end of them. What do you think of such a course?'

2. Mencius said, 'Here is a man, who every day appropriates some of his neighbour's strayed fowls. Some one says to him, "Such is not the way of a good man;" and he replies, "With your leave I will diminish my appropriations, and will take only one fowl a month, until next year, when I will make an end of the practice."

3. 'If you know that the thing is unrighteous, then use all despatch in putting an end to it: - why wait till next year?'

CHAP. IX. 1. The disciple Kung-tu said to Mencius, 'Master, the people beyond our sekool all speak of you as being fond of

8. What is whome should be put as but to at all the paragraphs is the verb-'have done one, without residue and without delay. with it,' 'put an end to it.' CHOIR, WITHOUT EMBLEYS AND WITHOUT DELAY.

I. Thi Ying-chih was a great officer of Sung, supposed by some to be the same with Thi Pû-chang, chap, vi. Mencius had, no doubt, been to his appraises to he so was the measurer or talking with him on the points indicated; see Bk. I. Pt. II. v. 3; Bk. III. Pt. I. v. 3; Bk. III.

Would appear from this chapter to have believed to the second of the points of the second of the points. Pt. I. iii. here and below, is simply the him, and that his position was that of a sage, speaker's polite way of indicating his resolu-on whom it devolved to live and labour for the tion. 2. [, - here as in Analects, XIII.xviii. world. 1. 夕入,—'outside men,' i.e. people 損之 君子,—here,='a good man.' diminish it,' i.e. the amount of his captures. 3. 事 is used adverbially, = 'at once.' 已 in 图何, according to the gloss in the 儘合, in general, all beyond his school, as the representative of orthodoxy in the kingdom.

disputing. I venture to ask whether it be so.' Mencius replied. 'Indeed, I am not fond of disputing, but I am compelled to do it.

2. 'A long time has elapsed since this world of men received its being, and there has been along its history now a period of good order, and now a period of confusion.

3. 'In the time of Yao, the waters, flowing out of their channels, inundated the Middle Kingdom. Snakes and dragons occupied it, and the people had no place where they could settle themselves. In the low grounds they made nests for themselves on the trees or. raised platforms, and in the high grounds they made caves. It is said in the Book of History, "The waters in their wild course warned me." Those "waters in their wild course" were the waters of the great inundation.

4. 'Shun employed Yii to reduce the waters to order. Yii dug open their obstructed channels, and conducted them to the sea. drove away the snakes and dragons, and forced them into the grassy

-'I venture to sak why you are so fond of variations of phraseology here from Pt. I. iv. 7. disputing,' as if Kung-tū admitted the charge of the outside people. But it is better to interpret as in the translation. The spirit of 量好辯能 seems to be better given in English by dropping the interrogation. 2. Commentators are unanimous in understanding (音 宮, the winter. 音 宮='artificial 天下之生 not of the material world, and caves,' i.e. caves hollowed out from heaps of taking 生 as-生民. It is remarkable, then, that Mencius, in his review of the history of mankind, does not go beyond the time of Yao (compare Pt. I. iv), and that at its commencement he places a period not of good order —'dug the earth,' but with the meaning in (); 4th tone), but of confusion. 2. Mark the the translation. In is reed by Chû Hat tell, for two have the 'nests' were huts on high-raised platforms. In the Li Chi, VII. Sect. I. par. 8, these are said to have been the summer habitations of the earliest men, and earth raised upon the ground. 本本 is the same as the 水道行above. Chu Hel ex-

On this, the waters pursued their course through the country, even the waters of the Chiang, the Hwai, the Ho, and the Han, and the dangers and obstructions which they had occasioned were removed. The birds and beasts which had injured the people also disappeared, and after this men found the plains available for them, and occupied them.

5. 'After the death of Yao and Shun, the principles that mark sages fell into decay. Oppressive sovereigns arose one after another, who pulled down houses to make ponds and lakes, so that the people know not where they could rest in quiet; they threw fields out of cultivation to form gardens and parks, so that the people could Afterwards, corrupt speakings and opnot get clothes and food. pressive deeds became more rife; gardens and parks, ponds and lakes, thickets and marshes became more numerous, and birds and beasts swarmed. By the time of the tyrant Chau, the kingdom was again in a state of great confusion.

6. 'Châu-kung assisted king Wû, and destroyed Châu. but wrongly. With the meaning in the text, | Wan and Wû; -especially that of Tang. it is read total. 水由地中行一'the waters travelled in the middle or bosom of the earth,' i.e. were no longer spread abroad over its surface. Chu Hai makes 地中-兩涯 之間, 'between their banks,' but that is not so much the idea, as that the waters pursued a course to the sea, through the land, instead of

—in 4th tone. 油, as associated with 濹, means thick marshy jungles, where beasts could find shelter. The k in its composition requires that we recognise the marshiness of the thickets or cover. But this account of the country down to the rise of the Chau dynasty implies that it was thinly peopled. 6. The being spread over its surface. 5. In describing this period of confusion, Mencius seems to ignore the sageship of Tang, and of the kings present district of Ch'd-flu (|| || || || ||) in Yea-smote Yen, and after three years put its sovereign to death. drove Fei-lien to a corner by the sea, and slew him. The States which he extinguished amounted to fifty. He drove far away also the tigers, leopards, rhinoceroses, and elephants;—and all the people was greatly delighted. It is said in the Book of History, "Great and splendid were the plans of king Wan! Greatly were they carried out by the energy of king Wu! They are for the assistance and instruction of us who are of an after day. They are all in principle correct, and deficient in nothing."

7. 'Again the world fell into decay, and principles faded away. Perverse speakings and oppressive deeds waxed rife again. There were instances of ministers who murdered their sovereigns, and of sons who murdered their fathers.

8. 'Confucius was afraid, and made the "Spring and Autumn." What the "Spring and Autumn" contains are matters proper to the sovereign. On this account Confucius said, "Yes! It is the Spring ehau, Shan-tung. Châo Ch'i connects 三年 | tinguished. The 夷狄, in par. 11, must be 計其君 with 誅 紂, but it seems to supposed to have been among them. The 'tigers, leopards, &c.,' are the animals kept by belong more naturally to 伐在. Fei-lien Châu, not these infesting the country, as in belong more naturally to 伐奄. Fei-lien was a favourite minister of Chau, who aided him in his enormities. In the 'Historical Records, 'Bk.IV, 秦本記, at the beginning, he appears as 畫廉, but without mention

....

Shû-ching, V. xxv. 6. 7. 行, th tone. 有 作,一有 read se, and = 又. 8. 'Spring and Autumn, —annals of La for see years (2. 0. 781he appears as key key without mention of his banishment and death. The place called (79), with Confucius's annotations, or rather, 'a corner by the sea' cannot be determined. as is absurdly contended, adapted by him to And it would be vain to try to enumerate the 'fifty kingdoms,' which Châu-kung ex- and actor. They are composed as a severeign and Autumn which will make men know me, and it is the Spring and Autumn which will make men condemn me."

9. 'Once more, sage sovereigns cease to arise, and the princes of the States give the reins to their lusts. Unemployed scholars indulge in unreasonable discussions. The words of Yang Chu and Mo Ti fill the country. If you listen to people's discourses throughout it, you will find that they have adopted the views either of Yang or of Mo. Now, Yang's principle is-"each one for himself," which does not acknowledge the claims of the sovereign. Mo's principle is—"to love all equally," which does not acknowledge the peculiar affection due to a father. But to acknowledge neither king nor father is to be in the state of a beast. Kung-ming I said, "In their kitchens, there is fat meat. In their stables, there are fat horses. But their people have the look of hunger, and on the wilds there are those who have died of famine. This is leading on beasts to devour men.

would have composed them. As Confucius ching, II. iii. 7.) It was by the study of this was a sage without the throne, if one of the book, therefore, that Confucius wished himsovereign eages had written annals, he would self to be known, though he know that he sovereign eages had written annals, he would have done so, as Confusine has done. Chû Hat quotes from the commentator Ht (胡安) :--- Chang-ni made the Spring and Aut to lodge in it the true royal laws. There are the firm exhibition of the constant duties; and prince) will do so on account of my continuous of commonial distinctions; the demnations of them in it. This is the view exposed himself to presumption on account of the sovereign's point of view from which he looked at everything in it. This is the meaning d罪我者其惟春秋乎, and no demnations of them in it, which is the viassertion of Henne's decree of Invent to the virtuous; and the punishment of the guilty — all these things, of which it may be said in the translation. 9. ,—the grd tone, brief that they are the business of the sovereign.' (Compare on Ha's language, the Shū-

If the principles of Yang and Mo be not stopped, and the principles of Confucius not set forth, then those perverse speakings will delude the people, and stop up the path of benevolence and righteousness. When benevolence and righteousness are stopped up, beasts will be led on to devour men, and men will devour one another.

10. 'I am alarmed by these things, and address myself to the defence of the doctrines of the former sages, and to oppose Yang and Mo. I drive away their licentious expressions, so that such perverse speakers may not be able to show themselves. Their delusions spring up in men's minds, and do injury to their practice of affairs. Shown in their practice of affairs, they are pernicious When sages shall rise up again, they will to their government. not change my words.

11. 'In former times, Yü repressed the vast waters of the inundation, and the country was reduced to order. Chau-kung's achievements extended even to the barbarous tribes of the east and north, and he drove away all ferocious animals, and the people enjoyed repose. Confucius completed the "Spring and Autumn," and rebellious ministers and villainous sons were struck with terror.

Yang Shû (成) and Yang Taxo-chü (子居), transcondental. 庖有肥肉云云,—see was a heresiarch of the times of Confucius Bk. I. Pt. I. iv. 4. 10. 2,—4th tone. 15 kg and Lao-tsze, of which last he is said to have been a disciple. In the days of Mencius, his principles appear to have been very rife. We may call his school the selfet school of China the fifty States referred to above. 15 F,— out public employment. Yang Chû, called also (, the 4th tone), as Mo's was the

12. 'It is said in the Book of Poetry,

"He smote the barbarians of the west and the north: He punished Ching and Shu;

And no one dared to resist us."

These father-deniers and king-deniers would have been smitten by Chau-kung.

13. 'I also wish to rectify men's hearts, and to put an end to those perverse doctrines, to oppose their one-sided actions and banish away their licentious expressions;—and thus to carry on the work Do I do so because I am fond of disputing ? of the three sages. I am compelled to do it.

14. 'Whoever is able to oppose Yang and Mo is a disciple of the sages.

1. K'wang Chang said to Mencius, 'Is not Ch'an Chung a man of true self-denying purity? He was living in Wuling, and for three days was without food, till he could neither hear the parricides, mentioned in par. 7. 12. See | Ch'in Two-chung (], were both men of a piece with the hesitancy shown by Mencius in Bk, II. Pt. I. ii, to claim boldly his place in the line of sages along with Confucius.

10. THE HAR WHO WILL AVOID ALL ASSOCIATION read set) appears to have been a poor wild place, were, AND OBLIGATION TO, THOSE OF WHON HE DOME to which Chung and his wife, like-minded with mor APPROVE, MUST HERDS GO OUT OF THE WORLD. himself, had retired. It is referred either to I. Kw'ang Chang and Ch'an Chung, called also the district of Ch'ang-shan or that of Theo-Pt. I. iv. 16. The remark in the note there is equally applicable to the quotation here. 13. Ch'1, the former high in the employment and counfidence of the prince, the latter, as we learn from this chapter, belonging to an old and noble family of the State. His principles appear to have been those of Had Haing (Pt. I. iv), or a piece with the hesitancy shown by Memerican in the Pt. II Dt. I till to claim holdly his place in the rectues of Confucius's time. Wu-ling (7

Over a well there grew a plum-tree, the fruit of which had been more than half eaten by worms. He crawled to it, and tried to eat some of the fruit, when, after swallowing three mouthfuls, he recovered his sight and hearing.

2. Mencius replied, 'Among the scholars of Ch'i, I must regard Chung as the thumb among the fingers. But still, where is the self-denying purity he pretends to? To carry out the principles which he holds, one must become an earthworm, for so only can it be done.

3. 'Now, an earthworm eats the dry mould above, and drinks the yellow spring below. Was the house in which Chung dwells built by a Po-1? or was it built by a robber like Chih? Was the millet which he eats planted by a Po-1? or was it planted by a robber like Chih? These are things which cannot be known.

ch'wan in the department of Ta'i-nan. The brother of Húi of Liû-haiâ. There was, howmatter. The term here is used, I suppose, to which was given to Hûi's brother, because of heighten our sense of the strait to which Chung the similarity of his course. The Chih (the robber Chih) has come to be like a proper mame. was reduced by his self-denial. III read yea, 4th tone, = 吞, 'to swallow.'

is a worm proper to excrementitious ever, it is said, in high antiquity in the times of Hwang-ti, a noted robber of the same name, —As Chung withdrew from human society, lest, he should be defiled by it, Mencius shows that which tone, — The to swallow.' 2. The unless he were a worm, he could not be independent of other men. Even the house he lived in, and the millet he ate, might be the result of the labour of a villain like Tao-chih, or of sobber chief of Confucius's time, a younger a worthy like Po-1, for anything he could tell.

4. 'But,' said Chang, 'what does that matter? He himself weaves sandals of hemp, and his wife twists and dresses threads of hemp to sell or exchange them.'

5. Mencius rejoined, 'Chung belongs to an ancient and noble family of Ch'i. His elder brother Tâi received from Kâ a revenue of 10,000 chung, but he considered his brother's emolument to be unrighteous, and would not eat of it, and in the same way he considered his brother's house to be unrighteous, and would not dwell in it. Avoiding his brother and leaving his mother, he went and dwelt in Wû-ling. One day afterwards, he returned to their house, when it happened that some one sent his brother a present of a live goosa. He, knitting his eyebrows, said, "What are you going to use that cackling thing for?" By-and-by his mother killed the goosa, and gave him some of it to eat. Just then his brother came into the house, and said, "It is the flesh of that cackling thing," upon which he went out and vomited it.

6. 'Thus, what his mother gave him he would not eat, but what

4. 何傷,—compare 無傷 in Bk. L. Pt. L. tionary, but Châo Ch'i explains it by 趣意, vii. 8. 無層,—see Pt. Liv. 序, read pt, and 建 by 藥, 'to prepare for weaving.'

—颜, to twist,' as threads of hemp on the knee. This meaning is not found in the die- 議 重,—see Bk. II. Pt. II. x. 8. 序—his wife gives him he eats. He will not dwell in his brother's house. but he dwells in Wû-ling. How can he in such circumstances complete the style of life which he professes? With such principles as Chung holds, a man must be an earthworm, and then he can carry them out.'

the same as 遊. 頻順, used for 顰蹙. 之食爲不動 不食 is expanded by Cha Hat,—以 曲 more loosely, as in the translation.

read of, the sound made by a goose. It sidered what his mother gave him to eat not to be righteous, and would not eat it. Similarly 見者,—'this cackler.' 6. 以母則 he brings out the force of the 以 in the other

BOOK IV.

LÎ LÂU. PART I.

CHAPTER I. 1. Mencius said, 'The power of vision of Li Lau, and skill of hand of Kung-shû, without the compass and square, could not form squares and circles. The acute ear of the musicmaster K'wang, without the pitch-tubes, could not determine cor-The principles of Yao and Shun, without rectly the five notes. a benevolent government, could not secure the tranquil order of the kingdom.

2. 'There are now princes who have benevolent hearts and a

With this Book commences what is com-|which could draw carriages. He is now the monly called the second or lower part of the works of Mencius, but that division is not recoglau, from its commencing with those two characters, and contains twenty-eight chapters, which are most of them shorter than those of the preceding Books.

1. THERE IS AN ART OF GOVERNMENT, AS WELL as a wine to govern will, to be learned from THE EXAMPLE AND PRINCIPLES OF THE ANCIENT KINGS, AND WHICH REQUIRES TO BE STUDIED AND PRACTICED BY RULESS AND THEIR MINISTERS. 1. LI Lau, called also Li Chû (朱), carries us back to a very high Chinese antiquity. He was, it is said, of the time of Hwang ti, and so acute could discern the smallest hair. He is often referred to by the Taoist writer Chwang (]. Some say that Li Lau was a disciple of Mencius but this is altogether unlikely. Kung-shû, named Pan (written III and 般), was a colebrated mechanist of La, of the times of Con-He is fabled to have made birds of hamboo, that could continue flying for three benevolent wish to govern well, such as a days, and horses of wood, moved by springs, mated Yao and Shun.

god of carpenters, and is worshipped by them; see the Li Chi, Bk. II. Sect. II. ii. sr. There are some, however, who make two men of the name, an earlier and a later. K'wang, styled True-y8 (子野), was music-master and a wise counsellor of Tain, a little prior to the time of Confucius;—see the 左傳 四年. 六律, 'six pitch-tubes,' put by symeodoche for + = . 律, or 'twelve tubes,' invented, it is said, in the earliest times, to determine by their various adjusted lengths the notes of the musical scale. Six of them go by the name of is (), which are to be understood as comprehended under the phrase in the text. The five notes are the five full notes of the octave, neglecting the semitenes. are called 宫, 商, 角, 徽(chf), 列;the Shu-ching, IL i. st. 整弊之道, is to be taken 'emptily,' meaning the benevolent wish to govern well, such as ani-reputation for benevolence, while yet the people do not receive any benefits from them, nor will they leave any example to future ages; -all because they do not put into practice the ways of the ancient

3. 'Hence we have the saying:—"Virtue alone is not sufficient for the exercise of government; laws alone cannot carry themselves into practice."

4. 'It is said in the Book of Poetry,

"Without transgression, without forgetfulness,

Following the ancient statutes."

Never has any one fallen into error, who followed the laws of the ancient kings.

5. 'When the sages had used the vigour of their eyes, they called in to their aid the compass, the square, the level, and the line, to make things square, round, level, and straight:—the use of the instruments is inexhaustible. When they had used their power finding its embodiment,—the right art of whose Buddhistic scrupulosity about taking government, having the same relation to it life made him have a benevolent reputation. as the compass to circles &c. 2. Ell.—4th Yet the heart of the one did not advantage as the compact to circles, &c. 2. [1],-4th tone. Observe the correlation of 著 and 也, the last clause assigning the reason of what is said in the preceding ones. 先王之道, -here, and below, the must be taken differently from its application in the last (Bk. I. Pt. I. vii) as an instance of the princes well as of the marking-line. who have a benevolent heart, and to the first translated,—'the level,' but I have not be emperor of the Liang dynasty (A. D. 500-556), able to ascertain its original form in China. VOL. II.

the State, nor the reputation of the other the empire. 3. 徒 善,—here 'simply being good,' i.e. virtue without laws, and 征法laws without virtue, the virtue, however, h understood of the 'benevolent heart.' the Shih-ching, Pt. III. ii. Ode V. st. s. 5.

of hearing to the utmost, they called in the pitch-tubes to their aid to determine the five notes:—the use of those tubes is inexhaustible. When they had exerted to the utmost the thoughts of their hearts. they called in to their aid a government that could not endure to witness the sufferings of men:—and their benevolence overspread the kingdom.

6. 'Hence we have the saying:—"To raise a thing high, we must begin from the top of a mound or a hill; to dig to a great depth, we must commence in the low ground of a stream or a marsh." Can he be pronounced wise, who, in the exercise of government, does not proceed according to the ways of the former kings ?

7. 'Therefore only the benevolent ought to be in high stations. When a man destitute of benevolence is in a high station, he thereby disseminates his wickedness among all below him.

8. When the prince has no principles by which he examines his administration, and his ministers have no laws by which they

In the 前漢書,本志, Bk. I, we read:-|procedes from 羅. 不忍人, see Bk. II. 'From the adjustment of weights and things Pt. I. vi. r. 6. 因一仗, 'to conform to,' i.e., sprang the lever (). The lever revolving produced the circle. The circle produced the care. The square produced the line. The line produced the level.' On the last sentence 重版 says:—'They set up the level to look at the line, using water as the equaliser.' 可騰 (the 1st tone) 用,—see Bk. I. Pt. I. iii. 3. The subject of 可 is the whole of what lofficers, as having their 'work' to do. 君子 here, to take advantage of. The saying is found in the Li Chi. VIII. ii. ro. 8. This paragraph is an expansion of the last clause of the preceding, illustrating how the wickedness flows downwards, with its consequences. -,-- 'the highest,' i. e. the prince. T, the next 'below his ministers. [1],—ck'60, the and tone, 'the court,' and I, as opposed to it, the various keep themselves in the discharge of their duties, then in the court obedience is not paid to principle, and in the office obedience is not paid to rule. Superiors violate the laws of righteousness, and inferiors violate the penal laws. It is only by a fortunate chance that a State in such a case is preserved.

9. 'Therefore it is said, "It is not the exterior and interior walls being incomplete, and the supply of weapons offensive and defensive not being large, which constitutes the calamity of a kingdom. It is not the cultivable area not being extended, and stores and wealth not being accumulated, which occasions the ruin of a When superiors do not observe the rules of propriety, and inferiors do not learn, then seditious people spring up, and that State will perish in no time.

10. 'It is said in the Book of Poetry,

"When such an overthrow of Chau is being produced by Heaven, Be not ye so much at your ease!"

11. '"At your ease;"—that is, dilatory.

12. 'And so dilatory may those officers be deemed, who serve their prince without righteousness, who take office and retire from and A ,-with reference to station. The ching, III. ii. Ode X. s. , read keed, the 4th the at the end of the two clauses shows that tone. It is,—i, 4th tone.—From this paragraph they are both equally assertive, though the it is the ministers of a prince who are contempsince, governed and governing by principles plated by Mencius. They have their duty to of rightecourness, will be a law to his ministers. perform, in order that the benevolent govern-9 城郭,—see Bk. II. Pt. II. i. a. 辟-閩, ment may be realised. II. 溢 含 含,—we are to understand that this phrase was commonly used in Mencius's time with this and wilds.' 📆,—4th tone. 10. See the Shih- acceptation. 12. 🎉,—used as a verb, 'to it without regard to propriety, and who in their words disown the ways of the ancient kings.

13. 'Therefore it is said, "To urge one's sovereign to difficult achievements may be called showing respect for him. To set before him what is good and repress his perversities may be called showing reverence for him. He who does not do these things, saying to himself, -My sovereign is incompetent to this, may be said to play the thief with him."'

1. Mencius said, 'The compass and square produce perfect circles and squares. By the sages, the human relations are perfectly exhibited.

2. 'He who as a sovereign would perfectly discharge the duties of a sovereign, and he who as a minister would perfectly discharge the duties of a minister, have only to imitate—the one Yao, and the other Shun. He who does not serve his sovereign as Shun served Yao, does not respect his sovereign; and he who does not rule his people as Yao ruled his, injures his people.

alander, or 'disown.' 13. Compare Bk. II. Pt. ing as in the translation. So with the and II. ii. 4. We are obliged to supply considerably clause. A 11, -see Bk, III. Pt, I. iv. 8. in the translation, to bring out the meaning of the last sentence. If may be taken as a verb -'to injure, or as I have taken it.

2. A CONTINUATION OF THE LAST CHAPTER;-

a. 二者-'these two' things, putting the above clauses abstractly, but we cannot do that so well in English. The force of mil. SEAT YAO AND SHUM ARE THE PERFECT MODELS OF according to the source is no other way for the source and minister of pursue. It 'The compass and square are the perfection of squares and circles;'—but we must understand the mem-

3. 'Confucius said, "There are but two courses. which can be pursued, that of virtue and its opposite."

4. A ruler who carries the oppression of his people to the highest pitch, will himself be slain, and his kingdom will perish. If one stop short of the highest pitch, his life will notwithstanding be in danger, and his kingdom will be weakened. He will be styled "The Dark," or "The Cruel," and though he may have filial sons and affectionate grandsons, they will not be able in a hundred generations to change the designation.

5. 'This is what is intended in the words of the Book of Poetry,

"The beacon of Yin is not remote,

It is in the time of the (last) sovereign of Hsia."'

1. Mencius said, 'It was by benevolence that the three dynasties gained the throne, and by not being benevolent that they lost it.

to the rulers of his time. 3. If the remark | where has in Mencius. 5. See the Shih-ching, were Kencius's own, we should translate 🗲 by 'benevolence.' The term in Confuctus rather denotes 'perfect virtue.' By the course of virtue is intended the imitation of Yao and Shun; by its opposite, the neglect of them as models. 4. By sovereigns, who carry their oppression to the highest pitch, Mencius intends, as his examples, Chieh and Châu, the last kings of the Haif and Yin dynastics. By 'The Dark' and 'The Cruel,' he intends the twelfth (E.c. 781) and tenth (E.c. 878) kings of the Châu dynasty, who received those posthumous

III. iii. Ode I. st. 8, an ode of the time of the monarch Li (), intended for his warning. The sovereign of Hsia is the tyrant Chieh, and by Yin is intended the tyrant Châu, by whose fate, though he neglected the leason furnished him by that of Chieh, it is suggested that Li should be admonished.

8. THE IMPOSTANCE TO ALL, AND SPECIALLY TO EULERS, OF EXERCISING BENEVOLENCE. I. 'The three dynastics' are the Hsia, the Shang, and the Chau. It is a bold utterance, seeing the Chau dynasty was still existing in the time of indelible designations. I take in the sense to vanish away. He has a reference, according of 'weakened' (dictionary), which it else-

2. 'It is by the same means that the decaying and flourishing.

the preservation and perishing, of States are determined.

3. 'If the sovereign be not benevolent, he cannot preserve the throne from passing from him. If the Head of a State be not benevolent, he cannot preserve his rule. If a high noble or great officer be not benevolent, he cannot preserve his ancestral temple. If a scholar or common man be not benevolent, he cannot preserve his four limbs.

4. 'Now they hate death and ruin, and yet delight in being not benevolent;—this is like hating to be drunk, and yet being strong to drink wine.'

I. Mencius said, 'If a man love others, and no CHAP. IV. responsive attachment is shown to him, let him turn inwards and examine his own benevolence. If he is trying to rule others, and his government is unsuccessful, let him turn inwards and examine his wisdom. If he treats others politely, and they do not return his tioned in the last chapter. 3. 四海,— the BEFORE A MAN DEALS WITH OTHERS, EXPROTESS four sees, i.e. all with them, as subject to the sovereign's jurisdiction. There is a special reference, however, to the sovereign's right to offer all quite generally, but a particular reference is a special property. sacrifices:—those peculiar to himself, and those open to others. ,—'the spirits of the land and the grain,' i.e. the spirits securing the stability and prosperity of a particular State, which it was the prerogative of the ruler to sacrifice to. Hence the expression is here used figuratively. See the Li Chi, Bk. III. iii. 6. 4. ,—the verb, in 4th tone, 'to hate, dislike.' (in and tone) ,—like the Hebrew idiom, Isa. v. se. This is spoken with reference to the princes of Mencius's time.

4. With what measure a man meter it will BE MEASURED TO HIM AGAIN, AND COMPROUENTLY to be understood to the princes of Mencius's time. I. 😿 is used in a manner common in Mencius, - 'to turn back from the course being pursued, and then to turn inwards to the work of examination and correction.' In the next paragraph, we have it followed by another verb, In 治人,治 is in and tone, 'to regulate,' 'to try to rule;' in 不治,治 is in 4th tone, 'to be regulated,' the government being effective. The clauses — 愛人不親, &c., are very concise. The paraphrase in the 首旨thus expands :- 色治者 politeness, let him turn inwards and examine his own feeling of respect.

2. 'When we do not, by what we do, realise what we desire, we must turn inwards, and examine ourselves in every point. When a man's person is correct, the whole kingdom will turn to him with recognition and submission.

3. 'It is said in the Book of Poetry,

"Be always studious to be in harmony with the ordinances of God, And you will obtain much happiness."'

CHAP. V. Mencius said, 'People have this common saying,-"The kingdom, the State, the family." The root of the kingdom is in the State. The root of the State is in the family. The root of the family is in the person of its Head.

CHAP. VI. Mencius said, 'The administration of government is not difficult;—it lies in not offending the great families. He whom 以愛人,宜乎人之我親矣, eood invituence. Compare 'The Superior Learning,' text of Confucius, par. 4. The common 面 有不親焉,則必反其 saying repeated by all probably means:—the kingdom is made up of its component States, 仁,恐我之愛人有未至也, and of their component families ;—i.e. the A, 'He who administers government families of the great officers. embodies benevolence to love men, and it is to it out a step farther. be expected men will love him. Should he

But Mencius takes its meaning more generally, and carries

6. THE IMPORTANCE TO A RULER OF SHOURING find however that they do not, he must turn in and examine his benevolence, lest it should be imperfect, to. a. The street and substance of the experiment of the imperfect, to. a. The street and substance of the experiment of the imperfect, to. a. The street and substance of the entry of the imperfect, to. a. The street and substance of the entry of the imperfect, to. a. The importance to be taken in a moral sense;—the ruler's doing nothing but what will command the admiring approbation of the old and great families in the State. In illustration of the sontiment, a story is related from Lift Hsiang of the duke Hwan of Ch'l.

5. Presonal Character is necessary to all Lighting, one day in hunting, on an old man the great families affect, will be affected by the whole State; and he whom any one State affects, will be affected by the whole kingdom. When this is the case, such an one's virtue and teachings will spread over all within the four seas like the rush of water.

CHAP. VII. 1. Mencius said, 'When right government prevails in the kingdom, princes of little virtue are submissive to those of great, and those of little worth to those of great. When bad government prevails in the kingdom, princes of small power are submissive to those of great, and the weak to the strong. Both these cases are the rule of Heaven. They who accord with Heaven are preserved, and they who rebel against Heaven perish.

2. 'The duke Ching of Ch's said, "Not to be able to command others, and at the same time to refuse to receive their commands, is to cut one's self off from all intercourse with others."

of eighty-three, the duke sought his blessing, for them.' I, whom they affect,' not that he might attain a like longevity. The old man then prayed, 'May my ruler enjoy great longevity, despising gems and gold, and making men his jewels!' At the duke's request a souther m described at despision of one State to assume a souther men described at the duke's request. making men his jewels!' At the duke's request he prayed a second time, that he might not be ashamed to Jearn even from his inferiors, and a third time, 'May my ruler not offend against his ministers and the people!' This answer offended the duke. 'A son,' he said, 'may offend against his father, and a minister against his ruler. But how can a ruler offend against his ministers?' The old man replied, 'An offending ministers?' The old man replied, 'An offending son may get forgiveness through the intercessions of sunts and uncles. An offending minister may be forgiven by the intercession of the ruler's favourites and attendants. But when Chieh offended against Tang, and Châu offended against Wû;—those were cases in point. There was no forgiveness here the ideas of a Providential government which is implied in 'Heaven?' 2.

PRINCE'S ORLY RECURITY FOR SAFETY AND PROSPERTY IS IN BRIDG BRIDVOLERY. 1. MANY COMPdeclarations may as well be taken generally. 者天也,—'Heaven,' it is said, reason, and the different powers of the contrasted States (兼理勢言).' This is true, but why sink the idea of a Providential government which is implied in 'Heaven?' a. 🗃 flowed forth while he gave his daughter to be married to the prince of Wû.

3. 'Now the small States imitate the large, and yet are ashamed to receive their commands. This is like a scholar's being ashamed to receive the commands of his master.

4. 'For a prince who is ashamed of this, the best plan is to imitate king Wan. Let one imitate king Wan, and in five years, if his State be large, or in seven years, if it be small, he will be sure to give laws to the kingdom.

5. 'It is said in the Book of Poetry.

"The descendants of the sovereigns of the Shang dynasty,

Are in number more than hundreds of thousands,

But, God having passed His decree,

They are all submissive to Chau.

They are submissive to Chau,

Because the decree of Heaven is not unchanging.

The officers of Yin, admirable and alert,

Pour out the libations, and assist in the capital of Chau."

is taken as used for A 'men,' but the phrase her kushand. The old king of We, barbarian to a contracted one and will A 1975 166 as he was, showed much sympathy for his is a contracted one, and - 與人睽絶, 'separated from other men,' or imay be taken actively, which I prefer, and similarly supplemented. 女,—in 4th tone, 'to give a daughter in marriage.' Wû, corresponding to the morthern part of the present Cheb-chiang, and the south of Chiang-sû, was in Confucius's time-still reckoned a barbarous territory, and the priness of the Middle Kingdom were ashamed to enter into relations with it. The duke Ching, however, yielded to the force of circumstances and so saved himself. The daughter so married soon died. She pined away for her father and her native Ch'i, and was followed to the grave by young daughter-in-law. 3. 🔝,—'to imitate,' 'to make a master of.' Mencius's meaning is that the smaller States followed the example of the larger ones in what was evil, and yet did not like to submit to them. 弟子,一'a youth,' here, =a pupil. 4. 詹政,—'be exercising 5. See the Shihgovernment, -giving law to. ohing, III. i. Ode Latt. 4,5. 不值=不止 於億, 'not hundreds of thousands only.' is an inversion for 🙉 📠 干周. 侯 is here an introductory particle, Confucius said, "As against so benevolent a sovereign, they could not be deemed a multitude." Thus, if the prince of a State love benevolence, he will have no opponent in all the kingdom.

6. 'Now they wish to have no opponent in all the kingdom, but they do not seek to attain this by being benevolent. This is like a man laying hold of a heated substance, and not having first dipped it in water. It is said in the Book of Poetry,

"Who can take up a heated substance, Without first dipping it (in water)?"

1. Mencius said, 'How is it possible to speak s who are not benevolent? Their perils they CHAP. VIII. with those princes who are not benevolent? count safety, their calamities they count profitable, and they have pleasure in the things by which they perish. If it were possible to talk with them who so violate benevolence, how could we have such destruction of States and ruin of Families?

一性. 仁不可為果 is to be under-stood as a remark of Confucius on reading the portion of the Shih-ching just quoted;—'against a henevolent prince, like king Win, the myriads the author deplores that there was no resort stood as a remark of Confucius on reading the portion of the Shih-ching just quoted;—'against a benevolent prince, like king Wan, the myriads of the adherents of Shang o used to be myriads. They would not act against him.' The expansion in the [] = "numerous as the adherents of Shang were, 以我周之人,是果 coussesses. 1. Stress must be laid always on 不可含(-以含)象.' 6. See the Shik-the 不in 不仁. The expression does not to proper measures. If is taken as a more particle of transition.

8. THAT A PRINCE IS THE AGENT OF HIS OWN BUILD BY HIM VICEOUS WAYS AND REPUMENG TO BE

2. 'There was a boy singing, "When the water of the Ts'ang-lang is clear, It does to wash the strings of my cap; When the water of the Ts'ang-lang is muddy, It does to wash my feet."

3. 'Confucius said, "Hear what he sings, my children. When clear, then he will wash his cap-strings; and when muddy, he will wash his feet with it. This different application is brought by the water on itself."

4. 'A man must first despise himself, and then others will despise him. A family must first destroy itself, and then others will destroy it. A State must first smite itself, and then others will smite it.

5. 'This is illustrated in the passage of the T'ai Chia, "When Heaven sends down calamities, it is still possible to escape them. When we occasion the calamities ourselves, it is not possible any longer to live."'

CHAP. IX. 1. Mencius said, 'Chieh and Chau's losing the opposite of it.

— ### for to give faithful it serves to wash the cap-strings, &c.' 4, 5. See it found applied to different streams in different places. That in the text was probably in RABB HUMBER TO BE SOVERHIER, OR EVER AVOID Shan-bang 3. 聯之,一之 referring to the RULE 1. 與之聚之,一與之-盒 denote merely the want of benevolence, but the | words of the song. 25, - this, intensive, er

9. Only by bring benevolent can a prince throne, arose from their losing the people, and to lose the people means to lose their hearts. There is a way to get the kingdom:get the people, and the kingdom is got. There is a way to get the There is a way people:—get their hearts, and the people are got. to get their hearts:—it is simply to collect for them what they like, and not to lay on them what they dislike.

2. 'The people turn to a benevolent rule as water flows downwards, and as wild beasts fly to the wilderness.

3. 'Accordingly, as the otter aids the deep waters, driving the fish into them, and the hawk aids the thickets, driving the little birds to them, so Chieh and Chau aided Tang and Wû, driving the people to them.

4. 'If among the present rulers of the kingdom, there were one who loved benevolence, all the other princes would aid him, by

民. Châo Ch'i interprets it,一聚 其 所 and kept them from straits, &c. &c.' a. It is best 欲而與之, taking 與 in the sense of to take 仁 here in the concrete. to give, but this does not appear to be admissible here. To collect for the people what they like, is to govern in such a way that they shall enjoy their lives. One has illustrated the meaning from (Châo) ##, of the Han dynasty, who did service in the recovery of the ancient books, thus:—'Men like long life, and cular about it, see the Li Chi, IV. (月今) Sect. the founders of the three dynasties cherished men's lives and kept them from harm: men i. I. S. love wealth, and those kings enriched them, 'the name of a bird.' Chu Hat takes it, how 走,sait is marked, is in the 4th tone. The dictionary gives it in the same in Bk. I. Pt. L iii. a. 3. 🔁 in 4th tone. 酸-腥 為淵酸魚者, —'he or that which drives the fish for the deep waters.' The is the otter. For a curious partidriving the people to him. Although he wished not to become sovereign, he could not avoid becoming so.

5. 'The case of one of the present princes wishing to become sovereign is like the having to seek for mugwort three years old, to cure a seven years' sickness. If it have not been kept in store, the patient may all his life not get it. If the princes do not set their wills on benevolence, all their days will be in sorrow and disgrace, and they will be involved in death and ruin.

6. 'This is illustrated by what is said in the Book of Poetry,

"How otherwise can you improve the kingdom?

You will only with it go to ruin."' CHAP. X. I. Mencius said, 'With those who do violence to themselves, it is impossible to speak. With those who throw themselves away, it is impossible to do anything. To disown in his conversation propriety and righteousness, is what we mean by doing violence to one's self. To say—"I am not able to dwell in bene-ever, as - 2 a general name for small birds. | purposes of cautery. The older the plant, the 4. T,-in 4th tone, and in next paragraph also. 5. 有為不音,終身不得 last quotation in chap. vii. 章,—a particle, = is by most commentators interpreted:—'If you 則.

now, faeling its want, begin to collect it, it may be available for the sure. You san hold on till it is so. If you do not at once set about it, your wrazer nvil. I. 自暴者, those who are case is hopeless.' Perhaps the and 不 cruel to themselves,' i.e. those who deny, and should determine in favour of this view. Chao Ch'i interprets as in the translation. The down of the mugwort, burnt on the skin, is used for 'to disown,' 'to condemn.' 與有言,有 better. 6. The quotation from the Shih-ching is of the two lines immediately following the

10. A warning to the violently evil, and the volence or pursue the path of righteousness," is what we mean by throwing one's self away.

2. 'Benevolence is the tranquil habitation of man, and rightcourness is his straight path.

3. 'Alas for them, who leave the tranquil dwelling empty and do not reside in it, and who abandon the right path and do not pursue it?'

CHAP. XI. Mencius said, 'The path of duty lies in what is near, and men seek for it in what is remote. The work of duty lies in what is easy, and men seek for it in what is difficult. If each man would love his parents and show the due respect to his elders, the whole land would enjoy tranquillity.'

CHAP. XII. 1. Mencius said, When those occupying inferior situations do not obtain the confidence of the sovereign, they cannot succeed in governing the people. There is a way to obtain the confidence of the sovereign:—if one is not trusted by his friends, he will not obtain the confidence of his sovereign. There is a way

二,—'to have conversation (words), to have action (doing) with them.' 3. 一for 神, in grd tone. The lamentation is to be understood as for the 自豪者 and the 自豪者.—It is observed that 'this chapter shows that what is right and true (道) do really belong to man, but he extirpates them himself. Profound is the admonition, and learners should give most carnest heed to it.'

11. THE TRANSCEL PROFESSION OF THE RESIDENCE DEPENDS OF THE DESCRIANCE OF THE COMMON RELATIONS OF LIFE. A second of the compression of the compres

12. THE GREAT WORK OF MEN SHOULD BE TO STRIVE TO ATTAIN PERFECT SINGERTY. See the Chung Yung, xx. para. 17, 18, which are here substantially quoted. As the twentieth chapter of

of being trusted by one's friends:—if one do not serve his parents so as to make them pleased, he will not be trusted by his friends. There is a way to make one's parents pleased :-- if one, on turning his thoughts inwards, finds a want of sincerity, he will not give pleasure to his parents. There is a way to the attainment of sincerity in one's self:—if a man do not understand what is good, he will not attain sincerity in himself.

2. 'Therefore, sincerity is the way of Heaven. To think how to be sincere is the way of man.

3. 'Never has there been one possessed of complete sincerity, who did not move others. Never has there been one who had not sincerity who was able to move others.'

CHAP. XIII. 1. Mencius said, 'Po-1, that he might avoid Chau, was dwelling on the coast of the northern sea. When he heard of the rise of king Wan, he roused himself, and said, "Why should I not go and follow him? I have heard that the chief of the West knows well how to nourish the old." Tai-kung, that he might the Chung Yung, however, is found also in the Family Sayings, Mencius may have had that, in the regulation of the waters, and on his first or the fragmentary memorabilis of Confucius, remember the assessment of the waters, and on his first remember to the same which it is assessed. from which it is compiled, before him, and not rencontre with king Win, when he appeared avoid Chau, was dwelling on the coast of the eastern sea. he heard of the rise of king Wan, he roused himself, and said, "Why should I not go and follow him? I have heard that the chief of the West knows well how to nourish the old."

2. 'Those two old men were the greatest old men of the kingdom. When they came to follow king Wan, it was the fathers of the kingdom coming to follow him. When the fathers of the kingdom joined him, how could the sons go to any other?

3. 'Were any of the princes to practise the government of king Wan, within seven years he would be sure to be giving laws to the

CHAP. XIV. 1. Mencius said, 'Ch'iù acted as chief officer to the kingdom.

head of the Chi family, whose evil ways he was unable to change, 'Historical Records,'Bk. XXXII, 喜太公 Still the 來 is somewhat embarrassing. a. I , at the beginning. Though Po-1 and like the expansion of this paragraph in the Tâi-kung were led in the same way to follow hing Wan, their subsequent courses were very different. Win was appointed by Châu chief or baron (11), his viceroy in the Want to be leader of all the princes in that part West, to be leader of all the princes in that part of the kingdom. The commentators my this is referred to in 文王作. I should rather interpret #E of Wan's 'movements,' style of ad-賽老者,compare the account of king Wan's government in Bk. I.

醫乎來-畫醫來乎

fathers, and felt as their children, so that wi they were moved by the governme the com Wan, and came fro him, how could the children leave their fat and go to any others?' chap, vii. 4. Compare Analects, XIII. where Confucius thinks he could have a plished a similar result in shorter time.

14. Against the minimum of his time who while he exacted from the people double the grain formerly paid. Confucius said, "He is no disciple of mine. Little children, beat the drum and assail him."

2. 'Looking at the subject from this case, we perceive that when a prince was not practising benevolent government, all his ministers who enriched him were rejected by Confucius:—how much more would he have rejected those who are vehement to fight for their prince! When contentions about territory are the ground on which they fight, they slaughter men till the fields are filled with them. When some struggle for a city is the ground on which they fight, they slaughter men till the city is filled with them. This is what is called "leading on the land to devour human flesh." not enough for such a crime.

3. 'Therefore, those who are skilful to fight should suffer the highest punishment. Next to them should be punished those who unite some princes in leagues against others; and next to them, PURSUED THEIR WARLING AND OTHER SCHEME, phrase compare 為之聚飲 Analogis, measurement of the happeness of the propint.

I. See Analogis, XI. xvi. Here is a plain in... XI. xvi. The force of the 為之, it seems stance of the used in a bad sense. a. 2 to me, must be to make the whole equal to the rendering of Noel, which Julian conditions of the grd tone, and the phrase that after the analogy of the phrase that the phrase that the phrase that the prince to the country. and others take 强 in the and tone, and make 罪不容於死-其罪大死刑 the phrase-'who fight trusting in the power- | 不足以容之'his crime is so great that even capital punishment is not sufficient to contain it. 8. Here we have three classes of adventurers who were rife in Mencius's time, and who recommended themselves to the

those who take in grassy commons, imposing the cultivation of the ground on the people.'

CHAP. XV. 1. Mencius said, 'Of all the parts of a man's body there is none more excellent than the pupil of the eye. The pupil cannot be used to hide a man's wickedness. If within the breast all be correct, the pupil is bright. If within the breast all be not correct, the pupil is dull.

2. 'Listen to a man's words and look at the pupil of his eye.

How can a man conceal his character?'

CHAP. XVI. Mencius said, 'The respectful do not despise others. The economical do not plunder others. The prince who treats men with despite and plunders them, is only afraid that they may not prove obedient to him:—how can he be regarded as primes in the ways described, pursuing their excellence of the pupil is from its truthfulness own ends, regardless of the people. Some advanced themselves by their skill in war; some lay their telemes for intrigue; and some by plans to make the most of the ground, turning every their telemest of the ground, turning every words to judge of them. a. Compare Analests, lift of it to account, but for the good of the ruler, not of the people. of eresper,' 'woods,' - fields lying fallow or unoultivated. 任土地。—the 十地 is what had been occupied by the 夏莱. Chù Hai expands the phrase thus - 任士地 means, —to divide this land and give it to the people, making them undertake the charge of culti-vating it.'

15. The pupil of the syn the index of the  · 存乎人者,--存-在, the things that are in man, i. e. in his body. The

16. Duede, nor words on manuto Prove Mental Qualifiem. 恭者, 会》 though I have translated the nerally, are yet spoken with a reference to the 君 follows. The princes of Mencius's time m great pretensions, of which their actions proved the insincerity. 僧 and 不幸 are to be understood of the disposition :- 'not wish to E, directly governing 人, is contemn, &c.' remarkable. 為恭儉,一篇-以篇 ex , 'to be regarded,' 'to be styled.' The respectful or economical? How can respectfulness and economy be made out of tones of the voice, and a smiling manner?

CHAP. XVII. 1. Shun-yu K'wan said, 'Is it the rule that males and females shall not allow their hands to touch in giving or receiving anything?' Mencius replied, 'It is the rule.' asked, 'If a man's sister-in-law be drowning, shall he rescue her with his hand?' Mencius said, 'He who would not so rescue the drowning woman is a wolf. For males and females not to allow their hands to touch in giving and receiving is the general rule; when a sister-inlaw is drowning, to rescue her with the hand is a peculiar exigency.

2. Kwan said, 'The whole kingdom is drowning. How strange it is that you will not rescue it!'

3. Mencius answered, 'A drowning kingdom must be rescued with right principles, as a drowning sister-in-law has to be rescued with the hand. Do you wish me to rescue the kingdom with my hand?

final 爲-作爲, and in the passive, 'to be 相親接. 種,—see Analoose, IX. xxix; made.' 詹音, 'tones'=words.

17. HELP-17. HELF—EFFECTUAL HELF—CAN RE CIVER TO THE NAME SHOOM OF CHIEF WORLD ONLY IN HARMONY WITH RESET AND PROPERTY. I. Shun-yū K'win was a native of Ch', a famous sophist, and otherwise a man of note in his day; see the 'Historical Records,' Bk. CKXVI, The here tries to entrap Menetus into a confession that he did not well in maintaining his dignity of reserve. -EFFECTUAL HELP--CAN BE GIVEN TO entrap Meneius into a confession that he did law who can be rescued by the hand.

XVIII. viii.— may be taken together as = 'a wolf.' The names belong to different as = 'a wolf.' mot well in maintaining his dignity of reserve.

For the rule of propriety referred to, see the Li Cht, I. Sect. I. iii. 31.

A princes, and so begin by losing the CHAP. XVIII. 1. Kung-sun Ch'au said, 'Why is it that the superior man does not himself teach his son?'

2. Mencius replied, 'The circumstances of the case forbid its The teacher must inculcate what is correct. When being done. he inculcates what is correct, and his lessons are not practised, he follows them up with being angry. When he follows them up with being angry, then, contrary to what should be, he is offended with his son. At the same time, the pupil says, "My master inculcates on me what is correct, and he himself does not proceed in a correct path." The result of this is, that father and son are offended with each other. When father and son come to be offended with each other, the case is evil.

3. 'The ancients exchanged sons, and one taught the son of another.

4. 'Between father and son, there should be no reproving adin all its generality. Confucius taught his son, and so did other famous men their sons. We are to understand the first clause of the second paragraph,—罗不行也, as referring to the case of a stupid or perverse child. As to what is said in the third paragraph of the custem of the ancients, I have seen no other proof understood as the recentful murmuring of the addnesd of it. a. \(\overline{\nu} ,\)—' contrary,' i.e. to the means wherewith to rescue it. Do you wish to but 'to be wounded,' that is, to be effended. make me save the kingdom with my hand?' I we might take it actively in the first instance; hardly see the point of the last question.

—'contrary to what should be, he wounds—i.e. 18. How A PATHER MAY HOT MINSHELF TRACK bests—his son.' But below, in 父子相夷, is som. I. This proposition is not to be taken we cannot give it such an active signification all its concentity. Common and the son we cannot give it such an active signification as to suppose that the son will proceed to beat his father. may well be taken passively, as in the common saying, 眼見心僵. 夫子教表,云云,-this is to be son, whose feeling is strongly indicated by the affection which should rule between father and seen. I, in the sense of II, which, however, we must take passively; not to wound, sons to be taught away from home by masters.

monitions to what is good. Such reproofs lead to alienation, and than alienation there is nothing more inauspicious.'

CHAP, XIX. 1. Mencius said, 'Of services, which is the greatest? The service of parents is the greatest. Of charges, which is the greatest? The charge of one's self is the greatest. That those who do not fail to keep themselves are able to serve their parents is what I have heard. But I have never heard of any, who, having failed to keep themselves, were able notwithstanding to serve their parents.

2. 'There are many services, but the service of parents is the root of all others. There are many charges, but the charge of one's self is the root of all others.

3. 'The philosopher Tsang, in nourishing Tsang Hai, was always sure to have wine and flesh provided. And when they were being

But this is explaining away the 🤼 4. 📷 all that is contrary to rightecusness. a is good on them, and causing them to do it.'

19. The right manner of serving parents, AND THE IMPORTANCE OF WATCHING OVER ORE'S way of developing all other services from filled series, in orders to do so. I. 事 教 為大, piety; see the Heisto-ching (孝家), —literally, for services—i.e. duties of service There is more truth in the second part of which a man has to pay to others—which is paragraph. 8. Halwas Thing Shin's father; see great?' ‡;,-charges, what a man has to Analects, XL xxv. 🎉,-in 4th tone. 'Nourguard and keep. The keeping one's self from ishing the will,' i.e. gratifying and carrying removed he would ask respectfully to whom he should give what was left. If his father asked whether there was anything left, he was sure to say, "There is." After the death of Tsang Hat, when Tsaug Yttan came to nourish Tsang-tsze, he was always sure to have wine and flesh provided. But when the things were being removed, he did not ask to whom he should give what was left, and if his father asked whether there was anything left, he would answer "No;"-intending to bring them in again. This was what is called—" nourishing the mouth and body." We may call Tsangteze's practice-" nourishing the will."

野-以善責之使行,'laying what 不爲事,—'what is not a service?' i. e. the services a man has to perform are many. -in the sense of 'root,' according to the Chin

4. 'To serve one's parents as Tsang-tsze served his, may be accepted as filial piety.

CHAP. XX. Mencius said, 'It is not enough to remonstrate with a sovereign on account of the mal-employment of ministers, nor to blame errors of government. It is only the great man who can rectify what is wrong in the sovereign's mind. Let the prince be end occasions some difficulty. Oht Hat quotes from one of the brothers Ch ling these words:— 'To serve one's parents as Tuing Shin did his, may be called the height of filial piety, and yet Mencius only says that it might be accepted as such - 17 11; did he really think that there was something supererogatory in Thing's service?' Pessibly, Mencius may have been referring to Thing's disclaimer of being deemed a model of filial piety. See the Li Chi, XXI (条囊), ii. 10, where he says:—'What the superior man calls filial piety, is to anticipate out the father's wishes. 4. The II III at the parents, always leading them on in what is right and true. I am only one who nourishes his parents. How can I be deemed flial?'

20. A TRULY GREAT MINISTER WILL BE SHEET IN his dericting his ryports, not to the correction OF MATTERS IN DETAIL, BUT OF THE SOVERHOUS'S ,-read chill, = hend.' ,—chien, in 4th ton 人and政 are to be taken as in the objective governed by 西and 閒, and 不足 as used impersonally. 與-與君, 'with the sovereign.' Châo Ch' the wishes, and carry out the mind of his introduces Et before I as well. He seems benevolent, and all his acts will be benevolent. Let the prince be righteous, and all his acts will be righteous. Let the prince be correct, and everything will be correct. Once rectify the ruler, and the kingdom will be firmly settled.'

CHAP. XXI. Mencius said, 'There are cases of praise which could not be expected, and of reproach when the parties have been seeking to be perfect.

CHAP. XXII. Mencius said, 'Men's being ready with their tongues arises simply from their not having been reproved.'

Mencius said, 'The evil of men is that they CHAP. XXIII.

like to be teachers of others."

CHAP. XXIV. 1. The disciple Yo-chang went in the train of Taze-ão to Ch'î.

making 人(一小人, 'little men') the sub- language. ject of 不足:—'little men are not fit to remonstrate with their sovereign.' This is plainly wrong, because we cannot carry it on to the next clause. 格=正, 'to correct.'— The sentiment of the chapter is illustrated by an incident related of Mencius by the philosopher (about B.C. 250) :— 'As Mencius thrice visited Ch'1, without speaking to the king about the errors of his government, his disciples were surprised, but he simply said, I sense first correct his cell heart."

to interpret differently, from the translation, the sense here, 🎆 is often used in modern

23. Тил винятт от вчевоог. 🦓,—read i, in 4th tone, 'easy.' Chu Het supposes that this remark was spoken with some particular reference. This would account for the 耳矣, 'simply.'

23. Be nor MANY MASTERS. Commentators suppose that Mencius's lesson was that such a liking indicated a self-sufficiency which put an end to self-improvement.

24. How Mencius reproved Yo-ching for amociating with an unworthy person, and ciples were surprised, but he simply said, I reme remes is warries or history. I. Yourselford correct Me sell Ascort.'

21. Practic and beart are not always active designation of Wang Hwan, mentioned in Bk. II. Pt. II. vi. From that chapter we may understand that Mencius would not be pleased to calculate the control of the selection of the designation of the selection of the se , 'to calculate,' 'to measure.' For in with one of his disciples associating with such

2. He came to see Mencius, who said to him, 'Are you also come to see me?' Yo-chang replied, 'Master, why do you speak such words?' 'How many days have you been here?' asked Mencius. 'I came yesterday.' 'Yesterday! Is it not with reason then that I thus speak?' 'My lodging-house was not arranged.' 'Have you heard that a scholar's lodging-house must be arranged before he visit his elder?'

3. Yo-chang said, 'I have done wrong.' CHAP. XXV. Mencius, addressing the disciple Yo-chang, said to him, 'Your coming here in the train of Tsze-ao was only because of the food and the drink. I could not have thought that you, having learned the doctrine of the ancients, would have acted with a view to eating and drinking.

is repeated at the beginning of this paragraph, the former being narrative, and introductory merely. 亦來,—the 亦, 'also,' is directed against Tass-to. Cht Hat explains 音看by H, which, in common parlance, means the day before yesterday.' But I do not see that it should have that meaning here. 昔 properly means 'formerly,' and may extend to the remotest antiquity. It is used also for a person. Z,—the verb, = 4. a. The name | yesterday, the time separated from the present by one rest -- 🧸 , as if the same sound of the two characters (音息) determined the meaning. 長 (in 3rd tone) 者 is used before by Mencius of himself-Bk. IL. Pt. II. xi. 4.

> 25. A FURTHER AND MORE DIRECT REPROOF OF Yo-CHARS. are both contemptuess terms, - our application of 'the loaves and fahoa. 而以體啜-而以觸啜

1. Mencius said, 'There are three things which Chap. XXVI. are unfilial, and to have no posterity is the greatest of them.

2. 'Shun married without informing his parents because of this, lest he should have no posterity. Superior men consider that his doing so was the same as if he had informed them.

1. Mencius said, 'The richest fruit of bene-CHAP. XXVII. volence is this,—the service of one's parents. The richest fruit of righteousness is this,—the obeying one's elder brothers.

2. 'The richest fruit of wisdom is this,—the knowing those two

26. Shun's expressionement way of compress. I service of parents ;—if is.' Se in the other in-the markings justified by the motive. I. The stances. Benovolonce, rightecomment, &c., are other two things which are unfilial are, accordowner two tunings which are unfilial are, according to Châo Ch'i, first, by a flattering assent to encourage parents in unrighteousness; and secondly, not to succour their poverty and old age by engaging in official service. To be without posterity is greater than those faults, because it is an official accinet the whole line of the second. it is an offence against the whole line of ancestors, and terminates the sacrifices to them.— In Pt. II. xxx, Mencius specifies five things which were commonly deemed unfilial, and not one of these three is among them. It is to be understood that here 不孝有 spoken from the point of view of the superior man, and, moreover, that the first paragraph simply lays down the ground for the vindica-▲爲無後− tion of Shun. tone. Finplies getting the parents' permission, as well as informing them. But Shun's parents were so evil, and hated him so much, that they would have prevented his marriage had they been told of it 27. FILIAL PIETY AND PRATERNAL OREDIENCE IN

THEIR RELATION TO RESEVOLENCE, RIGHTSOUGHESS, WINDOM, PROPRIETY, AND MUSIC. I. is sometimes opposed to , what is solid to what is empty, shadowy; sometimes to 🔏 is real to what is nominal; and sometimes to , 'what is substantial to what is ornaemphatic; - the fruit of benevolence is the reach to spiritual beings, and shed a light ever the principles of those, the espablities of tin human nature, which may have end manifestations, but are chiefly and prime ay have endle to be seen in the two virtues spokes trikes us as strange is the c The difficulty has not escaped native of tators. The author of the 集註本 says, in loc.:— Benevolence, rightee propriety, and knowledge are the four virte but this chapter proceeds to speak of mus For the principles of music are really a bran ror the principles of music are really a branch of propriety, and when the ordering and adorning which belong to that are perfect, them harmony and pleasure spring up as a matter of course. In this way we have propriety mentioned first, and then music. Moreover, the fervency of beneather of the exactions of the property of the course of righteousness, the clearness of knowl the firmness of maintenance, m their dopth manifested in mu ter had not spoken of music, we she have seen the whole amount of achie The reader may try to conceive the exact mean-ing of this writer, who also points out another peculiarity in the chapter, which many have overlooked. Instead of 是机 after i , as at the end of the other class have 樂則生矣,云云, 'showing,' says he, 'most vividly how his admiration was stirred. It is as if from every sentence there better than by the 'richest fruit.' 是也 is it that perfect filial piety and fraternal duty things, and not departing from them. The richest fruit of propriety is this,—the ordering and adorning those two things. The richest fruit of music is this,—the rejoicing in those two things. When they are rejoiced in, they grow. Growing, how can they be repressed? When they come to this state that they cannot be repressed, then unconsciously the feet begin to dance and the hands to move.

CHAP. XXVIII. 1. Mencius said, 'Suppose the case of the whole kingdom turning in great delight to an individual to submit to him.—To regard the whole kingdom thus turning to him in great delight but as a bundle of grass;—only Shun was capable of this. He considered that if one could not get the hearts of his parents he could not be considered a man, and that if he could not get to an entire accord with his parents, he could not be considered a son.

the world, and then do we know that in the generally, and not with reference to Shun greatest music there is a harmony with heaven and earth.' a. Julien translates 去 by ablicare. To have that meaning, it must have been in the grd tone, which it is not. The first 🌉 is yo, 'music;' the other two are 25, 'to enjoy.' 本籍 is used absolutely, - 'unconsciously,' though we might make A personal also,— 'we do not know.' feet's stamping it.' So the next clause.

simply. It is incomplete. The conclusion would be something like—'this would be accounted the greatest happiness and glory.' 🏋 is properly 'the mustard plant,' but it is sometimes, as here, only synonymous with 夏. 不 —all this is the reasoning of Shun's 不得乎,--iike 不測 mind. 足之蹈之,-'the chap. 12. 不順, 'not to obey,' 'not to accord with,' but Chu Hst and others labour hard to 28. Howshus valued and exemplified fillal make it out to mean,—'to bring the parents to FIRST. 7. The first sentence is to be taken accord with what is right, so as to be able then fully to accord with them.' a. Shun's father is known by the name of Kā-sau, but both the characters denote 'blind,' and he was so styled, that, whatever might be the characters of their parents, they had only to imitate Shun, and opposition to all that was good. It is the said, because of his mental blindness and opposition to all that was good. sense of 'to be pleased,' 'joyful,' understood aku, were shamed to reformation.

2. 'By Shun's completely fulfilling everything by which a parent could be served, Ku-sau was brought to find delight in what was good. When Kû-sâu was brought to find that delight, the whole kingdom was transformed. When Kû-sâu was brought to find that delight, all fathers and sons in the kingdom were established in their respective duties. This is called great filial piety.'

LÎ LÂU. PART II.

CHAPTER I. 1. Mencius said, 'Shun was born in Chu-fang. removed to Fû-heiâ, and died in Ming-tião;—a man near the wild tribes on the east.

2. 'King Wan was born in Chau by mount Ch'i, and died in Pi-ying; -a man near the wild tribes on the west.

'Those regions were distant from one another more than a thousand it, and the age of the one sage was posterior to that of the other more than a thousand years. But when they got their wish,

 THE AGREEMENT OF SAGES NOT APPROVED BY | can only be what I have given in the translation PLACE OR THER. I. The common view derived from the 'Historical Records,' Book I, is, that Shun was a native of Chi-chau, corresponding to the modern Shan-haf, to which all the places in the text are accordingly referred. Some, however, and especially Thing Tune-kt (智), of the Sung dynasty, find his birthoee in Chi-nan in Shan-tung, and this would on to be supported by Mensius in this passage. ere is considerable difficulty with Ming-t'iso, we read in the 'Historical Records,' that in the thirty-ninth year of his reign, Shun died, while on a tour of inspection to 'the south, in the wilderness of Ts'ang-wû (蒼 and was buried on the Chit-1 (九 in Chiang-nan, which are in Ling-ling (The discussions on the point are very See the 集語 and 四 😭 🎎 , in lea.; see also on the Shu-ching, Pt. II. No doubt, Mencius was not speaking with- than 'a seal.' Anciently, the sover out book. 東夷之人, literally, 'a man of the eastern I, or barbarians, but the meaning other half in his own keeping.

So 西夷之人. a. Châu, the original set of the House of Châu, was in the present deparment of Fung-tellang, in Shen-hat. Pl-ying to be distinguished from Ying which was capital of Ch'û, and with which the paraphr of Chao Ch'I strangely confounds it. says it was near to Fing (📻) and Hao (was in Hû-heien (🕦 in Hsien-yang (咸陽), both in the department of Hsi-an. Pi-ying was in the district of Hsien-ning (咸草) of the same department, and there the grave of king Wa, place of it, is still pointed out. 3. 4 平中層,—'when they got their wi out in the Middle King to understand that their aim was to carry their principles, not to got the throne should be called a tally or token po as the token of investiture, one half of a of wood or some precious s and carried their principles into practice throughout the Middle Kingdom, it was like uniting the two halves of a seal.

4. 'When we examine those sages, both the earlier and the later, their principles are found to be the same.'

CHAP. II. I. When Taze-ch'an was chief minister of the State of Chang, he would convey people across the Chan and Wei in his own carriage.

2. Mencius said, 'It was kind, but showed that he did not understand the practice of government.

3. 'When in the eleventh month of the year the foot-bridges are completed, and the carriage-bridges in the twelfth month, the people have not the trouble of wading.

4. 'Let a governor conduct his rule on principles of equal justice, hrough a line of characters, indicating the commission, and their halves fitting each other rhen occasion required, was the test of truth and identity. Originally as we see from the have been of bamboo. 4 元 f 'to recken,' 'to estimate,' and od of the mental exercises of the

2. Good government line in boual mrasures RAL GOOD, NOT IN ACTS OF PAYOUR. IS. I. Tess-ch'an,—see Analects, re two rivers of winter. V. xv. The Chilu and Wei w og, said to have their rice in the Ma-ling

4th tone. Cha Hat explains 以其素! by以其所乘之興, but 乘 so used in in and tone. He so expands, however, probably from remembering a conversation on Tes ch'an between Confucius and Tess-yù, relat in the Chié-yū, Bk. IV. iv, near the end, and which Mencius has reference. The mage he of the mental exercises of the control of the mental exercises of the loving but not teaching the people, an illustration of his view, says that Tame-of the people of the control of his view, says that Tame-of the people of the control of the people 以所乘之車濟冬涉,"wo carriage in which he rode to coursey even who w re wading throu The pr seen not in a hills, and to meet at a certain point, small favours, but in the administration of just and beneficent laws. 3. The eleventh and twelfth months here correspond to the ninth seried to the department of Ho-man in Ho-and, when he goes abroad, he may cause people to be removed out of his path. But how can he convey everybody across the rivers?

5. 'It follows that if a governor will try to please everybody, he will find the days not sufficient for his work.'

CHAP. III. 1. Mencius said to the king Hattan of Chi. When the prince regards his ministers as his hands and feet, his ministers regard their prince as their belly and heart; when he regards them as his dogs and horses, they regard him as any other man; when he regards them as the ground or as grass, they regard him as a robber and an enemy.'

2. The king said, 'According to the rules of propriety, a minister wears mourning when he has left the service of a prince. How must a prince behave that his old ministers may thus go into mourning?'

3. Mencius replied, 'The admonitions of a minister having been the Hsia division of the year;—see Analests, their belly and heart,'—i.e. with watchfuln XV. x. Mencius refers to a rule for the repair and honour. 'As his dogs and homes,' of the bridges, on the termination of agri-+君子-爲政者 cultural labours. 'a chief minister.' 🚅 read as . Removing people from the way, when the prince went forth, was likewise a rule of the Ohiu dynasty; and not only did it extend to the prince, but to many officers and women. See the Chau-li, Pt. I. vii. 3a. 5. 'The days not sufficient,'— i.e. he will not have time for all he has to do.

3. What terathent soveresons give to their MINISTERS WILL BE REFURED TO THEE BY A COR-PONDING BEHAVIOUR. I. 'As his hands and feet,'-i.e. with kindness and attention. 'As 3.

and honour. 'As his dogs and horses,'—i.e. without respect, but feeding them. 'As any other man,'—literally, 'as a man of the kingdom,' i.e. without any distinction or reverunes. 'As ground or as grass,'—i.e. trampling on them, outing them off. a. The Li here referred to is mentioned in the 'Ritual Usages;'-see Bk. however, is obscure. 詹吾君,—'for an old prince,' i. e. a prince whose service he has left. The king falls back on this rule, thinking that Mencius had expressed himself too strongly. — 'fat and moistening influences,' followed, and his advice listened to, so that blessings have descended on the people, if for some cause he leaves the country, the prince sends an escort to conduct him beyond the boundaries. He also anticipates with recommendatory intimations his arrival in the country to which he is proceeding. When he has been gone three years and does not return, only then at length does he take back his fields and residence. This treatment is what is called a "thrice-repeated display of consideration." When a prince acts thus, mourning will be worn on leaving his service.

4. 'Now-a-days, the remonstrances of a minister are not followed, and his advice is not listened to, so that no blessings descend on When for any cause he leaves the country, the prince the people. tries to seize him and hold him a prisoner. He also pushes him to extremity in the country to which he has gone, and on the very day of his departure, takes back his fields and residence. treatment shows him to be what we call "a robber and an enemy." What mourning can be worn for a robber and an enemy?

must be supplemented by 稍极其賢、欲其收用之,'mentions and commands his worth, wishing him to be received and used.' H,--·fields, --emoluments. 里,-used for an in. and above, 有故 is not to be taken as 大 dividual residence. We have not had the the in Bk. III. Pt. I. ii. r. We must under-in expectation of the minister's return. 4. Here

Mencius said, 'When scholars are put to death without any crime, the great officers may leave the country. the people are slaughtered without any crime, the scholars may remove.

Mencius said, 'If the sovereign be benevolent, all CHAP. V. will be benevolent. If the sovereign be righteous, all will be righteous.

CHAP. VI. Mencius said, 'Acts of propriety which are not really proper, and acts of righteousness which are not really righteous, the great man does not do.

CHAP. VII. Mencius said, 'Those who keep the Mean, train up those who do not, and those who have abilities, train up those who have not, and hence men rejoice in having fathers and elder brothers who are possessed of virtue and talent. If they who keep

, for if the minister were really imprisoned, he could not go to another kingdom.

4. PROMPT ACTION IS MECHBARY AT THE RIGHT 可以, 'may,'-it is time to. If the opportunity be not taken, while the injustice of the ruler is exercised on those below them, it will soon come to themselves, and it will be too late to escape. The Harmonian concludes its paraphrase thus:—'We may see how the ruler should prise virtue, and be slow to punish; and how he should be cautious in execution of the laws, ever trying to practice benevolence. If he can indeed embody the mind of God, who loves all living things, and make the can make the can indeed embody the mind of God, who loves all living things, and make the compassion of the ancient ages his rule, then both stand 'wishes to,' or 'tries to,' before Heaven, and long repose and protracted good order will be the result.'

5. THE INPLUENCE OF THE BULER'S EXAMPLE. See Pt. L xx, where the same words are found, dication is to stimulate ministr but their application is to stimulate ministers to do their duty in advising, or remonstrating with, their sovereign.

6. THE GREAT MAN MARKS NO MERCARD IN MATERIES OF PROPERTY AND RECEIPSOURISMS.

Z , expre themselves contradictory, must be taken we taken we have a lastenda. 'Respect,' it is said, 'belone as a few as t be taken with RENDERED BY, THE VIRTUOUS AND TALESTED TO officers and people will be grateful to him as to THE YOUNG AND ISHORANG.

the Mean spurn those who do not, and they who have abilities spurn those who have not, then the space between them—those so gifted and the ungifted—will not admit an inch.'

CHAP. VIII. Mencius said, 'Men must be decided on what they will not do, and then they are able to act with vigour in what they ought to do.

Mencius said, 'What future misery have they and CHAP, IX. ought they to endure, who talk of what is not good in others!

CHAP. X. Mencius said, 'Chung-ni did not do extraordinary things.

CHAP. XI. Mencius said, 'The great man does not think before-

- 'given the Mean,' 'given abilities.' the concrete. 2 7, —as in Bk. III. Pt. L. ii. 3.

The original implies, I think, all the level of the other. The original implies, I think, all the level of the other. The original implies, I think, all the level of the other. and the 才above. 不肯,—see the Doctrine of the Mean, iv. 17, - with an inch, i.e. be measured with an inch.

8. Clear descriptionation of what is whom Literally, 'men have the not-do, and after-有爲implies wards they can have the do." vigour in the action. Chao Chi's cor is :-- 'If a man will not condessend to take in any irregular way, he will be found able to yield a thousand chariots.'

9. BVIL SPEAKING IS SURE TO BRIDE WITH IT habit of caring for that.

HVIL CONSEQUENCES. The There, followed by 如何, creates a difficulty. Cha Hat supposes 書,—i. e. 'excessive things,' but 'extraordizary' rather approaches the meaning. It may strike the student that the meaning is—'Comfucius's inaction (=slowness to act) was ex sive,' but in that case we should have had 矣, and not 看, at the end. We may compare with the sentiment the Doctrine of the Mean. zi, ziii ; Analects, VII. zz, et el.

11. WHAT IS REAST IN THE SUPREME PURSUE OF THE GREAT MAR. Compare Analosts, IV. Z. 不此,—'does not must,' he is beyond the hand of his words that they may be sincere, nor of his actions that they may be resolute;—he simply speaks and does what is right.

YOL. IL

CHAP. XII. Mencius said, The great man is he who does not lose his child's-heart.'

CHAP. XIII. Mencius said, 'The nourishment of parents when living is not sufficient to be accounted the great thing. It is only in the performing their obsequies when dead that we have what can be considered the great thing.

Mencius said, 'The superior man makes his CHAP. XIV. advances in what he is learning with deep earnestness and by the proper course, wishing to get hold of it as in himself. Having got to pursue the right.

12. A MAN IN GREAT BROADER HE IS CHILDLINE. Chao Ch'i makes 'the great man' to be 'a sovereign,' and 其赤子, 'his children,' i.e. his people, and the sentiment is that the true sovereign is he who does not lose his people's hearts. I mention this interpretation, as showing how learned men have varied and may vary in fixing the meaning of these books. It is sufficiently absurd, and has been entirely displaced by the interpretation which is given in the version. The sentiment may suggest the Saviour's words,—'Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven.' But Christ speaks of the child's-heart as a thing to be regained; Mencius speaks of it as a thing not to be lost. With Christ, to become as children is to display certain characteristics of children. With Mancertain characteristics of children. cius, 'the child's-heart' is the ideal moral condition of humanity. Chû Hsi says:- 'The mind of the great man comprehends all changes of phenomena, and the mind of the child is nothing but a pure simplicity, free from all hypocrisy. Yet the great man is the great man. hypocrisy. Yet the great man is the great man, just as he is not led astray by external things, couly that in which righteousness is;' that only but keeps his original simplicity and freedom is his concern. In fact he can hardly be said from hypocrisy. Carrying this cut, he beto be concerned about this. It is natural to him to pursue the right. Mencius would himself have expanded his thought in this way.

13. FILIAL PIERY SEEK 生 看一 牛之事,—'the character 者 refers to the ways by which the living may be nourished. It belongs to the phrase 委件, and not to 富=為—'to be considered,' 'to 送死,—literally, 'to accomconstitute.' pany the dead,' but denoting all the last duties to them. It - (Analests, Lix. The sentiment needs a good deal of explaining and guarding. The obsequies are done, it is said, once for all. If done wrong, the fault cannot be remedied. Probably the remark had a peculiar reference. The H supposes it was spoken against the Mohist practice of burying parents with a spare simplicity;—see III. Pt. I. v.

14. THE VALUE OF LEARNING THOROUGHLY IN-hold of it in himself, he abides in it calmly and firmly. Abiding in it calmly and firmly, he reposes a deep reliance on it. Reposing a deep reliance on it, he seizes it on the left and right, meeting everywhere with it as a fountain from which things flow. It is on this account that the superior man wishes to get hold of what he is learning as in himself."

CHAP. XV. Mencius said, 'In learning extensively and discussing minutely what is learned, the object of the superior man is that he may be able to go back and set forth in brief what is essential."

CHAP. XVL Mencius said, 'Never has he who would by his excellence subdue men been able to subdue them. Let a prince seek by his excellence to nourish men, and he will be able to subdue the whole kingdom. It is impossible that any one should become ruler of the people to whom they have not yielded the subjection of the heart.

Y 2

WROUGHE 1970 THE MIND. 深港之,一造, mind of the teaching of Mencius in this chapter. refer to the 🌉, or principles of the subject which is being learnt. 以道 is understood gives the key to the chapter;— . a. his getting hold of the suh his self-getting,' e. his getting hold on awledge of it become ses a kind of intuition. , 'to rely on.' The subject so appreded in its principles is capable of indefinite lication. He seizes it on the right and application. 'He serses W on the rights make left,'—i. a he no longer needs his early efforts to apprehend it. It underlies numberiess phonomena, in all which he at one detects it, just as water below the earth is found easily and nywhere, en digging the surface.—One may 16. The object of this chapter, my commendations of pages in the Chinese commentators, is to stimulate rulers to do good in 16. The object of this chapter, my commentators, is to stimulate rulers to do good in 16. The object of this chapter, my comments and yet not get a clear idea in his own read t/6, 4th tone, 'to arrive at;' Z must Châo Ch'i gives a more substantive meaning than in the translation; thus :- 'The reason why the superior man pursues with earne to arrive at the depth and mystery of 🍱, is from a wish to get hold for himself of its source and root, as something belonging to his own nature. Most critics understand the subject studied to be man's own self, not things ex-ternal to him. We must leave the subject in its own mist.

15. Chû Het says, apparently with reason, that this is a continuation of the last chapter, showing that the object of the superior man in the extensive studies which he pursues, is not vain-glory, but to get to the substance and essence of things. His conveys the two ideas of condensation and importance.

16. The object of this chapter, say commentators, is to stimulate rulers to do good in CHAP. XVII. Mencius said, 'Words which are not true are inauspicious, and the words which are most truly obnoxious to the name of inauspicious, are those which throw into the shade men of talents and virtue.

I. The disciple Hst said, 'Chung-ni often CHAP. XVIII. praised water, saying, "O water!" What did he find in water to praise?

2. Mencius replied, 'There is a spring of water; how it gushes out! It rests not day nor night. It fills up every hole, and then advances, flowing on to the four seas. Such is water having a spring! It was this which he found in it to praise.

Paul's sentiment, - 'Scarcely for a righteous into,' &c. He says he is unable to decide man will one die, yet peradventure for a good man some would even dare to die,'-coours to the mind on reading it, but this is clashed with by its being insisted on that 養人以醫 has no reference to the nourishing men's bodies, but is the bringing them to the nourisher's own moral excellence. Châo Ch'i takes the first 善 as meaning 威力, 'majesty and strength.' But this is inadmissible. point of the chapter is evidently to be found in the contrast of E and A

17. The translation takes # T as an adjective qualifying 膏, and there is a play on the term in the use of the in the two parts. Chû Hat mentions another view making 曾 an adverb joined to 不祥, 'there are no words really inauspicious; ' i.e. generally speaking, 'only those are obnoxious to be are those of Chau, corresponding to the present others. I confect it is to me very enigmatical. regarded as really inauspicious which throw between the two interpretations, and thinks the text may be mutilated.  has reference to 膏, and not to 人, to 'words,' not to men.

> 18. How Mencius explained Compuceus's PRAISE OF WATER, I. At, -read chi, the and tone, 'often.' [12] (in the sense of 'to praise) 於水一於 marking the objective case, or = found something to praise in water. See Analects, IX. xvi, though we have not there the exact words of this passage. 2 科-鋏, 'a pit,' i. e. every hollow in its eourse, 是之取爾, 's seas just the seizing of this.' One commentator brings out the 是之 in this way-以是之故 而取之简. 3. Here, again, the months

'But suppose that the water has no spring.—In the seventh and eighth months when the rain falls abundantly, the channels in the fields are all filled, but their being dried up again may be expected in a short time. So a superior man is ashamed of a reputation beyond his merits.'

CHAP. XIX. 1. Mencius said, 'That whereby man differs from lower animals is but small. The mass of people cast it away, the lower animals is but small.

while superior men preserve it.

2. 'Shun clearly understood the multitude of things, and closely observed the relations of humanity. He walked along the path of benevolence and righteousness; he did not need to pursue benevolence and righteousness."

third and sixth. 兩集, 'the rains are col- | 也知義與不知 lected.' | were channels belonging to the irrigation of the lands divided on the zinethey are dry,' but is often used = 'quickly.' 情=實, as in the Great Learning, Commentary, chap. iv.

19. WHEREBY SAGES ARE DISTINGUISHED FROM OTHER MEN;—ILLUSTRATED IN SHUE. 1. It is to be wished that Mencius had said distinctly what the small (點, the 1st tone, 希) point distinguishing men from birds and beasts was. According to Cha Hat, men and creatures have the 🌉 (intellectual and moral principle) of Heaven and Earth to form their nature, and the (matter) of Heaven and Barth to form their lodies, only men's is more correct than that of beests, so that they are able to fill up the capacity of their nature. This denies any and what difference it allows is corporeal or material. Châo Ch'i says:-- 幾希,無幾 means not much. It is simply the interval between the knowledge of rightcoussquares system. If it is often used = 'quickly.'

The is not the object of Mencius to indicate the object of Mencius the object of Mencius to indicate the object of Mencius the obj the character of that which differen and animals, and not its amount? is something minute. One commentator r us to the expression in the Shu-ching,— 心惟危道心惟微(エエ iヒ ɪś), ๑๑ forming a key to the passage. In that, / is the mind prone to err, in distinction from the 道心, 'the mind of reason,' which it is said is minute. a. Shun preserving and cultivating this distinctive endowment was led to the character and achievements which are here briefly described. The phrase III is, it is maid, 該得廣,凡天地間事 曾是 covers a wide extent of meaning. embracing all matters and things in heaven and earth.' The H refers to it all the

1. Mencius said, 'Yt hated the pleasant wine, and loved good words.

2. 'T'ang held fast the Mean, and employed men of talents and virtue without regard to where they came from.

3. 'King Wan looked on the people as he would on a man who was wounded, and he looked towards the right path as if he could not see it.

4. 'King Wû did not slight the near, and did not forget the distant.

5. 'The duke of Chau desired to unite in himself the virtues of those kings, those founders of the three dynastics, that he might display in his practice the four things which they did. If he saw anything in them not suited to his time, he looked up and thought about it, from daytime into the night, and when he was fortunate enough to master the difficulty, he sat waiting for the morning.

covernmental achievements of Shun related compassionate tenderness. III is to be read in the Shu-ching.

20. THE SAME SUBJECT ;—ILLUSTRATED IN YU, Ting, Win, WC, AND CRIU-KUNG. 1. In the Chan Kwo Ta's (戰國策), which fills up in a measure the space between the period of the Ch'un Ch'iù and the Han dynasty, Part VI, Article 11, we read that anciently a daughter of the Ti (probably Yao or Shun) caused I-ti to make wine (? spirits), and presented it to Yū, who drank some of it, and pronounced it to be pleasant. Then, however, he frowned on 1-ti, and forbade the use of the pleasant liquor, saying, Tang, and the kings Wan and Wa, who are 'In future ages, rulers will through this liquor often classed together as the one founder of ruin their States.' Yu's love of good words is commemorated in the Shu-ching, II. ii. sr. have been stated in the preceding paragraphs. 2. If has a for its antecedent. It is it. 5, 8. 3. 'As he would on one who was wounded,' i.e. he regarded the people with ewn practice the spirit of those ancient sages.

as 571, with which, according to Cha Hat, it was anciently interchanged. See the Shu-ching, V. xvi. II, Is, for illustrations of Wan's care of the people, and the Shu-ching, III. i. Ode VI., for illustration of the other characteristic. 4 淵 , read Asiah (as 湘), and defined by Chao Ch'i as mearing , 'to alight.' The adjectives are to be understood both of persons and things. 5. = I,-i.e. Ye, CHAP. XXI. I. Mencius said, 'The traces of sovereign rule were extinguished, and the royal odes ceased to be made. odes ceased to be made, then the Ch'un Ch'iù was produced.

The Shang of Tsin, the Tao-wû of Ch'û, and the Ch'un Ch'iû of Lt were books of the same character.

3. 'The subject of the Ch'un Ch'iù was the affairs of Hwan of Ch'i and Wan of Tsin, and its style was the historical. Confucius said, "Its righteous decisions I ventured to make."

CHAP. XXII. 1. Mencius said, 'The influence of a sovereign sage terminates in the fifth generation. The influence of a mere sage does the same.

FUCIUM. 1. The extinction of the true royal rule of Chau dates from the transference of the capital from Fang and Hao to Lo by the sovereign Ping, 2.c. 769. From that time, the sovereigns of Chau had the name without the rule. By the is intended, not the Book of Poems, but the Ya () portion of them, descriptive of the royal rule of Chau, and to be used on great occasions.
 does not mean that the Ya were lost, but that no additions were made to them, and they degenerated into mere records of the past, and were no longer descriptions of the present. Confucius edited the annals of Lû to supply the place of the Ya. See Bk. III. Pt. II. iz. S. a. Each State had its annals. Those of Tain were compiled under the name of Shang (4th tone), 'The Carriage;' those of Ch'a under that of Those, which is explained as the name of a ferocious animal, and more anciently as the denomination of a vile and lawless man. The annals of Lû had taken as = 'influence,' it being understood to

21. The same subject ;—ILLUSTRATED IN CON- | the name of 'Spring and Autumn,' two seasons for the whole. 3. II refers only to the annals of La. They did not contain only the affairs of Hwan and Wan, but these occupied an early and prominent place in them. 🔼,—see Bk.

> II. Pt. I. ii. so. W makes the expression still more humble, as if Confucius had 'taken' the judgments from the historians, and not made them himself.

> 22. THE SAME SUBJECT ;—HAUSTRATED IN MENotos Rimmers. 1. Horo 君子--墨賢有 位著, 'the sage and worthy, who has position,' i. e. who occupies the throne, and 🅕 🙏 -聖賢無位者, 'the sage and worthy, We might suppose that who has no position.' the influence of the former would be more permanent, but Menoius is pleased to say their influence lasts the same time. is to be

2. 'Although I could not be a disciple of Confucius himself, I have endeavoured to cultivate my virtue by means of others mbo were.'

CHAP. XXIII. Mencius said, 'When it appears proper to take a thing, and afterwards not proper, to take it is contrary to moder-When it appears proper to give a thing and afterwards not proper, to give it is contrary to kindness. When it appears proper to sacrifice one's life, and afterwards not proper, to sacrifice it is contrary to bravery.'

CHAP. XXIV. 1. Pang Mang learned archery of I. had acquired completely all the science of I, he thought that in all the kingdom only I was superior to himself, and so he slew him, Mencius said, 'In this case I also was to blame. Kung-ming I indeed said, "It would appear as if he were not to be blamed," but be of a beneficial character. of Confucius to the birth of Mencius there would be nearly a hundred years, so that, though Mencius could not learn his doctrines from the ge himself, he did so from his grandson Taseuse, or some of his disciples. ehapter. 波-薯 taken actively. , the 人 referring to Taze-sze and his This and the three preceding chapters should be considered as one, whose purpose is much the same as Bk. III. Pt. II. ix, showing us that Mencius considered himself the successor of Confucius in the line of sages.

23. First judgments are not always correct. IMPULATE MUST BE WEIGHED IN THE BALANCE OF REASON, AND WHAT REASON DIOTATES MUST BE FOL-LOWED. Such is the meaning of this chapter, s. From the death we must supplement them by introducing conclus there would 'afterwards.'

24. THE IMPORTANCE OF BRIDG CARRYUL OF WHOM WE MAKE FRIENDS. The sentiment is good, but Mencius could surely have found better illustrations of it than the second one which he selected. I. Of I, see Analects, XIV. xiv. 🎉 (Pang, as formed with 🏖, not 🛊 is said both by Châo Ch'i and Chù Hei to refer to I's servants (家 梨), but one man is evidently denoted by the name. I's servants did indeed make themselves parties to his murder, but P'ang Mang is the same, I suppose, with Han Tst, the principal in it. see Bk. II. Pt. II. ii. 4, and Analects, VII. xviii. in translating the separate clauses of which, 日海子云南, 'mying, (meaning to my), he thereby only meant that his blame was slight. How can he be held without any blame?'

2. 'The people of Chang sent Tsze-cho Yti to make a stealthy attack on Wei, which sent Yü-kung Sze to pursue him. Tsze-cho Yti said, "To-day I feel unwell, so that I cannot hold my bow. I am a dead man!" At the same time he asked his driver, "Who is it that is pursuing me?" The driver said, "It is Yu-kung Sze," on which he exclaimed, "I shall live." The driver said, "Yü-kung Sze is the best archer of Wei, what do you mean by saying 'I shall live!'" replied, "Yu-kung Sze learned archery from Yin-kung To, who again learned it from me. Now, Yin-kung To is an upright man, and the friends of his selection must be upright also." When Yu-kung Sse came up, he said, "Master, why are you not holding your bow!"

ittack stealthily.' An incursion made with are mere vocal particles. 🎁 ,—read fo. The music, and the pomp of war, is called 役, and name is elsewhere found 尹公代. In the one without these, 慢. The 之 in the 左 傳', under the fourteenth year of duke

Y" answered him, "To-day I am feeling unwell, and cannot hold my bow." On this Sue said, "I learned archery from Yin-kung To, who again learned it from you. I cannot bear to injure you with your own science. The business of to-day, however, is the prince's business, which I dare not neglect." He then took his arrows. knocked off their steel points against the carriage-wheel, discharged four of them, and returned.'

1. Mencius said, 'If the lady Hat had been CHAP. XXV. covered with a filthy head-dress, all people would have stopped their noses in passing her.

Though a man may be wicked, yet if he adjust his thoughts, fast, and bathe, he may sacrifice to God.'

, we have a narrative bearing some like- on the western bank of a certain stre n to this account of Mencius, and in which | we may receive the works of 🛍 开公伦and 页公盖 figure as famous as having really proceeded from that a archers of Wei. It is hardly possible, however, beauty named Hel-tess, two hundred y to suppose that the two accounts are of the 25. It is outly moral beauty that is truly EXCELLENT AND ACCEPTABLE. z. Haf-tone, er · Western lady,' was a poor girl of Yüch, named Shih I (加克), of surpassing beauty, pre- his object was to encourage men to repo ated by the king of Yüch to his enemy the king of Wû, who became devotedly attached to her, and neglected all the duties of his competent for the sovereign only to merit government. She was contemporary with to God. The language of Mencius, in e Confucius. The common account is that she mexican with this fact, very strikingly shows was called 'The was orn lady,' because she lived virtue he attached to penitsnt purification.

before the one of Ytich. In translating 不源, I have followed Châc Ch'l. both by Chao Ch'i and Chu Hat, i the sense of 'ugly,' in opposition to of the lady Hat. I cannot but thin of the lady Hat. intended it in the se and well-doing. .-readends. See Anale VII. xii, et al. By the laws of China, it v

CHAP. XXVI. 1. Mencius said, 'All who speak about the natures of things, have in fact only their phenomena to reason from, and the value of a phenomenon is in its being natural.

2. 'What I dislike in your wise men is their boring out their conclusions. If those wise men would only act as Yti did when he conveyed away the waters, there would be nothing to dislike in their wisdom. The manner in which Yti conveyed away the waters was by doing what gave him no trouble. If your wise men would also do that which gave them no trouble, their knowledge would also be great.

There is heaven so high; there are the stars so distant.

26. How enowered overer to me Punsum M. junction, and is to be taken in close connexion then carried around over Permonents. Mencius with the property the path to knowledge. The rule which he lays down is quito in harmony with that of Becon. It is to be regretted that in China, more perhaps than in any other part of the world, it has been disregarded. I. is here to be taken quite generally.
Julies finds fault with Wesl for translation if by reven nature, which appears to be quite correot. That Had makes it - 人物所得以 生之理, then which mothing could be more general. Possibly Mencius may have had in view the disputes about the pature of man which were rife in his time, but the references to Yü's labours with the waters, and to the studies of astronomers, show that the term is used in its most general signification. The our the waters, according to their nature, and not 'phenomenon,' the nature in its dovelopment. by a system of force. 3 千萬之日至, The character is often used as synonymous with according to modern sol ., 'facts.' 🎒 is more than a simple con-winter solstice, from the midnight of which, it 以故面已, 'can only do so by the 故.' , 'following easily,' 'unconstrained. e. 君看 is the weekibe wise--'your wise , 'their chiselling,' or 'boring,' ing things, instead of 'waitis for them, which is a 行其所事, 'deing that in which they have mad to do.' Ye is mid 行水, rather than, according to the common phraseology about his labours, A k, because 17 more appropriately represents the mode of his dealing with olars, refers to the

we have investigated their phenomena, we may, while sitting in our places, go back to the solstice of a thousand years ago."

CHAP. XXVII. 1. The officer Kung-hang having on hand the funeral of one of his sons, the Master of the Right went to condole with him. When this noble entered the door, some called him to them and spoke with him, and some went to his place and spoke with him.

2. Mencius did not speak with him, so that he was displeased, and said, 'All the gentlemen have spoken with me. There is only Mencius who does not speak to me, thereby slighting me.

3. Mencius having heard of this remark, said, 'According to the prescribed rules, in the court, individuals may not change their places to speak with one another, nor may they pass from their ranks to is supposed, the first calculation of time began; it as meaning, 有人子之喪, 'had the -致是推致而得之, 'we may cal-culate up to and get it.' Chao Ch'i, however, makes the meaning to be simply:—We may and nearly all commentators have since followed sit and determine on what day the solution occurred a thousand years ago.' See the 柘餘說, where this view is approved.

27. How Mencius would not imprais others IN PAYING COURT TO A PAYOURITE. I. Kung-hang (and tone, 'a rank,' 'a row;' various accounts are given of the way in which the term passed along with 🚵 into a double surname) was an officer of Ch'i, who 'had the funeral of a son.' Junior Master.' In the courts of the princes, Meither Chao Ch'i nor Chu Hat offers any remark on the phrase, but some scholars of the Sung dynasty, subsequent to Chu Hat, explained and A A, 'Master of the Left' and 'Master of that view. The author of the 14 餘說, in loa., shows clearly however, that it is incorrect, and that the true interpretation is the more natural ene given in the translation. The Master of the Right here was Wang Hwan (see Bk. II. Pt. II. vi), styled Tass-40. At the reyal court there were the high nobles, called 太師 and 少師, 'Grand Master' and bow to one another. I was wishing to observe this rule, and Tsze-so understands it that I was slighting him :—is not this strange?'

CHAP. XXVIII. 1. Mencius said, 'That whereby the superior man is distinguished from other men is what he preserves in his heart; -namely, benevolence and propriety.

2. 'The benevolent man loves others. The man of propriety shows respect to others.

3. 'He who loves others is constantly loved by them. He who respects others is constantly respected by them.

4. 'Here is a man, who treats me in a perverse and unreasonable The superior man in such a case will turn round upon himself—"I must have been wanting in benevolence; I must have been wanting in propriety;—how should this have happened to me?"

5. 'He examines himself, and is specially benevolent. He turns the Right.' 🏥,—as in Analects, VII. XXX. 2. | BY THE CULTIVATION OF MORAL EXCELLENCE, AND It is to be understood that all the condolers made their visit by the prince's order, and were consequently to observe the court rules. This is the explanation of Meneius's conduct. 3. j refers to the established usages of the court; see the Chan Li, Bk. III. v. 65-67; Bk. IV. iv. 3-14; of al. , 'steps,' or 'stairs,' but here for the ranks of the officers arranged with reference to the steps leading up to the hall.

25 PLACED THEREBY BEYOND THE REACH OF CALAmrr. 1. 存心 must not be understood— 'he preserves his heart.' The first definition of It is not so much an active verb, 'to preserve,' as='to preserve in.' 4. 横(4th tone)並 presuppose the exercise of love and respect, which are done despite to. 此物-此事 5.由 28. How the superior ham is distributioned is used for 15, as often elsewhere. R, in round upon himself, and is specially observant of propriety. perversity and unreasonableness of the other, however, are still the same. The superior man will again turn round on himself— "I must have been failing to do my utmost."

6. 'He turns round upon himself, and proceeds to do his utmost, but still the perversity and unreasonableness of the other are repeated. On this the superior man says, "This is a man utterly lost indeed! Since he conducts himself so, what is there to choose between him and a brute? Why should I go to contend with a brute?"

7. 'Thus it is that the superior man has a life-long anxiety and not one morning's calamity. As to what is matter of anxiety to him, that indeed he has.—He says, "Shun was a man, and I also am a man. But Shun became an example to all the kingdom, and his conduct was worthy to be handed down to after ages, while I am nothing better than a villager." This indeed is the proper matter of anxiety to him. And in what way is he anxious about it? Just that he may be like the senser of 書已, 'deing one's utmost.' | coming from without. 一朝之思 must 6. . to compare with. It be understood from the expressions below:

There may be calamity, but the superior man is explained in the dictionary, with reference is superior to it. Ty, 'but.' We must supply, to this passage, by the charge, 'to reprove.'

—'He should be without anxiety, but he has

7. 基,-proceeding from within; 惠,-|anxiety.' 若夫,-夫, and tone. 亡-無

大學之一 一朝之思則君子不患矣。 一朝之思則君子不患矣。 一朝之思則君子不患矣。 一朝之思則君子不患矣。 不太孔子賢之顏子當亂世 不太孔子賢之顏子當亂世 不以孔子賢之顏子當亂世 一數之孟子曰禹稷顏回同 之也稷思天下有溺者由己溺 之也稷思天下有溺者由己溺

Shun:—then only will he stop. As to what the superior man would feel to be a calamity, there is no such thing. He does nothing which is not according to propriety. If there should befall him one morning's calamity, the superior man does not account it a calamity.'

ing's calamity, the superior man does not account it a calamity.'

CHAP. XXIX. 1. Yu and Chi, in an age when the world was being brought back to order, thrice passed their doors without entering them. Confucius praised them.

2. The disciple Yen, in an age of disorder, dwelt in a mean narrow lane, having his single bamboo-cup of rice, and his single gourd-dish of water; other men could not have endured the distress, but he did not allow his joy to be affected by it. Confucius praised him.

3. Mencius said, 'Yu, Chi, and Yen Hui agreed in the principle of their conduct.

4. 'Yt thought that if any one in the kingdom were drowned, it was as if he drowned him. Chi thought that if any one in the kingdom suffered hunger, it was as if he famished him. It was on this account that they were so earnest.

29. A RECOGNIZED PRINCIPLE WILL RE FOURD — 'to praise.' 2. See Analects, VI. ix. 子世 TO UNDERLIE THE OUTWARDEN DIFFERENT COMPUCE of SHEAT AND GOOD NEW;—IN HONOUR OF YEN HONOUR OF YEN HONOUR OF YEN AND GOOD NEW;—IN 6, 7, 8. The thrice passing his door without entering it was proper to Ye, though it is here attributed also to Chi.

5. 'If Ytt and Chi, and Yen-tsre, had exchanged places, each would have done what the other did.

6. 'Here now in the same apartment with you are people fighting:—you ought to part them. Though you part them with your cap simply tied over your unbound hair, your conduct will be allowable.

7. 'If the fighting be only in the village or neighbourhood, if you go to put an end to it with your cap tied over your hair unbound, you will be in error. Although you should shut your door in such a case, your conduct would be allowable.

CHAP. XXX. 1. The disciple Kung-tu said, 'Throughout the whole kingdom everybody pronounces K'wang Chang unfilial. But you, Master, keep company with him, and moreover treat

I venture to ask why you do so. him with politeness.

5. 则省然, literally, then all so, the mean-them, 'i.e. to part them. This was the case of face being as in the translation. Yen Hti, in the Yt and Chi, in their relation to their times, ing being as in the translation. Yen Hti, in the circumstances of Yil and (tht. would have been circumstances of Yü and Chi, would have been found labouring with as much energy and selfdenial for the public good as they showed; and Yū and Chl, in the circumstances of Hūl, would have lived in obscurity, contented as he was, and happy in the pursuit of the truth and in oultivation of themselves. 6. 程,—read 97, and tone. The rules anciently prescribed for dressing were very minute. Much had to be dressing were very minute. Much had to be done with the hair before the final act of putting on the cap, and tying its strings () Mencius by his designation. In opposition to under the chin, could be performed. In the case in the text, all this is neglected. The uppency of the case, and the intimacy of the uppency of the case, and the intimacy of the individual with the parties quarrelling, justify Tass-yūan. But both these explanations are while that in the next paragraph is so to illustrate the case of Yen Hûi in rela his. But Mencius's illustrations are generally happier than thee

80. How Mescrus explained his princely IPPERCOUNSE WITH A MAN CHARGED WITH REING UNFILIAL. I. K'wang Chang was an officer of Ch'i. His name, according to M was Chang, and designation Chang-teso, so that Kung-to calls him by his name, and Mencius by his designation. In opposition to such neglect. ,—literally, 'to save to be rejected. Chang was the name, and the

2. Mencius replied, 'There are five things which are pronounced in the common usage of the age to be unfilial. The first is laziness in the use of one's four limbs, without attending to the nourishment of his parents. The second is gambling and chess-playing and being fond of wine, without attending to the nourishment of his parents. The third is being fond of goods and money, and selfishly attached to his wife and children, without attending to the nourishment of his parents. The fourth is following the desires of one's ears and eyes, so as to bring his parents to disgrace. The fifth is being fond of bravery, fighting and quarrelling so as to endanger his parents. Is Chang guilty of any one of these things?

3. 'Now between Chang and his father there arose disagreement, he, the son, reproving his father, to urge him to what was good.

4. 'To urge one another to what is good by reproofs is the way of friends. But such urging between father and son is the greatest injury to the kindness, which should prevail between them.

in T is simply equivalent to our 'selfishly—i.e. partially putting them out of their due place, above his parents, loving wife and children.' I cannot see why some should give a sensual meaning to the here. about your gate, your school.' 又從, 'and The advance of meaning from 囊 to moreover from that, i.e. in addition to that. that the former is to be taken in the lighter a. 11 25, may be taken together, simply—sense of diagrace. 3, 4. Compare Pt. L. xviii.

'chess-playing,' or separately, as in the trans-lation; see Analocis, KVII. xxii. 私妻子, show that K wang Changhad been the aggressor.

5. 'Moreover, did not Chang wish to have in his family the relationships of husband and wife, child and mother? But because he had offended his father, and was not permitted to approach him. he sent away his wife, and drove forth his son, and all his life receives no cherishing attention from them. He settled it in his mind that if he did not act in this way, his would be one of the greatest of crimes.—Such and nothing more is the case of Chang.

CHAP. XXXI. 1. When the philosopher Tsang dwelt in Wach'ang, there came a band from Yueh to plunder it. Some one said to him. 'The plunderers are coming:—why not leave this?' Tsing on this left the city, saying to the man in charge of the house, 'Do not lodge any persons in my house, lest they break and injure the plants and trees. When the plunderers withdrew, he sent word to him, saying, 'Repair the walls of my house. I am about to return.

5. 屏, grd tone. Reeders not Chinese will | do so,—to be a 霍師, 'guest and teacher,' think that Chang's treatment of his wife and by the commandant. Wû-ch'ing is probably son was more criminal than his conduct to be referred to a place in the district of his father. 是則罪之大者,一是, 'this,' embracing the two things, his giving offence to his father, and still continuing to enjoy the comforts of wife and son.

31. How Mencius explained the Depterent COMDUCT OF TRANS-TREE AND OF TREE-SEE IN SIMILAR to be referred to a place in the district of 🔟 in the department of Yen-chian. It was thus in the south of Shan-tung. South from it, and covering the present Chiangest and part of Cheh-chiang, were the possessions of Wû (吳) and Yüch, all in Thing-tame's time CIRCUMPTANCES. I. Wu-ch'ing, as in Analecta, subject to Yach. See in the Tring had opened a school or lecture-room in the place. Many understand that he had been invited to (probably a different version of the same), in

When the plunderers retired, the philosopher Tsang returned accordingly. His disciples said, 'Since our master was treated with so much sincerity and respect, for him to be the first to go away on the arrival of the plunderers, so as to be observed by the people, and then to return on their retiring, appears to us to be improper. Ch'an-yû Hsing said, 'You do not understand this matter. Formerly, when Ch'an-yu was exposed to the outbreak of the grass-carriers, there were seventy disciples in our master's following, and none of them took part in the matter.'

2. When Tsze-sze was living in Wei, there came a band from Some one said to him, 'The plunderers are Ch'i to plunder. coming; why not leave this?' Tsze-sze said, 'If I go away, whom will the prince have to guard the State with?'

3. Mencius said, 'The philosophers Tsang and Tsze-sze agreed in which the plunderers are from La. 日,無|Ch'an-(沈 is pronounced as 憲; so commonly; but the point is doubtful; see the 1 the meaning. 素 is explained in the K'anghad Dictionary, with reference to this passage, by 黄, 'grass,' or small plants generally.

| Toking and his disciples (後者-左右
| B| 日,—this 日 must='sent word to.'
| Above | Were living | Perhaps he was the Head 屋,—we should rather expect 屋 but perhaps has to be taken in the sense of as analogous to Trang's leaving Wu-ch'ing, 'roof.' The two characters, however, — 'house.' intimating that he acted on a certain principle If ## be translated actively, we must supply which justified his conduct. a. ## was Taze-

of the Ch'an-yû Family or Clan. as a nominative—'the governor of the city.' see's name. 'Was Hving in Wei,'—i.e. was the principle of their conduct. Tsang was a teacher; -in the place of a father or elder brother. Tsze-sze was a minister ;--in a meaner place. If the philosophers Tsang and Tsze-sze had exchanged places, the one would have done what the other did.'

The officer Ch'û said to Mencius, 'Master, the CHAP. XXXII. king sent persons to spy out whether you were really different from other men.' Mencius said, 'How should I be different from other men? Yao and Shun were just the same as other men.

CHAP. XXXIII. 1. A man of Ch'i had a wife and a concubine. and lived together with them in his house. When their husband went out, he would get himself well filled with wine and flesh, and then return, and, on his wife's asking him with whom he ate and drank, they were sure to be all wealthy and honourable people. The wife informed the concubine, saying, 'When our good man goes out, he is sure to come back having partaken plentifully of wine and flesh. I asked with whom he ate and drank, and they are all, it seems, wealthy and honourable people. And yet no people living and sustaining office. But the attack of first arrival in Ch'i, and before he had any Wei by Ch'i is not easily verified. 3. The reader interview with the king.

33. THE DESCRIPTION MEASUREMENT SOME MEN duct is satisfactory.

Ch'a was a minister of Ch'i. We must suppose beginning of the chapter, Z 7 [], 'Menthat it was the private manners and way of clus said.' The phrase in Renders, which the king wanted to TAKE TO SEEK FOR THEIR LIVING, AND FOR WHALK 82. SAGRE ARE JUST LIKE OTHER MEN. This I. As Chu Hat observes, there ought to be, at the apy out, unless the thing occurred on Mencius's 宝 老 is not easily managed in translating.

of distinction ever come here. I will spy out where our good man goes.' Accordingly, she got up early in the morning, and privately followed wherever her husband went. Throughout the whole city, there was no one who stood or talked with him. At last, he came to those who were sacrificing among the tombs beyond the outer wall on the east, and begged what they had over. Not being satisfied, he looked about, and went to another party;—and this was the way in which he got himself satiated. His wife returned, and informed the concubine, saying, 'It was to our husband that we looked up in hopeful contemplation, with whom our lot is cast for life;—and now these are his ways!' On this, along with the concubine she reviled their husband, and they wept together in the middle hall. In the meantime the husband, knowing nothing of all this, came in with a jaunty air, carrying himself proudly to his wife and concubine.

2. In the view of a superior man, as to the ways by which men

The subject of it is the 'man of Ch',' and not in the 備旨, 'having the duty of setting an 'the wife and concubine.' It is descriptive of him as living with them, and being the head of a family,一有刑家之責, as is said husband. 所與飲食者.—not 'who seek for riches, honours, gain, and advancement, there are few of their wives and concubines who would not be ashamed and weep together on account of them.

gave him to drink and eat,' as Julies makes | for 'sity.' 🕏 ,—see Bk. IL Pt. IL i. a. 🥕 it. 所 之, 一之, the verb, as also below, 他, 'went to another place,' = 'another party.' M, either and or 4th tone.

施從,一施, read a 差 希, as in chap, xix. 1, but it is here an adjective, 'few.'

BOOK V.

WAN CHANG. PART I.

CHAPTER I. 1. Wan Chang asked Moncius, saying, 'When Shun went into the fields, he cried out and wept towards the pitying heavens. Why did he cry out and weep! Mencius replied, 'He was dissatisfied, and full of earnest desire.

2. Wan Chang said, 'When his parents love him, a son rejoices and forgets them not. When his parents hate him, though they punish him, he does not murmur. Was Shun then murmuring

This Book is named from the chief interlocutor in it, Wan Chang (see Bk. III. Pt. II.

y). The tradition is that it was in company with Wan Chang's disciples, that Monoius, baffled in his hopes of doing public service, and having retired into reverse, changed the service, and having retired into reverse, changed the service. having retired into privacy, composed the seven 'to cry out.' It has another signification in Books, which constitute his Works. The first the same tone,—'to wall,' which would answer part of this Book is occupied with discussions equally well. See the incident related in the about 6hun, and other ancient worthies.

Sht-shing, IL ii. 21, from which we learn that against his parents? Mencius answered, 'Ch'ang Hai asked Kungming Kao, saying, "As to Shun's going into the fields, I have received your instructions, but I do not know about his weeping and crying out to the pitying heavens and to his parents." Kung-ming Kao answered him, "You do not understand that matter." Kung-ming Kao supposed that the heart of the filial son could not be so free of sorrow. Shun would say, "I exert my strength to cultivate the fields, but I am thereby only discharging my office as a What can there be in me that my parents do not love me?"

3. 'The Ti caused his own children, nine sons and two daughters, the various officers, oxen and sheep, storehouses and granaries, all such behaviour was a characteristic of his Analout, IV. xviii. Kung-ming Kāc is gener-carlier life, when he was 'ploughing' at the ally understood to have been a disciple of fact of the Is kill. feet of the Li kill. 显天,—the name given to the autumnal sky or heavens. Two meanings have been assigned to 🖳: 'the variegated,' with reference to the beautiful timis (V † of matured nature; and 'the composionate,' as if it were to with reference to the decay of nature. This latter is generally acquiseced in. I have translated - by 'towards,' but the paraphrase in the 📙 🌉 is :—'He cried out and called upon pitying Heaven, that lovingly overshadows and compassionates this lower world, weeping at the same time." 具,—simply, 'be was murmuring and desiring. The murmuring was at himself, but this is purposely kept in the background, and through Shun's mind. # = ##, the 1st tone. Chang supposed that he was murmuring at a See the Shu-ching, I par. 12, but the various his parents. a. 文母...不知,—see incidents of the particular honours conferred been a disciple of Kao. 吾既得聞命 'I have received your com said deferentially for 'instructions,' as in Bk. III. Pt. L v. 5 干发母 is also from the Shu-ching, though omitted above in par. r. In translating we must reverse the order of , 'he wept and cried out,--to heaven, to his parenta. 是非爾所知他, Bk. IV. Pt. II. xxxi.·t. 不若是恕( so without sorrow, i.e. not so, as common people would have it, and as Ch'ang Hsi thought would have been right, that he could refrain from wesping and crying set. 表坞. A are the thoughts supposed to pass to be prepared, to serve Shun amid the channelled fields. scholars of the kingdom there were multitudes who flocked to him. The sovereign designed that Shun should superintend the kingdom along with him, and then to transfer it to him entirely. because his parents were not in accord with him, he felt like a poor man who has nowhere to turn to.

4. 'To be delighted in by all the scholars of the kingdom, is what men desire, but it was not sufficient to remove the sorrow of The possession of beauty is what men desire, and Shun had for his wives the two daughters of the Ti, but this was not sufficient to remove his sorrow. Riches are what men desire, and the kingdom was the rich property of Shun, but this was not sufficient to remove his sorrow Honours are what men desire, and Shun had the dignity of being sovereign, but this was not sufficient to remove his sorrow. The reason why the being the object of men's delight, with the a Shun, and his influence, are to be collected was the general history of him and Yao, here is, however, an important discrepancy stween Menchus's account of Shun, and that the Shaching Them when his is in the Shaching Them when his in the Shaching Them when his in the Shaching Them when his influence, are to be collected Yao. They are mentioned, however, in the same that the same thad the same that the same that the same that the same that the sa in the Shu-ching. There, when he is fir recommended to Yao by the high officers, th when he is first hase their recommendation on the fact of his having overcome the evil that was in his parents and brother, and brought them to selfgovernment. The Shu-ching, moreover, mentions only one son of Yao, Tan Cht (月朱), and says nothing of the nine who are here said to have been put under the command of 'to wive,' 'to have for wife.' Observe the force possession of beauty, riches, and honours were not sufficient to remove his sorrow, was that it could be removed only by his getting his parents to be in accord with him.

III is here = our 'a beauty, t, in and tone, here as a verb.

5. 'The desire of the child is towards his father and mother. When he becomes conscious of the attractions of beauty, his desire is towards young and beautiful women. When he comes to have a wife and children, his desire is towards them. When he obtains office, his desire is towards his sovereign:—if he cannot get the regard of his sovereign, he burns within. But the man of great filial piety, to the end of his life, has his desire towards his parents. In the great Shun I see the case of one whose desire at fifty years was towards them.'

CHAP. II. I. Wan Chang asked Mencius, saying, 'It is said in the Book of Poetry, of 🛣, leading on to what follows as the 2. Defence of Shun against the charges of translated it in the same way. 女,—in the st. 3 告, 4th tone, as in Analests, III xvii. somes of 🌉, 'beautiful.'

"In marrying a wife, how ought a man to proceed?

He must inform his parents.

If the rule be indeed as here expressed, no man ought to have illustrated it so well as Shun. How was it that Shun's marriage took place without his informing his parents?' Mencius replied, 'If he had informed them, he would not have been able to marry.

the term has a different acceptation from that in the preceding paragraph, though I have |信=*, 'if indeed.' 以數父母,--if male and female should dwell together, is the greatest of human relations. If Shun had informed his parents, he must have made void this greatest of human relations, thereby incurring their On this account, he did not inform them.

2. Wan Chang said, 'As to Shun's marrying without informing his parents, I have heard your instructions; but how was it that the Ti Ydo gave him his daughters as wives without informing Shun's parents?' Mencius said, 'The Ti also knew that if he informed them, he could not marry his daughters to him.'

3. Wan Chang said, 'His parents set Shun to repair a granary, to which, the ladder having been removed, Kû-sau set fire. They also made him dig a well. He got out, but they, not knowing that, proceeded to cover him up. Hsiang said, "Of the scheme to cover up the city-forming prince, the merit is all mine. Let my parents have his oxen and sheep. Let them have his storehouses and granaries.

he had not married, then his parents would have had cause to be angry with him, for allowing the line of the family to terminate. This seems to be the meaning of the phrase. the wall, and gotaway by means of it. 留合,—as in the last chapter. 雷…而 tradition, and not from the Shu-ching. Shun or 'capital.' With reference to this, Hsiang the wall, and gotaway by means of it. 都君, -it is mentioned in the last chapter, how t 不管,一告 here is understood as - 're- scholars of the kingdom flocked to Shun. They quiring Shun to inform his parents.' 3. Shun's half-brother is understood to have been the instigator in the attempts on his life here mentioned. The incidents, however, are taken from the Shunbing. Shun on 'assemblage;' in two years, he formed a statempts on the Shunbing. Shun on 'assemblage;' in two years, he formed a statempts of the statemp say that if he lived in one place for a year, he

His shield and spear shall be mine. His lute shall be mine. His bow shall be mine. His two wives I shall make attend for me to my bed." Hsiang then went away into Shun's palace, and there was Shun on his couch playing on his lute. Hsiang said, "I am come simply because I was thinking anxiously about you." At the same time, he blushed deeply. Shun said to him, "There are all my officers:—do you undertake the government of them for me." I do not know whether Shun was ignorant of Hsiang's wishing to kill him.' Mencius answered, 'How could he be ignorant of that? But when Hsiang was sorrowful, he was also sorrowful; when Hsiang was joyful, he was also joyful.

4. Chang said, 'In that case, then, did not Shun rejoice hypocritically?' Mencius replied, 'No. Formerly, some one sent a present of a live fish to Tsze-ch'an of Chang. Tsze-ch'an ordered his pond-keeper to keep it in the pond, but that officer cooked it, and reported the execution of his commission, saying, "When calls him 都君. 肤, now confined to the | 'a bed,' or 'couch.' 馨陶思君' imperial ws, was anciently used by high and low. If, 'a carved bow,' said to have been given to Shun by Yao, as a token of his assocolating him with him on the throne. 二襲 thinking of you only.' 4. 核 (read holde, 4th —literally, 'the two sisters-in-law.' 樓=狀 | tone)人 is taken by all the commentators as

I first let it go, it appeared embarrassed. In a little while, it seemed to be somewhat at ease, and then it swam away joyfully." observed, "It had got into its element! It had got into its element!" The pond-keeper then went out and said, "Who calls Tsze-ch'an a wise man? After I had cooked and eaten the fish, he says, "It had got into its element! It had got into its element!" Thus a superior man may be imposed on by what seems to be as it ought to be, but he cannot be entrapped by what is contrary to right principle. Hsiang came in the way in which the love of his elder brother would have made him come; therefore Shun sincerely believed him, and rejoiced. What hypocrisy was there?'

CHAP. III. 1. Wan Chang said, 'Hsiang made it his daily business to slay Shun. When Shun was made sovereign, how was it that he only banished him?' Mencius said, 'He raised him to be a prince. Some supposed that it was banishing him?'

主礼 沼 小 吏, 'a small officer over the things mentioned by Wan Chang really occurred or not, we do not know. But Mencius was able to know and describe the mind of Shun, and that 故君子可欺 —compare Analects, VI. xxiv. was joyful.

the phrase is found elsewhere.

(a) the phrase is found elsewhere.

(b) this here worth discussing about.

S. EXPLANATION AND DEFENCE OF SHUN'S COM-DUCT IN THE CASE OF HIS WICKED BROTHER HETANG: -ROW HE BOTH DESCRIPTIONED HIM, AND KEPT 其方, 'by its class,' the meaning being as MIR UNDER RESTRAIRS. I. 放一管, 'to place, in the translation.—Chu Hat says:—'Mencius with the idea of keeping in the place,—'to says that Shun knew well that Hsiang wished banish.' Chang's thought was that Hsiang to kill him, but when he saw him sorrowful, he should have been put to death, and not merely was sorrowful, and when he saw him joyful, he was joyful. The ease was that his brotherly banished. feeling could not be repressed. Whether the stand [as meaning 'supposed,' and not 'said."

2. Wan Chang said, 'Shun banished the superintendent of works to Yû-châu; he sent away Hwan-tâu to the mountain Ch'ung; he alew the prince of San-mike in San-wei; as d he imprisoned K wan on the mountain Ytt. When the crimes of those four were thus punished, the whole kingdom acquiesced:—it was a cutting off of men who were destitute of benevolence. But Hsiang was of all men the most destitute of benevolence, and Shun raised him to be the prince of Yû-pi;—of what crimes had the people of Yû-pi been guilty? Does a benevolent man really act thus? In the case of other men, he cut them off; in the case of his brother, he raised him to be a prince.' Menoius replied, 'A benevolent man does not lay up anger, nor cherish resentment against his brother, but only regards him with affection and love. Regarding him with affection, he wishes him to be honourable: regarding him with love, he wishes him to The appointment of Hsiang to be the prince of Yû-pî was If while Shun himself was sovereign, his to enrich and ennoble him.

surname or name of the holder of it is not found bracing the present department of ## , and in the Shu-ching. Hwan-thu was the name of in the San-ching. Hwan-thu was the name of extending towards Wû-ch'ang. the H hame of the father of Yu.

s. The different individuals mentioned here in evil.

is to be understood, in the are all spoken of in the Shû-ching, Pt. II. i. 12, text, as 'the prime of San-mito,' which was the which see.

I is a name of office. The name of a State, near the Tung-t'ing lake, em-The places m pears in the Shu-ching, as the friend of the tioned are difficult of identification. Yu-pt is 工, recommending him to Yao; hence referred to the present 道州, and the dis-Chu Hai says that these two were confederate trict of Ling-ling, in the department of 🔭 州, brother had been a common man, could he have been said to regard him with affection and love?'

3. Wan Chang said, 'I venture to ask what you mean by saying that some supposed that it was a banishing of Hsiang?' replied, 'Hsiang could do nothing in his State. The Son of Heaven appointed an officer to administer its government, and to pay over its revenues to him. This treatment of him led to its being said that he was banished. How indeed could he be allowed the means of oppressing the people? Nevertheless, Shun wished to be continually seeing him, and by this arrangement, he came incessantly to court, as is signified in that expression—"He did not wait for the rendering of tribute, or affairs of government, to receive the prince of Yû-pî.

CHAP. IV. 1. Hsien-ch'iû Mang asked Menoius, saying, 'There

治此四凶之罪,taking罪 as meaning 'crimes.' , 'submitted,' i.e. acknowledged the justice of the punishments inflicted. A... it Z appears to be incom- geneice of government which replete, as if Mencius had not permitted his disciple to finish what he had to say. 宿怨, to lodge, as if for a night, resentment; eompere 宿話, Analesta, XII.xii. a. 3. 不 得有爲'did not get to have doing,' i.e. was not allowed to act independently I I REFERENCE TO THE SOVEREIGN YAO, AND HER PATHER

in Hê-nan. 癌 is said by Châ Hai to-誅,|稅-其國所賦(taking頁 as a verb) 'to out off,' but that is too strong. 四罪-|之稅. 源源. 'the uninterrupted flowing of a stream.' 不及實…有] quotation by Menetus from some book that is now lost. There were regular seasons for the princes in general to repair to court, and emeres of government which required their nos, but Shun did not wish his brother to wait for such occasions, but to be often with him. The 📉 extends over the two clan which-不及實期而見不以 政事而見

4. EXPLANATION OF SHUR'S COMPUCE WEEK

is the saying, "A scholar of complete virtue may not be employed as a minister by his sovereign, nor treated as a son by his father. Shun stood with his face to the south, and Yao, at the head of all the princes, appeared before him at court with his face to the north. Kû-sau also did the same. When Shun saw Kû-sau, his counte-Confucius said, At this time, in what nance became discomposed. a perilous condition was the kingdom! Its state was indeed unsettled."—I do not know whether what is here said really took place." Mencius replied, 'No. These are not the words of a superior man. They are the sayings of an uncultivated person of the east of Ch't. When Yao was old, Shun was associated with him in the government. It is said in the Canon of Yao, "After twenty and eight years, the Highly Meritorious one deceased. The people acted as if Kô-siv. I. Hsien-ch'iû Ming was a disciple direct example of the principle announced. of Mencius. The surname Hsien-ch'iû was Shun was the scholar of complete virtue, and derived from a place of that name where his therefore the sovereign Yao, and his father. regenitors had resided. The saying which Ming adduces extends to 发发乎. Two entirely contrary interpretations of it have been given. One is that given in the translation. It is the view of Chao Ch'i, and is found in the modern Pi-chih (情旨), or 'Complete Digest of Annotations on the Four Books.' Most modern commentaries, however, take an op-posite view:—'The scholar of complete virtue cannot employ his sovereign as a minister, or treat his father as a son.' This view is preferred by Julien, who styles the other very bad. I am satisfied, however, that the other is the correct one If it were not, why should Mencius con-demn the sentiment as that of an uninstructed therefore the sovereign Yao, and his father, Ka-sau, both appeared before him as subjects. 学見、云云, and the remarks of Confucins are to be taken as a protest against the arrangements described in the preceding paragraphs. 南面,北面,—see Analests, VI. i. 野 is to be joined as an adjective with A, and not as a noun with . The passage quoted from the Shu-ching is now found in the canon of Shun, and not that of Yao; -see II. i. 19. 有, 4th tone. E, 3rd tone, 'a year.' *放 (3rd tone · see Bk. III. Pt. I. iv. 8) 2 is not in 舜南面,云云, follows as a the classic. 但(=殂)落,—Chû Hat makes they were mourning for a father or mother for three years, and up to the borders of the four seas every sound of music was hushed. Confucius said, "There are not two suns in the sky, nor two sovereigns over the people." Shun having been sovereign, and, moreover, leading on all the princes to observe the three years' mourning for YAo, there would have been in this case two sovereigns.'

2. Haien-ch'iù Mang said, 'On the point of Shun's not treating Yao as a minister, I have received your instructions. But it is said in the Book of Poetry,

"Under the whole heaven,

Every spot is the sovereign's ground;

To the borders of the land,

Every individual is the sovereign's minister;"

and Shun had become sovereign. I venture to ask how it was that Kû-sau was not one of his ministers.' Mencius answered,

图-升, 'to ascend.' The animus ascends at deceased father and mother. 三年,—for death, and the saims 夜, 'descends;'—hence 年 the classic has 章. The 八音, 'eight the combination = 'dissolution,' decease.' The sounds,' are all instruments of music, formed dictionary, however, makes A simply = 4, of metal, stone, cord, bamboo, calabash, earthen and the phrase - 'vanish away.' | ware, leather, or wood.—The meaning is that up to the time of Yao's decease, Shun was only = 'all the people.' 考妣,—the terms for a but to the general scope of the preceding para-

people within the royal domain; the II / vice-king, and, therefore, Yao never could have denotes the rest of the kingdom, beyond that. appeared before him in the position of a subject. Some, however, approved by the 日識, make | 2. 舜之不臣 薨 is not to be taken with 百姓-百官, 'the officers,' and 四海 reference to the phrase 君不得而臣,

'That ode is not to be understood in that way:—it speaks of being laboriously engaged in the sovereign's business, so as not to be able to nourish one's parents, as if the author said, "This is all the sovereign's business, and how is it that I alone am supposed to have ability, and am made to toil in it?" Therefore, those who explain the odes, may not insist on one term so as to do violence to a sentence, nor on a sentence so as to do violence to the general scope. They must try with their thoughts to meet that scope, and then we shall apprehend it. If we simply take single sentences, there is that in the ode called "The Milky Way,"-

"Of the black-haired people of the remnant of Chau,

There is not half a one left."

If it had been really as thus expressed, then not an individual of the people of Chau was left.

3. 'Of all which a filial son can attain to, there is nothing greater than his honouring his parents. 'And of what can be attained to The restricting it to the former, in opposition to the maxim—不以辭害志, has led to the erroneous view of the whole pussage animadverted on above. Mang is now convinced that it was only on Yao's death that or aim of the writer. 3. 詩日,—see the Shun became full sovereign, but after that Shih-ching, III. i. Ode IX. st. 3, celebrating the graph, and especially to Mencius's explanation. | sau would be at once father and subject to him? -see the Shih-ching, II. vi. Ode L at a. see the Shih-ching, III. iii. Ode IV. st. 3. 志, 'the scope,' i.e. the mind event there still remained the relation between praises of king Wû.—This paragraph shows that him and Kû-sau, and how could be be at once thun, by his exaltation, honoured his father severeign and son to him? How was it that Kû-only the more exceedingly. He was the more in the honouring one's parents, there is nothing greater than the nourishing them with the whole kingdom. Kû-sau was the father of the sovereign;—this was the height of honour. Shun nourished him with the whole kingdom;—this was the height of nourishing. In this was verified the sentiment in the Book of Poetry,

"Ever cherishing filial thoughts,

Those filial thoughts became an example to after ages."

4. 'It is said in the Book of History, "Reverently performing his duties, he waited on Kû-sau, and was full of veneration and , awe. Kû-sâu also believed him and conformed to virtue,"-This is the true case of the scholar of complete virtue not being treated as a son by his father.'

CHAP. V. 1. Wan Chang said, 'Was it the case that Yao Mencius said, 'No. The sovereign gave the throne to Shun?'

cannot give the throne to another.'
2. 'Yes;—but Shun had the throne. Who gave it to him?' 'Heaven gave it to him,' was the answer.

'a son' to Kit-ain. 4 番目,--soo the Shū-| see Bl. I. Pt. II. ii, =有乙乎 4 天興 has 🕵 ,—this seems to be a supplement by Mencius, as if he said, 'There is indeed a meaning in that saying that a scholar of complete virtue cannot be treated as a son by his father, for in the case of Shun and Kū-sau we see that the father was affected by the son, and not the son by the father.'

ching, IL it. 25. 客 (read chat) 果 (the classic 之,—is it not plain that by 'Heaven' in this chapter we are to understand Goo? Many commentatous understand by it 35, 'reason,' or 'the truth and fitness of things,' saving in the expression—故日天, in par. 7, where they take it as - in, 'fate.' On this the author of 5. How Shous cor the Theore by the cure of the 四書語 當輯要, 'A collection of HEAVER Vox Populs vox Des. 1. 有識,— the most important comments of the Learned

3. "Heaven gave it to him:"—did Heaven confer its appointment on him with specific injunctions?'

4. Menoius replied, 'No. Heaven does not speak. It simply showed its will by his personal conduct and his conduct of affairs.

5. "It showed its will by his personal conduct and his conduct of affairs:"—how was this?" Mencius's answer was, 'The sovereign can present a man to Heaven, but he cannot make Heaven give that man the throne. A prince can present a man to the sovereign, but he cannot cause the sovereign to make that man a prince. A great officer can present a man to his prince, but he cannot cause the prince to make that man a great officer. Yao presented Shun to Heaven, and Heaven accepted him. He presented him to the people, and the people accepted him, Therefore I say, "Heaven does not on the Four Books, says—廬齋獨以此 say, Hessen gave # 10 Atm, did Heaven indeed express its instructions and commands to him 'Heū-chāi supposes that in this one case (故文 日天) the word Heaven means fate. But reat error. In this chapter "Heaven" signifies the government of God, within which are included both reason and fate.' 3. 天 奥 ,一酒, = 'as to what you say.' 现 (the again and again? If it did not do so, where is the ground for what you may?' 4. 17,4th tone, 'conduct,' as opposed to 🌉, 'the conduct of affairs.' 京之, 'showed it,' i.e. its will to give him the throne. The character 🔭 takes here the place of 🈭, because 😭 would require the use of language, whereas 🛣 is the simple indication of the will. 5. [] the hundred (-all the) spirits, is explained as speak. It simply indicated its will by his personal conduct and his conduct of affairs."

- 6. Chang said, 'I presume to ask how it was that Ydo presented Shun to Heaven, and Heaven accepted him; and that he exhibited him to the people, and the people accepted him.' Menoius replied. 'He caused him to precide over the sacrifices, and all the spirits were well pleased with them;—thus Heaven accepted him. He caused him to preside over the conduct of affairs, and affairs were well administered, so that the people reposed under him;—thus the people accepted him. Heaven gave the throne to him. The people gave it to him. Therefore I said, "The sovereign cannot give the throne to another."
- 7. 'Shun assisted Yao in the government for twenty and eight years:—this was more than man could have done, and was from ching, II. i. 6, a distinction is made between , 'host of spirits,' and 上帝, 六 and [[]][], but the phrase here is to be taken as inclusive of all. The sovereign is and Shun entered into all the of Yao, even while Yao was alive. How the spirits signified their approbation of the sacrifices, we are not told.—Modern critics take the [1] is here as exclusive of Heaven and subordinate to it, being equivalent to the A the energetic operations of Heaven.' But such views were long subsequent to Mencius's gifts. I consider that this is an additional illusdritual beings, real or supposed. In the Shū- | time. 6. 話侯 is very plainly in the singular notwithstanding the 🚉 ; = 'one of the princes.' I leave the 普 者, 'formerly,' out of the translation. -read #4, 'to manifest,' 'to exhibit.' 7. 相, 4th tone. 有, 4th tone. In 天地,天 it is maid, 以氣數膏, 'Heaven means destiny.' But why suppose a different meaning of the term? Twenty-eight years were, indeed, a long time for Shun to occupy the place of vice sovereign as he did, and showed wonderful Heaven. After the death of Yao, when the three years' mourning was completed, Shun withdrew from the son of Yao to the south of South river. The princes of the kingdom, however, repairing to court, went not to the son of YAo, but they went to Shun. Litigants went not to the son of Yao, but they went to Shun. Singers sang not the son of Yao, but they sang Shun. Therefore I said, "Heaven gave him the throne." It was after these things that he went to the Middle Kingdom, and occupied the seat of the Son of If he had, before these things, taken up his residence in the palace of Yao, and had applied pressure to the son of Yao, it would have been an act of usurpation, and not the gift of Heaven.

8. This sentiment is expressed in the words of The Great Declaration,—"Heaven sees according as my people see; Heaven hears according as my people hear."

tration of the T above, by which Heaven makes no distinction between the terms here, intimated its will about Shun. The south of and explains 設徽譜線不决而設the South river (probably the most southern of the nine streams which Yū opened) would be in the present Ho-nan. Thither Shun retired from Chi-chau, the present Shan-hat, where Yao's capital was. For the difference between (ch'éo, and tone) and [1], see the Li-chi, I. Sect. II. il. II, and notes thereon. 之 舞 之 中 冨,―之-往, the verb. Analects, XII, xiii, but Oht Hat |—see the Sht-ching, V. I. Sect. II. 7.

L 一大,—these two terms must be taken together. This is the more general name of the two. The 說文 says that 🍱 is 🖥 'the singing of many together.' The IF makes to be the several tunes of the singers. 而-若, or 使. 8. 泰

1. Wan Chang asked Mencius, saying, 'People say, "When the disposal of the kingdom came to Yti, his virtue was inferior to that of Ydo and Shun, and he transmitted it not to the worthiest but to his son." Was it so?' Mencius replied, 'No; it was not so. When Heaven gave the kingdom to the worthiest, it was given to the worthiest. When Heaven gave it to the son of the preceding sovereign, it was given to him. Shun presented Ytt to Heaven. Seventeen years elapsed, and Shun died. When the three years' mourning was expired; Yu withdrew from the son of Shun to Yangchang. The people of the kingdom followed him just as after the death of Yao, instead of following his son, they had followed Shun. Yu presented Y1 to Heaven. Seven years elapsed, and Yu died. When the three years' mourning was expired, Y1 withdrew from the son of Yti to the north of mount Ch'i. The princes, repairing to court, went not to Yi, but they went to Ch'i. Litigants did not go

______ 'coming to ;' we must understand, 'From Yao and Shun, or translate somehow as I have done. Some say that the foot of the Sung not to be taken with special reference to Shun and Yt, and to Ch'i, but it seems best to do so.

Cht Hst says, 'Yang-ch'ing and the north of mount Ch'i were both at the foot of the Sung mountains, places fit for retirement, within and Yt, and to Ch'i, but it seems best to do so.

6. How the theore described from YU to A general inference may be drawn as well from his sor, and not to his himsen YI; that YU the special cases.

A general inference may be drawn as well from the special cases. MAS NOT TO HE COMMINGUE OR THAT SECUR. I. I was his virtue inferior, and his transmitting the throne to his son a proof that it was so? 昔者,—omitted in translating, as before.

to Y1, but they went to Ch'1, saying, "He is the son of our sovereign;" the singers did not sing Y1, but they sang Ch'1, saying, "He is the son of our sovereign."

2. 'That Tan-chû was not equal to his father, and Shun's son not equal to his; that Shun assisted Yao, and Yu assisted Shun, for many years, conferring benefits on the people for a long time; that thus the length of time during which Shun, Yu, and Yi assisted in the government was so different; that Ch'i was able, as a man of talents and virtue, reverently to pursue the same course as Yu; that Y1 assisted Yt only for a few years, and had not long conferred benefits on the people; that the periods of service of the three were so different; and that the sons were one superior, and the other superior: —all this was from Heaven, and what could not be brought about by man. That which is done without man's doing is from Heaven. That. which happens without man's causing is from the ordinance of Heaven.

3. 'In the case of a private individual obtaining the throne, there been the same place, and that is is a mistake the Shû-ching, II. iv. Ch'i was Yû's son, who succeeded him on the throne. a. Tan-chû was the son of Yao; see the Shû-ching, I. g. The son of Shun is not mentioned in the classic. His son of Shun is not mentioned in the classic. His (登載), in the department of Ho-nan, in name was 1-chun (美妇), and often appears Ho-nan. Yl was Yü's great minister, raised as Shang Chun, he having been appointed to to that dignity after the death of Kao-yao;—see the principality of Shang(商). In 之相, must be in him virtue equal to that of Shun or Yü; and moreover there must be the presenting of him to Heaven by the preceding sovereign. It was on this account that Confucius did not obtain the throne.

4. 'When the kingdom is possessed by natural succession, the sovereign who is displaced by Heaven must be like Chieh or Chau. It was on this account that Yi, I Yin, and Chau-kung did not.

obtain the throne.

5. 'I Yin assisted Tang so that he became sovereign over the kingdom. After the demise of Tang, Tai-ting having died before he could be appointed sovereign, Wai-ping reigned two years, and Chung-san four. Tai-chia was then turning upside down the statutes of Tang, when I Yin placed him in Tung for three years. There Tai-chia repented of his errors, was contrite, and reformed In Tung he came to dwell in benevolence and walk in himself.

in Chinese composition, the 皆in 皆天也 resuming all the previous clause -'Tan Chû's not apposition with one another:— Tan Onu s not being like his father, Shun's son's not being like osition with one another :as is indicated by the terms, with the | is in 4th tone. In this paragraph we | XII. xxii. 6), and Châu-kung or the duke of have a longer sentence than is commonly found Chau, the well-known assistant of his brother, king Wa. 5. 相, in 4th tone. 干, in grd tone. 太丁...四年,-I have transla here according to Chao Ch'i. One of the Ch'ange gives a different view;—'On the death of Tas Wai-ping was only two years old, and Chur sin was but four. Tai was somewhat old sin was but four. This was somewhat and therefore was put on the thone; between this view and the other, Chu Hat pro-fesses himself unable to decide. The first view ferres himself unable to decide. appears to me much the more natural, and is founded moreover on the account in the 'Historical Records,' though the histories have b was the chief minister of Tang (see Analects, appears as the successor of Tang. This arrange-righteousness, during those three years, listening to the lessons given to him by I Yin. Then I Yin again returned with him to Po.

6. 'Chau-kung's not getting the throne was like the case of Y1 and the throne of Huis, or like that of I Yin and the throne of Yin.

7. 'Confucius said, "Tang and Ytt resigned the throne to their worthy ministers. The sovereign of Hsia and those of Yin and Chau transmitted it to their sons. The principle of righteousness was the same in all the cases."'

CHAP. VII. 1. Wan Chang asked Mencius, saying, 'People say that I Yin sought an introduction to Tang by his knowledge of Was it so?' cookery.

ment of the chronology seems indeed required by the statements in the Shu-ching, IV. iv, which do not admit of any reign or reigns being interposed between Tang and Tai-chia. The inacordance with the Shu-ching. 7. We must author of the 四書柘餘說 proposes the following solution:—'Châo Ch'i's view is inadmissible, being inconsistent with the Shūching. The scholar Ch'ang's view is also to be ching. The scholar Changs view is also to be rejected. For how can we suppose that Tangdying over a hundred years old, would leave children of two and four years? And, moreover, on this view Chung-ain was the elder brother, and Mencius would have mentioned him first. But there is a solution which meets brother, and Menous would have mentioned him first. But there is a solution which mosts all the difficulties of the case. First, we assume, with the old explanation, that Wai-ping and Chung-sin were both deed when T'ai-chia suc-ceeded to the throne. Then, with Ch'ang, we take Æ in the sense of Æ, years of life, and not of raign;—and the meaning thus comes out, that Tai-ting died before his father, and his brothers Wai-ping and Chung-sin died also, the one at the age of two, and the other of four years.' Mi,-in the sense of laws. Tung was the place where Tang had been buried, and Po the name of his capital. There is some con-troversy about the time of Tai-chia's detention but the former is generally received, as more in accordance with the Shu-ching. 7. We must understand Confectus's saying,—the second clause of it,—as referring to the first sovereigns of the dynastics mentioned, and 🌉, opposed to , - (to transmit to,' i.e. their so are Yao and Shun; see the Shuand E ching, I, II. And Analocts, III. XXXI. I. Yū originally was the H, or Baron, of Haia, a district in the present department of K'ai-fang. The one principle of righteousness was accordance with the will of Heaven, as expressed in par. 1, 天與賢, 則與「 大與子 則與子

7. VINDEGATION OF I YIN PROM THE CHARGE OF INTRODUCING HUMBLE TO THE SERVICE OF TANG ET AN UNWORTHY ARTIFICE. 1. 🌉 , the 1st tome, - 来, or 干, 'to seek,' i.e. an introduction to, or the favour of. 1 () is the surname Yin (#, the 'regulator,' is the designation in Tung, whether the three years are to be was the chief minister of Tang. The popular reckoned from his accession, or from the con-account (found also in the 'Historical Records')

I Yin was a farmer in 2. Mencius replied, 'No, it was not so. the lands of the prince of Hsin, delighting in the principles of Yao and Shun. In any matter contrary to the righteousness which they prescribed, or contrary to their principles, though he had been offered the throne, he would not have regarded it; though there had been yoked for him a thousand teams of horses, he would not have looked at them. In any matter contrary to the righteousness which they prescribed, or contrary to their principles, he would neither have given nor taken a single straw.

3. 'T'ang sent persons with presents of silk to entreat him to enter his service. With an air of indifference and self-satisfaction he said, "What can I do with those silks with which Tang invites me? Is it not best for me to abide in the channelled fields, and so delight myself with the principles of Yao and Shun?"

4. 'T'ang thrice sent messengers to invite him. After this, with mend himself to favour. 2. 有華之 —1 Yin was a mative of Hisin, the a -1 Yin was a native of Hein, the same territory which under the Chau dynasty was celled Kwe, the present Shen-chiu (FX +H) in the times of Mencius was, that I Yin Ho-nan. 有莘一有莘氏, 'the sur-came to Po in the train of a daughter of the prince of Heln, whom Tang was marrying, earrying his cooking-instruments with him, that by 'cetting and boiling,' he might recomthe one explanatory of the other. literally, 'emelument him.' four horses.' 介-芥. s. 期 often used for 'to ask in marriage;' here, 'te of Ho-nan. It was not far distant from often used for 'to ask in marriage; nerv, we Tang's original seet of Pe, also in the present ask to be minister.' 4. W 🖂 may be the change of resolution displayed in his countenance, he spoke in a different style,—"Instead of abiding in the channelled fields and thereby delighting myself with the principles of Yao and Shun, had I not better make this prince a prince like Yao or Shun, and this people like the people of Yao or Shun? Had I not better in my own person see these things for myself?

5. "Heaven's plan in the production of mankind is this:—that they who are first informed should instruct those who are later in being informed, and they who first apprehend principles should instruct those who are slower to do so. I am one of Heaven's people who have first apprehended;—I will take these principles and instruct this people in them. If I do not instruct them, who will do so?"

6. 'He thought that among all the people of the kingdom, even the private men and women, if there were any who did not enjoy

其計日, 'changed his plan, and said,' or by I Yin. The meaning of 覺, 'to apprehend,' 其曹日, 'changed his words, and said.'

'to understand,' is an advance on that of 42, 君, 'a prince of, = like to, Yao also that it is used actively three times, 新加. I do not see exactly the force of instruct. In 生此民, the 此民, this such benefits as Yao and Shun conferred, it was as if he himself pushed them into a ditch. He took upon himself the heavy charge of the kingdom in this way, and therefore he went to T'ang, and pressed upon him the subject of attacking Hsia and saving the people.

7. 'I have not heard of one who bent himself, and at the same time made others straight; -how much less could one disgrace himself, and thereby rectify the whole kingdom? The actions of the sages have been different. Some have kept remote from court, and some have drawn near to it; some have left their offices, and some have not done so:—that to which those different courses all agree is simply the keeping of their persons pure.

'I have heard that I Yin sought an introduction to Tang by the doctrines of Yao and Shun. I have not heard that he did so by his knowledge of cookery.

9. 'In the "Instructions of I," it is said, "Heaven destroying Chieh commenced attacking him in the palace of Mû. I commenced in Po."' the classic and this text are so different that begin.'

to persuade.' 說之以, 'advised him many suppose Mencius to quote from some form of the book referred to which Confucius disabout.' 7. Compare Bk. III. Pt. II. i. 1, 5. 篇 allowed. The meaning is that Chieh's atrocities in his palace in Mû led Heaven to destroy him, while 1 Yin, in accordance with the will of the where they ce atered.' 8. 要, —as in paragraph 1. 9. See the Shu-ching, IV. iv. 2, but against him. 治 and 重, both = 龄, 'to CHAP. VIII. 1. Wan Chang asked Mencius, saying, 'Some say that Confucius, when he was in Wei, lived with the ulcer-doctor, and when he was in Ch'i, with the attendant, Ch'i Hwan :- was it so?' Mencius replied, 'No; it was not so. Those are the inventions of men fond of strange things.

2. 'When he was in Wei, he lived with Yen Ch'au-yû. wives of the officer Mt and Tsze-lû were sisters, and Mt told Tszelû, "If Confucius will lodge with me, he may attain to the dignity of a high noble of Wei." Tsze-lû informed Confucius of this, and he said, "That is as ordered by Heaven." Confucius went into office according to propriety, and retired from it according to righteousness. In regard to his obtaining office or not obtaining it, he said. "That is as ordered." But if he had lodged with the attendant

8. VINDRIATION OF CONFUCIUS FROM THE CHARGE | unworthy favourities of their respective princes. P LODGING WITH UNWORTHY CHARACTERS, I. , 'a swelling,' 'an ulcer,' and 🏗 (read d, in 1st tone), 'a deep-seated ulcer.' Chu Hst, after Chao Ch'i, takes the two terms as in the translation. Some, however, take the things.' 主-會於其家,'lodged in his characters as a man's name, called also 果,雅麗, and 雅錐. They are probably right. The 'Historical Records' make 12 to have been the cunuch in attendance on the duke of Wei, when he rode through the market-place with the duchess, followed by the sage, place with the duchess, followed by the sage,— to his great diagust. 侍人=在人, 'the second has it, that he was brother to Tanesecond has it, that he was brother to Taneeunuch.' Bunuchs we re employed during the 好 (in grd tone) 事 老, 'one who is fond of raising trouble, and in a lighter sense, as here, one who is fond of saying, and doing, strange house, 'literally, 'Accided him.' In par. 4, 所爲主, 'by those of whom they are hoste;' 以其所主, 'by those whom they host,' i.e. make their hosts. 2. Yen Ch'au-yû, called also lu's wife, but this is probably incorrect. Mi, Châu dynasty. Both the men referred to were with the name Haiâ (), was an unworthy

Chi Hwan, that would neither have been according to righteousness, nor any ordering of Heaven.

3. 'When Confucius, being dissatisfied in Lû and Wei, had left those States, he met with the attempt of Hwan, the Master of the Horse, of Sung, to intercept and kill him. He assumed, however, the dress of a common man, and passed by Sung. At that time, though he was in circumstances of distress, he lodged with the city-master Ch'ang, who was then a minister of Chau, the marquis of Ch'an.

4. 'I have heard that the characters of ministers about court may be discerned from those whom they entertain, and those of stranger officers, from those with whom they lodge. If Confucius had lodged with the ulcer-doctor, and with the attendant Chi Hwan, how could he have been Confucius?'

CHAP. IX. I. Wan Chang asked Mencius, 'Some say that Pai-li Hai sold himself to a cattle-keeper of Ch'in for the skins of favourite of the duke Ling.

9. Compare Analhave a different application from what belongs lects, VIL xxii; Hwan is the Hwan T'ti there. to them in the last chapter, par. 7. 要, in 1st tone,=搁 截, 'to intercept.' 圖 麗, 'small clothes,' i.e. the dress of a common man. , 'the Pure,' is the honorary epithet of the officer who was Confucius's host, and a was the proper name of the prince of in the twenty-fifth and some subsequent Ch'an, with whom indeed the independence of of the 'History of the Several States' the State terminated. Chang, it is said, afterwards became 'city-master' in Sung, and was known as such ;—hence he is ac styled here at about him. With regard to that in o them in the last chapter, par. 7.

9. Virdication of Par-la Het race the CHARGE OF SELLING HIMSELF AS A S ADVANCEMENT. 1. Phi-li Hai was chief minish to the duke Mû (— 'the diffuser of vi. and maintainer of integrity'), n. c. 659-His history will be found interestingly det — 'the diffuser of virtue, 國志), though the incidents there are, With regard to that in this p an earlier period of his life. 4. If the here graph, it is not easy to understand the pop five rams, and fed his oxen, in order to find an introduction to the duke Mû of Ch'in ;—was this the case?' Mencius said, 'No; it was This story was invented by men fond of strange things.

2. 'Pai-li Hsi was a man of Yu. The people of Tsin, by the inducement of a round piece of jade from Ch'tii-cht, and four horses of the Ch'ti breed, borrowed a passage through Yti to attack Kwo. On that occasion, Kung Chih-ch'i remonstrated against granting their request, and Pai-li Hsi did not remonstrate.

3. 'When he knew that the duke of Yu was not to be remonstrated with, and, leaving that State, went to Chin, he had reached the age of seventy. If by that time he did not know that it would be a mean thing to seek an introduction to the duke Mû of Ch'in by feeding oxen, could he be called wise? But not remonstrating where it was of no use to remonstrate, could be be said not to be account referred to. The account in the on account of his ability; and on obtaining 'Historical Records,' * A III, is, that, after the subversion of Yü, Hat followed its * C,-read test, 4th tone, = * C, 'to feed.' * E, 'to captive duke to Tain, refusing to take service in that State, and was afterwards sent to Ch'in in a menial capacity, in the train of the eldest daughter of the bouse of Tain, who was to become the wife of the duke Mû. who was to become the wire of the duke Mu.

Disgusted at being in such a position, Hat absconded on the road, and fleeing to Ch'û, he became noted for his skill in rearing cattle.
The duke Mû somehow heard of his great capacity, and sent to Ch'û, to reclaim him as

—as in chap. 7, the rst tone. 女子写 习 as in last chapter. s. Ch'fti-chi and Ch'ti were the names of places in Tain, the one famous for its jade, the other for its horses. 3, 4th tone, 'a team of four horses.' Kwo and Ya were small States, adjoining each other, and only safe against the attacks of their more powerful neighbour, Thin, by their mutual union. Both the officers of Yū, Kung Chihch'l and Pāi-li Hai, saw this, but Hai saw also that no remonstrances would prevail with the a runaway servant, offering also to pay for his ransom five rams' akins. He was afraid to offer a more valuable ransom, lest he should awaken suspicions in Ch'û that he wanted to get Hat duke of Yû against the bribes of Tsin. 3.

wise? Knowing that the duke of Yu would be ruined, and leaving him before that event, he cannot be said not to have been wise. Being then advanced in Chin, he knew that the duke Mû was one with whom he would enjoy a field for action, and became minister to him;—could he, acting thus, be said not to be wise? Having become chief minister of Chin, he made his prince distinguished throughout the kingdom, and worthy of being handed down to future ages;—could he have done this, if he had not been a man of talents and virtue? As to selling himself in order to accomplish all the aims of his prince, even a villager who had a regard for himself would not do such a thing; and shall we say that a man of talents and virtue did it?'

of Hat's conduct. He is said to have urged are to be taken together.

- 之-往; the verb. 而先去|Chih-ch'i to leave Yi after his remon ,—this may have been prudent, but was in the evil day which he saw approaching.

WAN CHANG. PART II.

CHAPTER I. 1. Mencius said, 'Po-1 would not allow his eyes to look on a bad sight, nor his ears to listen to a bad sound. would not serve a prince whom he did not approve, nor command a people whom he did not esteem. In a time of good government he took office, and on the occurrence of confusion he retired. could not bear to dwell either in a court from which a lawless government emanated, or among lawless people. He considered his being in the same place with a villager, as if he were to sit amid mud and coals with his court robes and court cap. In the time of Chau he dwelt on the shores of the North sea, waiting the purification of the kingdom. Therefore when men now hear the character of Po-1, the corrupt become pure, and the weak acquire determination.

1. How Convocuus desymmen sman and was people stop.' is properly 'stupid,' 'obsti-SUPERIOR TO ALL OTHER RACES. I. Compare Bk. nate, but here as opposed to F, we must take II. Pt. I. it. as, and ix; Bk. IV. Pt. I. xiii. r. it in the sense of 'corrupt.' Julien, indeed, 横政之所出, 'the place whence per-takes 廉 in the sense of 'habor vim dicornendi.'

Yerne government issues,' i.e. a court. 横 But it is better to retain its proper signification, 民之所止, 'the place where perverse and to alter that of 頑, with the gloss in the VOL. II. вb

2. 'I Yin said, "Whom may I not serve? My serving him makes him my sovereign. What people may I not command? My commanding them makes them my people." In a time of good government he took office, and when confusion prevailed, he also took office. He said, "Heaven's plan in the production of mankind is this:—that they who are first informed should instruct those who are later in being informed, and they who first apprehend principles should instruct those who are slower in doing so. I am the one of Heaven's people who has first apprehended;—I will take these principles and instruct the people in them." He thought that among all the people of the kingdom, even the common men and women, if there were any who did not share in the enjoyment of such benefits as Yao and Shun conferred, it was as if he himself pushed them into a ditch;—for he took upon himself the heavy charge of the kingdom.

3. 'Hûi of Liû-hsia was not ashamed to serve an impure prince, nor did he think it low to be an inferior officer. When advanced to employment, he did not conceal his virtue, but made it a point to

備旨,-頑夫無知覺,必貪昧|澤者,wehave有不與被…澤者, 瞻利,故與廉反. s. Compare Bk. = "if there were any who did not have part in IL Pt. I. ii. ss; and Bk. V. Pt. I. vii. s−6. the enjoyment," &c. g. Compare Bk. II. Pt. I. Observe, that here instead of 有不被… in a. The clause 與痛人,云云, which carry out his principles. When dismissed and left without office, he did not murmur. When straitened by poverty, he did not grieve. When thrown into the company of village people, he was quite at ease and could not bear to leave them. He had a saying, "You are you, and I am I. Although you stand by my side with breast and arms bare, or with your body naked, how can you defile me?" Therefore when men now hear the character of Hûi of Liû-hsiâ, the mean become generous, and the niggardly become liberal.

與鄉人處由由然不忍去也類為和子之法所接近,與鄉人處由由然不忍去也,於我側爾我為我雖袒裼裸程於我側爾新門惠之風者鄙夫寬薄夫為,他不可以處而處可以使而之道也可以處而處可以使而大道也可以處而。其一人可以處而。

4. 'When Confucius was leaving Ch't, he strained off with his hand the water in which his rice was being rinsed, took the rice, and went away. When he left Lû, he said, "I will set out by-and-by:"—it was right he should leave the country of his parents in this way. When it was proper to go away quickly, he did so; when it was proper to delay, he did so; when it was proper to keep in retirement, he did so; when it was proper to go into office, he did so:—this was Confucius.'

5. Mencius said, 'Po-1 among the sages was the pure one; I Yin is wanting there, makes the 故日 of that place more plain. 祖 is 'to have the arms bare,' and 我 'to put offall the upper garment,' which rice is washed.' The latter is the sense here, 'to gother, is 'to have the body naked.' Which rice is washed.' The latter is the sense by Confucius to Thee-lû, who wished to hurry him away. 5. I have invented the adjective was the one most inclined to take office; Hûi of Liû-hsia was the accommodating one; and Confucius was the timeous one.

6. 'In Confucius we have what is called a complete concert. A complete concert is when the large bell proclaims the commencement of the music, and the ringing stone proclaims its close. metal sound commences the blended harmony of all the instruments, and the winding up with the stone terminates that blended har-The commencing that harmony is the work of wisdom. The terminating it is the work of sageness.

7. 'As a comparison for wisdom, we may liken it to skill, and as a comparison for sageness, we may liken it to strength;—as in the case of shooting at a mark a hundred paces distant. That you reach it is owing to your strength, but that you hit the mark is not owing to your strength.

'timeous' to translate the 時 here, meaning | are all used as verbs. 怪趣, 'discriminated that Confucius did at every time what the circumstances of it required, possessing the qualities of all other sages, and displaying them, at the proper time and place. 6. The illustration of Confucius here is from a grand performance of music, in which all the eight kinds of musical instruments are united. One instrument would make a , ', 'small performance.' Joined, they make a 集大成, 'a collected great ried one point to an extreme, but Confucius was complete in everything. We may compare performance,'-'s concert.' 整,始, and 終 each of them to one of the seasons, but Con-rules,' indicates the separate music of the various instrumente blended together. 整 and 板之 are not parts of the concert, but the signals of its commencement and close, the 之 referring to 果大 配 the comma after 智 and 里. 由=猶 'The other three worthies,' it is observed, 'ear-

CHAP. II. 1. Pêi-kung I asked Mencius, saying, 'What was the arrangement of dignities and emoluments determined by the House of Chau?'

2. Mencius replied, 'The particulars of that arrangement cannot be learned, for the princes, disliking them as injurious to themselves, have all made away with the records of them. Still I have learned the general outline of them.

3. 'The Son of Heaven constituted one dignity; the kung one; the HAU one; the PAI one; and the TSZE and the NAN each one of equal rank:—altogether making five degrees of rank. The RULER again constituted one dignity; the CHIEF MINISTER one; the GREAT OFFICERS one; the SCHOLARS OF THE FIRST CLASS one; THOSE OF THE MIDDLE CLASS one; and THOSE OF THE LOWEST CLASS one;altogether making six degrees of dignity.

MERTS ACCORDING TO THE, DYNAMI OF CHIU, I. Péi-kung I was an officer of the State of Wei. The double surname, 'Northern-palace,' had probably been given to the founder of the probably been given to the lounder of another like the family from his residence. a. Many passages might be quoted from the Li Chi, the Châu Li, and the Shû-ching, illustrating, more or less, the dignities of the kingdom and their emoluments, but it would be of little use to adduce the matter Maneius's declaration that only the them after Mencius's declaration that only the general outline of them could be ascertained. It is an important fact which he mentions, that the princes had destroyed (2, 3rd tone) many of the records before his time. The founder of the Ch'in dynasty had had predecomors and patterns. (4th tone, 'to hate.' 'field,' and), 'strength'), 'one adequate to fucius was the grand, harmonious air of heaven, sowing through all the seasons.'

2. The Arrangement of Dighttles And English (duke, marquis, earl, viscount, and baron, also 'duke, prince, count, marquis, and baron,' but they by no means severally correspond to those dignities. It is better to retain the hose dignities. Chinese designations, which, no doubt, were originally meant to indicate certain qualities of those bearing them. A='just, correct, without selfishness.' 🥰, 'taking care of,'= , in the sense of 'guarding the borders and important places against banditti; possessed of the power to govern.' A conveys the idea of 'elder and intelligent,' one capable of presiding over others.' - , 'to nourish,' one who genially cherishes the people.' (from H,

'To the Son of Heaven there was allotted a territory of a thousand & square. A Kung and a Hau had each a hundred & square. A Phi had seventy 14, and a Taze and a Nan had each fifty The assignments altogether were of four amounts. Where the territory did not amount to fifty U, the chief could not have access himself to the Son of Heaven. His land was attached to some Hau-ship, and was called a Fû-yung.

5. 'The Chief ministers of the Son of Heaven received an amount of territory equal to that of a Hau; a Great officer received as much as a Pai; and a scholar of the first class as much as a Taze or a Nan.

In a great State, where the territory was a hundred # square, the ruler had ten times as much income as his Chief ministers; effice and labour.' The name of A, 'ruler,' are told by the minister Tian that, at the 'sovereign,' is applicable to all the dignities enumerated and under each of them are the square. The meaning is that there were secondary or ministerial dignities. 夫=扶,'tosupport,''tosustain;'—大夫, 'a great sustainer.' -, 'a scholar,' 'an the designation of entrusted with business.' 4 地方千 -this means, according to 日禹里也, 'z,000 # in breadth, and oo it in length, making an area of 1,000,000 i.' On this, however, the following judgment is given by the editors of the imperial edition of the five Ching of the present dynasty:-'Where we find the word square () we are not to think of an exact square, but simply that, on a calculation, the amount of territory that, on a calculation, the amount of territory is equal to so many square A. For instance, we would be runsers, clerks, and other

8 x 8 squares of 100 H. At the eastern cap again, the territory was 600 H s 6x6 squares of 100 M. Putting t t the total of I,c So in regard to the variou princes, we are to understand that, however their form might be varied by the hills and rivers, their area, in round nur to so much; '-see in the Li Chi, III. z, a, wh the text, however, is not at all perspicuous. attached; meritoriousne States were too i mall to bear the e appearing before the sovereign, and therese the names and surnames of their chiefs w sent into court by the great princes to whom they were estacled, or perhaps they appeared in their train;—see on Analects, XVI. i. r. 5. 711 _____, 'Head scholar,' could only be applied the scholars of the first class in the sover a Chief minister four times as much as a Great officer; a Great officer twice as much as a scholar of the first class; a scholar of the first class twice as much as one of the middle; a scholar of the middle class twice as much as one of the lowest; the scholars of the lowest class, and such of the common people as were employed about the government offices, had for their emolument as much as was equal to what they would have made by tilling the fields.

7. 'In a State of the next order, where the territory was seventy # square, the ruler had ten times as much revenue as his Chief minister; a Chief minister three times as much as a Great officer; a Great officer twice as much as a scholar of the first class; a scholar of the first class twice as much as one of the middle; a scholar of the middle class twice as much as one of the lowest; the scholars of the lowest class, and such of the common people as were employed about the government offices, had for their emolument as much as was equal to what they would have made by tilling the fields.

8. 'In a small State, where the territory was fifty it square, the ruler had ten times as much revenue as his Chief minister; a Chief minister had twice as much as a Great officer; a Great officer twice as much as a scholar of the highest class; a scholar of the highest class twice as much as one of the middle; a scholar of dinates, which appear in the Chau II, as all who had lands received their incomes from them, as cultivated on the system of mutual aid, while the landless scholars and other subordinates received according to the income the middle class twice as much as one of the lowest; scholars of the lowest class, and such of the common people as were employed about the government offices, had the same emolument;—as much, namely, as was equal to what they would have made by tilling the fields.

o. 'As to those who tilled the fields, each husbandman received a hundred mau. When those mau were manured, the best husbandmen of the highest class supported nine individuals, and those ranking next to them supported eight. The best husbandmen of the second class supported seven individuals, and those ranking next to them supported six; while husbandmen of the lowest class only supported five. The salaries of the common people who were employed about the government offices were regulated according to these differences.

1. Wan Chang asked Mencius, saying, 'I venture to CHAP. III. ask the principles of friendship.' Mencius replied, Friendship should be maintained without any presumption on the ground of one's superior age, or station, or the circumstances of his relatives. Friendship with a man is friendship with his virtue, and does not admit of assumptions of superiority.

from the land. 9.食,-reed twe. 臺,-reed | TAGES. 1. 間 友=間 交 及 乙 to'se, 'uneven,' different.'

8. FRIENDENIP MUST HAVE REFERENCE TO THE VIRTUR OF THE FRIEND. THERE MAY HE NO AS- Of that term. Observe how takes up

'There was Mang Hsien, chief of a family of a hundred is. He had five friends, namely, Yo-chang Chia, Ma Chung, chariots. and three others whose names I have forgotten. With those five men Hsien maintained a friendship, because they thought nothing about his family. If they had thought about his family, he would not have maintained his friendship with them.

3. 'Not only has the chief of a family of a hundred chariots The same thing was exemplified by the sovereign of acted thus. a small State. The duke Hui of Pi said, "I treat Taze-sze as my Teacher, and Yen Pan as my Friend. As to Wang Shun and Ch'ang Hat, they serve me."

4. 'Not only has the sovereign of a small State acted thus. The same thing has been exemplified by the sovereign of a large State.

the preceding χ , and goes on to its explanation. It refers to the individual who is the object of the χ ; friendship with him as an individual who is the honorary enithet. Transcent is 'to have presumptions,' with reference of course to the three points mentioned, but as of those the second most readily comes into collision with friendship, it alone is dwelt upon in the sequel. a. Mang Hsien,—see 'Great Learning,' object of the 友; friendship with him as virtuous will tend to help our virtue. 有挟, confuciue's grandson. 炭,—reed per. Year Pan appears to have been the son of the sage's favourite disciple. 4. Ping ('The Pacificator') was the honorary epithet of the duke 🞉, z. c. 556-531. HAi Tang was a famous worthy of Comm. x. sz. 3. 霍, read Pi,—see Analects, his State. 入云, 'enter being said.' 夏

There was the duke Ping of Tsin with Hai Tang:—when Tang told him to come into his house, he came; when he told him to be seated, he sat; when he told him to eat, he atc. There might only be coarse rice and soup of vegetables, but he always ate his fill, not daring to do otherwise. Here, however, he stopped, and went no farther. He did not call him to share any of Heaven's places, or to govern any of Heaven's offices, or to partake of any of Heaven's emoluments. His conduct was but a scholar's honouring virtue and talents, not the honouring them proper to a king or a duke.

5. 'Shun went up to court and saw the sovereign, who lodged him as his son-in-law in the second palace. The sovereign also enjoyed there Shun's hospitality. Alternately he was host and guest. Here was the sovereign maintaining friendship with a private man.

平 必 and 王 必 is wanting in many 'to go up to,' i. a. to court. 版堂= eopies. 與其天位,云云, would 'attached or supplemental palace.' seem to be a complaint that the duke did not share with the scholar his own rank, &a., but the meaning in the translation, which is that given by the commentator, is perhaps the correct one. Rank, station, and revenue are said to be Heaven's, as entrusted to the ruler to be conferred on individuals able to occupy in them for the sub-like good. In this personant, let it conty Vac. for the public good. 5. In this paragraph, ject is only Yao. (made a guest of Shun, Moneius advances another step, and exemplifies the highest style of friendship. Chû Hat, after was the host. 🛨, 'made a host' of Shun,

食; read ton, 4th tone. The Z after | Châo Ch'i, explains ★ by 1, as if it were

6. 'Respect shown by inferiors to superiors is called giving to the noble the observance due to rank. Respect shown by superiors to inferiors is called giving honour to talents and virtue. rightness in each case is the same.'

I. Wan Chang asked Mencius, saying, 'I venture CHAP. IV. to ask what feeling of the mind is expressed in the presents of friendship?' Mencius replied, 'The feeling of respect.'

2. 'How is it,' pursued Chang, 'that the declining a present is accounted disrespectful?' The answer was, 'When one of honourable rank presents a gift, to say in the mind, "Was the way in which he got this righteous or not? I must know this before I can receive it;"—this is deemed disrespectful, and therefore presents are not declined.

3. Wan Chang asked again, 'When one does not take on him in so many express words to refuse the gift, but having declined it was the guest. 6. 用 = 以, 'for.' 美 = 事 | through the oversight of a transcriber, unless 之宜, 'the rightness or propriety of things.' we suppose, with the 合鸝, that the repeti-

4. How MERGIUS DEFENDED THE ACCEPTING tion indicates the firm PRESERVES FROM THE PRINCES, OPPRESSORS OF THE Which the gift is refused, but the introduction recorns. 1. IS is explained by 接, but that of that element seems out of place. 日,其term is not to be taken in the sense of 'to (referring to 尊者)所(所以)取之, received but as a synonym of 无 It was disreceive,' but as a synonym of <page-header> . If we distinguish the two words, we may take 🌠 as in the next paragraph also. We must suppose - the 友 of the last chapter, and 際 the 人 as the nominative in 以是為不

s and decision with — is the reflection passing in the mind, as gift, expressive of the friendship. 2. Chû Hat says he does not understand the repetition of Chang, but as indicating the hesitancy and Li Li has probably crept into the text delicacy of the scholar to whom a gift is offered.

in his heart, saying, "It was taken by him unrighteously from the people," and then assigns some other reason for not receiving it; is not this a proper course?' Mencius said, 'When the donor offers it on a ground of reason, and his manner of doing so is according to propriety; -in such a case Confucius would have received it.'

4. Wan Chang said, 'Here now is one who stops and robs people outside the gates of the city. He offers his gift on a ground of reason, and does so in a manner according to propriety;—would the reception of it so acquired by robbery be proper?" replied, 'It would not be proper. In "The Announcement to Kang" it is said, "When men kill others, and roll over their bodies to take their property, being reckless and fearless of death, among all the people there are none but detest them: "—thus, such characters are to be put to death, without waiting to give them warning. Yin received this rule from Hail, and Chau received it from Yin. It cannot

其交也,以道,-其still referring to | 'in this case.' 廣酷日, see the Shra-ching. 厚香, and 道 to the deservingness of the scholar, or something in his circumstances which renders the gift proper and seasonable. Compare Bk. II. Pt. II. iii. 3, 4. The meaning of 🌇 is determined (contrary to Chic Chi) , which takes its place in the next as in Bk. IV. Pt. II. xxxiii. r. 斯可爱之與,-III, as in the last paragraph, adverbially, - | to whom the gift is effected, and Z, the fruit

Bk. V. z. 15, though the text is somewhat altered in the quotation, and and place of 🚰 and 🖟 i.a. to taka. 殿...烈is a passage of which the meaning is much disputed. Cht Hat supposes it a gloss that has cropt into the text. I have given it what seemed the most likely translation. 其曼之,其 is the party be questioned, and to the present day is clearly acknowledged.

How can the gift of a robber be received?'

5. Chang said, 'The princes of the present day take from their people just as a robber despoils his victim. Yet if they put a good face of propriety on their gifts, then the superior man receives them. I venture to ask how you explain this.' Mencius answered, 'Do you think that, if there should arise a truly royal sovereign, he would collect the princes of the present day, and put them all to death! Or would he admonish them, and then, on their not changing their ways, put them to death! Indeed, to call every one who takes what does not properly belong to him a robber, is pushing a point of resemblance to the utmost, and insisting on the most refined idea of righteousness. When Confucius was in office in Lû, the people struggled together for the game taken in hunting, and he also did the same. If that struggling for the captured game was proper, how much more may the gifts of the princes be received!'

6. Chang urged, 'Then are we to suppose that when Confucius of robbery. 5. 16,—as above. By 17 telligible to Chu Hel. I have given the not unlikely explanation of Chao Chu. But to get unlikely explanation that Confocius himself. tome, 'to take together.' 克類至義之 joined in the struggling, the critics all say it only means that he allowed the custom.—The extremity of righteousness; the meaning is nosuvre by Mencius. The offence of the peopless in the translation. (chie) is unin-

Mr.—literally, filling up a resemblance to the introduction of this yielding on the part of held office, it was not with the view to carry his doctrines into practice!' 'It was with that view,' Moncius replied, and Chang rejoined, 'If the practice of his doctrines was his business, what had he to do with that struggling for the captured game?' Mencius said, 'Confucius first rectified his vessels of sacrifice according to the registers, and did not fill them so rectified with food gathered from every quarter: 'But why did he not go away?' wished to make a trial of carrying his doctrines into practice. When that trial was sufficient to show that they could be practised and they were still not practised, then he went away, and thus it was than he never completed in any State a residence of three years.

7. 'Confucius took office when he saw that the practice of his doctrines was likely; he took office when his reception was proper; he took office when he was supported by the State. In the case of his relation to Chi Hwan, he took office, seeing that the practice of and the offsace of the princes in robbing their from every quarter, —i. e. gathered without dispeople, were things of a different class. Yet crimination. It would appear that the practice factions of the paragraph is ingenious. It shows part of the paragraph is ingenious. It shows that he was eminently a practical man, acting in the way of expediency. How far that way may be pursued will always depend on circumstances. 6. 非專道與 (and tone, in-事 道 笑 叠 較 is evidently a question 正祭器 is unintel. commentator Hat (徐氏). 'Food gathered xiv, note) is intended, in which the author of

of the had some connexion with the offering of sacrifices, and that Confucius thought that if he only rectified the rules for sacrifice, the practice would fall into disuse. But the whole passage and its bearing on the struggling for game is obscure. 🏋,—'a prognostic,' 'an omen, used figuratively. 9. See the 'Life of Confucius,' though it is only here that we have mention of the sage's connexion with the duke Hsi. The translation is after the supposes that the duke Ch'û (see Analects, VIL his doctrines was likely. With the duke Ling of Wei he took office, With the duke Hsiao of Wei he because his reception was proper. took office, because he was maintained by the State.'

1. Mencius said, 'Office is not sought on account of poverty, yet there are times when one seeks office on that account. Marriage is not entered into for the sake of being attended to by the wife, yet there are times when one marries on that account.

2. 'He who takes office on account of his poverty must decline an honourable situation and occupy a low one; he must decline riches and prefer to be poor.

3. 'What office will be in harmony with this declining an honourable situation and occupying a low one, this declining riches and preferring to be poor? Such an one as that of guarding the gates, or beating the watchman's stick.

4. 'Confucius was once keeper of stores, and he then said, "My calculations must be all right. That is all I have to care about.

the 四書和餘說 acquiesces. The text | generally, as in the translation. s. 草,-i.e. mentions Ohi Hwan, and not duke Ting, be-cause the duke and his government were under the control of that nobleman.

5. How opping hat be taken on account of POVERTY, BUT ONLY ON CERTAIN CONDITIONS. 1. and 要 妻,—it is as well to translate here abstractly, 'office,' and 'marriage.' 🔼, 4th one, 'for,' on account of.' The proper motive for taking office is supposed to be the carrying principles—the truth, and the right—into prac-ice, and the proper motive for marriage is the agetting of children, or rather of a son, to continue one's line. It, -not interrogative, but serving as a pause for the voice. 75, 4th tone, 蓝份, 'an honourable situation,' and 営= The frich emolument.' 3. A, the ret tone, 'how.' The first No as above, and helping the rhythm of the sentence. 19 1 (going round the barrier-gates, 'embracing' them, as it were) and which are to be taken together, and not as two things, or offices; see the YI-ching, App. III. Seet. II. 18. 4. In Sze-ma Chien's History of Confucius, for 委(4th tone) 更 we have 李氏史, but in a case of this kind the authority of Mencius is to be followed. read keek, grd tone, 'entries in a boo 'the being supported,' but we may take it Annual calculations of accounts are denomin-

He was once in charge of the public fields, and he then said."The oxen and sheep must be fat and strong, and superior. That is all I have to care about."

5. 'When one is in a low situation, to speak of high matters is a crime. When a scholar stands in a prince's court, and his principles are not carried into practice, it is a shame to him.

CHAP. VI. 1. Wan Chang said, 'What is the reason that a scholar does not accept a stated support from a prince?' Mencius replied, 'He does not presume to do so. When a prince loses his State, and then accepts a stated support from another prince, this is in accordance with propriety. But for a scholar to accept such support from any of the princes is not in accordance with propriety.

2. Wan Chang said, 'If the prince send him a present of grain, is made between the terms. 国, 4th tone. 秉(4th tone)田=丰苑囿獨牧之 📝 , but I do not understand the use of 🗐 se. Here again the history has 🖺 🗊 職 (n-株) 吏. These were the first offices Confucius took, before the death of his mother, and while they were yet struggling with poverty. 5 立乎(-于)人之本朝(a)dou, and tone), -it is difficult to express the force of the 本; 'to stand in a man's proper court,' i.e. the court of the prince who has called him to office, and where he sught to develop and carry out his principles. It is said that this paragraph gives the reasons why he who takes office for poverty must be content with a low situation and small emolument, but the conmexican is somewhat difficult to trace. The // regular pay though not in office. On one prime ated 會, and monthly, 計, when a distinction | 書 味 模 錐 says :- 'Why did Confucius confine himself to having his calculations exact and his cattle sleek and fat? Because in his humble position he had nothing to do with business of the State, and he would not incur the crime of usurping a higher office. If, making a pretence of poverty, a man keep long elinging to high office, he stands in his prince's court, but carries not principles into practice: he lay his hand on his heart, and not feel the shame of making his office of none effect?' This is true, but it is not necessary that he who takes office because he is poor should continue to occupy it simply with the desire to get rich.

6. How a scholar may not recome a deep dent by accepting pay without opyod, and n THE REPLATED, PR ments of a prince to a scholar MUST BE MADE. I. \pm is here the scholar, the candidate for public office and use, still unemployed. 不託, 'does not depend on,' i.e. soure himself of a regular support by receiving for instance, does he accept it?' 'He accepts it,' answered Mencius. 'On what principle of righteousness does he accept it?'

the prince ought to assist the people in their necessities. 3. Chang pursued, 'Why is it that the scholar will thus accept the prince's help, but will not accept his pay?' The answer was, 'He does not presume to do so.' 'I venture to ask why he does not presume to do so.' 'Even the keepers of the gates, with their watchmen's sticks, have their regular offices for which they can take their support from the prince. He who without a regular office should receive the pay of the prince must be deemed disrespectful.

4. Chang asked, 'If the prince sends a scholar a present, he accepts it; -I do not know whether this present may be constantly repeated.' Mencius answered, 'There was the conduct of the duke driven from his State, finding an assured and regular support with another, see the Li-cht, IX. Seet, I i. 13. It is only stated there, however, that a prince did not employ another refuses prince as a minister. We know only from L.,一期 is passive, or—'to receive pay.' Mencius, so far as I am aware, that a prince driven from his own dominions would find maintenance in another State, according to a driven from his own dominions would find plication of a want of humility in the scholar, maintenance in another State, according to a who is only one of the people having no office, sort of law. 2. (1) , what is the principle and yet is content to take pay, as if he had. of righteourness?' or simply—'what is the ex- 4. Ry,—read ch's, 4th tone (below, the same, planation of?'周-黑, 'to give alma,' and 'frequently.' 黑 肉, 'caldron feet,' i. c. generally to help the needy. the .-see Bk. II. flesh cooked. * ,-pide, the 1st tone, 'to mo-Pt. L v. 5. A scholar not in office is only one tion with the hand.' 使者,一使,4th tome. of the people. s. 期之, 'if he give him,' 仮 was Taze-and's name. To bow, raising the VOL. II.

恭, 'disrespectful,' is to be taken in its im-

Mû to Tsze sze—He made frequent inquiries after Tsze-sze's health, and sent him frequent presents of cooked meat. Taze-sze was displeased; and at length, having motioned to the messenger to go outside the great door, he bowed his head to the ground with his face to the north, did obeisance twice, and declined the gift, saying, "From this time forth I shall know that the prince supports me as a dog or a horse." And so from that time a servant was no more sent with the presents. When a prince professes to be pleased with a man of talents and virtue, and can neither promote him to office, nor support him in the proper way, can he be said to be pleased with him?'

5. Chang said, 'I venture to ask how the sovereign of a State, when he wishes to support a superior man, must proceed, that he may be said to do so in the proper way?' Mencius answered, 'At first, the present must be offered with the prince's commission, and the scholar, making obeisance twice with his head bowed to the ground, will receive it. But after this the storekeeper will continue hands to the bent forehead, was called 拜手; If they were received, the party performed his was called 拜; bowing the head to the earth lowering the hands in the first place to the obeisances inside. To bring out the meaning of ground, and then raising them to the forehead, 'for,' that properly belongs to ... we must 'for,' that properly belongs to a, we must translate it here by 'and so.' was called 首. Tess-ess appears on this coccasion to have first performed the most profound expression of homage, as if in the prince's presence, and then to have bowed twice, with his hands to the ground, in addition. All this he did, outside the gate, which was the appropriate place in the case of declining the gifts.

to send grain, and the master of the kitchen to send meat, presenting it as if without the prince's express commission. Taze-aze considered that the meat from the prince's caldron, giving him the annoyance of constantly doing obeisance, was not the way to support a superior man.

6. 'There was Yao's conduct to Shun:—He caused his nine sons to serve him, and gave him his two daughters in inarriage; he caused the various officers, oxen and sheep, storehouses and granaries, all to be prepared to support Shun amid the channelled fields, and then he raised him to the most exalted situation. From this we have the expression-"The honouring of virtue and talents proper to a king or a duke."

CHAP. VII. 1. Wan Chang said, I venture to ask what principle of righteousness is involved in a scholar's not going to see the Mencius replied, 'A scholar residing in the city is called "a minister of the market-place and well," and one residing in the country is called "a minister of the grass and plants." In both cases he is a common man, and it is the rule of propriety that common

6. See Pt. Li. 3. 二女女慧,—the second characters; Wan Changevidently intends Menis read sû, in 4th tone.

cius himself. , 'city,' as in chap. iv. par. 4.

when called by them. Com- 草. 臣.in 市井. 草养之臣 is Pt. II. i, et al. r. We supply

^{7.} WHY A SCHOLAR SHOULD DECLIER GOING TO $$\pm,\text{-here as a synonym, in apposition with pare Bk. III. Pt. II. i, et al. 士 as the subject of 見; and other verbal different from the 當臣 below. Every in-men, who have not presented the introductory present and become ministers, should not presume to have interviews with the prince.

2. Wan Chang said, 'If a common man is called to perform any service, he goes and performs it;—how is it that a scholar, when the prince, wishing to see him, calls him to his presence, refuses to go? Mencius replied, 'It is right to go and perform the service; it would not be right to go and see the prince.

3. 'And,' added Mencius, 'on what account is it that the prince wishes to see the scholar?' 'Because of his extensive information, or because of his talents and virtue,' was the reply. of his extensive information,' said Mencius, 'such a person is a teacher, and the sovereign would not call him;—how much less may any of the princes do so? If because of his talents and virtue. then I have not heard of any one wishing to see a person with those qualities, and calling him to his presence.

4. 'During the frequent interviews of the duke M1 with Taze-aze, dividual may be called a 📮 , as being a subject, | i. e. it is right in the common man, to perform and bound to serve the sovereign, and this is service being his iff, or office. And so with the meaning of the term in those two phrases. In the other case it denotes one who is officially is a force in the 於, in 見於諸侯, which it is difficult to indicate in another language. a. 'It is right to go and perform the service,' 秉 (in 4th tone) 之國-千秉之君

the scholar. He will go when called as a scholar should be called, but only then. 3. The 🖅 mind that the conversation is all about a scholar who is not in office; compare par. 9. 4.

he one day said to him, "Anciently, princes of a thousand chariots have yet been on terms of friendship with scholars;—what do you think of such an intercourse?" Tsze-sze was displeased, and said, "The ancients have said, 'The scholar should be served:' how should they have merely said that he should be made a friend of?" When Tsse-sse was thus displeased, did he not say within himself,—" With regard to our stations, you are sovereign, and I am subject. can I presume to be on terms of friendship with my sovereign? With regard to our virtue, you ought to make me your master. How can you be on terms of friendship with me?" Thus, when a ruler of a thousand chariots sought to be on terms of friendship with a scholar, he could not obtain his wish:—how much less could he call him to his presence!

5. 'The duke Ching of Ch'i, once, when he was hunting, called his forester to him by a flag. The forester would not come, and the duke was going to kill him. With reference to this incident, Confucius said, "The determined officer never forgets that his end

乎-云爾, Bk.IV.Pt.II.xxiv. I, et al., but 豈但如君所言友之云乎 the second I also responds to . The below;以-with all his dignity, 'yet,' 云|有言,人君於士,當師事之, 5. See Bk. III. Pt. II. i. s. 6. The explanation paraphrase in the 日識 is:-古之人 of the various flags here is from Chû Hat, after may be in a ditch or a stream; the brave officer never forgets that he may lose his head." What was it in the forester that Confucius thus approved? He approved his not going to the duke, when summoned by the article which was not appropriate to him.

6. Chang said, 'May I ask with what a forester should be sum-Mencius replied, 'With a skin cap. A common man should be summoned with a plain banner; a scholar who has taken office, with one having dragons embroidered on it; and a Great officer, with one having feathers suspended from the top of the staff.

7. 'When the forester was summoned with the article appropriate to the summoning of a Great officer, he would have died rather than If a common man were summoned with the article presume to go. appropriate to the summoning of a scholar, how could be presume to go? How much more may we expect this refusal to go, when a man of talents and virtue is summoned in a way which is inappropriate to his character!

8. When a prince wishes to see a man of talents and virtue, and does not take the proper course to get his wish, it is as if he wished him to enter his palace, and shut the door against him.

the Chau Lt. The dictionary may be consulted | ching, II. v. Ode IX. st. r. Julien condemns about them. 何以-何用. 7. A man of the translating 周道 by 'the way to Chân,' talents and virtue ought not to be called at all; but that is the meaning of the tarms in the the prince ought to go to him. 8. [13] the prince ought to go to him. 8. [14] this is another case of a verb followed by the pronoun and another objective;—literally, ness. [15]—in the ode [16] (ohit), the 3rd tome. 'shut him the door.' 🚉 🔼,—see the Shih- The ode is attributed to an officer of one of the

Now, righteousness is the way, and propriety is the door, but it is only the superior man who can follow this way, and go out and in by this door. It is said in the Book of Poetry,

"The way to Chau is level like a whetstone,

And straight as an arrow.

The officers tread it.

And the lower people see it."

9. Wan Chang said, 'When Confucius received the prince's message calling him, he went without waiting for his carriage. Doing so, did Confucius do wrong?' Mencius replied, 'Confucius was in office, and had to observe its appropriate duties. moreover, he was summoned on the business of his office.'

CHAP. VIII. 1. Mencius said to Wan Chang, 'The scholar whose virtue is most distinguished in a village shall make friends of all the virtuous scholars in the village. The scholar whose virtue is most distinguished throughout a State shall make friends of all the virtuous scholars of that State. The scholar whose virtue is most distinguished throughout the kingdom shall make friends of all the virtuous scholars of the kingdom.

eastern States, mourning over the oppressive and exhausting labours which were required from the people. The 'reyal highway' presents itself to him, formerly crowded by officers hastening to and from the cepital, and the people hurrying to their labours, but now toiled slowly and painfully along. 9. See Analest, X. xiii. 4. only 'to be friends with,' but also 'to realise the uses of friendship.' The eminence attained 8. The realization of the greatest advant by the individual attracts all the others to him.

2. 'When a scholar feels that his friendship with all the virtuous scholars of the kingdom is not sufficient to satisfy him, he proceeds to ascend to consider the men of antiquity. He repeats their poems, and reads their books, and as he does not know what they were as men, to ascertain this, he considers their history. This is to ascend and make friends of the men of antiquity.'

1. The king Hstian of Ch'i asked about the office of CHAP. IX. Mencius said, 'Which high ministers is your high ministers. Majesty asking about?' 'Are there differences among them?' inquired the king. 'There are,' was the reply. 'There are the high ministers who are noble and relatives of the prince, and there are those who are of a different surname.' The king said, 'I beg to ask about the high ministers who are noble and relatives of the prince.' Mencius answered, 'If the prince have great faults, they ought to remonstrate with him, and if he do not listen to them after they have done so again and again, they ought to dethrone him.'

2. The king on this looked moved, and changed countenance.

and he has thus the opportunity of learning their age.—We are hardly to understand the from them, which no inflation because of his poetry and books here generally. Mencius own general superiority prevents him from seems to have had in his eye the Book of doing. 2. and ascenda. 看=翻, 'to repeat,' 'eroon over.' 可平=可否,'proper or not?' II it, 'their age,' i.e. what they were in advert on them would be inconsistent with (he proceeds Poetry, and the Book of History.

9. The duties of the different L 君有大遇,—such HIGH MINISTERS, ministers will overlook small faults. To anim

3. Mencius said, 'Let not your Majesty be offended. You asked me, and I dare not answer but according to truth.

4. The king's countenance became composed, and he then begged to ask about high ministers who were of a different surname from Mencius said, 'When the prince has faults, they ought the prince. to remonstrate with him; and if he do not listen to them after they have done this again and again, they ought to leave the State."

their consunguinity. No distinction is made | effects. Chu Hst notices that the able and virof falls, as great or small, when the other class of ministers is spoken of. 'Great faults' are such as endanger the safety of the State. 3. 勿異, 'don't think it strange,' but = 'don't be offended.'—We may not wonder that duke Hetian should have been moved and surprised by the doctrines of Mencius as announced in this chapter. It is true that the members of the family of which the ruler is the Head have the meanest interest in his ruling well, but to teach them that it belongs to them, in case of his not taking their advice, to proceed to dethrone him, is likely to produce the most disastrous first Han dynasty.

tuous relatives of the tyrant Chau () were not able to do their duty as here laid down, while Ho Kwang, a minister of another surname, was able to do it in the case of the king of Ch'ang-yi (昌邑王), whom he placed in B.a. 74, though not the proper heir, on the throne in succession to the emperor Chao. His nominee, however, proved unequal to his position. See the Memoir of Ho Kwang in the Thirty-eighth Book of the Biographies of the BOOK VI.

KÂO TSZE. PART I.

1. The philosopher Kao said, 'Man's nature is like the ch't-willow, and righteousness is like a cup or a bowl. fashioning benevolence and righteousness out of man's nature is like the making cups and bowls from the ch't-willow.

2. Mencius replied, 'Can you, leaving untouched the nature of the willow, make with it cups and bowls? You must do violence and injury to the willow, before you can make cups and bowls with Kao, from whom this Book is named, is the the view of the philosopher Hein (4) that same who is referred to in Bk. II. Pt. L ii. His mame was Pt-hal (), a speculatist of Mencius's day, who is said to have given himself equally to the study of the orthodox doctrines and those of the heresiarch Mo (Bk. III. Pt. I.v; Pt. II. ix). See the 四書柘餘 說, on Mencius. Vol. I. Art. xxix. He appears a this Book to have been much perplexed respecting the real character of human nature in its relations to good and evil. This is the principal subject discussed in this Book. For his views of human nature as here developed, Mencius is mainly indebted for his place among the Sages of his country. 'In the first Part, , 'ho treats first myr the 四書味根纸 the nature, then of the heart, and then of truction, the whole being analogous to the sons in the Doctrine of the Mean. The second Part continues to treat of the same abject, and a recemblance will generally be und between the views of the parties there mbated, and those of the scholar Kao."

1. THAT RESEVOLUTER AND RESERVEDOU 20 UNKATURAL PRODUCES OF RUBAN KATURS. There underlies the words of Kao here, says Chu Hat, rightcousness, and Moneius exposes the exper human nature is evil (41: putting the case too strongly. It is an in tion from his words, which Kao would prob have disallowed. Houn (see the proleg-Morrison under the character by many the most distinguish Confucian school, appears to have man positively that all good was foreign to th of man :-人之件: []], 'man's nature is bad; his good is arti-Scial.' I. The part and the part taken by some as two trees, but it is better to take them together, the first character giving the species of the other. It is described as growing by the water-side, like a co willow, coarse and white, with the veins reddish.' , 'according with,' 'fallowing, 'i.e. 'leaving untouched,' 'doing no viole that man's humanity. Kao had said nature, nature could be made into benevolence and

it. If you must do violence and injury to the willow in order to make cups and bowls with it, on your principles you must in the same way do violence and injury to humanity in order to fashion from it benevolence and righteousness! Your words, alas! would certainly lead all men on to reckon benevolence and righteousness to be calamities.

1. The philosopher Kao said, 'Man's nature is like CHAP. II. water whirling round in a corner. Open a passage for it to the east, and it will flow to the east; open a passage for it to the west, and it will flow to the west. Man's nature is indifferent to good and evil, just as the water is indifferent to the east and west.

2. Mencius replied, 'Water indeed will flow indifferently to the cast or west, but will it flow indifferently up or down? The by here substituting the for fat, in doing era (a.c. 55-a.p. 18). We have the following which he is instiffed by the nature of the action sentence from the continuous of the continuous father than the continuou that has to be put forth on the wood of the willow. 禍仁妻 and rightecoursess.' I take the meaning to be as in the translation. If their nature must be hacked and bent to bring those virtues from it, men would certainly account them to be calamities.

2. MAN'S HATURE IS NOT INDEPERRENT TO GOOD AND EVIL. ITS PROPER TENDRISCH IN TO GOOD. That E. HAN'S RATURE IS NOT IMPLIFYERENT TO GOOD

AND EVIL. ITS PROPER THEDERICY IS TO GOOD. That man is indifferent to good and evil, or that the tendencies to these are both blended in his mature, was the doctrine of Yang Heiung (his thinks, explains it as in the translation, which nature, was the dectrine of Yang Hsiung (進), a philosopher about the beginning of our 信,—as an advert, 'truly.'

forth on the wood of the good in it makes a good man; the cultivation of the evil makes a bad man. The pearion-nature in its manuscript manuscript. in its movements may be called to or ovil' (十子全) but did he himself have the whole is certainly better adapted to the p tendency of man's nature to good is like the tendency of water to flow downwards. There are none but have this tendency to good, just as all water flows downwards.

3. 'Now by striking water and causing it to leap up, you may make it go over your forehead, and, by damming and leading it, you may force it up a hill; -but are such movements according to the nature of water? It is the force applied which causes them. When men are made to do what is not good, their nature is dealt with in this way.'

CHAP. III. 1. The philosopher Kao said, 'Life is what we call nature.

2. Mencius asked him, 'Do you say that by nature you mean life, just as you say that white is white?' 'Yes, I do,' was the reply. Mencius added, 'Is the whiteness of a white feather like that of

-literally, 'the goodness of man's nature,' but | THE PHENOMERA OF LIFE. 1. 'By / 1,' says Chû to provoke,' 'to fret,' the consequence of a dom. 液而行之,--'dam and walk it,' i.e. by gradually leading it from dam to dam. Chu Hst says:—'This chapter tells us that the nature is properly good, and if we accord with it, we shall do nothing which is not good; that it is properly without evil, and we must violate it therefore, before we can do evil. It shows that the nature is properly not without a decided character, or that it may do good or evil indifferently.

8. The mature is not to be confounded with aympathy with Kao in this conversation, or to as = 'tendency to good.' 3. Hat, 'is intended that whereby men and animals perceive and move,' and the sentiment, he adds, is analogous to that of the Buddhists, who make 作用, 'doing and using,' to be the nature. We must understand by the term, I think, the phenomena of life, and Kao's idea led to the ridiculous conclusion that wherever there were the phenomena of life, the nature of the subj must be the same. At any rate, Mencius here makes him allow this. 2, 3. The 11, 4th tone, all interrogative, and - 'you allow this, I suppose.'—We find it difficult to place ourselves in white snow, and the whiteness of white snow like that of white Kao again said 'Yes.'

3. 'Very well,' pursued Mencius. 'Is the nature of a dog like the nature of an ox, and the nature of an ox like the nature of a man?'

CHAP. IV. 1. The philosopher Kao said, 'To enjoy food and delight in colours is nature. Benevolence is internal and not external; righteousness is external and not internal.

2. Mencius asked him, 'What is the ground of your saying that benevolence is internal and righteousness external?' He replied. 'There is a man older than I, and I give honour to his age. not that there is first in me a principle of such reverence to age. It is just as when there is a white man, and I consider him white;according as he is so externally to me. On this account, I pronounce of righteousness that it is external."

fellow Monetus in passing from the second paras all refer to qualities, and then he jumps to others about the nature.

4. That the besevolest approtroms and the DESCRIMINATIONS OF WHAT IS RIGHT ARE DQUALLY ユタヲヨ━ネネネム エ.食色-甘食悅色. ₩。 might suppose that the here denoted 'the appetite of sex.' But another view is preferred. Thus the commentator 熙 居 observes :--'The infant knows to drink the breast, and to 有長於我-非先有長之之 is denoted 事 物 之 宜, 'the determining what conduct in reference to them is required by men and things external to us, and giving it to them. 'Kao contends that as we are moved by our own internal impulse to food and colours, so we are also in the exercise of benevo but not in that of righteousness. 2. 🔁, always grd tone. In 彼長 it is the adjec tive, but in the other cases it is the verb. look at fire, which illustrates the text 食色心在我. The second 白 is also a verb.

. Mencius said, 'There is no difference between our pronouncing a white horse to be white and our pronouncing a white man to be But is there no difference between the regard with which we acknowledge the age of an old horse and that with which we acknowledge the age of an old man? And what is it which is called righteousness!--the fact of a man's being old! or the fact of our giving honour to his age?'

4. Kdo said, There is my younger brother; —I love him. But the younger brother of a man of Ch'in I do not love: that is, the feeling is determined by myself, and therefore I say that benevolence On the other hand, I give honour to an old man of Ch'a. is internal. and I also give honour to an old man of my own people: that is, the feeling is determined by the age, and therefore I say that righteousness is external.

3. 異於, at the commencement, have crept | 楚人, = indifferent people, strangers. 以 reght into the text. They must be disregarded. 白馬,白人,長馬,畏 人,--白 and 甚 are the verba, = the 長之 Z, 'and do you my? es out better by expanding the words a little. The 日語 says:--The recognition of the whiteness of a horse is not different from the recognition of the whitethat is, the love depends on ma. Him with mess of a man. So indeed it is. But when we acknowledge the age of a horse, we simply with the mouth pronounce that it is old. In acknowledging, however, the age of a man, there is at the same time the feeling of respect in the mind. The case is different from our the revergence is in both eases determined by secognition of the age of a horse.' 4. 秦人, the age. Wherever we meet with age, there we

我爲悅以畏爲悅.—the meaning is, no doubt, as in the translation, but the use of the in both cases occasions some difficulty. Here again I may translate from the which attempts to bring out the meaning of 悦:--'I love my younger brother and do not love the younger brother of a man of Chin: that is, the love depends on me. Him with

5. Mencius answered him, 'Our enjoyment of meat roasted by a man of Ch'in does not differ from our enjoyment of meat roasted by ourselves. Thus, what you insist on takes place also in the case of such things, and will you say likewise that our enjoyment of a roast is external?

1. The disciple Mang Chi asked Kung-tû, saying, On what ground is it said that righteousness is internal?

2. Kung-tu replied, 'We therein act out our feeling of respect, and therefore it is said to be internal.'

3. The other objected, 'Suppose the case of a villager older than your elder brother by one year, to which of them would you show the greater respect?' 'To my brother,' was the reply. 'But for which of them would you first pour out wine at a feast?' 'For the villager.' Mang Chi argued, 'Now your feeling of reverence rests on the one, and now the honour due to age is rendered to the other; -this is certainly determined by what is without, and does not proceed from within.

have the feeling of complecency (凡遇畏 在所悦, and it does not necessarily sed from our own mind.' all this, a perplexity is still felt to attach to the of 悦, 5. 耆-牖.—Mencius silences inner springs of our being.

5. THE SAME SUBJECT ;—THE DESCRIPTION OF WHAT IS RIGHT ARE FROM WITHIR. I. MANG Chi was a younger brother of Ming Chun mentioned in Bk. II. Pt. II. ii. 3. Their re Their relation to each other in point of age is determined by the characters (##) and (##). Mang Chi had his opponent by showing that the same diffi-culty would attach to the principle with which he himself started; namely, that the enjoy-ment of food was internal, and sprang from the inness swipes of our heins. The questions here are evidently by Ming Chi.

4. Kung-th was unable to reply, and told the conversation to Mencius. Mencius said, 'You should ask him, "Which do you respect most,—your uncle, or your younger brother?" He will answer, "My uncle." Ask him again, "If your younger brother be personating a dead ancestor, to which do you show the greater respect,-to him or to your uncle?" He will say, "To my younger brother." You can go on, "But where is the respect due, as you said, to your uncle?" He will reply to this, "I show the respect to my younger brother, because of the position which he occupies," and you can likewise say, " So my respect to the villager is because of the position which he occupies. Ordinarily, my respect is rendered to my elder brother; for a brief season, on occasion, it is rendered to the villager."'

5. Mang Chi heard this and observed, 'When respect is due to my uncle, I respect him, and when respect is due to my younger brother, I respect him; —the thing is certainly determined by what is without, and does not proceed from within. Kung-tu replied, 'In winter we drink things hot, in summer we drink things cold; and 伯 is in the general sense of 長, 'elder.' the descendants, if possible—was made the 尸, The translation needs to be supplemented, or 'persenster of the dead,' into whom the spirit to show that Mescins gives his decision in the of the other was supposed to descend to receive form of a dialogue between the two disciples. 权父,'a father's younger brother,' but used the worship. 是在其像.—the其='as generally for 'an uncle.' 弟為尸,—in meri. you said.' 斯須-暫時; compare the fleing to the departed, some one—a certain one of 'Doctrine of the Mean,' i. s. 5. 21, 1, that so, on your principle, eating and drinking also depend on what is external!

CHAP. VI. 1. The disciple Kung-tû said, 'The philosopher Kao says, "Man's nature is neither good nor bad."

2. 'Some say, "Man's nature may be made to practise good, and it may be made to practise evil, and accordingly, under Wan and Wû, the people loved what was good, while under Yû and Lî, they loved what was cruel."

3. 'Some say, "The nature of some is good, and the nature of others is bad. Hence it was that under such a sovereign as Yao there yet appeared Hsiang; that with such a father as Kū-sau there yet appeared Shun; and that with Chau for their sovereign, and the son of their elder brother besides, there were found Ch'i, the viscount of Wei, and the prince Pi-kan.

4. 'And now you say," The nature is good." Then are all those wrong?'

water, or 'soup,' and 'water;' 木 must be is explained by 智, and 可以為一可taken as 'cold' water. Kung-tû answers after 以便為. 3. 股 was the name of the example of his master in the last paragraph viacount of Wei; see Analcota XVIII. i. Both of the preceding chapter.

6. EXPLANATION OF MERCIUS'S OWN DOCTRINE THAT MAN'S NATURE IS GOOD. 'I. Chû Hat says that the view of Kao, as here affirmed, had been. advocated by Sû Tung-p'o (東坡) and Hû, pounded by Kao in the second chapter.

VOL. II.

以使為. 3. 敬 was the name of the viscount of Wei; see Analects, XVIII. i. Both he and Pi-kan are here made to be uncles of Chau, while Ch'1, according to the Sha-ching, was his half-brother. Chu Hst supposes some error to have crept into the text. For convenience in translating, I have changed the order styled Wan-ting Kung (胡文定公), near of 為兄之子,且以爲君. 王子, to his own times. a. This is the view pro-as the sons of the princes of States were called 公子.—This view of human nature found

5. Mencius said, 'From the feelings proper to it, it is constituted for the practice of what is good. This is what I mean in saying that the nature is good.

6. 'If men do what is not good, the blame cannot be imputed to their natural powers.

7. 'The feeling of commiseration belongs to all men; so does that of shame and dislike; and that of reverence and respect; and that of approving and disapproving. The feeling of commiseration implies the principle of benevolence; that of shame and dislike, the principle of righteousness; that of reverence and respect, the principle of propriety; and that of approving and disapproving the principle of knowledge. Benevolence, righteousness, propriety, and knowledge are not infused into us from without. We are certainly an advocate afterwards in the famous Hanjing, however, is the same on the whole. Wan-kung (韓文'公) of the Tung dynasty. 4, 5 乃君,='as to,' 'looking at.' Châ Hai calls them an initial particle. The 耳, of course, refers to the or 'nature,' which is the subject of the next clause—可以但 This being the amount of Mencius's docta that by the study of our nature we may see that it is formed for goodness, there seems nothing to ebject to in it. By情is denoted性之動, 'the movements of the nature,' i.e. the inward feelings and tendencies, 'stirred up.'-Chao Ch'l takes 若 here in the sense of 鳳, 'to obey," 'to accord with,' on which the translation would be—'If it act in accordance with its is the species of a sentence, and the professings, or emotional tendencies. The mean-must be supplied as in the translation.

以含蓄 is not so definite as we could wish. Cha Hst expands it :--人 之 而不可以1 the feelings of man may properly be u to do good, and may not be used to do evil. This seems to be the meaning. 6. 万一初 能 也, 'man e ability,' 'his natural powers.' 若夫 (in and tone),—'as to,' 'in the case of.' 7. Compare Bk. II. Pt. L. vi. 4.5 恭敬之心, however, takes the place of FF 之心there 弗思耳 furnished with them. And a different view is simply owing to want of reflection. Hence it is said, "Seek and you will find them. Neglect and you will lose them." Men differ from one another in regard to them; --some as much again as others, some five times as much, and some to an incalculable amount:—it is because they cannot carry out fully their natural powers.

8. 'It is said in the Book of Poetry,

"Heaven in producing mankind,

Gave them their various faculties and relations with their specific laws.

These are the invariable rules of nature for all to hold, And all love this admirable virtue."

Confucius said, "The maker of this ode knew indeed the principle of our nature!" We may thus see that every faculty and relation must have its law, and since there are invariable rules for all to hold, they consequently love this admirable virtue.'

■ 16, and tome. 取相借云云, 與| but the things specially intended are our o 当相去,或一倍,云云,'they and the various eircles of relationship. 有物有则,- 'have things, have laws,' estituted to love, the admirable virtue.

stitution with reference to the world of a less them so that they depart from what is good, quotation is designed specially to illustrate par. 3, some as far again as others, &c. 8.

in the various arrives of relationship. In the some is stronger than the see the Shih-ching, III. Pt. III. Ode VI. st. 1, statement there. It is said the people actually where we have 森 for 森, and 彝 for 夷. love (好, 4th tome), and are not merely con-

D d 2

1. Mencius said, 'In good years the children of the people are most of them good, while in bad years the most of them abandon themselves to evil. It is not owing to any difference of their natural powers conferred by Heaven that they are thus different. The abandonment is owing to the circumstances through which they allow their minds to be ensuared and drowned in evil.

2. 'There now is barley.—Let it be sown and covered up; the ground being the same, and the time of sowing likewise the same, it grows rapidly up, and, when the full time is come, it is all found Although there may be inequalities of produce, that is to be ripe. owing to the difference of the soil, as rich or poor, to the unequal nourishment afforded by the rains and dews, and to the different ways in which man has performed his business in reference to it.

3. 'Thus all things which are the same in kind are like to one

7. ALL MEN ARE THE SAME IN MIND ;-SAGES | the use of the here is peculiar. Most NO OTHERS. IT FOLLOWS THAT THE RATURE OF ALL MEN, LIKE THAT OF THE SAGES, IS GOOD. 器, 'rich years,'= 要 年, 'plentiful page is given by Châo Ch'i as = 基 'good,' and 暴 = ᇒ, 'evil.' But 暴 = the Mencian phrase— [] * 'self-abandonment,' and there is the proper meaning of 116, 'to depend on,' also in that term. 'In rich years, take it as - thus; '-see Wang Yanchih, is wa. Some take it in its proper pronominal meaning, as if Mencius in a lively manner turned to the young :- 'It is not from the powers conferred by Heaven that you are different.' (so,' referring specially to the self-abandonment. 2. 🏂 🏖 go together = 'barley.' 播讀 (grd tone, the noun), 'sow 前 (sons and brothers, i.e. the young the seeds.' 讔, properly, 'a kind of harrow.' whose characters are plastic) depend on the plenty and are good.' Temptations do not leed them from their natural bent. 南森 the time, harvest-time) are come.' 3. 是一 another; -why should we doubt in regard to man, as if he were a solitary exception to this? The sage and we are the same in kind.

4. 'In accordance with this the scholar Lung said, "If a man make hempen sandals without knowing the size of people's feet, yet I know that he will not make them like baskets." Sandals are all like one another, because all men's feet are like one another.

5. 'So with the mouth and flavours;—all mouths have the same relishes. Yi-ya only apprehended before me what my mouth relishes. Suppose that his mouth in its relish for flavours differed from that of other men, as is the case with dogs or horses which are not the same in kind with us, why should all men be found following Y1-y4. in their relishes? In the matter of tastes all the people model themselves after Yi-ya; that is, the mouths of all men are like one another.

两, 'all.' 何獨, 太太, 'why only come | 684-642), a worthless man, but great in his art. to man and doubt it?' 4. 故, illustrating, not 先得, 云云, is better translated 'approinferring. So, below; except perhaps in the hended before me, than 'was the first to apprelast instance of its use. Of the Lung who is hend, te., and only is evidently to be supplied, quoted nothing seems to be known;—see Bk. III. Pt. L iii. 7. , see Bk. III. Pt. I. iv. I. 首·曙·口之於味.有同者 fig, literally, 'The relation of mouths to tastes is that they have the same relishes.' Yi-ya was 如使口之於味,—the口 here is to be understood with reference to Yl-ya. II fits nature,' i. a. its likings and dislikings in the matter of tastes. 天下期於 the cook of the famous duke Hwan of Ch'i (n.c. 天,一期, 'to fix a limit,' or 'to aim at.

6. 'And so also it is with the ear. In the matter of sounds, the whole people model themselves after the music-master K'wang: that is, the ears of all men are like one another.

7. 'And so also it is with the eye. In the case of Taze-tû, there is no man but would recognise that he was beautiful. Any one who would not recognise the beauty of Tsze-tû must have no вуев.

8. 'Therefore I say,—Men's mouths agree in having the same relishes; their ears agree in enjoying the same sounds; their eyes agree in recognising the same beauty:—shall their minds alone be without that which they similarly approve? What is it then of which they similarly approve? It is, I say, the principles of our nature, and the determinations of rightcourness. The sages only apprehended before me that of which my mind approves along with other men. Therefore the principles of our nature and the deter-

6.惟耳亦然,—惟 is here in the sense | be taken as a verb, 'to approve.' 藟 merely of our but, from botss, the connective particle, indicates the answers to the preceding question, though it often corresponds to our other but, It is not so much as 'I say' in the translation. a disjunctive, or exceptive, - 'only.' 師 曠, 理-心之體, 'the mental constitution,' nation of Kung-sun O (公孫爾), an officer of Ching about n.o. 700, distinguished for his beauty. See his villainy and death in the seventh chapter of the 'History of the Several as sheep and oxen. 8. 無所同然乎,—然 is to animals, such as dogs and pigs.

the moral nature, and constitution or nature, acting outwardly.

minations of righteousness are agreeable to my mind, just as the flesh of grass and grain-fed animals is agreeable to my mouth."

CHAP. VIII. 1. Mencius said, 'The trees of the Niù mountain were once beautiful. Being situated, however, in the borders of a large State, they were hewn down with axes and bills;—and could they retain their beauty? Still through the activity of the vegetative life day and night, and the nourishing influence of the rain and dew, they were not without buds and sprouts springing forth, but then came the cattle and goats and browsed upon them. To these things is owing the bare and stripped appearance of the mountain, and when people now see it, they think it was never finely wooded. But is this the nature of the mountain?

2. 'And so also of what properly belongs to man;—shall it be said that the mind of any man was without benevolence and righteous-

COMES TO APPEAR AS IF IT WERE NOT SO ;-FROM of receiving its proper hourisment. Nit mountain was in the south-east of Ch'l. It is referred to the present district of Lin-tase (臨潛) in the department of Ch'ing-châu. ferring to the 氣化生物, what we may 以其郊於大國-以其所生 之郊在于大园,可以爲美 is poculiar. 材-材木 'troos of materials,' IF. - 'could they be beautiful?' i.e. 'could fine trees. 2. The connexion indicated by

8. How is in that this natural profiming eccep, they retain their beauty?' 是其日夜 之所息—the 是 is difficult;—'there is what they grow day and night,' the 見 recall 'vegetative life.' The use of 📜 📜 here

The way in which a man loses his proper goodness of mind is like the way in which the trees are denuded by axes and bills. Hewn down day after day, can it—the mind—retain its beauty? But there is a development of its life day and night, and in the calm air of the morning, just between night and day, the mind feels in a degree those desires and aversions which are proper to humanity, but the feeling is not strong, and it is fettered and destroyed by what takes place during the day. This fettering taking place again and again, the restorative influence of the night is not sufficient to preserve the proper goodness of the mind; and when this proves insufficient for that purpose, the nature becomes not much different from that of the irrational animals, and when people now see it, they think that it never had those powers which I assert. But does this condition represent the feelings proper to humanity?

'although,' may be thus traced :-- 'Not only is is difficult to catch the exact idea conveyed by such the case of the Nitt mountain. Although we speak of what properly belongs to man (存-在), we shall find that the same thing obtains. The next clause is to be translated in the past tense, the question having reference to a mind or nature, which has been allowed to run to waste. 其, 'he,'='a man.' 放= 艮心,—'the good mental constitution or mature. that lies comby between the night and day. It I have given. 🌉 🚠,—see Bk. IV. Pt. IL

, in this clause, and where it occurs below. the calm of the air, the corresponding calm of the spirit, and the moral invigoration from the repose of the night, being blended in it. The next clause is difficult. Chao Ch'i makes it :-'The mind is not far removed in its likings and dislikings (好, 温, both in 4th tone) from those which are proper to humanity." 4, 'even,' indicates the time The more common interpretation is that which

3. 'Therefore, if it receive its proper nourishment, there is nothing which will not grow. If it lose its proper nourishment. there is nothing which will not decay away.

4. 'Confucius said, "Hold it fast, and it remains with you. Let it go, and you lose it. Its outgoing and incoming cannot be defined as to time or place." It is the mind of which this is said!

CHAP. IX. 1. Mencius said, 'It is not to be wondered at that the king is not wise!

2. 'Suppose the case of the most easily growing thing in the world;—if you let it have one day's genial heat, and then expose it for ten days to cold, it will not be able to grow. It is but seldom that I have an audience of the king, and when I retire, there come

xix. 1. 旦董-日間. 8. 無物,一物 settledness of its passion-nature, as in the calm of the morning, then will the mind always be embraces both things in nature, and the nature of man. 4. This is a remark of Confucius for which we are indebted to Mencius. 含一格. the time; no one knows its direction.' A., and tone, -'is it not?' or an exclamation. This paragraph is thus expanded by Chu Hat: --'Confucius said of the mind, by Cht. Hat:—'Confucius said of the minu,
"If you hold it fast, it is here; if you let it go, it is lost and gone: so without determinate time is its outgoing and incoming, and also without determinate place." Mencius quoted his words to illustrate the unfathomableness of the spiritual and intelligent mind, how easy it is to have it or to lose it, and how difficult to preserve and keep it, and how it may not be left unnourished for an instant. Learners ought constantly to be exerting their strength preserved, and everywhere and in all circumstances its manifestations will be those of benevolence and righteousness.

9. Illustrating the last chapter.—How the KING OF CHT'S WANT OF WISDOM WAS OWING TO MEGLEOT AND BAD ASSOCIATIONS. I. I is used for K, 'to be perplexed.' I is an exclamation. The king is understood to be the king Holan of Chi; see L. ii. 2. —pi, eften written 📆 'to dry in the sun,' here = 📜, 'to warm genially.' 未有,云云, 末, 'not yot,' 'nover,' puts the general truth tone, Asien. Cht Het points the last clauseto insure the pureness of its spirit, and the 吾, 如有明黑,何哉, 'though there all those who act upon him like the cold. Though I succeed in bringing out some buds of goodness, of what avail is it?

3. 'Now chess-playing is but a small art, but without his whole mind being given, and his will bent, to it, a man cannot succeed at it. Chess Ch'in is the best chess-player in all the kingdom. Suppose that he is teaching two men to play.—The one gives to the subject his whole mind and bends to it all his will, doing nothing but listening to Chess Chit. The other, although he seems to be listening to him, has his whole mind running on a swan which he thinks is approaching, and wishes to bend his bow, adjust the string to the arrow, and shoot it. Although he is learning along with the other. he does not come up to him. Why !--because his intelligence is not equal? Not so.

may be sprouts of goodness, what can I do?' as an art, is that it is a small art.' 英秋,—
In this way, 吾 and 何哉 are connected, Ch'it was the man's name, and he was called and there is the intermediate clause between them, which is an unusual thing in Chinese. Pooling this difficulty, Châo Ch'i makes 吾: the nominative to 有剪 and interprets,— 'Although I wish to encourage the sprouting of his goodness, how can I do so?' I have followed this construction, taking the force of the terms, however, differently. 3. 今夫 (and tone), intelligence?' 是 and the following words ,-'now the character of chess-playing being in apposition.

'a great he,' which is also called 'the he goose' - the swan. k (aho) 南男 (ahū) 2 ;--see Analocta, VII. xxvl. 是其智弗若。與(and tone),—'Is it use of this, the inferiority of his (natural)

CHAP. X. 1. Mencius said, 'I like fish, and I also like bear's paws. If I cannot have the two together, I will let the fish go, and take the bear's paws. So, I like life, and I also like righteousness. If I cannot keep the two together, I will let life go, and choose righteousness.

2. 'I like life indeed, but there is that which I like more than life, and therefore, I will not seek to possess it by any improper ways. I dislike death indeed, but there is that which I dislike more than death, and therefore there are occasions when I will not avoid danger.

3. 'If among the things which man likes there were nothing which he liked more than life, why should he not use every means

10. That If it proper to man's nature to love explanatory of the conclusion of the last para-EMENTSOURISMS MORES ENAM LIFE, AND HOW IT IS graph,—各生而取義 不為(em. palms 'have been a delicacy in China from the carliost times. They require a long time, it seems, to cook them thoroughly. The king Ch'ing of Ch'û, n. c. 6e5, being besieged in his palace, requested that he might have a dish of bear's palms before he was put to death,—heping that help would come while they were being cooked. a 生亦我所欲,—the edanger of death. 降-避. It seems 🎢 is retained from the preceding paragraph. better to construe as I have deme, making 🧸 We may render it by 'indeed.' 所欲,云 governed by 降, than to make 雕-a clause , is to be translated indicatively. It is by itself, and suppose W as the object of by which he could preserve it? If among the things which man dislikes there were nothing which he disliked more than death, why should be not do everything by which he could avoid danger?

4. 'There are cases when men by a certain course might preserve life, and they do not employ it; when by certain things they might avoid danger, and they will not do them.

5. Therefore, men have that which they like more than life, and that which they dislike more than death. They are not men of distinguished talents and virtue only who have this mental nature. All men have it; what belongs to such men is simply that they do not lose it.

6. 'Here are a small basket of rice and a platter of soup, and the case is one in which the getting them will preserve life, and the want of them will be death;—if they are offered with an insulting

4. I translate here differently both from Châo | 版. 勿 is simply negative, not prohibitive. Ch'l and Cha Hat. They take 由是 to be - 6. 障, 4th tone. 摩爾 is explained 隐 'From this righteeumese-loving nature so displayed,' as if the paragraph were merely an inference from the two preceding. I understand the paragraph to be a repetition of the two preceding, and introductory to the one than the idea of appearance,' or demonstration which follows. 由是则生, 'by this is intended. 行道之人-乞人, below, course (any particular course) there is life,' and not similar in the course of th 而有不用, 'and yet in cases it is way,' as Cha Hai makes it. 不屑, see Bh. not used.' This gives a much cessior and II. Pt. I. iz. z.—This paragraph is intended to more legitimate construction. 5.能勿喪 illustrate the 人皆有之 of the preceding. (4th tone),—stress must not be laid on the Even in the process and most distressed of mea, voice, even a tramper will not receive them, or if you first tread upon them, even a beggar will not stoop to take them.

7. 'And yet a man will accept of ten thousand chung, without any consideration of propriety or righteousness. What can the ten thousand chung add to him? When he takes them, is it not that he may obtain beautiful mansions, that he may secure the services of wives and concubines, or that the poor and needy of his acquaintance may be helped by him?

8. 'In the former case the offered bounty was not received, though it would have saved from death, and now the emolument is taken for the sake of beautiful mansions. The bounty that would have preserved from death was not received, and the emolument is taken to get the service of wives and concubines. The bounty that would the 盖票之心 will show itself. 7. 萬 | the law of China there could be only one a - see Bk. II. Pt. II. z. g. 民何加温,—'what do they add to me?' There is here a contract with the case in the lute necessity. But also there is the lofty, and true, idea, that a man's personality is something 'The thinking of the poor would seem to be a independent of, and higher than, all external thought of kindly feeling, but the true nature advantages. The meaning is better brought out of it is shown in the 1, may set uz. The in English by changing the person from the first idea is not of benevelence, but selfishness. to the third. 為妻妾之奉, 'because | 8. 獨, the 4th tone, = 向. 爲 (4th tone) of the services of wives and concubines.' 妻身死, 'for the body dying,' i. c. to save from have saved from death was not received, and the emolument is taken that one's poor and needy acquaintance may be helped by him. Was it then not possible likewise to decline this? This is a case of what is called—"Losing the proper nature of one's mind."'

萬質於 however many concubines there might be. 乏者感我之惠, 'that the poor of his is placed as well as 妾, though according to dying 是亦不可以已乎.-是is

CHAP, XI. 1. Mencius said, 'Benevolence is man's mind, and righteousness is man's path.

2. 'How lamentable is it to neglect the path and not pursue it. to lose this mind and not know to seek it again!

3. 'When men's fowls and dogs are lost, they know to seek for them again, but they lose their mind, and do not know to seek for it.

4. 'The great end of learning is nothing else but to seek for the lost mind.

CHAP. XII. 1. Mencius said, Here is a man schose fourth finger is bent and cannot be stretched out straight. It is not painful, nor 'Benevolence is man's mind, or heart,' i.e. it is the proper and universal characteristic of man's nature, as the I 📸 on Châo Ch'i Z, 'all men have it.' the other moral qualities of humanity. Chû usual Mencian specification of 'righteousness' along with it 4 學問之道,一道 - 切 reckoning from the thumb as the first. It is emphatic, - this large emolument, taken for such purposes. —For an example in point to illustrate par. 6, see the Li-chi, IL Sect. II. iii. 17.

11. How hem having loss the proper qualities of the chiang mays:

OF THER HATURE SHOULD MERK TO RECOVER THEM.

(Brown less in man's mind on heart' in the thousand words and ten thousand sayings of the man and words are simply designed. of the sages and worthies are simply de to lead men to get hold of their lost on Châo Ch'i and make them again enter their bodies. The accomplished, they can push their inquirie upwards, and from the lowest studies acquire to include here all

12. How man are exercise of bodily, and nor Hal says 仁者心之德; yet we have the OF MENTAL OR MORAL, DEFECTAL I. 無名之 档, 'the nameless finger,' i.e. the fourth, does it incommode his business, and yet if there be any one who can make it straight, he will not think the way from Chin to Chia far to go to him; because his finger is not like the finger of other people.

2. 'When a man's finger is not like those of other people, he knows to feel dissatisfied, but if his mind be not like that of other people, he does not know to feel dissatisfaction. This is called—

Ignorance of the relative importance of things."

CHAP. XIII. Mencius said, 'Anybody who wishes to cultivate the fung or the tere, which may be grasped with both hands, perhaps with one, knows by what means to nourish them. In the case of their own persons, men do not know by what means to nourish them. Is it to be supposed that their regard of their own persons is inferior to their regard for a t'ung or tese? Their want of reflection is extreme.'

so styled, as of less use than the others, and latter is called by the Chinese 'the king of trees,' and its wood is well adapted for their block-engraving. Of the 'smy there are various the meaning of, 伸 (abin). 不逗秦楚 之路-雖越秦楚相去乙路 不以為遠, 'though he should pass over all the way between Ch'in and Ch'û, he will not think it far.' a 不知類,—'not knowing kinds,' or degrees.

13. MEN'S EXTREME WART OF THOUGHT IN SEARD TO THE CULTIVATION OF THEM The fung and ton recemble each other. The plementary note in the 🖀 🛱 mys that 'by arrangements, some making three kinds of it, some four, and some seven. The wood of the 豊...哉='is it to be supposed?' ▲ sup-

1. Mencius said, 'There is no part of himself CHAP. XIV. which a man does not love, and as he loves all, so he must nourish all. There is not an inch of skin which he does not love, and so there is not an inch of skin which he will not nourish. For examining whether his way of nourishing be good or not, what other rule is there but this, that he determine by reflecting on himself where it should be applied?

2 'Some parts of the body are noble, and some ignoble; some great, and some small. The great must not be injured for the small, nor the noble for the ignoble. He who nourishes the little belonging to him is a little man, and he who nourishes the great is a great man.

Here is a plantation-keeper, who neglects his wd and chid, and cultivates his sour jujube-trees;—he is a poor plantation-keeper.

nourishing the here is intended the ruling of the mind, to nourish our inner man, and paying eareful attention to the body, to nourish our outer math.'

supplemented a good deal in translating. The meaning is plain:—A man is to determine fe himself, by reflection on his constitution, what our outer math.' r outer men.'

14. THE ATTENTION GIVEN BY MEN TO THE CHRISTIANT OF THE DIFFERENT PARTS OF THEIR PATURE MUST BE REQUIATED BY THE RELATIVE IM-PORTABOR OF THOSE PARTS. 4. 9, -es in the like 9, is to be understood with a tacit referinst chapter, but with more special reference to once to the mantal part of our constitution as the bedy. The property of the mantal part of our constitution as the bedy. The property of the mantal part of our constitution as the bedy. The property of the mantal part of our constitution as the bedy. The property of the mantal part of our constitution as the bedy. The property of the mantal part of our constitution as the bedy. The property of the mantal part of our constitution as the bedy. The property of the mantal part of our constitution as the bedy. The property of the mantal part of our constitution as the bedy. The property of the mantal part of our constitution as the bedy. The property of the mantal part of our constitution as the bedy. The part of our constitution as the bedy. The property of the mantal part of our constitution as the bedy. The property of the mantal part of our constitution as the bedy. The property of the mantal part of our constitution as the bedy. The property of the mantal part of our constitution as the bedy. The property of the part of our constitution as the bedy. The property of the mantal part of our constitution as the bedy. The property of the part of our constitution as the bedy. The property of the part of our constitution as the part of our constit last chapter, but with more special reference to greater attention paid to them. Compare the tw last paragraphs of Analosta, VI. xxviii. a. 'the members of the body,' but the eners inch.' 所以考,云云, requires to be platemifelia, according to Bretschneider) and the

'He who nourishes one of his fingers, neglecting his shoulders or his back, without knowing that he is doing so, is a man who resembles a hurried wolf.

A man who only eats and drinks is counted mean by others; because he nourishes what is little to the neglect of what is great.

6. 'If a man, fond of his eating and drinking, were not to neglect what is of more importance, how should his mouth and belly be considered as no more than an inch of skin?'

CHAP. XV. 1. The disciple Kung-tû said, 'All are equally men, but some are great men, and some are little men;—how is this? Mencius replied, 'Those who follow that part of themselves which is great are great men; those who follow that part which is little are little men.

2. Kung-tû pursued, 'All are equally men, but some follow edd are used like fungand tore in the last chapter; er, as some make out, the steroids plaintivities and the estates Japanics. Two valuable trees it is famous. 6. The meaning is that the parts are evidently intended by them. The indicating the greatest like it is famous. The indicating the greatest like it is famous. tegether, indicating the species. parts are first cared for, as they ought to be.

15. How some are great with, louis of RAND SOME ARE LIVER WITH MANY MAY BE SOME ARE LIVER WITH MAY B thorns; -- but it here indicates a kind of small wild date-tree. The date-tree proper is 拱 ; this wild tree, ; the different forms indi- chapter, it is spoken of our whole constitut cating the Mish tree and the low bushy shrub mental as well as physical. a 耳目之 respectively. See the 集體, in lot. 4.失-1' the offices of the ears and eyes."

AND SOME ARE LITTLE MEN, SLAVES OF but here, more evidently more evidently than in the last that part of themselves which is great, and some follow that part which is little;—how is this?' Mencius answered, 'The senses of hearing and seeing do not think, and are obscured by external When one thing comes into contact with another, as a matter of course it leads it away To the mind belongs the office of thinking. By thinking, it gets the right view of things; by neglecting to think, it fails to do this. These—the senses and the mind—are what Heaven has given to us. Let a man first stand fast in the supremacy of the nobler part of his constitution, and the inferior part will not be able to take it from him. It is simply this which makes the great man.'

VOL. II.

CHAP. XVI. 1. Mencius said, 'There is a nobility of Heaven, suppose that the senses are so styled, as being objects of sense, and of course can guard against conceived to be subject to the control of the ruling mind. We have below, however, the what is much the rule. expression 心之官, and 官 is to be taken in both cases as - 'prerogative,' 'business.' Châo Ch'l and his glossarist do not take 耳目之 官 as the subject of 思 in 不思, but interpret thus:—'The senses, if there be not the exercise of thought by the mind, are obscured by external things.' But the view of Chû Hat, as in the translation, is preferable. It is very evident that A indicates our whole mental constitution. 姆交纳,—the first 例 is the external objects, what is heard and seen; the second denotes the senses themselves, which are only things. 引之而已,一而已-'as a matter of course." 得之,一之一事物之 舞, the mind apprehends the true nature of the lence and righteousness, and 信 is the conduct what is great, 'the nobler part of his constitu-tion, i.e. the mind.—Kung-tū might have gone on to inquire,—'All are equally men. . Some on to inquire.—An are equally men. Some stand fast in the nobler part of their constitu-tion, and some allow its supremacy to be snatched away by the inferior part. How is this?' and Mencius would have tried to carry this 7' and Mencius would have tried to carry the difficulty a step farther back, and after all have left it where it originally was. His saying that the nature of man is good may be reconciled with the doctrines of evangelical Christianity, but his views of human nature as a whole are open to the three objections stated in the note to the twenty-first chapter of the Chur

16. THERE IS A HOBILITY THAT IS OF HEAVEN. AND A HOBILITY THAT IS OF MAN. THE HIGGISCH of the former leads to the loss of the latter. I. Hi is the heart true in itself, loyal to benevo-and there is a nobility of man. Benevolence, righteousness, selfconsecration, and fidelity, with unwearied joy in these virtues; these constitute the nobility of Heaven. To be a kung, a ching, or a ta-fa;—this constitutes the nobility of man.

2. 'The men of antiquity cultivated their nobility of Heaven, and the nobility of man came to them in its train.

3. 'The men of the present day cultivate their nobility of Heaven in order to seek for the nobility of man, and when they have obtained that, they throw away the other:—their delusion is extreme. The issue is simply this, that they must lose that nobility of man as well.

1. Mencius said, 'To desire to be honoured is CHAP, XVII. the common mind of men. And all men have in themselves that which is truly honourable. Only they do not think of it.

true to them. 么, 典 大夫,—see Bk. V. been got, to throw away the nobility of Heaves exhibits conduct after attainment not equal to this is well set is extreme." forth in the 子也, 'Now when the mobility of Heaven is cultivated in order to bounded by what is seen and temporal seek for the nobility of man, at the very time 17. The raus monous where here it is cultivated, there is a previous mind to throw it away;—showing the existence of de-that in the time of search, so that the delusion 終 亦 必 亡 而 已 矣, has reference to the nobility of man, and is best translated as an active verb, to which the The also points.—Many commentators observe that facts may be referred to, apparently inconsistent with the assertions in this chapter, and then go on to say that such inconsistency is but a lucky accident; the issue should always be as Maneius says. Yes; but all moral teachings must be imperfect where the thoughts are bounded by what is seen and temporal.

17. THE TRUE MONOUR WHICH MAN & DESIRE. r. in the last chapter is the throw it away;—showing the existence of de-lusion. Then when the mobility of man has material dignity; in this is the honour,

2. 'The honour which men confer is not good honour. whom Chao the Great ennobles he can make mean again.

3. 'It is said in the Book of Poetry,

"He has filled us with his wine,

He has satisfied us with his goodness."

"Satiated us with his goodness," that is, satiated us with benevolence and righteousness, and he who is so satisted, consequently, does not wish for the fat meat and fine millet of men. A good reputation and far-reaching praise fall to him, and he does not desire the elegant embroidered garments of men.

CHAP. XVIII. 1. Mencius said, 'Benevolence subdues its opposite just as water subdues fire. Those, however, who now-adays practise benevolence do it as if with one oup of water they could save a whole waggon-load of fuel which was on fire, and when as springs from such dignity. s. 人之 entertained the is a more account , — A here and in the next paragraph rs to those who confer dignities. It is not to be understood—'what men consider honour.' 超孟, 'Chao, the chief.' This title was to may of it.' rne by four ministers of the family of Chilo, who at different times held the chief sway in They were a sort of 'king-making Warwicks.' In the time of Mencius, the title had become associated with the name of the house, 3. III. ii. Ode The ode is one responsive from 'his inthers and brothren' to the severeign who has But both the sentiment and construct

18. It m and MILE VIT CHE, FIR E. . 不但 'to aid.' The necuraged in their own oc ing of MI is found elsewhere. interprets:—'This also is weres the of those who practise what is not l the flames were not extinguished, were to say that water cannot subdue fire. This conduct, moreover, greatly encourages those who are not benevolent.

2. 'The final issue will simply be this—the loss of that small amount of benevolence.'

CHAP. XIX. Mencius said, 'Of all seeds the best are the five kinds of grain, yet if they be not ripe, they are not equal to the ## or the pdi. So, the value of benevolence depends entirely on its being brought to maturity.

I. Mencius said, 'I, in teaching men to shoot, made it a rule to draw the bow to the full, and his pupils also did this are more difficult than the other. s. Comare chapter xvi. 3.

2. 'A master-workman, in teaching others, uses the compass and square, and his pupils do the same.'

10. Bunnvolunce near me matures. I. 'The see kinds of grain;'—see Bk. III. Pt. I. iv. 7. The f'i and set are two plants closely recembling one another. They are a kind of spurious grain, 'yielding a rice-like seed, but small. They are to be found at all times, in wet situations and dry, and when crushed and roasted, may satisfy the hunger in a time of famine.' Mencion's vivacity of mind and readiness at illustration lead him at times to broad unguarded statements, of which this seems to be cannot learn. In small arts it is one.

20. Learning must not be by malvel. 1. see Bk. IV. Pt. II. xxiv. 1. 必本, found it n master-workman.' Cht Het says:—' much more with the principles of the sa

KAO TSZE. PART II.

CHAPTER I. I. A man of Zan asked the disciple Wû-lû, saying, 'Is an observance of the rules of propriety in regard to eating, or eating merely, the more important?' The answer was, 'The observance of the rules of propriety is the more important

2. 'Is the gratifying the appetite of sex, or the doing so only according to the rules of propriety, the more important?' The answer again was, 'The observance of the rules of propriety in the matter is the more important.

- · 3. The man pursued, 'If the result of eating only according to the rules of propriety will be death by starvation, while by disregarding those rules we may get food, must they still be observed in such a case? If according to the rule that he shall go in person to meet his wife a man cannot get married, while by disregarding that rule he may get married, must he still observe the rule is such a case?'
 - 4. Wu-lu was unable to reply to these questions, and the next
- PRIMED TO INVALIDATE THE PRINCIPLE. I. I other things which he mentions. a. A is (in and tone) was a small State, referred to the to be understood as in the translation, and present Tui-ning () chau, of the depart this is its common signification in Mencius. ment of Yen-chau, in Shan-tung. It was not far from Mencius's native State of Taku, the distance being only between twenty and thirty H. The disciple Wü-lü, who is said to have published books on the decirines of Laotsse, was a native of the State of Take. a native of the State of Tein. His name was XXVII. 38. 4: 之本,—之=往 Châo Ch'i

1. THE INFORMATION OF CREEKVING THE RULES LIGHT (III). His questions are not to be underOF PROPRIET, AND, WHEN THEN HAY HE DESREGARDED, THE EXCEPTION WILL HE POUND TO PROVE THE EULE. EXTRINE CASE HAY NOT HE day he went to Tsau, and told them to Mencius. Mencius said, 'What difficulty is there in answering these inquiries?

5. 'If you do not adjust them at their lower extremities, but only put their tops on a level, a piece of wood an inch square may be made to be higher than the pointed peak of a high building.

6. 'Gold is heavier than feathers;—but does that saying have reference, on the one hand, to a single clasp of gold, and, on the other, to a waggon-load of feathers?

7. 'If you take a case where the eating is of the utmost importance and the observing the rules of propriety is of little importance, and compare the things together, why stop with saying merely that the eating is more important? So, taking the case where the gratifying the appetite of sex is of the utmost importance and the observing the rules of propriety is of little importance, why stop with merely saying that the gratifying the appetite is the more important?

8. 'Go and answer him thus," If, by twisting your elder brother's reads 於 as 島-(we, 1st tone), making it an | is better. 6. 会...着,--着 indicates the exclamation—'oh!' 5. 10 measure, or clause to be a common saying, and carries us 下 and 上. 岑(ch'dio), 'a high and pointed small hill.' Châo Ch'i takes 岑楼 togother seehers of one waggon?' Compare Bt. I. Pt. I. as meaning 'a peaked ridge of a hill,' and the dictionary gives this signification to the phrase.

The view of Châ Hsi, which I have followed. feel with the hand.' 本 and 末 are used for The view of Chû Hal, which I have followed, | Chû Hal, is explained by 🚒 , 'to bend.' I prefer on to some explanation of it. 🏥 🎆 ...

arm, and snatching from him what he is eating, you can get food for yourself, while, if you do not do so, you will not get anything to eat, will you so twist his arm? If by getting over your neighbour's wall, and dragging away his virgin daughter, you can get a wife, while if you do not do so, you will not be able to get a wife, will you so drag her away?"'

CHAP. II. 1. Chiao of Teao asked Mencius, saying, 'It is eaid, "All men may be Yaos and Shuns;"—is it so?' Mencius replied.

'It is.'

2. Chido went on, 'I have heard that king Wan was ten cubits kich, and Tang nine. Now I am nine cubits four inches in height. But I can do nothing but eat my millet. What am I to do to realize that saying?

3. Meneius answered him, 'What has this—the question of size-the dictionary,—that of it, 'to turn,' here "to twist." In $\frac{1}{2}\, \text{,-here} \text{ is being = 'from him.' Julien errs strangely in rendering '84, rimpens frairis majoris brackium, rapias illud comedendum.' 東家屬, 'the wall of the house on the east,' i. e. a neighbour's wall. 東家 is a common designation for the master of a house, and I do not know of any instance of its use by a writer earlier than Mencius, (3rd tone) - , 'a virgin daughter,' one The 1/2, however, may be taken as simply where, is feminine.

2. ALL MAY BECOME YAOS AND SHURS, AND TO and therefore he also might become such, if he surname from their ancient patrimony. True is referred to the present district of Ting-t'ac (定 屬) in the department of Take-châu, in Shan-tung. 有驚,—compare Bk. I. Pt. II. ii. r, et al. 2. On the heights mentioned here, see Analocts, VIII. vi. 以長, 'for my height.' euphonie. Chiáo's idea is, that physically he was between Wan and T'ang, who might be considered as having become Yaos or Shuns, to do with the matter? It all lies simply in acting as such. Here is a man, whose strength was not equal to lift a duckling:—he was then a man of no strength. But to-day he says, "I can lift 3,000 catties' weight," and he is a man of strength. And so, he who can lift the weight which Wu Hwo lifted is just another Wu Hwo. Why should a man make a want of ability the subject of his grief? It is only that he will not do the thing.

4. 'To walk slowly, keeping behind his elders, is to perform the part of a younger. To walk quickly and precede his elders, is to violate the duty of a younger brother. Now, is it what a man cannot do-to walk slowly? It is what he does not do. course of Yao and Shun was simply that of filial piety and fraternal duty.

were shown the right way. 3.於是,一是 | the commentator Ch'an (陳氏) - Filial referring to the height, or body generally. is said to be an abbreviation for 鹽 - 騺, 'a an intuitive ability (良知良能). wild duck.' I do not see why it should not be and Shun showed the perfection of the human taken simply as a numeral or classifier, and relations, but yet they simply acted in accordance with this nature. How could they add a hair's point to it?' He also quotes another man noted for his strength. He is mentioned in connexion with the king Wû of Te'in (a.c. Shun was great, but the pursuit of it lay simply 309-306). Accounts go that he made light of 30,000 catties! 4. And 1 (4th tone) are high and difficult. It is present to the common high and difficult. It is present to the common and a thair daily usages, but they do not verbs; = the Chu Hat here quotes from people in their daily usages, but they do not piety and fraternal duty are the natural out-goings of the nature, of which men have an intuitive knowledge, and for which they have

5. 'Wear the clothes of Yao, repeat the words of Yao, and do the actions of Yao, and you will just be a Yao. And, if you wear the clothes of Chieh, repeat the words of Chieh, and do the actions of Chieh, you will just be a Chieh.'

6. Chiao said, 'I shall be having an interview with the prince of Tsau, and can ask him to let me have a house to lodge in. I wish to remain here, and receive instruction at your gate.'

7. Mencius replied, 'The way of truth is like a great road. is not difficult to know it. The evil is only that men will not seek it. Do you go home and search for it, and you will have abundance of teachers.

CHAP. III. 1. Kung-sun Ch'au asked about an opinion of the scholar Kdo, saying, 'Kho observed, "The Hsiko Pan is the ode of a little man." Mencius asked, 'Why did he say so ! ' 'Because of the murmuring which it copresses,' was the reply.

know it.' 5. The meaning is simply—Imitate have been a disciple of Tue-heiß, and lived the men, do what they did, and you will be Mencius's time. From the expression in the supression in the s such as they were. 6. A p (4th tone), in par, a, it is plain, he is not to be confound tis better not to translate this conditionally, with Mencius's own disciple of the same of as it shows how Chiao was presuming on his name, mentioned in Bk. II. Pt. II. zii. a.

mobility. 7. 夫道, 'Now, the way'-i.e. 弁,-see the Shih-ching, IL v. Ode III. 2. the way of Yao and Shun, or generally 'of The ode is commonly understood to have been S. EXPLANATION OF THE COME HALLO P'IN AND Written by the master of I-sh'iû (II EI K'AI PANS. DIMATMYAOTION WITH A PARENT IN the son and heir-apparent of the sovereign.) NOT HECHMARILT UNFILIAL. r. Kao appears to (B.C. 760-770). Led away by the arts of *

2. Mencius answered, 'How stupid was that old Kao in dealing with the ode! There is a man here, and a native of Yüch bends his bow to shoot him. I will advise him not to do so, but speaking calmly and smilingly;—for no other reason but that he is not related to me. But if my own brother be bending his bow to shoot the man, then I will advise him not to do so, weeping and crying the while;—for no other reason than that he is related to me. dissatisfaction expressed in the Hsiao Pan is the working of relative affection, and that affection shows benevolence. Stupid indeed was old Kao's criticism on the ode.

3. Ch'au then said, 'How is it that there is no dissatisfaction expressed in the K'ai Fang?'

4. Mencius replied, 'The parent's fault referred to in the K'ai mistress, the sovereign degraded Î-ch'iû and his mother, and the ode expresses the sorrow and dissatisfaction which the son could not but feel in such circumstances. Châo Ch'i, however, assigns it another authorahip, but on this and because I am not related to the man of Tück. assigns it another authorship, but on this and other questions, connected with it, see the Shih-ching, to lot. 2. 🛗 is explained by Châc Ch'i by My, 'narrow,' and by Chû Hat by 🕸 不道, 'bigoted and not penetrating.' 爲詩-治詩 有人…戚之 here , is to be understood of the speaker or beholder, and 其兄 of his—the speaker's brother. In 道 (- 書, the verb) 之, 藏 Z, E Z refers to the shooter. III, many commentators say that the received account of the subject of the K'ai Fing must be wrong, or that Mencius's decision on it is

But if my brother is about to be shet, &c.' is ingenious, but not so apt to the subject of the Heise Pan. When native scholars can construe a passage so differently, we may be sure it is not very definitely expressed. 3. see the Shih-ching, I. iii. Ode VII. The ede is supposed to be the production of seven sons, bewailing the conduct of their widowed mother, who could not live quietly and chastely at home, but they take all the blame to themselves, and express ne dissatisfaction with her.

4. We must think there was room enough for dissatisfaction in both cases. And indeed, many commandators say that the received se-

Fing is small; that referred to in the Hsiao P'an is great. the parent's fault was great, not to have murmured on account of it would have increased the want of natural affection. Where the parent's fault was small, to have murmured on account of it would have been to act like water which frets and foams about a stone that interrupts its course. To increase the want of natural affection would have been unfilial, and to fret and foam in such a manner would also have been unfilial.

5. 'Confucius said," Shun was indeed perfectly filial! And yet, when he was fifty, he was full of longing desire about his parents.

CHAP. IV. 1. Sung K'ang being about to go to Ch'û, Mencius met him in Shih-ch'iû.

2. 'Master, where are you going?' asked Mencius.

3. K'ang replied, 'I have heard that Ch'in and Ch'û are fighting together, and I am going to see the king of Ch't and persuade him to cease hostilities. If he shall not be pleased with my advice, surd. But here again, see the Shih-ching, in 'mores' (if we had such a ance.' The father's act was and alienation between them. 是不可 -the three characters 不 耳 be taken together. The mother is co ared to a rock or stone in a stream, and the sons to the water fretting about it. But the ions should flow on undisturbed. 5. Comnere Bk. V. Pt. L. L.

4. MENGEUE'S WARRINGS TO SUNG K'AND ON THE BEROR AND DANGER OF COUNSELLING THE PRINCE PROM THE GROUND OF PROFIE, THE PRO if the son responded to it with inceed, that would increase the distance one of the travelling scholars of the time mation between them. DEEDS THAT OF D OLENOE AND RIG ness to counsel (, shis, 4th tone) the princ with a view for the most part, though not apparently with him, to exalt th Shih-ch'in was in the State of Sung. He and also in the next paragraph, \geq is the verb. 性(=臘) 兵= 'battling weapons.'

見秦王就而罷之二王我將有別秦王就而罷之二年也,因其指說之將何如日我將言所遇焉。曰則不可先生以利說先生之號則不可先生以利說秦楚之王秦楚之王惟於利以秦楚之王秦楚之王惟於利以為能為人弟者懷利以為人民者懷利以事其以

I shall go to see the king of Ch'in, and persuade him in the same way. Of the two kings I shall surely find that I can succeed with one of them.'

4. Menoius said, 'I will not venture to ask about the particulars, but I should like to hear the scope of your plan. What course will you take to try to persuade them?' K'ang answered, 'I will tell them how unprofitable their course is to them.' 'Master,' said Mencius, 'your aim is great, but your argument is not good.

5. 'If you, starting from the point of profit, offer your persuasive counsels to the kings of Ch'in and Ch'it, and if those kings are pleased with the consideration of profit so as to stop the movements of their armies, then all belonging to those armies will rejoice in the cessation of war, and find their pleasure in the pursuit of profit. Ministers will serve their sovereign for the profit of which they cherish the thought; sons will serve their fathers, and younger brothers will serve their elder brothers, from the same consideration:—and the issue will be, that, abandoning benevolence and 之, 'make an end of it.' 所題,—see Bk. I the two States. 號,—I take the word 'argu-Pt. II. xx. p. 4. 前 -ear 'if you'll allow me.' ment' from Julien. The gloss in the 情旨 Then followe—'not asking the particulars, I is—就是不利之名號, '就 is the should like,' &c. 其不利—其 refers to name and title of supersticite.' 5. 三軍之 righteousness, sovereign and minister, father and son, younger brother and elder, will carry on all their intercourse with this thought of profit cherished in their breasts. But never has there been such a state of society, without ruin being the result of it.

6. 'If you, starting from the ground of benevolence and righteousness, offer your counsels to the kings of Ch'in and Ch'û, and if those kings are pleased with the consideration of benevolence and righteousness so as to stop the operations of their armies, then all belonging to those armies will rejoice in the stopping from war, and find their pleasure in benevolence and righteousness. Ministers will serve their sovereign, cherishing the principles of benevolence and righteousness; sons will serve their fathers, and younger brothers will serve their elder brothers, in the same way:—and so, sovereign and minister, father and son, elder brother and younger, abanconing the thought of profit, will cherish the principles of benevolence and righteousness, and carry on all their intercourse upon them. But never has there been such a state of society, without the State where it prevailed rising to the royal sway. Why must you use that word "profit."

師, 'the multitudes of the three armies;' (4th tone) 者未之有,—here the transsee the Analests, VII. x. 士 embraces both lation needs to be supplemented consider-'officers and soldiers.' 6. 然而不王

CHAP. V. 1. When Mencius was residing in Teau, the younger brother of the chief of Zan, who was guardian of Zan at the time, paid his respects to him by a present of silks, which Mencius received, not going to acknowledge it. When he was sojourning in Ping-lû, Ch'û, who was prime minister of the State, sent him a similar present, which he received in the same way.

2. Subsequently, going from Tsau to Zan, he visited the guardian; but when he went from Ping-lu to the capital of Ch'1, he did not visit the minister Ch'û. The disciple Wû-lû was glad, and said,

'I have got an opportunity to obtain some instruction.

3. He asked accordingly, 'Master, when you went to Zan, you visited the chief's brother; and when you went to Ch'i, you did not visit Ch'û. Was it not because he is only the minister?'

4. Mencius replied, 'No. It is said in the Book of History, "In presenting an offering to a superior, most depends on the demonstrations of respect. If those demonstrations are not equal

5. How Muscus resultant minutes in direct and in the next paragraph = 44. PERSONAL ACKNOWLEDGENC PAYOURS WHICH HE 'went to Ch't,' i.e. to the capital of the montyme. 1. 季任 and 季子 below, look as Ping-la was in Ch'i. 圓,—ohion, grd tome. much as if the former were the surname and 1 (Wo-ld's name) name of the individual spoken of, yet Châo Ch''s explanation of the terms, which is that followed in the translation, is no doubt correct.

(literally, crevice), 'te ask.' 4. 常日,—see 任,-see chap, i. 以常交,-see Bk. V. the Sha-ching, V. xii. ra, but in to Pa. L. iv. 不報-不往報 平陸, last clause 惟不役志于享 is not explanatory of the preceding, but is itself the green Bk. IL. Pt. IL vi. 1 a. The two 之 here, first clause of a new sontenee. See the She-

to the things offered, we say there is no offering, that is, there is no act of the will in presenting the offering."

5. 'This is because the things so offered do not constitute an offering to a superior.

.6. Wû-lû was pleased, and when some one saked him what Mencius meant, he said, 'The younger of Zan could not go to Tsau, but the minister Ch'û might have gone to P'ing-lû.'

CHAP. VI. 1. Shun-yu K'wan said, 'He who makes fame and meritorious services his first objects, acts with a regard to others. He who makes them only secondary objects, acts with a regard to himself. You, master, were ranked among the three chief ministers of the State, but before your fame and services had reached either to the prince or the people, you have left your place. Is this indeed the way of the benevolent?'

2. Mencius replied, 'There was Po-1;—he abode in an inferior ching, in ic. 5. This is Mencius's explanation of the passage quoted. 6. The guardian of a State could not leave it to pay a visit in another. There was no reason, however, why Ch'û ahould not have paid his respects to Mencius in person.

6. How Menoius replied to the imenuations of Shuh-yü K'win, condemning him for leaving office without accomplishing anything. I. Shun-yū K'wān,—see Bk. IV. Pt. I. xvii. That good and excellence. refers to the prince; To refers to the people. 仁者,-it is assumed that the fact of Mencius's being among the high ministers of State took him out of t category of those who made them chapter and the notes should be read along with aim in life, and the — at therefore is a hit this. A and are not here opposed to of the questioner. Throughout the chapter, each other, as often,—'name' and 'reality.'

The 'name' here is the fame of the 'reality.'

free from all selfishness, than of benevelence. , 'with a regard to others,' i. a. such a s. Po-i, &c., see Bk. V. Pt. II. i, with the cti a motive in public life is to benefit others. references there given. That I Yin went five situation, and would not, with his virtue, serve a degenerate prince. There was I Yin;—he five times went to Tang, and five times went to Chieh. There was Hûi of Liû-hsiâ;—he did not disdain to serve a vile prince, nor did he decline a small office. The courses pursued by those three worthies were different, but their aim was one. And what was their one aim? We must answer—"To be perfectly virtuous." And so it is simply after this that superior men strive. Why must they all pursue the same course?'

3. Kwan pursued, 'In the time of the duke Ma of La, the government was in the hands of Kung-1, while Tsze-lift and Tszesze were ministers. And yet, the dismemberment of Lû then Such was the case, a specimen how your increased exceedingly.

men of virtue are of no advantage to a kingdom!

4. Menoius said, 'The prince of Yu did not use Pai-li Hat, and thereby lost his State. The duke Mû of Chin used him, and became chief of all the princes. Ruin is the consequence of not employing times to Tang, and five times to Chieh is only accomplished anything. Here he insinuates mentioned here, however. He want to Tang, that though he had remained, he would not it is said, in consequence of the pressing urgency of his solicitations, and then Tang sent him to the tyrant to warn and advise him. Nothing could be further at first from the wish of them both than to dethrone Chieh.

'to run,' used figuratively, 4th tone. 3. In this paragraph, K'win advances in his condemnation of Mencius. At first he charged him with having left his office before he had men of virtue and talents; -how can it rest with dismemberment merely?'

5. Kwan urged again, 'Formerly, when Wang P'so dwelt on the Ch'i, the people on the west of the Yellow River all became skilful at singing in kis abrupt manner. When Mien Ch'u lived in Kao-t'ang, the people in the parts of Ch'i on the west became skilful at singing in his prolonged manner. The wives of Hwa Chau and Ch'i Liang bewailed their husbands so skilfully, that they changed the manners of the State. When there is the gift within, it manifests itself without. I have never seen the man who could do the deeds of a worthy, and did not realize the work of one. Therefore there are now no men of talents and virtue. If there were, I should know them.'

6. Mencius answered, 'When Confucius was chief minister of Justice in Lû. the prince came not to follow his counsels. Soon after there was the solstitial sacrifice, and when a part of the flesh presented memberment merely, as the consequence, &c. Their cries, it is said, even rent the wall of the S. The individuals named here all belonged capital of Ch'l. See the 12 and the 12 to Ch'i, excepting the first, who was of Wei. is the general name for singing, and 🚉, s particular style, said to be 457 , short, tender, for that wherever ability was it was sure to come out. 6. Mencius shields himself 'abrupt.' 客右, it is said, 概指查西 | behind Confucius, implying that he was beyond

ing the minister's counsels and plans. 自, 国际 有 , i.e. 'The Right of Ch'l denotes 何 可 得 與 (end tone),—before 何 we (4th tone) Chtu and Ch'l Liang were officers in so must understand 录, 'If you seek for disnititely a manner as to affect the whole State. itiful a manner as to affect the whol 書有解說 man—amenic was a pre-is simply to insinuate that Mencius was a pre-tant wherever ability was it was that wherever ability was it was in sacrifice was not sent to him, he went away even without taking off his cap of ceremony. Those who did not know him supposed it was on account of the flesh. Those who knew him supposed that it was on account of the neglect of the usual ceremony. The fact was, that Confucius wanted to go away on occasion of some small offence, not wishing to do so without some apparent cause. All men cannot be expected to understand the conduct of a superior man.

CHAP. VII. 1. Mencius said, 'The five chiefs of the princes were sinners against the three kings. The princes of the present day are sinners against the five chiefs. The Great officers of the present day are sinners against the princes.

2. 'The sovereign visited the princes, which was called "A tour of Inspection." The princes attended at the court of the sovereign, matter mentioned. The 祭 is the 郊祭. 说 is used for 殿. 為有去, 'to do a disrly going away.

7. THE PROGRESS AND MANUER OF DEGENERACY M THE THERE KINGS TO THE FIVE CHIEFS OF THE PRINCES, AND PROM THE PLYS CHIEFS TO THE TREE FRINCES, AND SERVICES OF MERCOTON'S THERE. L. The their principles and ways. s. 天子…不 three kings' are the founders of the three dynasties of Hsia, Shang, and Chau. The 'five 論,—see Bk. I. Pt. II. iv. 5. 岸-開; see the knowledge of K'win.—The State of Ch'1, chiefs of the princes' were the duke Hwan of afraid of the influence of Confectus, who was acting as prime minister of La, sout to the duke a present of beautiful singing-girls and horses. The duke accepted them, and abandoned himself to dissipation. Confucius determined to leave the State, but not wishing to expose the bad condust of his prince, looked about for some other reason which he might assign for going away, and found it in the matter mentioned. The state of the LR state of the three dynastics, and the other are two anumerations of the five leading princes,' one called the conductor of the five leading princes, one called the conductor of the five leading princes, one called the conductor of the five leading princes, one called the conductor of the five leading princes, one called the conductor of the five leading princes, one called the conductor of the five leading princes, one called the conductor of the five leading princes. the Ch'un-ch'it. Only Hwan of Ch't and Win of Tain are common to the two. But Mencius is speaking only of those included in the second enumeration, and though there is some differ-ence of opinion in regard to some of the in-dividuals in it, the above list is probably that which he held. 'Sinners against,'—i.e. violating which was called "Giving a report of office." It was a custom in the spring to examine the ploughing, and supply any deficiency of seed; and in autumn to examine the reaping, and assist where there was a deficiency of the crop. When the sovereign entered the boundaries of a State, if the new ground was being reclaimed, and the old fields well cultivated; if the old were nourished and the worthy honoured; and if men of distinguished talents were placed in office: then the prince was rewarded,—rewarded with an addition to his territory. On the other hand, if, on entering a State, the ground was found left wild or overrun with weeds; if the old were neglected and the worthy unhonoured; and if the offices were filled with hard taxgatherers: then the prince was reprimanded. If a prince once omitted his attendance at court, he was punished by degradation of rank; if he did so a second time, he was deprived of a portion of his territory; if he did so a third time, the royal forces were set in motion, and he was removed from his government. Thus the sovereign commanded the punishment, but did not himself inflict it, while the princes inflicted the punishment, but did not command it. The five

Bk. L Pt. L vil. 16.

慢集在位,--see|What follows belongs to 強戰 六師 Bk. IL Pt. Lv. z. 塵-賞, 'to roward.' 拍 | (=單), -- see Analests, VIL z. 是故-'in 克-聚金草, 'impost-collecting minis- harmony with these things,' all power being ters; literally, perhaps, 'grasping and able lodged with the sovereign, and the princes men.' Down to i is explicatory of 巡 結. | being dependent on him. 計 = 治, 'to super-chiefs, however, dragged the princes to punish other princes, and hence I say that they were sinners against the three kings.

3. 'Of the five chiefs the most powerful was the duke Hwan. At the assembly of the princes in K'wei-ch'iu, he bound the victim and placed the writing upon it, but did not slay it to smear their mouths with the blood. The first injunction in their agreement was, — "Slay the unfilial; change not the son who has been appointed heir; exalt not a concubine to be the wife." The second was,—" Honour the worthy, and maintain the talented, to give distinction to the virtuous." The third was,... "Respect the old, and be kind to the young. Be not forgetful of strangers and travellers." The fourth was,— "Let not offices be hereditary, nor let officers be pluralists. In the selection of officers let the object be to get the proper men. not a ruler take it on himself to put to death a Great officer." The the punishment.' 3. The duke Hwan nine times brought together an assembly of the princes, the chief gathering being at K'weich'iô, n.c. 650. At those meetings, the usual on it, E.c. ego. At those meeting, the usual custom was first to dig a square pit, over which the victim was slain. Its left ear was cut off, and its blood received in an ornamented vessel. The president then read the articles of agreement, with his face to the north, as in the presence of the spirits of the sun and moon, after which all the members of the meeting took the blood, and smeared the sides of their mouths with it. This was called the (shd) The victim was then placed in the pit, the articles of agreement placed upon it, and the | 157, 'no crocked embankments.' | has a

See the 集證, to lec. On the occasion in the text, Hwan dispensed with some of those ceremonies. was the term appropriated to the articles of agreement at such solemn assemblies, indicating that they were enjoined by the sovereign. A +, 'the son who has been tree-ed,' i.e. set up. . . . 'guests,' officers from other States. 土無世官, 'officers no hereditary offices; ' see Bk. L. Pt. II. 5. g. 取士必得-必得其人 無曲 fifth was,—"Follow no crooked policy in making embankments. Impose no restrictions on the sale of grain. Let there be no promotions without first announcing them to the sovereign." It was then said, "All we who have united in this agreement shall hereafter maintain amicable relations." The princes of the present day all violate these five prohibitions, and therefore I say that the princes of the present day are sinners against the five chiefs.

4. 'The crime of him who connives at, and aids, the wickedness of his prince is small, but the crime of him who anticipates and excites that wickedness is great. The officers of the present day all go to meet their sovereigns' wickedness, and therefore I say that the Great officers of the present day are sinners against the princes.

CHAP. VIII. 1. The prince of Lû wanted to make the minister Shan commander of his army.

Mencius said, 'To employ an uninstructed people in war may moral application. No embankments must be made selfishly to take the water from others, or to inundate them.

That was the name of the region on the south of mount Tai, which had originally belonged to Lû. On the north of the mountain was the territory of Ch'l. famine or distress.

That was the name of the region on the south of mount Tai, which had originally belonged to Lû. On the north of the mountain was the territory of Ch'l. Between the two States there had been frequent. territory or to office. 4. 長君之惡, 'to lengthen the wickedness of the ruler,' i.e. to connive at and to aid it. 達君之惡 'to meet the wickedness of the ruler,' i.e. to anticipate and excite it.

struggles for the district, which the duke Ping of Lu (本人) now hoped to recover. Shim, below, calls himself Kt-lt, but some say that that was the name of a Mohist under whos he had studied. His proper name was The 8. MENCIUS'S OPPOSITION TO THE WARLIES AND LEG , but having a reputation for military skill, SHAR KO-LL. z. At this time Lû wanted to the duke of Lû wished to employ his services.

be said to be destroying the people. A destroyer of the people would not have been tolerated in the times of Yao and Shun.

3. 'Though by a single battle you should subdue Ch'i, and get possession of Nan-yang, the thing ought not to be done.

4. Shan changed countenance, and said in displeasure, 'This is what I, Kû-lî, do not understand.'

5. Mencius said, 'I will lay the case plainly before you. The territory appropriated to the sovereign is 1,000 it square. Without a thousand it, he would not have sufficient for his entertainment of the princes. The territory appropriated to a Hau is 100 lt square. Without 100 ll, he would not have sufficient wherewith to observe the statutes kept in his ancestral temple.

6. 'When Chau-kung was invested with the principality of Lû, it was a hundred & square. The territory was indeed enough, but it was not more than 100 lt. When Tai-kung was invested with the principality of Ch'1, it was 100 lt square. The territory was indeed enough, but it was not more than 100 lt.

將單, now the common term for general, | 5. 宗廟之典籍, 'the statute-records appears to have come into vogue about Mencius's of the ancestral temple.' Those records pre-time. In the text it—'commander-in-chief's. Compare Analects, XIII.xxx.—We may infer from this paragraph, that Shan had himself sacrifices, interviews with other princes, &c., been the adviser of the projected enterprise. and were kept in the temple. 6. Compare

7. 'Now Lû is five times 100 lt square. If a true royal ruler were to arise, whether do you think that Lû would be diminished or increased by him?

8. 'If it were merely taking the place from the one State to give it to the other, a benevolent man would not do it;—how much less will he do so, when the end is to be sought by the slaughter of men!

9. 'The way in which a superior man serves his prince contemplates simply the leading him in the right path, and directing his mind to benevolence.'

CHAP. IX. 1. Mencius said, 'Those who now-a-days serve their sovereigns say, "We can for our sovereign enlarge the limits of the cultivated ground, and fill his treasuries and arsenala." Such persons are now-a-days called "Good ministers," but anciently they were called "Robbers of the people." If a sovereign follows not to be understood that this was to be done at the expense of the people, taking their commons from them, and making them labour. Otherwise, it does not seem objectionable.—Chao Ch'i, however, gives the phrase another mean-Bk. II. Pt. Li. L.

Analests, VI. xxii. 儉, 'sparingly,'-only. | AND POWER. I. 辟(-闘) 土地,—it is 8. 徒, 'merely,' i. e. if there were no struggle ◇ 雷道 andino slaughter in the matter. here is different from the same phrase, 🆀 🌇, in Bk. II. Pt. L i. z.

9. How the himmers of Mesonus's the PAR-, small States,' but this is contrary to analogous. DERED TO THESE SOVERESORS' THERET FOR WHALTH passages, and confounds this paragraph with the right way, nor has his mind bent on benevolence, to seek to enrich him is to enrich a Chieh.

2. 'Or they will say, "We can for our sovereign form alliances with other States, so that our battles must be successful." Such persons are now-a-days called "Good ministers," but anciently they were called "Robbers of the people." If a sovereign follows not the right way, nor has his mind directed to benevolence, to seek to enrich him is to enrich a Chieh.

3. 'Although a prince, pursuing the path of the present day, and not changing its practices, were to have the throne given to him. he could not retain it for a single morning.'

CHAP. X. 1. Påi Kwei said, 'I want to take a twentieth of the produce only as the tax. What do you think of it?'

2. Mencius said, 'Your way would be that of the Mo.

the next; compare Bk. IV. Pt. L xiv. s. chapter), was a man of Chau, accetic in his (1) , 'ally with other States.' Here Chico Ch'i differs again, making 1 - 11 'to determine beforehand, 'undertake,' and joining III , 'undertake in fighting with hostile countries to conquer.' This also is an inferior eonstruction. 9. 翻居-翻居其位, eccupy the position for a morning.

A PROPER STRIKE OF TAXATION, AND THAT ORIGIN-on the north. They were a pastoral peo-ating with Yao and Shun is the proper one and the climate of their country was cold. FOR CHIMA. r. PAi Kwei, styled Tan (see next | doubt their civilization was inferior to that of the suggestion in this chapter.—So, Châo Ch'i, and Chu Hai has followed him. The author of the 四書柘餘說 however, contends that the Pai Kwei described as above on the authority of the 'Historical Records,' A lxix, was not the same here introduced. See that Work, in icc. 2. 🌠 or 獅 10. An ordered State can only susses with was a common name for the barbarous tribes

3. 'In a country of ten thousand families, would it do to have only one potter?' Kwei replied, 'No. The vessels would not be enough to use.

4. Mencius went on, 'In Mo all the five kinds of grain are not grown; it only produces the millet. There are no fortified cities, no edifices, no ancestral temples, no ceremonies of sacrifice; there are no princes requiring presents and entertainments; there is no system of officers with their various subordinates. On these accounts a tax of one-twentieth of the produce is sufficient there.

5. 'But now it is the Middle Kingdom that we live in. To banish the relationships of men, and have no superior men; -how can such a state of things be thought of?

6. 'With but few potters a kingdom cannot subsist;—how much less can it subsist without men of a higher rank than others?

7. 'If we wish to make the taxation lighter than the system of Yao and Shun, we shall just have a great Mo and a small Mo.

Pt. II. i. a. 食室 go togother as a general designation of edifices, called Z, as 'fourwalled and roofed,' and 宝 (質) as 'fur-nished.' So 祭祀 go together as synonymous, under the tyrant Chieh.

China, but Mencius's account of them must be and also # pieces of silk, given as taken with allowance. 4. 埃郭,—see Bk. II. presents.' 豪, 'the morning meal;' 飱, 'the evening meal; ' together = 'entertain 5, 6. 君子,—referring to the 百官, 有 1 7. The meaning is, that, under a

If we wish to make it heavier, we shall just have the great Chieh and the small Chieh.'

CHAP. XI. I. Pai Kwei said, 'My management of the waters is superior to that of Yu.'

2. Mencius replied, 'You are wrong, Sir. Yu's regulation of the waters was according to the laws of water.

3. 'He therefore made the four seas their receptacle, while you make the neighbouring States their receptacle.

4. 'Water flowing out of its channels is called an inundation. Inundating waters are a vast waste of water, and what a benevolent man detests. You are wrong, my good Sir.'

CHAP. XII. Mencius said, 'If a scholar have not faith, how shall he take a firm hold of things?'

CHAP. XIII. 1. The prince of Lû wanting to commit the administration of his government to the disciple Yo-chang, Mencius said, 'When I heard of it, I was so glad that I could not sleep.'

2. Kung-sun Ch'au asked, 'Is Yo-chang a man of vigour?' and

11. PAI KWE'S PRESUMPTUOUS IDEA THAT HE ix. 3, but the has there a particular applicated the warres return than YU cation. DID. 1. There had been some partial inunda-tions, where the services of Pai Kwei were III ACTION. Tused as III. Chu Hai explains called in, and he had reduced them by turning it by fit.

the waters into other States, saving one at the 18. Or WHAT IMPORTANCE TO A MINISTER. expense of injuring others. a. 水之道- GOVERNEENT-IT IS TO LOVE WHAT IS GOOD. I. 為

4. See Bk. III. Pt. II. 150, 'to administer the government,' as in was answered, 'No.' 'Is he wise in council?' 'No.' 'Is he possessed of much information?' 'No.'

3. 'What then made you so glad that you could not sleep?'

4. 'He is a man who loves what is good.' 5. 'Is the love of what is good sufficient?'

6. 'The love of what is good is more than a sufficient qualification for the government of the kingdom;—how much more is it so for the State of Lû!

7. 'If a minister love what is good, all within the four seas will count 1,000 l but a small distance, and will come and lay their good thoughts before him.

8. 'If he do not love what is good, men will say, "How selfconceited he looks? He is saying to himself, I know it." The language and looks of that self-conceit will keep men off at a distance of 1,000 U. When good men stop 1,000 U off, calumniators, flatterers, and sycophants will make their appearance. When a minister chap. vi. 3. a. 有知 [平,一知 is in out prejudice and dispassionately (中) the 3rd tone; 'has he wisdom and deliberation?'—The three gifts mentioned here were those considered most important to government in that age, and Kung-sun Ch'au knowing Yochang to be deficient in them, put his questions is simply sufficient. accordingly. 4. On this paragraph it is said government, the most excellent quality is with- is-- 自足其智,不睹善言之 is simply sufficient. is what is sufficient :--'In the administration of and more. 8. 20 20, as defined by Chû Hal, lives among calumniators, flatterers, and sycophants, though he may wish the State to be well governed, is it possible for it to be so ?

CHAP. XIV. 1. The disciple Ch'an said, 'What were the principles on which superior men of old took office?' Mencius replied, 'There were three cases in which they accepted office, and three in which they left it.

2. 'If received with the utmost respect and all polite observances, and they could say to themselves that the prince would carry their words into practice, then they took office with him. Afterwards, although there might be no remission in the polite demeanour of the prince, if their words were not carried into practice, they would leave him.

3. 'The second case was that in which, though the prince could not be expected at once to carry their words into practice, yet being received by him with the utmost respect, they took office with him. But afterwards, if there was a remission in his polite demeanour, they would leave him.

4, 'the appearance of being satisfied with Bk. H. Pt. H. iii. 2. 训 is simply=接待, ene's own knowledge, and having no relish for not 'to go out to meet.' 3. 離末行其音 good words.' 士=善人·

14. GROUNDS OF TAKING AND LEAVING OFFICE. Compare Bk. V. Pt. II. iv. 7. The three cases mentioned here are respectively the 行可 in the preceding paragraph. In the 日蘿 in-之 仕, the 睽 可, and the 公 養, of deed, the 言 there is made to be the language is to be understood as thought in the scholar's mind, corresponding to 言將行其言 that place. r. This Ch'an is the Ch'an Tain, of the ruler, but see the gloss of the 儲 告,

4. 'The last case was that of the superior man who had nothing to eat, either morning or evening, and was so famished that he could not move out of his door. If the prince, on hearing of his state, said, "I must fail in the great point,—that of carrying his doctrines into practice, neither am I able to follow his words, but I am ashamed to allow him to die of want in my country;" the assistance offered in such a case might be received, but not beyond what was sufficient to avert death.

CHAP. XV. 1. Mencius said, 'Shun rose from among the channelled fields. Fû Yüeh was called to office from the midst of his building frames; Chiao-ko from his fish and salt; Kwan I-wû from the hands of his gaoler; Sun-shû Ao from his hiding by the sea-shore; and Pai-li Hsi from the market-place.

to lec. 4. The assistance is in the shape of name as 15. Chiso Ko is mentioned in Bk. II. employment offered. If not, then 不可受 would not be a case of 就 仕.

15. TRIALS AND MARDSHIPS THE WAY IN WHICH HEAVEN PREPARES MEN FOR GREAT SERVICES With Shun, Kwan I-wû, and Pât-li Hst, the student must be familiar. Fû Yûch,—see the Shû-ching, Pt. IV. Bk.VII, where it is related that the sovereign Kao Tsung having 'dreamt that God gave him a good assistant,' caused a picture of the man he had seen in his dream to be made, and 'search made for him through the kingdom, when he was found dwelling in the wilderness of Fû-yen (傳最乙野)." In the 'Historical Records,' it is said the sur-

Pt. I. i. 8, where it is said in the notes that his worth when living in retirement, was dis-covered by king Wan. He was then selling fish and salt, and on Wan's recommendati was raised to office by the last so to whose fortunes he continued faithful. shu Ao was prime minister to Chwang of Chu, the last of the five chiefs of the princes. much is beyond dispute, but the circumsta of his elevation, and the family to which he belonged, are uncertain. See the 餘說, in 30. 版集, i planks and building.' Many of the hou es in China are built of earth and morter besten together within name was given in the dream as 📆, and the moveable frame, in which the walls are ferme

2. 'Thus, when Heaven is about to confer a great office on any man, it first exercises his mind with suffering, and his sinews and bones with toil. It exposes his body to hunger, and subjects him to extreme poverty. It confounds his undertakings. By all these methods it stimulates his mind, hardens his nature, and supplies his incompetencies.

3. Men for the most part err, and are afterwards able to reform. They are distressed in mind and perplexed in their thoughts, and then they arise to vigorous reformation. When things have been evidenced in men's looks, and set forth in their words, then they understand them.

4. 'If a prince have not about his court families attached to the laws and worthy counsellors, and if abroad there are not hostile States or other external calamities, his kingdom will generally come to ruin.

5. 'From these things we see how life springs from sorrow and calamity, and death from ease and pleasure.

悬土,−土 is the officer who was in charge | difficulties. 衡,−used for 標. 徵於 of him. a. 飲其體膚, 'hungers his 一一一一一一一 most men are not quick of apprehension, yet when things are clearly before them, they can his person.' 行佛, 云云, 'as to his lay hold of them. 4. The same thing is true doings, confounds what he is doing.' 行 is of a State. 法家, 'law families,' i. e. old families to whom the laws of the State are taken as 行事, and 為 as 心所謀為 families to whom the laws of the State are familiar and dear. 拂is used for 完 Such families and officers will stimulate the prince's true of ordinary men. They are improved by mind by their lessons and remonstrances, and CHAP. XVI. Mencius said, 'There are many arts in teaching. I refuse, as inconsistent with my character, to teach a man, but I am only thereby still teaching him.'

fereign danger will rouse him to carefulness|子不屑之教誨-子不屑教 and exertion.

The 亦 in 亦教 is not without its force, clause for an explanation of what has been but we can hardly express it in a translation. said.

16. How a respect to thack hay be tracking. 離之. The 者 certies us on to the next BOOK VII.

TSIN SIN. PART I.

1. Mencius said, 'He who has exhausted all his mental constitution knows his nature. Knowing his nature, he knows Heaven.

There or the Book.—Like the previous Books, affected, and he was prompted to give expres-this is named from the commencing words—sion to his thoughts. The first chapter may The exhausting of all the mental be regarded, however, as a compendium of the whole. constitution.' It contains many more chapters than any of them, being, for the most part, brief enigmatical sentences, conveying Mencius's views of human nature. It is more abstruces also, and the student will have much difficulty in satisfying himself that he has really hit the all his mind, to arrest his consciousness, and exact meaning of the philosopher. The author of the 四書味根藥 says:—'This Book the creature of Heaven, its attributes must be discover an order of subjects in its chapters. definite, Meneius had simply said 'God.' I can He had completed the previous six Books, and get no other meaning from this paragraph. Can this growup under his pencil, as his mind was Hst, however, and all his school say that there was made by Mencius in his old age. Its style corresponding. It is much to be wished that is terse, and its meaning deep, and we cannot instead of the term Heaven, vague and in-

'To preserve one's mental constitution, and nourish one's nature, is the way to serve Heaven.

3. 'When neither a premature death nor long life causes a man any double-mindedness, but he waits in the cultivation of his personal character for whatever issue;—this is the way in which he establishes his Heaven-ordained being.

CHAP. II. 1. Mencius said, 'There is an appointment for every-A man should receive submissively what may be correctly ascribed thereto.

it; that all the labour is in 知其性, which is the hard of that chapter. If this be correct, we should translate:—'He who completely develops his mental constitution, has known (some to know) his nature, but I cannot construe the words so. s. The 'preservation' is the holding fast what we have from Heaven, and the 'nourishing' is the seting in harmony therewith, so that the 'serving Heaven' is just being and doing what It has intimated in our constitution to be Its will concerning us. 3. is our nature, according to the opening words efthe Chung Yung,一天命之謂性. is to be taken as an active verb. 🔭 📆 = , 'causes no doubts,' i.e. no doubts as to what is to be done. 俟之,—之 referring .—It may be well to give the views of Ohio Uh'l on this chapter. On the first paragraph he seys:—'To the nature there belong the principles of benevolence, rightcour-ness, propriety, and knowledge. The mind is designed to regulate them (心以制之) and having the distinction of being correct, a man can put forth all his mind to thind doing good, and then he may be said to know his nature. When he knows his nature, he knows that the way of Heaven considers what is good to be excellent. On the second paragraph he says:—'When one is able to preserve graph he says:—'When one is able to preserve his mind, and to neurish his correct nature, he may be called a man of perfect virtue (仁人). The way of Heaven leves life, and the perfect is the correct appointment.'-Chae Ch'i says is no work or labour in 計文 (t); that it man also loves life. The way of Heaven is without partiality, and only approves of the superior Learning, according to their view of it; that all the labour is in 知 世代, which On the third paragraph he says :- 'The perfect man in his conduct is guided by one law. Although he sees that some who have before him have been short-lived, and long-lived, he never has two minds, or chang his way. Let life be short as that of Yo Yuan, or long as that of the duke of Shao, l refers either case equally to the appointment of Heaven, and cultivates and rectifies his ewa person to wait for that. It is in this way he establishes the root of Heaven's appointments (此所以立命之本) planations do not throw light up but they show how that may be treated inde-pendently of the school of Chu Hes. And the equal unsatisfactoriness of his interpre may well lead the student—the foreign studen especially—to put forth his strength on th study of the text more than on the com

2. Man's dupy as approved by the bi APPOINTMENTS OF HEAVEN. WHAT HAT BE O RECTLY ARCRESED THERETO AND WHAT NOT. that says this is a continuation of the last chapter, developing the meaning of the last paragraph. There is a connexion between the chapters, but is here taken more widely, as extending not only to man's nature, but all the events that befall him. I. I. ithe ebrect appointment, i.e. that which is directly the will of Heaven. No consequence flowing from evil or careless conduct is stood as being so. Chu Har's de 莫之致而至者乃) that which course without being

VOL. II.

. 2. 'Therefore, he who has the true idea of what is Heaven's appointment will not stand beneath a precipitous wall.

3. 'Death sustained in the discharge of one's duties may correctly be ascribed to the appointment of Heaven.

4. 'Death under handcuffs and fetters cannot correctly be so ascribed.

1. Mencius said, 'When we get by our seeking and CHAP. III. lose by our neglecting;—in that case seeking is of use to getting, and the things sought for are those which are in ourselves.

2. 'When the seeking is according to the proper course, and the getting is only as appointed;—in that case the seeking is of no use to getting, and the things sought are without ourselves.'

CHAP. IV. 1. Mencius said, 'All things are already complete in us.

there are three ways of speaking about the ap- be those of an evil door. If are fetters for pointments or decrees of Heaven. Doing good and getting good is called $\mathre{\omega}$ \text{\omega}, 'receiving what is appointed.' Doing good and getting evil is ealled and ch, 'encountering what is appointed.' Doing evil and getting evil is called ill, 'following after what is appointed.' ity, 'following after what is appointed.' is of so use to getting. The things 'in ourse are benevolence, rightsousness, propriety of in the text. It must be borne in mind, knowledge, the endowments proper of however, that by the here Chico understands in the text. The things 'without ourselves the state of the state however, that by there Chao understands nature. The things 'without ourse riches and dignities. The 'proper death, and that only, and we should acquiesce seek these is that ascribed to Confu 2. 别命者,-he who knows, or has the not at our command and control. true notion of, &c. likely to fall. 4. The fetters are understood to paragraph is mystical. The all things are taken the hands, and the those for the feet.

S. VIRTUE IS SURE TO BE GAINED BY SERRING IT, BUT RECENS AND CHARM EXPERIES. TRINGS.
This general sentiment is correct, but the e-truth is secrificed to the point of the antith t, but the exact when it is said in the sec in this, if there did not seem to be a convancing according to propriety, and retiring next on between this chapter and the preceding according to rightcourses, but yet they are

4. MAN IS PETTED FOR, AND HAPPY IN, DOESO , 'precipitous' and GOOD, AND MAY PROPROT MINISTER THERMIN. I. This

2. 'There is no greater delight than to be conscious of sincerity on self-examination.

3. 'If one acts with a vigorous effort at the law of reciprocity, when he seeks for the realization of perfect virtue, nothing can be closer than his approximation to it.

CHAP. V. Mencius said, 'To act without understanding, and to do so habitually without examination, pursuing the proper path all the life without knowing its nature;—this is the way of multitudes.

CHAP. VI. Mencius said, 'A man may not be without shame. When one is ashamed of having been without shame, he will afterwards not have occasion to be ashamed.'

CHAP. VII. 1. Mencius said, 'The sense of shame is to a man of great importance.

as the principles of all things, which all things | 'knowing minutely and exactly.' 'There is coreover are chiefly the relations of society. When we extend them farther, we get embarrassed. s. The here is that so largely treated of in the Chung Yung. 3. 2 is the judging of others by ourselves, and acting seordingly. Compare the Doctrine of the Mean, xiii. 2.

5. How many act without thought. pare the Analesta, VIII. iz. 行之,由之, - 之 is to be understood of 道, but 其道 - 'its nature,' its propriety, which is the object of 署, and its grounds, which is the object of 盤 Chst Hat defines 萲 as 知之明, 'knowing clearly,' and 察 as 識之精, like them?'

much activity,' says the 🖀 😭, 'in the two verba.' This use of 🍍 is not common.

6. THE VALUE OF THE PERLING OF SHAME. The last ∭∴=shameful conduct.

7. The same subject. The former chapter, it is said, was by way of exhortation (💢 🖁 this is by way of warning () The second paragraph is aimed at the wandering scholars of Mencius's time, who were full of plots and schomes to units and disunite the various princes. (springs of motion, 'machinery.' The third paragraph may also be translated, 'If a man be not ashamed at his being not like other men, in what will he be

2. 'Those who form contrivances and versatile schemes distinguished for their artfulness, do not allow their sense of shame to come into action.

3. 'When one differs from other men in not having this sense of shame, what will he have in common with them?'

CHAP. VIII. Mencius said, 'The able and virtuous monarchs of antiquity loved virtue and forgot their power. And shall an exception be made of the able and virtuous scholars of antiquity, that they did not do the same? They delighted in their own principles, and were oblivious of the power of princes. Therefore, if kings and dukes did not show the utmost respect, and observe all forms of ceremony, they were not permitted to come frequently and visit them. If they thus found it not in their power to pay them frequent visits, how much less could they get to employ them as ministers?

CHAP. IX. 1. Mencius said to Sung Kau-ch'ien, 'Are you fond, Sir, of travelling to the different courts? I will tell you about such travelling.

THE DOORITY OF THEIR GEARACTER AND PRINCIPLES. is not virtue in the abstract, but the good which they saw in others, in the scholars PRINCES MIGHT ME ALWAYS PERSPECTLY SATS namely. is their own 'power.' As applied THE EXAMPLE OF ANTHOUTH. 1. Some make the to the scholars, however, these things have to party spoken to in this chapter to be Kau (1)

8. How the angular schoolans maintained in), and forgot the power of men, i.e. of the

9. How a PROFESSOUAL ADVESS OF THE be reversed. They leved their own virtue (其 | read as @)-ch'ion of Sung. Nothing is known

2. 'If a prince acknowledge you and follow your counsels, be perfectly satisfied. If no one do so, be the same."

3. Kau-chien said, 'What is to be done to secure this perfect satisfaction?' Mencius replied, 'Honour virtue and delight in righteousness, and so you may always be perfectly satisfied.

4. 'Therefore, a scholar, though poor, does not let go his righteousness; though prosperous, he does not leave his own path.

5. 'Poor and not letting righteousness go;—it is thus that the scholar holds possession of himself. Prosperous and not leaving the proper path;—it is thus that the expectations of the people from him are not disappointed.

6. 'When the men of antiquity realized their wishes, benefits were conferred by them on the people. If they did not realize their wishes, they cultivated their personal character, and became illustrious in the world. If poor, they attended to their own virtue in solitude; if advanced to dignity, they made the whole kingdom virtuous as well."

and freedom from desire.' 'Perfectly satisfied,' conveys the idea of the phrase. 3. It is to be understood that the 'virtue' is that which the will approve himself good in all places and schelar has in himself, and the 'righteousness' circumstances.'

of him, but that he was one of the adventurers, is the course which he pursues. 4 # - \ the different princes. a. To translate 知之; 達 is the reverse. 5. 'Holds as I have done here, can hardly be called a paraphrase. Chû Hst, after Châo Chữ, explains loves and seeks. 6 古之人,一人一土. 不知之; 達 is the reverse. 5. 'Holds Mencius said, 'The mass of men wait for a king Wan, and then they will receive a rousing impulse. Scholars distinguished from the mass, without a king Wan, rouse themselves.'

CHAP. XI. Mencius said, 'Add to a man the families of Han CHAP. XI. and Wei. If he then look upon himself without being elated, he is far beyond the mass of men.

CHAP. XII. Mencius said, 'Let the people be employed in the way which is intended to secure their ease, and though they be toiled, they will not murmur. Let them be put to death in the way which is intended to preserve their lives, and though they die, they will not murmur at him who puts them to death.

CHAP. XIII. 1. Mencius said, 'Under a chief, leading all the princes, the people look brisk and cheerful. Under a true sovereign, they have an air of deep contentment.

10. How prople smould get their inspiration 凡民, 'all the . TO GOOD IN THEMSELVES. people,' i.e. ordinary people. - 豪 傑-俊 Amendment were supported by the first part is explained by the first of 10,000 men, is called the ministration of justice, where I should present the first of 10,000 men, is called the ministration of justice, where I should present the first of 10,000 men, is called the ministration of justice, where I should present the first of 10,000 men, is called the ministration of justice, where I should present the first part is explained to the first part is explained is made between the characters, he who in wisdom is the first of 10,000 men, is called 🂢; ministration or justice, where a second to think that Mencius had the ide the first of 1,000 is called ; the first of 100 war before him; compare Anales is called 🐺 ; the first of 10 is called 🚒.

11. Not to me blated by richim is a proof of supercorry. Han and Wei,—see Bk. I. Pt. L. i. r, notes; 'The families of Han and Wei,'-i.e. the wealth and power of those families. | itionary, with reference to this passage, by used for 达, 'to increase,' indicates the ex- 樂. It is the same as 娛 and 鹽 鳳-

, 'not being full of and

12. When a ruler's aim is evidently the PROPIL'S GOOD, THEY WILL NOT MURNUR AT ME 佚道,'a way of ease;' 生道,'a way of

18. The different explusive A CHIEF AMONG THE PRINCES, AND BY A TRUE z. K is explained in the dio-SOVEREIGH. ternality of the additions. 飲然 is defined 歡娛 皞皞 is 屬大自得之貌

知而如

2. 'Though he slay them, they do not murmur. When he benefits them, they do not think of his merit. From day to day they make progress towards what is good, without knowing who makes them do so.

3. 'Wherever the superior man passes through, transformation follows; wherever he abides, his influence is of a spiritual nature. It flows abroad, above and beneath, like that of Heaven and Earth. How can it be said that he mends society but in a small way!'

CHAP. XIV 1. Mencius said, 'Kindly words do not enter so deeply into men as a reputation for kindness.

2. 'Good government does not lay hold of the people so much as good instructions.

3. 'Good government is feared by the people, while good instruc-

'the appearance of enlargement and self-pos- It is used here in its highest application, - 'the session.' In illustration of the condition of the people under a true sovereign, commentators generally quote a tradition of their state in the golden age of Yao, when 'entire harmony reigned under heaven, and the lives of the people passed easily away.' Then the old men smote the cloda, and wang, 日出而作日入而息 整井而飲 耕田而食 帝力 於我何有哉,'At sunrise we rise, and t we rest. We dig our wells and drink; we cultivate our fields and eat.—What is the strength of the N to us?' 2. The is used in the meaning of 不庸, as in the translation. princes only helps the people in a small way.

14. THE VALUE TO A BULER OF REPUTATION AND MORAL INFLUENCES. Kindly words are but brief.

sage.' 所遇,所存,—the latter phrase is interpreted morally, being = 'when he has fixed his mind to produce a result.' This is unnecessary. , 'spiritual,' · mysterious :'—the effects are sure and visible, but the operation is hidden. In the influence of Shun in the time of his obscurity, when the ploughmen yielded the furrow, and the potters made their vessels all sound, we have an example, it is said, of the 新道 the influence of Confucius, had he been in the position of a ruler, as described, Analogts XIX. xxv, we have an example of the 所 存 sense of 1, 'merit,' or meritorious work, and the analogy of the other clauses determines the 'society.' It is understood that a leader of the tions are loved by them. Good government gets the people's wealth, while good instructions get their hearts.

CHAP. XV. 1. Mencius said, 'The ability possessed by men without having been acquired by learning is intuitive ability, and the knowledge possessed by them without the exercise of thought is their intuitive knowledge.

2. 'Children carried in the arms all know to love their parents, and when they are grown a little, they all know to love their elder brothers.

3. 'Filial affection for parents is the working of benevolence. Respect for elders is the working of righteousness. There is no other reason for those feelings;—they belong to all under heaven.

CHAP. XVI. Mencius said, 'When Shun was living amid the deep retired mountains, dwelling with the trees and rocks, and Analecta, II. iii.

15. BENEVOLENCE AND RIGHTPOURNESS ARE NATURAL TO MAN, PARTS OF HIS COMMENTURION. 1. I translate D by 'intuitive,' but it serves also to denote the 'goodness' of the nature of man. Chû Hei so defines it:-- 良者本然 is defined in the dic-人所提擎, taken by people in their posed. So in the 儲旨:-決江河調 and on an occasion. A reputation for kind-ness must be the growth of time and of many evidences. With the whole chapter, compare mented by 無 不同, 'extend them (carry the inquiry about them) to all under heaven, and they are the same. This is just laying down universality as a test that those feelings are intuitive to us. Chao Ch'i, however, explains differently:—'Those who wish to do good, have nothing else to do but to extend these ways of children to all under heaven.'

16. How what Shun was descovered itself IN HIS GERATEST OBSCURITY. 決江河,—the tionary by 小兒矣, 'an infant smiling' 決 is the water itself bursting its banks; the When an infant has reached to this, then it is agency of man in the matter is not to be sup-wandering among the deer and swine, the difference between him and the rude inhabitants of those remote hills appeared very small. But when he heard a single good word, or saw a single good action, he was like a stream or a river bursting its banks, and flowing out in an irresistible flood.'

CHAP. XVII. Mencius said, 'Let a man not do what his own sense of righteousness tells him not to do, and let him not desire what his sense of righteousness tells him not to desire;—to act thus is all he has to do.'

CHAP. XVIII. 1. Mencius said, 'Men who are possessed of intelligent virtue and prudence in affairs will generally be found to have been in sickness and troubles.

2. 'They are the friendless minister and concubine's son, who keep their hearts under a sense of peril, and use deep precautions

工之决也,非人决之也. 江 of virtue, and wisdom of arta.' 存 retains its 河 may be taken generally, or with special proper meaning of 在, 'to be in.' 英 means reference to the Yang-tame and Yellow river. properly 'fever,' 'any feveriah disease,' but here I prefer the former.

17. A MAN HAS BUT TO OBST THE LAW IN HIM-MEE. The text is literally—'Not doing what he does not do,' &c. Much must be supplied to make it intelligible in a translation. Châo Ch'i interprets and supplies quite differently: —'Let a man not make another do what he does not do himself.' &c.

18. THE BENEFITS OF TROUBLE AND AFFINDROM.

1. Compare Bk.VI. Pt. II. xv. and the shooting forth of a tree after it has been out and off (4th tone) go together,—'intelligence down, moreover, the -ee- in it should be 14.

of virtue, and wisdom of arts. A retains its proper meaning of A, 'to be in.' A means properly 'fever,' 'any feveriah disease,' but here A, -mot joined with A, but qualifying the whole santence. A, 'fatherless,' friendless, not having favour with the sovereign. F is not the child of one who is a concubine merely, but a concubine in disgrace, or one of a very low rank. F is often taken as if it ware L, the shooting forth of a tree after it has been cut down, moreover, the -ee- in it should be H.

On this account they become distinguished for against calamity. their intelligence.

1. Mencius said, 'There are persons who serve the CHAP. XIX. prince;—they serve the prince, that is, for the sake of his countenance and favour.

2. 'There are ministers who seek the tranquillity of the State, and find their pleasure in securing that tranquillity.

3. 'There are those who are the people of Heaven. judging that, if they were in office, they could carry out their principles, throughout the kingdom, proceed so to carry them out.

4. 'There are those who are great men. They rectify themselves and others are rectified.

CHAP. XX. 1. Mencius said, 'The superior man has three

19. Four DIFFERENT CLASSES OF MINISTERS. | 15, it will be seen, is not used here, as in the I. 有事君人者,-the人 is joined last paragraph. 3. 天民, 'Heaven's people,' with 右, and not to be taken with 君. Men- those who seem dearer to Heaven and more cius speaks of 人, 'persone,' and not 🛅, 'ministers,' to indicate his contempt. 容 🏗 is difficult. The common view is what I have given. 容是使君容表, 免走使者悦我, 'yang is to cause the have no selfshnoss, and they embrace whole kingdom in their regards, but they a prince to bear with—countenance—them;—their defined aims to be attained by system them.' In this case, should be read in 4th surely, produce the grandest results. let is to cause the prince to be pleased with tone. It is said, however, to have 穆臣, see Confusian Analosts, XVI. i. 4. simply-有天下. The possession of the favoured by it;—compare Bk. V. Pt. I. vii. g. 4. 'The great men' are the segme, the highest style of men. If is to be understood of persoms = 君 民, 'the sovereign and the people. The first class of ministers may be styled th mercenary; the second, the loyal; t

20. THE THURS WHERE THE SUPERIOR. DELEGRES IN. TO OCCUPY THE THROUGH IS NOT 版, 'the idea of aiming at exclusively.' a. 社 Anore them. I: 王天下 is to be taken as things in which he delights, and to be ruler over the kingdom is not one of them.

2. 'That his father and mother are both alive, and that the condition of his brothers affords no cause for anxiety;—this is one delight.

3. 'That, when looking up, he has no occasion for shame before Heaven, and, below, he has no occasion to blush before men;—this is a second delight.

4. 'That he can get from the whole kingdom the most talented individuals, and teach and nourish them;—this is the third delight.

5. 'The superior man has three things in which he delights, and to be ruler over the kingdom is not one of them.

CHAP. XXI. 1. Mencius said, 'Wide territory and a numerous people are desired by the superior man, but what he delights in is not here.

2. 'To stand in the centre of the kingdom, and tranquillise the people within the four seas;—the superior man delights in this, but the highest enjoyment of his nature is not here.

3. 'What belongs by his nature to the superior man cannot be sovereign sway is indicated, and not the carry- | EUFOYMENT. I. This describes the condition of ing out of the true royal principles. 2. may be understood of every painful thing in the condition of his brothers, which would distress him. 3. We cannot but attach a personal meaning to 'Heaven' here.

21. MAN'S OWN NATURE THE MOST IMPORTANT THEIRS TO HIE, AND THE SOURCE OF HIS TRUE |—what belongs to him by nature. 3. 27 -

the prince of a large State, who has thereby many opportunities of doing good. a. This advances on the meaning of the first paragraph. The individual indicated is the sovereign, whe by his position can benefit the myriads of the people, and therein he feels delight.

increased by the largeness of his sphere of action, nor diminished by his dwelling in poverty and retirement; --- for this reason that it is determinately apportioned to him by Heaven.

4. 'What belongs by his nature to the superior man are benevolence, righteousness, propriety, and knowledge. These are rooted in his heart; their growth and manifestation are a mild harmony appearing in the countenance, a rich fullness in the back, and the character imparted to the four limbs. Those limbs understand to arrange themselves, without being told.'

CHAP. XXII. 1. Mencius said, 'Po-1, that he might avoid Chau, was dwelling on the coast of the northern sea when he heard of the rise of king Wan. He roused himself and said, "Why should I not go and follow him? I have heard that the chief of the West knows well how to nourish the old." Tai-kung, to avoid Chau, was dwelling on the coast of the eastern sea. When he heard of the rise of king a rouse or the severage. Inseed in the two percenting percentages, though the individuals indicated are in those positions, the phrase, as well, as here, has its moral significancy.

(4th tone)

The thirty the mature is complete as given by Heaven. It can only be to it from without. This seems to be the idea. + 再生色也 extend over all the rest of the paregraph. 4 and 6 are in apposition; III is not to be taken as under the torically, as it describes king Win's government of 4. The meaning is simply ment; compare Bk. L. Pt. L iii. 4. that moral and intellectual qualities indicate corresponding to 凡夫, below ;—'the private is not to be interpreted only of the prince of themselves in the general appearance and a State or the sovereign. Indeed in the two bearing. Bit 48 is explained as 18 40 18 bearing 腔然is explained as 清和潤 澤之親, the appearance of what is pure, harmonious, moistening, and rich, and 🎏 as 是厚盈溢之意,'meaning what is eloped from within. Nothing can be added affluent, generous, full and overflowing.'—The whose description is rather strained.

22. The covernment of King Win by which THE AGED WERE HOURISHED. I. Compare Bk. IV. Pt. I. ziii, r. a. This is to be translated his-

Wan, he said, "Why should I not go and follow him? I have heard that the chief of the West knows well how to nourish the old." If there were a prince in the kingdom, who knew well how to nourish the old, all men of virtue would feel that he was the proper object for them to gather to.

2. 'Around the homestead with its five mau, the space beneath the walls was planted with mulberry trees, with which the women nourished silkworms, and thus the old were able to have silk to wear. Rack family had five brood hens and two brood sows, which were kept to their breeding seasons, and thus the old were able to have sech to eat. The husbandmen cultivated their farms of 100 mau, and thus their families of eight mouths were secured against

3. 'The expression, "The chief of the West knows well how to nourish the old," refers to his regulation of the fields and dwellings, his teaching them to plant the mulberry and nourish those animals, and his instructing the wives and children, so as to make them nourish woman,' 'the private man.' 🌋 Z, silk-|taught the people to keep silkworms, and to wormed them, i.e. neurished silkworms with manage their silk, in order to provide clothes. them. It is observed by 淮南子.- 'The Future ages sacrifice to her as the 先誓.' Mencius has not mentioned before the number of broad sows and hens apportioned to a family. with of the Yellow It (a.a. s697-8597), whose a 此之謂 responds to 所謂…者, sername was Hat-ling (西 版 庆), first at the beginning. The whole paragraph is the

At fifty, warmth cannot be maintained without silks, their aged. and at seventy flesh is necessary to satisfy the appetite. Persons not kept warm nor supplied with food are said to be starved and famished, but among the people of king Wan, there were no aged who were starved or famished. This is the meaning of the expression in question.

CHAP. XXIII. 1. Mencius said, 'Let it be seen to that their fields of grain and hemp are well cultivated, and make the taxes on them light;—so the people may be made rich.

2. 'Let it be seen to that the people use their resources of food seasonably, and expend their wealth only on the prescribed coremonies:—so their wealth will be more than can be consumed.

3. 'The people cannot live without water and fire, yet if you knock at a man's door in the dusk of the evening, and ask for water and fire, there is no man who will not give them, such is the explanation of that expression. I II resources arising from the government just inis the dwelling-place, the five most allotted for dicated ... If may be best explained from buildings.

28. To promote the virtue of the propie, THE FIRST CARE OF A COVERNMENT SHOULD BE TO COMBULT FOR THERE BRING WELL OFF. L. 局, i,-4th tone, as in Bk. L. Pt. L.v. 3, stal. 🔠 , 'grain fields.' Sax fields.' and mare both in the imperative, indicating the work of the ruler or government. So and H in par. portune, and the manner of it not according

Bk. I. Pt. I. iii. 3, 4. the festive occasions of capping, marris excepting on which a strict or enforced. 3. Compare Bk. I. Pt. I. vii. so-se. in properly denotes half an hour after sunset, or thereabouts. 基 is 日 鄭, 'the evening of the day.' The time of the request is inc a, where Ż may be referred to 卧, or the propriety;—and yet it is granted. 🍑 is the abundance of these things. A sage governs the kingdom so as to cause pulse and grain to be as abundant as water and fire. pulse and grain are as abundant as water and fire, how shall the people be other than virtuous?

CHAP. XXIV. 1. Mencius said, 'Confucius ascended the eastern hill, and Lû appeared to him small. He ascended the Tai mountain, and all beneath the heavens appeared to him small. So he who has contemplated the sea, finds it difficult to think anything of other waters, and he who has wandered in the gate of the sage, finds it difficult to think anything of the words of others.

2. 'There is an art in the contemplation of water.—It is necessary to look at it as foaming in waves. The sun and moon being possessed of brilliancy, their light admitted even through an orifice illuminates.

3. 'Flowing water is a thing which does not proceed till it has filled the hollows in its course. The student who has set his

24. How the great doorrings of the sages DWARF ALL SHALLER DOCTRINES, AND YET ARE TO BE ADVANCED TO BY SUCCESSIVE STEPS. 1, 2. This paragraph illustrates the greatness of the sage's destrines. The eastern hill was on the east of the capital of Lû. Some identify it with a small hill, called Fang (157), in the district of Ch'ti-every cranny assures us of its splendour in Am (曲阜), at the foot of which Confucius's the great luminaries. 3. 君子 is here the parents were buried; others with a hill named aspiring student.  'an elegant piece,' here Ming (), in the district of P1, in the depart- for 'one lesson,' 'one truth.'

general name for all kinds of peas and beans, | ment of 1-chau. The Tai mountain is the chief of the five great mountains of China. It lay on the extreme east of Ch'i, in the present district of Tai-an, in the department of the same name. In難爲水,爲 is used as in爲 架, Bk. IV. Pt. I. vii. 5. After seeing the surging ocean, the streams are not worth being mind on the doctrines of the sage, does not advance to them but by completing one lesson after another.

CHAP. XXV. 1. Mencius said, 'He who rises at cock-crowing, and addresses himself earnestly to the practice of virtue, is a disciple of Shun.

2. 'He who rises at cock-crowing, and addresses himself earnestly to the pursuit of gain, is a disciple of Chih.

3. 'If you want to know what separates Shun from Chih, it is simply this,—the interval between the thought of gain and the thought of virtue.

CHAP. XXVI. 1. Mencius said, 'The principle of the philosopher Yang was—" Each one for himself." Though he might have benefited the whole kingdom by plucking out a single hair, he would not have done it.

2. 'The philosopher Mo loves all equally. If by rubbing emooth

95. The different results to where the 10, 14. Chi Hai says:-取者僅足之 LOVE OF GOOD AND THE LOVE OF GAIN LEAD.

1. 'A disciple of Shun,'—i.e. although such a man may not himself attain to be a sage, he is treading in the steps of one. 2. Chih being used for Hij) is the robber Chih; see Bk. III. Pt. II. z. 3. A placed in cased here as in chap. xix. z. I should prefer myself to read it in the 4th tens. It is observed by the scholar Ch'ing that 'by good and gate are intended the public mind and the selfish mind (公私而已) 多利與 (公私而已)'s 利與善之關 is intended to represent the alightness of the separation between them, in its initial prinsiples, and I therefore supply 'the thought of.'

26. THE ERRORS OF YANG, MO, AND TREE-NO. Ometicate adherence to a course which we may 意, '取 conveys the idea of what is barely sufficient.' This is not correct. 楊子耳 楊子所取, 'that which the philosopher Yang chose, was.' In the writings of the scholar Lich (列子), Bk. VII, we find Yang Chû speaking of Po-ch'ing Tues-kie (11 子高) that 'he would not pull out one of his hairs to benefit others, and when questione himself 'if he would pull out a hair to help a age,' declining to reply. a. 'The philoso Mo,'—see Bk. III. Pt. I v. r; Pt. II. iz. g 14. We are not to understand the rubbing body smooth as an isolated act which a would benefit the kingdom. The smo DEEM ADSTRACTLY RIGHT IS PERILOUS. I. 'The would arise from labours undergone for the ki philosopher Yang,'—see Bk. III. Pt. II. ix. 9, dom, like those of the great YE, who wrea his whole body from the crown to the heel, he could have benefited the kingdom, he would have done it.

3. 'Taze-mo holds a medium between these. By holding that medium, he is nearer the right. But by holding it without leaving room for the exigency of circumstances, it becomes like their holding their one point.

4. 'The reason why I hate that holding to one point is the injury it does to the way of right principle. It takes up one point and disregards a hundred others.

1. Mencius said, 'The hungry think any food CHAP. XXVII. sweet, and the thirsty think the same of any drink, and thus they do not get the right taste of what they eat and drink. The hunger and thirst, in fact, injure their palate. And is it only the mouth and belly which are injured by hunger and thirst? Men's minds are also injured by them.

2. 'If a man can prevent the evils of hunger and thirst from and waded till he had worn away all the hair | right with reference to the whole circumstances on his legs. See the , to lee. 3. Of of every case and time.

Thus easo nothing seems to be known, but that 此口 must be clearly understood as referring to a Mean between the selfebness of Yang Cht and the transcendentalism of No Ti. 近之-近道, the 道 mentioned in par. 4. The necessity of attending to the exigency of circumstances is illustrated by mying that a once may be conserved when it would be duty to deny a single hair to save the kingdom, and a once when it would be duty to rub the whole body smooth to de so. The

VOL. II.

27. THE IMPORTANCE OF NOT ALLOWING THE MIND TO BE INJURED BY POYERTY AND A MEAN COS-DEESON. I. T perhaps is used adverbially, -'readily;' compare Bk. II. Pt. I. i. rr. The two clauses 是未 and 凱洛 ren pecalici to each other, the latter being explanatory of the former. 害 之,-之-口 慶. With reference to the mind, hunger and thirst stand for poverty and a mean condition. a. 🏗 🗯 arthodox way (道) of China is to do what is 以... 盒='can prevent being,'無 being being any evils to his mind, he need not have any sorrow about not being equal to other men.

CHAP. XXVIII. Mencius said, 'Hûi of Liû-hsia would not for the three highest offices of State have changed his firm purpose of life.'

CHAP. XXIX. Mencius said, 'A man with definite aims to be accomplished may be compared to one digging a well. To dig the well to a depth of seventy-two cubits, and stop without reaching the spring, is after all throwing away the well.

1. Mencius said, Benevolence and righteousness CHAP, XXX. Tang and Wû made them their were natural to Yao and Shun.

The five chiefs of the princes feigned them.

2. 'Having borrowed them long and not returned them, how could it be known they did not own them?'

emphatic. 不及人,一人 refers to great | point. See the 集醒, in he. 有力 n, arges, and worthies. Such a man nas 'one who has tune whom and really advanced far in the path of application may be very wide.

28. Hûr op Liû-mal's firmfing. 'Hûi of Ida-heid, -- see Bk. II. Pt. I. iz. 2, 3; Bk. V. ORIERR, OF THE OTHER, IN BRELETSON TO B Pt.IL i. 8, 5; Bk. VI. Pt. II. vi. a. 711, 'milde,' 'friendly impressibility,' was a charac-istic of Hûi, and Mencius, therefore, notices wit was associated with firmness of mind. The 'three hung' are the three highest officers bout the royal court, each equal in dignity to be highest rank of nobility.

29. OHLY THAT LABOUR IS TO BE PRIZED WHERE ACCOMPLISHED IN COUNCY. PR-used for @ - 17, 'eight cubits.' In the Analosts, XIX. xxiii. 2, it is said, in the note, that the was seven cubits, while here its length is given as eight. Its exact length is a most rowing.' He seems to prefer viewing 🙉 🐠

Such a man has one who has that which he is do

30. THE DEPPERSURE REFWERE YAO, Tare, and We, on the one hand, and the pive , 'benevolence and rightee refers to 仜 s,' and a translation can hardly be me without supplying those terms. The and Shun stood on a higher plats. Tang and We, they agreed in sinceric is the common point of contract betw and the chiefs. 身之,'incorporated ' a. Ohth Het explains -made them the B by 📆 , 'returned.' Admitting this, the meaning of passes from 'feigning' to 'ber-

CHAP. XXXI. 1. Kung-sun Ch'au said, 'I Yin said, "I cannot be near and see him so disobedient to reason," and therewith he banished Tai-chia to Tung. The people were much pleased. When Tai-chia became virtuous, he brought him back, and the people were again much pleased.

2. 'When worthies are ministers, may they indeed banish their sovereigns in this way when they are not virtuous?

3. Mencius replied, 'If they have the same purpose as I Yin, they may. If they have not the same purpose, it would be nsurpation.'

CHAP. XXXII. Kung-sun Ch'au said, 'It is said, in the Book of Poetry,

, , ,, ø

ø

* 4 3 "He will not eat the bread of idleness!"

How is it that we see superior men eating without labouring? Mencius replied, 'When a superior man resides in a country, if its

PRINCIPLE SECOND NOT BE READILY APPLIED. I. by the princes, while he would not take office; as—'how could they themselves know?' but noine organization; no surrour. This is an I much prefer the view in the translation.

$1. The mid may jumpy the mans, nor the Mancine, that he was constant to be supported. mess usely meaning of them. S. 本 is the purpose, not suddenly formed on an emergency, but the determination and object of the whole life. It is said—太以其亲定者音.

21. The susvens which a superson man actively serve their country. 其, 'ploughing,' assumes to a country measure man, whence meaning its great lesson to be that people should not be receiving emolument, who do not actively serve their country. 其, 'ploughing,' labouring. This term is suggested from the ode, sovereign employ his counsels, he comes to tranquillity, wealth, honour, and glory. If the young in it follow his instructions, they become filial, obedient to their elders, true-hearted, and faithful.-What greater example can there be than this of not eating the bread of idleness?

CHAP. XXXIII. 1. The king's son, Tien, asked Mencius, saying, 'What is the business of the unemployed scholar?'

2. Mencius replied, 'To exalt his aim.'

3. Tien asked again, 'What do you mean by exalting the aim?' The answer was, 'Setting it simply on benevolence and righteousness. He thinks how to put a single innocent person to death is contrary to benevolence; how to take what one has not a right to is contrary to righteousness; that one's dwelling should be benevolence; and one's path should be righteousness. Where else should he dwell? What other path should he pursue? When benevolence is the dwelling-place of the heart, and righteousness the path of the life, the business of a great man is complete.'

where is coours, 用之, 'use him,' i.e. his scholar. s.仁...;

where we assume it assumes. I. Then was the most of the king of Ch'l. His question probably where it denotes the distribution of the style of men. Here we ways he distilled. They were no dividuals in the vocation with Hencius, but he prefers to reply employment, to we to the prince according to his ideal of the attain.

the scholar's thoughts, his mun CAR PREPARED MINISTER FOR THE We can hardly take 大人 as in chap. xiz. 4, ries the sages, the very high Here it denotes rather the CHAP. XXXIV. Mencius said, 'Supposing that the kingdom of Ch'1 were offered, contrary to righteousness, to Ch'an Chung, he would not receive it, and all people believe in him, as a man of the highest worth. But this is only the righteousness which declines a dish of rice or a plate of soup. A man can have no greater orimes than to disown his parents and relatives, and the relations of sovereign and minister, superiors and inferiors. How can it be allowed to give a man credit for the great excellences because he possesses a small one?

CHAP. XXXV. 1. The Ying asked, saying, Shun being sovereign, and Kao-yao chief minister of justice, if Ku-sau had murdered a man, what would have been done in the case?

2. Mencius said, 'Kdo-ydo would simply have apprehended him.'

24. How men Juden whomen of Generalized better than this. ____,—used for ____, but as event-course, in theme admiration of one a verb. Wang Yin-chih construct as I do, is the Chan Chung of Bk. III. Pt. II. x, which see. the surname to avoid translating F. In the is taken as translation of 人東大盟 used for IL, and what follows is under the regimen of 大, as if we were to complete the ponetruotion in this way 一人之 劉 Ohio Oh'i interprots quite differently:—'But what a man should exalt is the greatest virtues, the propriety and rightesusness in the great relations of life. He, however, denies them, &c.' Our others more subordinate. See the in Chung of I substitute 大 consequently in the comparative degree.

85. What Shun and him minimum of ordina would have door, 17 Should patrice had commen. z. The Ying was a disch MITTED A MUS of Mencius. This is all that is known of him. is not to be understood here as merely-士師, Analoota, XVIII. ii ; XIX. ziz. The 士 of Shun's time was the same as the 大 可疑 of the Chine dynasty, the efficer of tainly the solectern of taking 📇 for 📭 is in let. a. We must understand Kac-yao as the

3. 'But would not Shun have forbidden such a thing?

Kao-yao had 4. 'Indeed, how could Shun have forbidden it? received the law from a proper source.

5. 'In that case what would Shun have done?'

6. 'Shun would have regarded abandoning the kingdom as throwing away a worn-out sandal. He would privately have taken his father on his back, and retired into concealment, living somewhere along the sea-coast. There he would have been all his life, cheerful and happy, forgetting the kingdom.

CHAP. XXXVI. 1. Mencius, going from Fan to Ch'i, saw the king of Chi's son at a distance, and said with a deep sigh, 'One's position alters the air, just as the nurture affects the body. Great is the influence of position! Are we not all men's sons in this respect?

2. Mencius said, 'The residence, the carriages and horses, and though critics now understand it as the a considerable distance from the capital, to antecedent. No doubt the meaning is, 'He ould simply have observed the law, and dealt with Kû-sâu accordingly.' 3. 有所受之, mpare Bk. III. Pt. I. ii. 3. It is here imd that the law of death for murder was the will of Heaven, that being the source to which a reference is made. Kao-yao again must be understood as the nominative to 有. He, as minister of Crime, had to maintain Heaven's authority superior to the sovereign's will.

36. How one's natural position approte his AIR, AND MUCH MORE HAY MORAL CHARACTER BI 之 朱 (p. 3), 之-往. 養-牽養 ceeding. It still gives its name to a district of Pû-châu (漢州), in the department of Tr'ao-châu (). Châo Ch'i says that Fan was a city of Ch'i, the appanage of the king's sons by his concubines. On this view we should translate Ξ F in the plural, but it proceeds from supposing that it was in Fan that Moneius saw the 王子, which the text does not at all necessitate. In egthinspace 250 and 100 and the dress of the king's son, are mostly the same as those of other That he looks so is occasioned by his position. How much more should a peculiar air distinguish him whose position is in the wide house of the world!

3. 'When the prince of Lû went to Sung, he called out at the Tieh-chai gate, and the keeper said, "This is not our prince. How is it that his voice is so like that of our prince?" This was occasioned by nothing but the correspondence of their positions.

CHAP. XXXVII. 1. Mencius said, 'To feed a scholar and not love him, is to treat him as a pig. To love him and not respect him, is to keep him as a domestic animal.

2. 'Honouring and respecting are what exist before any offering of gifts.

3. 'If there be honouring and respecting without the reality

'revenue or income.' 夫非盡人之子 | SCHOLAR'S ENGAGING IN THE SERVICE OF A PRINCE. 與,—some understand 王子 in the phrase I. 豕交之, 'having pig intercourse with between 夫 and 非, 'now, are not all kings' him.' 変 - 接 or 待. 辰, as distinguished sons,' &c. But I prefer to understand with from K, leads us to think of dogs or horses, Chao Ch'i, 凡人與王子, and in English animals to which we entertain a sentiment to supply se rather than Mey. s. 孟子日 seem here to be superfluous. 居,--- Bk. III. Pk. II. iii. s. 垤湿, 'anthill march,' was simply the name of a gate in the capital of Sung. 87. That he be respected is emperial to A 留.

higher than to those which we keep and fatten merely for our eating. a. To 要看-所 謂恭敬者. The paragraph is an explanation of what is meant by those terms.

of them, a superior man may not be retained by such empty demonstrations

CHAP. XXXVIII. Mencius said, 'The bodily organs with their functions belong to our Heaven-conferred nature. But a man must be a sage before he can satisfy the design of his bodily organization.

CHAP. XXXIX. 1. The king Hstian of Ch'i wanted to shorten the period of mourning. Kung-sun Ch'au said, 'To have one whole year's mourning is better than doing away with it altogether.

2. Mencius said, 'That is just as if there were one twisting the arm of his elder brother, and you were merely to say to him—"Gently, gently, if you please." Your only course should be to teach such an one filial piety and fraternal duty.'

3. At that time, the mother of one of the king's sons had died, and his tutor asked for him that he might be allowed to observe

according to the consenting view of the modern commentators, but perhaps not correctly. 🏗 is taken for the bodily organs,—the ears, eyes, hands, feet, &c.; and for their manifested operations,—hearing, seeing, handling, &c. is used as in the phrase 慶青, 'to tread

88. ONLY WITH A SAGE DOES THE BODY AT 色皆天性所在 非指形色 為天性也, 'The bodily organs with their operations belong to our Heaven-con-ferred nature; the meaning is that in these is our Heavenly nature, not that they are that nature.

89. REPROOF OF KURG-SUR CH'AU FOR AS ING TO THE PROPOSAL TO SMORTEN THE PERSON OF a few months' mourning. Kung-sun Ch'au asked, 'What do you say of this?'

4. Mencius replied, 'This is a case where the party wishes to complete the whole period, but finds it impossible to do so. The addition of even a single day is better than not mourning at all. I spoke of the case where there was no hindrance, and the party neglected the thing itself.'

1. Mencius said, 'There are five ways in which the CHAP. XL.

superior man effects his teaching.

- 2. 'There are some on whom his influence descends like seasonable rain.
- 3. 'There are some whose virtue he perfects, and some of whose talents he assists the development.

- 4. 'There are some whose inquiries he answers.5. 'There are some who privately cultivate and correct themselves.
- 6. 'These five ways are the methods in which the superior man effects his teaching.

the jealous or other opposition of the full queen.
In this case the son was anxious to prolong his plants which only need the dew of heaven.
Mourning as much as he could. This explanation, bringing in the opposition of the full disciples Yen Yūan and Teing Shin.

The course to be incorrect. See the queen or wife, seems to be incorrect. See the 集澄 in ico. While the father was alive, 德者-成其德者. Bo a 其 is to be a som shortened the period of mourning for his understood before 財 (-材), and 問. So mother. 4. ### ### has a pronominal force.

40. How the limits of the same know of the superior man is in all cases one and the superior man is in all cases one and the same,—to teach. His methods are modified, however, by the different characters of men.

CHAP. XLI. 1. Kung-sun Ch'au said, 'Lofty are your principles and admirable, but to learn them may well be likened to ascending the heavens,—something which cannot be reached. Why not adapt your teaching so as to cause learners to consider them attainable, and so daily exert themselves!

2. Mencius said, 'A great artificer does not, for the sake of a stupid workman, alter or do away with the marking-line. I did not, for the sake of a stupid archer, charge his rule for drawing the bow.

3. 'The superior man draws the bow, but does not discharge the arrow, having seemed to leap with it to the mark; and he there stands exactly in the middle of the path. Those who are able, follow him.

CHAP. XLII. 1. Mencius said, 'When right principles prevail throughout the kingdom, one's principles must appear along with one's person. When right principles disappear from the kingdom, one's person must vanish along with one's principles.

HIS LESSONS TO SUIT HIS LEARNERS. 便彼,一彼, 'those' refers to learners, which antecedent has been implied in the words, 宜君, 云云, 'tt is right they should be considered,' &c. 為可幾及,-爲-以爲, 'to consider,' 'regard.' 2. 編 , 'string and ink,' a carpenter's marking. line. (read &), 'the limit to which MEN.

41. THE TRACHER OF TRUTH HAY NOT LOWER is with the words I I I iterally, is LESSONS TO SUIT HIS LEARNERS. I. To I iterally, superior man in all the action which is represented. No man can be taught how to hit. That is his own act. He is taught to shoot, and that in so lively a manner that the hittin also is, as it were, set forth before him. with the teacher and learner of truth. A learner tries to do as he is taught, he will be found laying hold of what he thought unapproachable,

42. ONE MUST LIVE OR DIR WITH HIS PRINCEPLE means 'to bury along with the a bow should be drawn. g The difficulty here dead, to associate with in death as in life.

2. 'I have not heard of one's principles being dependent for their manifestation on other men.

G

1. The disciple Kung-tû said, 'When Kang of CHAP. XLIII. Tang made his appearance in your school, it seemed proper that a polite consideration should be paid to him, and yet you did not answer him. Why was that?'

2. Mencius replied, 'I do not answer him who questions me presuming on his nobility, nor him who presumes on his talents, nor him who presumes on his age, nor him who presumes on services performed to me, nor him who presumes on old acquaintance. Two of those things were chargeable on Kang of Tang.

1. Mencius said, 'He who stops short where CHAP. XLIV. stopping is acknowledged to be not allowable, will stop short in He who behaves shabbily to those whom he ought everything.

to treat well, will behave shabbily to all.

2. 'He who advances with precipitation will retire with speed.'

individual men.

The other are those principles as held by PANIED BY PANI ADVANCES ARE POLLOWED BY SPEEDY RETREATS. The first paragraph, it is said, has reference to 48. How Mescure required the surple pure. The first paragraph, it is said, has reference to surr of truth in those whom he taught. King was a younger brother of the prince of Tang. His rank made Kung-ta think that more than the second to those of excess (有過).

CHAP. XLV. Mencius said, 'In regard to inferior creatures, the superior man is kind to them, but not loving. In regard to people generally, he is loving to them, but not affectionate. affectionate to his parents, and lovingly disposed to people generally. He is lovingly disposed to people generally, and kind to creatures.' CHAP. XLVI. 1. Mencius said, 'The wise embrace all knowledge, but they are most earnest about what is of the greatest importance. The benevolent embrace all in their love, but what they consider of the greatest importance is to cultivate an earnest affection for the Even the wisdom of Yao and Shun did not extend to virtuous. everything, but they attended earnestly to what was important. Their benevolence did not show itself in acts of kindness to every man, but they earnestly cultivated an affection for the virtuous.

45. THE SUPERIOR HAN IN KIND TO CHRATURES, 20 CHRATURES, equally. // - animals. The second not to be understood only of parents. pare 🌉 🧱, D.M., xx. 12.

46. ASAINST THE PRINCES OF MIS TIME WHO OCCUPIED THEMSELVES WITH THE KNOWLEDGE OF, AND REGARD FOR, WHAT WAS OF LETTLE IMPORT-ANGE. I.無不知,無不愛are not our 'emmissiont,' and 'all-loving,' but show the standard and standard the te those characters. The use of the 🗡 in t elauses is idiomatic. To reduce it to the o nary mages of the particle, we ma Armi as-惟當務之 only are they carnest about the this it is most important to hose," and " 親賢之當務, earnest about what is a cultivating affection for 務, 'but only are th seeking of the chan benevolent. The clauses that follow,— I same as that of Confucies, Analosts, XII zzii.

放功

- 2. 'Not to be able to keep the three years' mourning, and to be very particular about that of three months, or that of five months; to eat immoderately and swill down the soup, and at the same time to inquire about the precept not to tear the meat with the teeth ;such things show what I call an ignorance of what is most important.
- a. 🌉, 'coarse, unbleached, hempen cloth,' | the Book of Rites, I. Seci. I. iii. 54, 53. 'These are worn in mourning during the period of three cases adduced in illustration of what is insisted months for distant relatives. A si is the on in the previous paragraph;—the folly of name applied in the case of mourning which extending to what is comparatively trivial, tends for five months.

TSIN SIN. PART II.

CHAPTER I. 1. Mencius said, 'The opposite indeed of benevolent was the king Hûi of Liang! The benevolent, beginning with what they care for, proceed to what they do not care for. Those who are the opposite of benevolent, beginning with what they do not care for, proceed to what they care for.'

1. A STROME COMPREMENTATION OF RIME HOT OF RAME PARTY AND REAL PROPERTY AND EVEN HAS SEEN. Compare Bk. I. Pt. I. v, and other conversations with king Hot. I. The is more than 'unhomovolent' would meen, if we had such a term. It is nearly a struct, 'opposedve.'

The interior of the conversation with king to animals, while here it expresses the feeling towards children and people and animals, and I have rendered it by 'te care fir.' In the first case in the text, the progress is from one nearly a cruel,' opposestve.'

The interior of the converse is from one degree of love to another; in the second, from

2. Kung-sun Ch'au said, 'What do you mean?' Mencius answered, 'The king Hûi of Liang, for the matter of territory, tore and destroyed his people, leading them to battle. Sustaining a great defeat, he would engage again, and afraid lest they should not be able to secure the victory, urged his son whom he loved till he sacrificed him with them. This is what I call—"beginning with what they do not care for, and proceeding to what they care for."

CHAP. II. I. Mencius said, 'In the "Spring and Autumn" there are no righteous wars. Instances indeed there are of one war better than another.

2. "Correction" is when the supreme authority punishes its subjects by force of arms. Hostile States do not correct one another.'

one degree of infliction to another. a. E., 'to the term 🎁 in the second paragraph. In beil rice till it is the reduced to a pulpy mass.' So did Hûi seem to deal with the bodies of his subjects. 所要于前 refers to Hei's eldest son (Bk. l. Pt. L. v. z). He is called a 子弟, as being one of the youth of the Ch'un-ch'iù itself there are mentioned of 'fightings' () only 23, while the 'smitings' (大) amount to arg. There are specified in it also 'invasions' (長); 'sleges' (国); 'carryings away' (; 'extinguishings' (滅); 'defeata' (殿); 'takinga' (政); 'surprises'(弧); 'pursuits'(追); and 'defences' (成); all of which may be comprehended under the term . 2. Explains the assertion in the former paragraph. In the wars recorded by Confucius, one State or chief was said to all another, which could not be all the operations of war detailed in the Ch'un- was said to III another, which could not be ch'is. And rightly; for Mencius himself uses according to the meaning of the term. By

2. How all the pightings encounted in the CH'UN-CH'IÙ WERE UNRIGHTEOUS: TO THE CONTINUENCE STATES OF MERCEUS'S TIME. ,-- 'no righteous battles.' Both Chato Ch 7 and Chat Hai make 戦-戦伐乙 L, 'the affairs of fighting and smiting,' i.e.

無政馬南面而在 無政馬南面而在 無政馬南面而在 無政馬南面而在 無政馬南面而在 無政馬南面而在 無政馬南面而在 無政馬南面而在 無政馬南面而在 大下以至 無政馬南面而在 大下以至 無政馬南面而在 大下以至 無政馬南面而在 大下以至

CHAP. III. 1. Mencius said, 'It would be better to be without the Book of History than to give entire credit to it.

2. 'In the "Completion of the War," I select two or three passages only, which I believe.

3. "The benevolent man has no enemy under heaven. When the prince the most benevolent was engaged against him who was the most the opposite, how could the blood of the people have flowed till it floated the pestles of the mortars?"

CHAP. IV. 1. Mencius said, 'There are men who say—"I am skilful at marshalling troops, I am skilful at conducting a battle!"—

They are great criminals.

2. 'If the ruler of a State love benevolence, he will have no enemy in the kingdom.

3. When Tang was executing his work of correction in the h is intended the sovereign; by T the R is the title of the third Book in the Princes. Compare Bk. VI. Pt. II. vii. s.

8. WITH WHAT RESERVATION MERCIUS READ THE SING-CHING. This is a difficult chapter for Chinese commentators. Châo Ch'I takes of the Shū-ching, which is the only fair interpretation. Others understand it of books in general. Thus Julien translates—'Si common had in view only the portion of the Shū-ching to which he refers in the next paragraph, but such a restriction of his language is entirely arbitrary. The strangest view is that of the author of the III This property is anticipating the attempts that would be made in after-ages to corrupt the classics, and testifying against them. We can see how the remarks were directed against the propensity to warfare is the title of the third Book in the fifth Part of the Shû-ching, professing to be an account by king Wû of his enterprise against the tyrant Châu. The words quoted in the next paragraph are found in par. 8. 3. For there are different readings; see the fig. in loc. Doubtless there is much exaggeration in the language, but Moncius misinterprets the whole passage. The bloodshed was not done by the troops of king Wû, but by the forces of the tyrant turning against one another.

author of the property is that of the author of the property is that of the property is that of the property is that would be made in after-ages to corrupt the classics, and testifying against them. We can see how the remarks were directed against the propensity to warfare directed against the propensity to warfare of war, each one of which had seventy-two footwhich characterized his contemporaries.

4. Coumer to princip for allow there are the property in the property of the desired for the property is the property of the property in the property of the property is the property of the property in the property of the property is the property of t south, the rude tribes on the north murmured. When he was executing it in the east, the rude tribes on the west murmured. Their cry was—"Why does he make us last?"

4. 'When king Wu punished Yin, he had only three hundred chariots of war; and three thousand life-guards.

5. 'The king said, "Do not fear. Let me give you repose. I am no enemy to the people! On this, they bowed their heads to the earth, like the horns of animals falling off."

6. "Royal correction" is but another word for rectifying. Each State wishing itself to be corrected, what need is there for fighting?

CHAP. V. Mencius said, 'A carpenter or a carriage-maker may give a man the circle and square, but cannot make him skilful in the use of them.'

Mencius said, 'Shun's manner of eating his parched CHAP. VI. grain and herbs was as if he were to be doing so all his life.

grd tone, a numerative for carriages. 虎首 (pdn)—these appear to have been of the charac-ter of life-guards, named from their tiger-like courage and bearing. 5. See the Shu-ching, Pt. V. i. Seet. II. c. But the text of the Classic is hardly recognisable in Mencius's version of it. The original is:—'Rouse ye, my heroes.

Do not think that he is not to be fessed, but rather hold that he cannot be withstood. The people are full of asso, as if think had. people are full of awa, as if their horns were falling from thein heads.' 6. Perhaps it would number si,600, few as compared with the | be well to retain the sound of all in the trans-本族正己, 'each people wishes the forces of his opponent. It used for in, the latien, and say, 'Now ching means to rectify.'

5. REAL ATTAINMENT HUST BE MADE BY THE LEARNER FOR MINSELF. Compare Pt. I. xli. See also in Chwang-tese, Bk. xiii. par. ro. 神子厅

6. THE EQUARIERRY OF SHUR IN POVERTY AND AS SOVERMON. In must be taken as - A 6. Perhaps it would fit is a word used for 1, applied to eating he became sovereign, and had the embroidered robes to wear. the lute to play, and the two daughters of Ydo to wait on him, he was as if those things belonged to him as a matter of course.'

CHAP. VII. Mencius said, 'From this time forth I know the heavy consequences of killing a man's near relations. When a man kills another's father, that other will kill his father; when a man kills another's elder brother, that other will kill his elder brother. So he does not himself indeed do the act, but there is only an interval between him and it.'

CHAP. VIII. 1. Mencius said, 'Anciently, the establishment of the frontier-gates was to guard against violence.

2. 'Nowadays, it is to exercise violence.'

herbs. == , 'to est.' The 'embroidered | warn rulers to make their government firm in robes' are the royal dress. On Shun's lute, see Bk. V. Pt. I. ii. 3. 果 used for 娛(100), 'a female attendant.'

7. How then thought of its consequences SECOULD MAKE MEN CAREFUL OF THEIR CONDUCT. Chù Hsi observes that this remark must have been made with some special reference, 一吾 tesching, that 'a man may not live under the same heaven with the slayer of his father, nor in the same State with the slayer of his elder brother; but Mencius does not seem to think where at times, Mencius is led away by his It is a maxim of Chinese of that, but rather takes occasion from it to fondness for antithesia.

the attachment of their subjects, and not provoke their animosity by oppressive acts. 閒耳,-'there is only one interval;' that is, the death of a man's father or brother is the retribution for his previous conduct, the slayer or avenger only intervesting.

8. THE RESERVOLENCE AND SELFMENTED OF AR-CIENT AND MODERN BULB CONTRASISD. Compare

VOL. II.

Mencius said, 'If a man himself do not walk in the right path, it will not be walked in even by his wife and children. If he order men according to what is not the right way, he will not be able to get the obedience of even his wife and children.

CHAP. X. Mencius said, 'A bad year cannot prove the cause of death to him whose stores of gain are large; an age of corruption cannot confound him whose equipment of virtue is complete.

Mencius said, 'A man who loves fame may be CHAP. XI. able to decline a State of a thousand chariots; but if he be not really the man to do such a thing, it will appear in his countenance, in the matter of a dish of rice or a platter of soup.

1. Mencius said, 'If men of virtue and ability be CHAP. XII.

not confided in, a State will become empty and void.

EXAMPLE AND CONDUCT. To the second 行 we 有餘獎, 倉有餘樂. are to suppose 🎬 as the nominative, while the third is like a verb in the highli conjugation. The 人is not so much as 他 人, 'other men.' The whole 便人不以道 simply-出 令不當理, 'if his orders are not according

10. CORRUPT TIMES ARE PROVIDED AGAINST BY 不能粉不能 MARLMHED VIRTUR. , may be taken either actively or passively. 周于利着, 'he who is complete in

9. A MAN'S IMPLURIOR DEPENDS ON HIM PERSONAL | much by. The 日語 expands this into 氢

11. A MAN'S TRUE DISPOSITION WILL OFFER APPRAR IN SMALL MATTERS, WHEN A LOVE OF PANE MAY HAVE CARRIED HIM OVER GREAT Chû Hat here expounds MOULTIES. 覸人不於其所勉,而: 所忽 然後可以見其所安 之質, 'A man is seen not so much in things which require an effort, as in things which he might easily despise. By bearing this in mind when we observe him, we can see what he really rests in.

12. There things important in the adminisgain, i.e. he who has gained much, and laid TRATION OF A STATE. I. 不信, 'be not con-

Without the rules of propriety and distinctions of right, the high and the low will be thrown into confusion.

3. 'Without the great principles of government and their various business, there will not be wealth sufficient for the expenditure.

CHAP. XIII. Mencius said, 'There are instances of individuals without benevolence, who have got possession of a single State, but there has been no instance of the throne's being got by one without benevolence.

CHAP. XIV. 1. Mencius said, 'The people are the most important element in a nation; the spirits of the land and grain are the next; the sovereign is the lightest.

Therefore to gain the peasantry is the way to become sovereign; fided to; perhaps rather 'confided to.' 'Will become empty and void.'—Chao Ch'i supple-ments thus:—'If the prince do not consort with and confide in the virtuous and able, then they will go away, and a country without such persons is said to be empty and void.' 2, 3. 'The high and the low,'—that is, the distinction of ranks. R may be considered a hendiadys, and so it in the next paragraph. is the right, or rightness, on which the rules of propriety are founded, and E is the various business that flows from the right principles of government

Ii2

18. Only by behavolence can the terone be eor. Many commentators put 有之 in the potential mood, as if it were 或有之 This is not allowable. Facts may be allege that seem to be in opposition to the concluding statement. The commentator Taku () says :--'From the dynasty of Ch'in downwards, there have been cases, when the throne was got by men without benevolence, but in such cases it has been lost again after one or two reigns.'

14. The DIFFERENT ELEMENTS OF A NATION-

THE PROPLE, TUTELARY SPIRITS, AND SOVEREIGN,

'Will properly the altar, or resting-place of the spirit upple- or spirits of the ground, and then used for the ecrifice to that spirit or those spirits. - 'pannicled millet,' and then generally the spirit or spirits presiding over grain. Together, the characters denote the 'tutelary spirits of a country,' on whom its prosperity depends, and to secrifice to whom was the prerogative of its sovereign.—It is often said that the was 'to secrifice to the spirits of the five kinds of ground, and the to merifice to those of the five kinds of grain.' But this is merely one of the numerical fancies of which Chinese writers are fond. The five kinds of ground are mountains and forests (山 林), rivers and marshes (川澤), mounds (丘變), places of tombe (墳行), and plains (原濕). But it would be easy to make another division, just as we have six, eight, and other ways of speaking about the kinds of grain. The regular sacrifices to these tutelary spirits were three : one in spring, to pray for a good harvest; one in autumn, to give thanks for the harvest; and a third in the first month of winter. IN REMPROT OF THEME IMPORTANCE. I. 社 is a 丘民=田野之民, 'the people of

to gain the sovereign is the way to become a prince of a State; to gain the prince of a State is the way to become a great officer.

3. 'When a prince endangers the altars of the spirits of the land and grain, he is changed, and another appointed in his place.

4. 'When the sacrificial victims have been perfect, the millet in its vessels all pure, and the sacrifices offered at their proper seasons. if yet there ensue drought, or the waters overflow, the spirits of the land and grain are changed, and others appointed in their place.

CHAP. XV. Mencius said, 'A sage is the teacher of a hundred generations:—this is true of Po-1 and Hui of Liu-hsia. Therefore when men now hear the character of Po-1, the corrupt become When they hear the pure, and the weak acquire determination. character of Hui of Liu-haia, the mean become generous, and the the fields and wilds,' the presentry. According the ground and grain cannot ward off calamities to the Chin Li, nine husbandmen, heads of and evils from the people, then their altars and fences are thrown down and others in different places erected.' Chie Ch'l is more brief. He a yik (邑); and four yik formed a lphaov (丘), which would thus contain 144 families. But the phrase f. A, signifying the peasantry, is yet equivalent to 'the people.' Mencius uses it, his discourse being of the spirits of the land not supply a parallel to the removal of and grain. 3. The change of the fit is are traces of depening the spirits in such a sea and are traces of depening the spirits in such a sea and are traces of depening the spirits in such a sea and are traces of depening the spirits in such a sea and are traces of depening the spirits in such a sea and are traces of depening the spirits in such a sea and are traces of depening the spirits in such a sea and are traces of depening the spirits in such a sea and are traces of depening the spirits in such a sea and are traces of depening the spirits in such a sea and are traces of depening the spirits in such a sea and are traces of depening the spirits in such a sea and are traces of depening the spirits in such a sea and are traces of depening the spirits in such a sea and are traces of depening the spirits in such a sea and are traces of depening the spirits in such a sea and are traces of depening the spirits in such a sea and are traces of depening the spirits in such a sea and are traces of depening the spirits in such a sea and are traces of depening the spirits in such as a sea and are traces of depening the spirits in such as a sea and a sea and are traces of depening the spirits in such a sea and are traces of depening the spirits in such a sea and are traces of depening the spirits in such as a sea and are traces of depening the spirits in such as a sea and are traces of depening the spirits in such as a sea and a m by most commentators as merely a de- and appointing others in their places. stroying of the alters and building others. This is Cha Hat's interpretation :—土 型 乙] simply says that in such a case 更置之, which may mean that they de-下抬餘說,# ka

15. That Po-1 and Hot of Liu-max were sad | PAC Z, 'when the spirits of generations' is spoken generally. Between the niggardly become liberal. Those two made themselves distinguished a hundred generations ago, and after a hundred generations, those who hear of them, are all aroused in this manner. Could such effects be produced by them, if they had not been sages? And how much more did they affect those who were in contiguity with them, and felt their inspiring influence!'

CHAP. XVI. Mencius said, 'Benevolence is the distinguishing characteristic of man. As embodied in man's conduct, it is called the path of duty. CHAP, XVII. CHAP. XVII. Mencius said, 'When Confucius was leaving Lt, he said, "I will set out by-and-by;"—this was the way in which to leave the State of his parents. When he was leaving Ch't, he strained off with his hand the water in which his rice was being rinsed, took the rice, and went away;—this was the way in which to leave a strange State.'

two worthies themselves, several hundred years | that in an edition of Mencius found in Corea,

16. The relation of reservolunce to MAY. This chapter is quite enigmatic. 合 is taken as-合仁于人身, 'unite benevolence with man's person,' and 道 as the 奉 性 2 if of the Chung-yung. The glossarist of reason." Chao Ch'i refers to Analects, XV. xxviii, which after 人 ქj, there follow accounts of 'rightconsuces,' 'propriety,' and 'wisdom;'-也者宜也,云云. If that was the original reading, the final clause would be :-

17. How Compution's leaving Lt and Cm's is very good. Chû Hat, however, mentions was different. Compare Bk. V. Pt. II. i. 4.

CHAP. XVIII. Mencius said, 'The reason why the superior man was reduced to straits between Ch'an and Ts'ai was because neither the princes of the time nor their ministers sympathised or communicated with him.'

CHAP. XIX. 1. Mo Ch'i said, 'Greatly am I from anything to depend upon from the mouths of men.'

2. Mencius observed, 'There is no harm in that. Scholars are more exposed than others to suffer from the mouths of men.

3. 'It is said, in the Book of Poetry,

"My heart is disquieted and grieved,

I am hated by the crowd of mean creatures."

This might have been said by Confucius. And again,

"Though he did not remove their wrath,

He did not let fall his own fame."

This might be said of king Wan.

19. MERCIUS CORPORES MO CH'I UNDER CALUMET BY THE REPLECTION PRAFT IT WAS THE CREDITARY LOT OF DESTRUCTION HER. 1. Of Mo Ch'I, nothing is known beyond what is here intimated. He is used in the sense of the company, with a reference to this passage. The meaning is that not only did he not have a good word from men, but was spoken ill of by them. 2. If, it is concluded, from the comment of Châo Ch'I, is a mistake for the comment of Châo Ch'I, is a mistake for the same meaning. Retaining the has substantially the same meaning. Retaining the constant of this or these, we get a tolerable meaning. The scholar hates those many mouths. 2. For the first quotation, see the Shih-ching, I iii. Ode I. st. 4, a description of her condition by the ill-used wife of one of the dukes of Wel (according to Chû Hat), and which Meneius somewhat strangely would apply to Confucius. For the second, see III. i. Ode III. st. 8, descrip-

Mencius said, 'Anciently, men of virtue and talents by means of their own enlightenment made others enlightened. Nowadays, it is tried, while they are themselves in darkness, and by means of that darkness, to make others enlightened.

CHAP. XXI. Mencius said to the disciple Kao, 'There are the footpaths along the hills;—if suddenly they be used, they become roads; and if, as suddenly they are not used, the wild grass fills them up. Now, the wild grass fills up your mind.'

1. The disciple Kao said, 'The music of Ytt was CHAP. XXII.

better than that of king Wan,

2. Mencius observed, 'On what ground do you say so!' and the other replied, 'Because at the pivot the knob of Yti's bells is nearly worn through.'

3. Mencius said, 'How can that be a sufficient proof?

20. How the abcidity led on hen by their BEAMPLE, WHILE THE RULERS OF MERCIUS'S TIME TRIED TO UNGE MEN CONTRARY TO THEIR EXAMPLE. In translating, I supply 古之 before 賢者, in contrast with the 🚓 below. To the two a very different force is given. The former the constraining influence of example; the latter is the application of pains and penalties.

21. That the cultivation of the hind hay (spaces for the NOT BE INTERRITTED. foot,'=footpaths; 山徑之蹊閘,—the tive of the king Tai, though applied to Wan. 💂, according to Chu Hat, though the dictionis in the sense of a, 'report,' 'reputa- ary does not give such a sound to the character, nor do we find in it the meaning which suits this passage) //, 'suddenly;' nearly - 1 The Kao here must have been a disciple of Mencius, different from the old Kao, Bk. VI. Pt. II. iii. Châo Ch'i says that after studying with Mencius for some time, and before he fully understood his principles, he went off and addicted himself to some other teacher, and that the remark was made with reference to this course, and its consequences.

22. An absurd remark of the descript Kao ABOUT THE MUNIC OF YU AND KING WAR. 2. 11, -read ski, 'the knob, or loop, of a bell,' the 'footpaths of the hill-ways.' 🎓 (read old, as | part by which it is suspended. 📸, 3rd tone, the ruts at the gate of a city made by a single two-horsed chariot?

CHAP. XXIII. 1. When Ch'i was suffering from famine, Ch an Tsin said to Menoius, 'The people are all thinking that you, Master, will again ask that the granary of Tang be opened for them.

I apprehend you will not do so a second time.

2. Mencius said, 'To do it would be to act like Fang Fû. There was a man of that name in Tsin, famous for his skill in seizing tigers. Afterwards he became a scholar of reputation, and going once out to the wild country, he found the people all in pursuit of a tiger. The tiger took refuge in a corner of a hill, where no one dared to attack him, but when they saw Fang Fû, they ran and Fing Fit immediately bared his arms, and descended met him.

metaphorically, anything having the appearance of being eaten or worn away. 5. The meaning is that what Kāo noticed was only the effect of time or long use, Yā being anterior to king Wān, and did not necessarily imply any superiority of the music of the one over that of the other. The street contracts at the gat and all the earriages that have been running over its breadth are obliged to run in the same ruts, which hence are deeper here than elso-where.—There is much controversy about the phrase 兩馬之力. Châo Ch'i understands 馬 as meaning 'two kinds of horses;'-馬, levied from the State, and employed on what we may call the postal service, and the 公馬, or 'public horses,' principally used in military service. On this view the making an application which might be reject meaning would be that the ruts in question were not made by these two kinds of carriages only. Cha Hat, after the commentator Fing is to be taken only as a skilful.

an insect that bores through wood; bence, | (野氏), takes the meaning as I have given, it in the translation. Another view takes in the sense of E, taking it in the 4th teme, as in chap. iv. 4. See the 14

> 28. How Mercius enew weeks to a MAINTAIN HIS OWN DISHITY IN HIS IMPROCULAR WITH THE PRINCES. I. At Tang, whose name is still preserved in the village of Kan-t'ang, in the district of Chi-mo (in the department of Lai-châu, the princes of Ch'l, it would appear, kept grain in store, and on some previous cocurrence of famine, Meneius had advised the cocurrence of famine, Mencius non account and king to open the granary. In the meantime, however, some difference had occurred between the mand the prince. He intended leaving Ch², and would not expose himself to a repulse by a shine an ambiention which might be rejected. a. 書士, 'a good seholar,' or 'officer,' but

The multitude were pleased with him, but from the carriage.

those who were scholars laughed at him.'

CHAP. XXIV. 1. Mencius said, 'For the mouth to desire sweet tastes, the eye to desire beautiful colours, the ear to desire pleasant sounds, the nose to desire fragrant odours, and the four limbs to desire ease and rest;—these things are natural. But there is the appointment of Heaven in connection with them, and the superior man does not say of his pursuit of them, "It is my nature."

2. 'The exercise of love between father and son, the observance of righteousness between sovereign and minister, the rules of ceremony between guest and host, the display of knowledge in recognising the talented, and the fulfilling the heavenly course by the sage;—these are the appointment of Heaven. But there is an adaptation of our

野一之-往 It did not belong to Fing 於賢者 is not 'the possession of knowledge Fa, now an officer, to be fighting with tigers, by the talented,' but the exercise of wisdom in playing the part of a bravo. 24. How the superior har subjects the

RATIFICATION OF HIS NATURAL APPRISES TO THE WILL OF HEAVEN, AND PURSUES THE DOING OF GOOD WITHOUT THINKING THAT THE AMOUNT WHICH me can do hay be likited by that will. i. 🔲 於味 'the mouth's relation to tastes ;' that is, its constitution so as to be pleased with cortain tastes. So, all the other clauses. A consider that the first five are more especially natural, and, though they may be prevented from obtaining them, still desire them; and every appetite naturally desires its unlimited that the last five are more especially appointed every appetite naturally desires its unlimited gratification, but a limited amount or an entire reference to them, recognizing and appreciating their excellence. The sentiment is well illustheir excellence. trated by the case of Yen Ying, the minister of Ch'1, able and wise, and yet insensible to the on i, able and whe, and yet meanship to the superior excellence of Confucius and his principles.—Chû Haf says well upon this chapter:—'I have heard it observed by my master that the things mentioned in both of these paragraphs are in the constitution of our nature, and likewise ordained by Heaven. Mankind, however, consider that the first fire are more expecially by Heaven, so that if they do not come to then denial may be the will of Heaven. a. 君之 strength to reach them. On this account, nature for them. The superior man does not say, in reference to them, "It is the appointment of Heaven."

CHAP. XXV. 1. Hâo-shăng Pû-hâi asked, saying, 'What sort of man is Yo-chăng?' Mencius replied, 'He is a good man, a real man.'

2. 'What do you mean by "A good man," "A real man?"

3. The reply was, 'A man who commands our liking is what is called a good man.

4. 'He whose goodness is part of himself is what is called a real man.

- 5. 'He whose goodness has been filled up is what is called a beautiful man.
- 6. 'He whose completed goodness is brightly displayed is what is called a great man.

7. 'When this great man exercises a transforming influence, he is what is called a sage.

8. 'When the sage is beyond our knowledge, he is what is called a spirit-man.

9. 'Yo-chang is between the two first characters, and below the four las.'

Mencius shows what is most important in each kind will be on the side of goodness. Hence case, that he may induce a broader way of when a man is desirable, and commands unitabiliting in regard to the second class, and repress the way of thinking in regard to the first.'

A Topicus shows what is most important in each kind will be on the side of goodness. Hence when a man is desirable, and commands unitabilities that the may induce a broader way of when a man is desirable, and commands unitabilities that the may induce a broader way of when a man is desirable, and commands unitabilities that the may induce a broader way of when a man is desirable, and commands unitabilities that the may induce a broader way of when a man is desirable, and commands unitabilities that the may induce a broader way of when a man is desirable, and commands unitabilities that the may induce a broader way of when a man is desirable, and commands unitabilities that the may induce a broader way of when a man is desirable, and commands unitabilities that the may induce a broader way of when a man is desirable, and commands unitabilities that the may induce a broader way of when a man is desirable, and commands unitabilities that the may induce a broader way of the second class, and represent the may induce a broader way of the second class, and represent the may induce a broader way of the second class, and represent the may induce a broader way of the second class, and represent the may induce a broader way of the second class and the secon

26. THE CHARACTER OF THE DESCIPLE YO-CHARS.
DIFFERENT DESCRIBE OF ATTAINMENT IN CHARACTER, WHICH ARE TO BE AIMED AT. 1. Châo Ch'i talls us that Hâo-shāng is the surname and Pû-hâi the name, and that the individual was a man of Ch'i. This is all we know of him. 3. It is assumed here that the general verdict of man-when a man is desirable, and commands universal liking, he must be a good man. 4. 有器 已, 'having in himself;' i.e. when a man has the goodness, without hypocrisy or protence. Compare Bk. VI. Pt. II. xiii. Goodness is an attribute entering into all the others, and I have therefore thrice expressed it in the translation. 8. 皇而不可知之之

CHAP. XXVI. 1. Mencius said, 'Those who are fleeing from the errors of Mo naturally turn to Yang, and those who are fleeing from the errors of Yang naturally turn to orthodoxy. When they so turn, they should at once and simply be received.

2. 'Those who nowadays dispute with the followers of Yang and Mo do so as if they were pursuing a stray pig, the leg of which, after they have got it to enter the pen, they proceed to tie.'

CHAP. XXVII. Mencius said, 'There are the exactions of hempen-cloth and silk, of grain, and of personal service. The prince requires but one of these at once, deferring the other two. If he require two of them at once, then the people die of hunger. require the three at once, then fathers and sons are separated.'

anid in the Doctrine of the Mean, 至識如 | Confucius and other sages, in opposition to the most Thoists and Buddhists. a. The disputations are with those who had been Yangists and complete sincerity is like a spirit.' In the critical remarks in the 四書合講, it is said, indeed, that the expression in the text is stronger than that there, but the two are substantially to the same effect. Some would translate property by 'divine,' a rendering which it never can admit of, and yet, in applying to man the term appropriate to the actings and influence of Him whose way is in the see, and His judgments a great deep, Chinese writers derogate from the prerogatives of God.

26. RECOVERED HERETICS SHOULD BE RECEIVED WITHOUT CASTING THEIR OLD ERRORS IN THEIR to still claimed in China by the followers of in their proper seasons.

Mohists. This sense of 23, 'to tie the legs,' is found in the dictionary with reference to this passage.

27. THE JUST EXACTIONS OF THE GOVERNMENT ARE TO BE MADE DESCRIMINATINGLY AND COR-15 is cloth, made from flax. SIDERATELY. , 'silken fibres not spun;' but here, probably, silk, spun or unspun. 果, 'grain unthreshed;' the same threshed:—here together, grain generally. The tax of cloth and silk was due in summer, that of grain TENTH. I. 品於儒, 'they turn to the learned.' 'The learned' in Chinese phrase is equivalent to our 'the orthodox.' The name might only require them, one at a time, and after harvest, and personal service was for the Mencius said, 'The precious things of a prince CHAP. XXVIII. are three;—the territory, the people, the government and its business. If one value as most precious pearls and jade, calamity is sure to befall him."

CHAP. XXIX. P'an-ch'ang Kwo having obtained an official situation in Ch'i, Mencius said, 'He is a dead man, that P'an-ch'ang Kwo!' Pan-chang Kwo being put to death, the disciples asked, saying, 'How did you know, Master, that he would meet with Mencius replied, 'He was a man, who had a little ability, but had not learned the great dectrines of the superior man. He was just qualified to bring death upon himself, but for nothing more.

CHAP. XXX. 1. When, Mencius went to Ting, he was lodged in the Upper palace. A sandal in the process of making had been

28. THE PRECIOUS TRIPE OF A PRINT POR OTHER he heard.

THE DANGER OF OVERLOOKING THEM FOR OTHER HE GENEROUS SPIRIT OF MERCHES IN 180. THE GENEROUS SPIRIT OF MERCHES IN 180. 抗, 'land generally.' 人 as distinguished from = 'officers,' but the terms are not the remark of an individual a ordinary character, and at first to be taken separately. So of 政事; see ehap. zii.

29. How Mencius predected reportedand the BRAZE OF PAR-CE'XE Ewo. Compare Confiscien's prediction of Tase-?a's death, Analests, Bk. I. Pt. II. iv. This was evidently a XI. xii. Little is known of this Ewo. He is said to have begun learning with Mencius, but to lodging of honourable visitors. The first

26. This principus traines of A Prince, AND have soon gone away, disappointed by what

PRINCIPO HIM INSTRUCEROSS. This, which is t lesson of the chapter, only co and, and has been co find fault with Monoius's disciple

Bk. I. Pt. II. iv. This was evidently a p placed there in a window, and when the keeper of the place came to look for it, he could not find it.

2. On this, some one asked Mencius, saying, 'Is it thus that your followers pilfer!' Mencius replied, 'Do you think that they came here to pilfer the sandal?' The man said, 'I apprehend not. But you, Master, having arranged to give lessons, do not go back to inquire into the past, and you do not reject those who come to you. If they come with the mind to learn, you receive them without any more ado.

CHAP. XXXI. 1. Mencius said, 'All men have some things which they cannot bear;—extend that feeling to what they can bear, and benevolence will be the result. All men have some things which they will not do;—extend that feeling to the things which they do, and righteousness will be the result.

2. If a man can give full development to the feeling which a compound noun with 人. 菜種,—the dictionary has, with reference to this passage, doubt, correct. 股科 is better than 股节 things being done, but not completed, are said to be 菜. a. Sés (一度), 'to hide,'— to steel and hide. 日. 子以早早 to steal and hide. 日,子以是,是, philosopher. Anciently, 夫子 was read over himself than he really has. a. 第-等 is a verb, 'was lodged.' The second makes 夫子, 'now, I,' and Mencius was supposed

81. A MAN HAS ORLY TO GIVE DEVELOPMENT TO these, referring to followers. THE PRINCIPLES OF GOOD WHICH ARE IN HIM, AND SHOW THEMSELVES IN SOME THINGS, TO BE METHELY GOOD AND CORRECT. This is a sentiment which is the observation of Mencius's questioner, suddenly awaking to an understanding of the analects. It supposes that man has more power makes him shrink from injuring others, his benevolence will be more than can be called into practice. If he can give full development to the feeling which refuses to break through, or jump over, a wall, his righteousness will be more than can be called into practice.

3. 'If he can give full development to the real feeling of dislike with which he receives the salutation, "Thou," "Thou," he will act righteously in all places and circumstances.

4. 'When a scholar speaks what he ought not to speak, by guile of speech seeking to gain some end; and when he does not speak what he ought to speak, by guile of silence seeking to gain some end;—both these cases are of a piece with breaking through a neighbour's wall.'

CHAP. XXXII. 1. Mencius said, 'Words which are simple, while their meaning is far-reaching, are good words. Principles which, as held, are compendious, while their application is extensive, 穴 'to make a hole through.' 客-客撞 'to jump over a wall.' The two together are equivalent to 'to play the thief.' 3. 'Thou,' t variance with Chinese notions of propriety. It can only be used to the very young and the very mean. A man will revolt from it as used to himself, and 'if' he be eareful to not so that men will not dare to speak to him in this style, he will go nowhere where he will not do righteousness.'---This is rather far-fetched. 4. 飪, 'to lick with the tongue;' = 'to inveigle.' To find an antecewho is spoken to, or before whom silence is kept; or, perhaps, $ot \geq$ merely gives effect to the verb in the general sense of 'to gain some end.'

82. AGAINST AINING AT WHAT IS RESCOTE, AND MEGLECTING WHAT IS MEAR. WHAT ARE GOOD WORDS AND GOOD PRINCIPLES. I. 不下帶,see the Book of Rites, Bk. I. Sect. II. iii. 15. The ancients did not look at a person below the girdle, so that all above that might be considered as near, beneath the eyes. The phrase dent to the 之, we must understand the person | 近 言 = 'words which are near,' i.e. ea

The words of the superior man do not go are good principles. below the girdle, but great principles are contained in them.

2. 'The principle which the superior man holds is that of personal cultivation, but the kingdom is thereby tranquillized.

3. 'The disease of men is this:—that they neglect their own fields, and go to weed the fields of others, and that what they require from others is great, while what they lay upon themselves is light.

CHAP. XXXIII. 1. Mencius said, 'Yao and Shun were what they were by nature; Tang and Wû were so by returning to natural virtue.

2. 'When all the movements, in the countenance and every turn of the body, are exactly what is proper, that shows the extreme degree of the complete virtue. Weeping for the dead should be from real sorrow, and not because of the living. The regular path of virtue is to be pursued without any bend, and from no view to emolument. The words should all be necessarily sincere, not with any desire to do what is right.

common subjects, simple, plain. So, Chû Hsi; lects, VI. xxv. The paragraph is a good sumbut the passage in the Li Chi is not so general many of the teaching of The Great Learning. as his commentary. It gives the rule for lookas his commentary. It gives the rule for looking by the sovereign. He is not to raise his eyes above a minister's collar, nor lower Pt. I. xxx, but has not here a special them below the girdle. Chác Ch'i tries to explain the expression without reference to the ancient rule for regulating the looking at men. According to him, 'words not below the girdle are all from near the heart.' a. This is the explanation of the highest style of virtue—that of Yao and Shun, which does everything right, with no motive beyond the doing so. 'Weeping is from real sorrow, and not because of the living,' i.e. there is nothing of show in the content of the living,' i.e. there is nothing of show in the living,' i.e. there is nothing of show in the living,' i.e. there is nothing of show in the living,' i.e. there is nothing of show in the living,' i.e. there is nothing of show in the living,' i.e. there is nothing of show in the living,' i.e. there is nothing of show in the living,' i.e. there is nothing of show in the living,' i.e. there is nothing of show in the living,' i.e. there is nothing of show in the living,' i.e. there is nothing of show in the living,' i.e. there is nothing of the living.'

AND HOW OTHERS POLLOW AFTER IT. I. Compare

3. 'The superior man performs the law of right, and thereby waits simply for what has been appointed.'

CHAP. XXXIV. 1. Mencius said, 'Those who give counsel to the great should despise them, and not look at their pomp and display.

2. 'Halls several times eight cubits high, with beams projecting several cubits;—these, if my wishes were to be realized, I would not have. Food spread before me over ten cubits square, and attendants and concubines to the amount of hundreds;—these, though my wishes were realized, I would not have. Pleasure and wine, and the dash of hunting, with thousands of chariots following after me;—these, though my wishes were realized, I would not have. What they esteem are what I would have nothing to do with; what I esteem are the rules of the ancients.—Why should I stand in awe of them?'

others. 3. Describes the virtue that is next in degree, equally observant of right, but by an intellectual constraint. 法一天理之當 government of s the proper course indicated by Heavenly principles.

84. He who undertakes to counsel the GREAT, SHOULD BE MORALLY ABOVE THEM. I. , 'great men.' The phrase is to be understood not of the truly great, as in ch. xxv. 6, at al., but of the socially great, with an especial reference to the princes of the time, dignified all the corresponding clay government of some words like A 有, 'those great men have,' to which 我 爲, 'I would not do,' respond. these may be seen in the more important t ples and public buildings throughout China projecting all round, beneath the caves. 果,—see Bk.II.Pt.Liv.4. E by their position, but without corresponding spurring and galloping in hunting.

CHAP. XXXV. Mencius said, 'To nourish the mind there is nothing better than to make the desires few. Here is a man whose desires are few: -in some things he may not be able to keep his heart, but they will be few. Here is a man whose desires are many:—in some things he may be able to keep his heart, but they will be few.'

CHAP. XXXVI. 1. Mencius said, 'Tsang Hei was fond of sheep-dates, and his son, the philosopher Tsang, could not bear to eat sheep-dates.'

2. Kung-sun Ch'au asked, saying, 'Which is best,-minced meat and broiled meat, or sheep-dates?' Mencius said, 'Mince and broiled meat, to be sure.' Kung-sun Ch'au went on, 'Then why did the philosopher Tsang eat minoe and broiled meat, and would not eat sheep-dates?' Mencius answered, 'For mince and broiled meat

*, 'what are in them,' the things which they | 86. The FILIAL PERLIES OF TRANSPORTE SERVI must be taken in a bad, or at least an inferior 四書名餘說, in lea, however, seems sense-the appetites, while () is the heart to make out a case for # being a kind em so. 在我者-the things which I is his not baring jujuses. I. 羊囊, 'sheep-26. THE REQUIATION OF THE DESIRES IS ESSENTIAL TO THE SOURMEMBER OF THE MIND.

Jujubes, 'the small black northern fruit, so called from its resembling sheep's dirt. Such is Chû Haf's account of the fruit. The writer of the naturally disposed to all virtue. 離有不 jujube? See Bretschneider's Boundson Sintonn, jujube? See Bretschneider's Boundson Sintonn, p. 118. 2. Hat must have eaten both the jujubes and the cooked meat, but his liking ĸ k

VOL. II.

there is a common liking, while that for sheep-dates was peculiar. We avoid the name, but do not avoid the surname. The surname is common; the name is peculiar.'

1. Wan Chang asked, saying, 'Confucius, CHAP. XXXVII. when he was in Ch'an, said: "Let me return. The scholars of my school are ambitious, but hasty. They are for advancing and seizing their object, but cannot forget their early ways." Why did Confucius, when he was in Ch'an, think of the ambitious scholars of Lû?'

2. Mencius replied, 'Confucius not getting men pursuing the true medium, to whom he might communicate his instructions, determined to take the ardent and the cautiously-decided. ardent would advance to seize their object; the cautiously-decided would keep themselves from certain things. It is not to be thought that Confucius did not wish to get men pursuing the true medium, but being unable to assure himself of finding such, he therefore thought of the next class.'

3. 'I venture to ask what sort of men they were who could be styled "The ambitious?"

for the jujubes was peculiar, and therefore the MENORUS. VARIOUS CHARACTERS WHO FAIL TO sight of them brought him vividly up to his FURSUE TERM, OR ARE OPPOSED TO IT. I. See son, and he could not bear to eat them. But Analects, V. xxi. The differences between that such points are not important to illustrate the text and what we have here will be noted. meaning here.

saning here.

Perhaps Wan Chang was quoting from memory.

7. To CALL TO THE FURSUIT OF THE RIGHT

2. See Analects, XIII. XXI. As Mencius quotes MEDIUM WAS THE OBJECT OF COMPUCIUS AND that chapter, some think that there should be

4. 'Such,' replied Mencius, 'as Ch'in Chang, Tsang Hst, and Mû P'ei, were those whom Confucius styled "ambitious?"

5. 'Why were they styled "ambitious?"'

6. The reply was, Their aim led them to talk magniloquently, saying, "The ancients!" "The ancients!" But their actions, where we fairly compare them with their words, did not correspond with them.

7. 'When he found also that he could not get such as were thus ambitious, he wanted to get scholars who would consider anything impure as beneath them. Those were the cautiously-decided,— a class next to the former.'

8. Chang pursued his questioning, Confucius said, "They are only your good careful people of the villages at whom I feel no indignation, when they pass my door without entering my house. Your good careful people of the villages are the thieves of virtue."
What sort of people were they who could be styled "Your good careful people of the villages?"

K k 2

a in the text after A. 4. Ch'in 'Shih is specious,' and adding that he played Chang is the Lao mentioned, Analects, IX. vi. well on the ch'in, and was therefore styled Ch'in.

Chang is the Lao mentioned, Analects, IX. vi. So, according to Chât Hai, who quotes an instance from the Taoist philosopher Chwang, of the waywardness of Lao, but Chwang's accounts of Confucius and his disciples are not to be trusted. The identification of the individual in the text with Lao, however, is no doubt correct, though Châo Ch'i makes him to be the Shih of the Analects, referring to XI. xvii. 3, 9. Mencius replied, 'They are those who say, "Why are they so magniloquent? Their words have not respect to their actions, and their actions have not respect to their words, but they say,—The The ancients! Why do they act so peculiarly, and are ancients! so cold and distant? Born in this age, we should be of this age, to be good is all that is needed." Eunuch-like, flattering their generation;—such are your good careful men of the villages.

10. Wan Chang said, 'Their whole village styles those men good and careful. In all their conduct they are so. How was it that Confucius considered them the thieves of virtue?

11. Mencius replied, 'If you would blame them, you find nothing to allege. If you would criticise them, you have nothing to criticise. They agree with the current customs. They consent with an impure age. Their principles have a semblance of right-heartedness and truth. Their conduct has a semblance of disinterestedness and purity. All men are pleased with them, and they think themselves right, so that it is impossible to proceed with them to the principles see XVII. xili. 9. Before this paragraph we to the 是 that follows. 書斯可矣, to the text has for its subject of the may take it in the infinitive, making the whole para-must understand 🛣 🖁 . The 🖂 in be good is enough, i.e. to be accounted good by graph down to 机者 the antecedent subject acting peculiarly. II. 董俊 is literally our of Yao and Shun. On this account they are called "The thieves of virtue."

12. 'Confucius said, "I hate a semblance which is not the reality. I hate the darnel, lest it be confounded with the corn. I hate glibtonguedness, lest it be confounded with righteousness. I hate sharpness of tongue, lest it be confounded with sincerity. I hate the music of Chang, lest it be confounded with the true music. I hate the reddish blue, lest it be confounded with vermilion. I hate your good careful men of the villages, lest they be confounded with the truly virtuous."

13. 'The superior man seeks simply to bring back the unchanging standard, and, that being correct, the masses are roused to virtue. When they are so aroused, forthwith perversities and glossed wickedness disappear.

CHAP. XXXVIII. 1. Mencius said, 'From Yao and Shun down to Tang were 500 years and more. As to Yu and Kao Yao, they

'ourrent customs,' but 💥, at the same time, | lects, XV. z. 💃,—see Analects, X. vi. s. stigmatises the customs as bad. 居之-居 13. This paragraph explains the rest of the クトルン 孝: 行フー行ン 仏 阜 chapter. The 程, or 'unchanging standard,' 之於心者;行之-行之於身 is the 中道, 'the right medium, which the are only found here. Such a string of them is recall others. not in the sage's style. A plant it confound the corn, be confounded with it. Compare Bk. II. Pt. II. xiii; Bk. III. Pt. II. x; So in the other phrases. Ans. of al. I. From the commencement of Shun's saw those earliest sages, and so knew their doctrines, while Tang heard their doctrines as transmitted, and so knew them.

2. 'From Tang to king Wan were 500 years and more. As to I Yin, and Lai Chu, they saw Tang and knew his doctrines, while king Wan heard them as transmitted, and so knew them.

3. 'From king Wan to Confucius were 500 years and more. As to Tai-kung Wang and San I-shang, they saw Wan, and so knew his doctrines, while Confucius heard them as transmitted, and so knew them.

4. 'From Confucius downwards until now, there are only 100 years and somewhat more. The distance in time from the sage is so far from being remote, and so very near at hand was the sage's In these circumstances, is there no one to transmit his doctrines? Yes, is there no one to do so?

reign to that of Tang's were 489 years, while Ohû Hsi seems to be wrong, however, in making from Tang to the rise of the Châu dynasty San, instead of San-1, to be the surname. See were 644 years. Here, as before, Bk. II. Pt. II. xiii, Mencius uses 500 as a round number. In All Z, the Z refers to the doctrines of the cluding sentences here wonderfully vez comsages. 2. Lai Chû is not exactly identified.

Most make him the same with Tang's minister, Chung-hûi; see the Shû-ching, IV. ii. 3. Tâikung Wang,—see Bk. IV. Pt. L xiii. Of San I-shang more can hardly be said to be known responsibility of handing down the doesn't than that he was an able minister of king Wan.

INDEXES

INDEX I.

OF SUBJECTS.

The references to the Book, Part, Chapter, and Paragraph are marked thus—L. i. 1. In the first edition, for Parts i and ii the characters - and T were used in all the Indexes.

Absurdity of a ruler not following wise counsellors, I. ii. 9.

Acknowledged favours, how Mencius, VI. ii 5.

Action, faith necessary to firmness in, VI. ii. 12.

Adherence to one special course, against obstinacy, VII. i. 26.

Advantages, the greatest, of friendship, V. ii. 8. Advice of Mencius with regard to mourning, III. i. 2.

Adviser of the princes might always be perfectly satisfied, how an, VII. i. 9.

Affliction, benefits of, VII. i. 18.

Aged, the, were nourished by the government of king Wän, VII. i. 22.

Ages, different conduct of great men in different, reconcileable, IV. ii. 29.

Agreement of sages not affected by place or time,
IV. ii. 1.

Agriculture, importance of a ruler attending to, III. i. 3: a ruler should not labour at, with his own hands, III. i. 4.

Air, how one's material position affects his, VII.

1. 35.
Ambition and avarioe, evils of, I. ii. 11: of king Hûi of Liang, VII. ii. 1.
Ambitious, who were the, VII. ii. 37.
Ancient(s), the, shared their pleasures with the people, I. i. 2: surpassed other men in what, I. i. 7: the music of the, I. ii. 1: sovereigns, tours of inspection made by, I. ii. 4: VI. ii. 7: coffins used by the, H. ii. 7: sages, how all men may become equal to the, III. 1: kings presetted benevolent covernment. III. ii. 6: men may become equal to the, III. 1. 1: Rings practised benevolent government, III. ii. 5: Mencius appeals to the example and maxims of the, III. ii. 7: kings, the example and principles of, must be studied, IV. i. 1; 2: the, exchanged sons, each one teaching the son of the other, IV. i. 18: making friends of the, V. ii. 8: the, cultivated the nobility that is of Heaven, VI. i. 16: scholars maintained the dignity of their characters, how. VII. i. 8: dignity of their characters, how, VII. i. 8: and modern rule contrasted, VII. ii. 8: the, led men by their example, VII. ii. 20. Animals, man how much different from, IV

ii. 19.

Antiquity, the example of, VII. i. 9.
Apposites, the superior man subjects his to the will of Heaven, VII. ii. 24.

Archer, he who would be benevolent is like an, II. i. 7.

Archery, learning, IV. ii. 24: VI. i. 20. Arrangement of dignities and emoluments according to the dynasty of Chau, V. ii. 2. Association, influence of, III. ii. 6: VI. i. 9:

with those of whom one does not approve, unavoidable, III. ii. 10.

Attainment, real, must be made by the learner for himself, VII. ii. 5.

Authority, punishment should be inflicted only by the proper, II. ii. 8.

Barbarians, influence of the Chinese on, III. i.

4; ii. 9.

Barley, illustration taken from, VI. i. 7.

Beauty, the love of, compatible with royal government, I. ii. 5: only moral is truly excellent, IV. ii. 25.

Behaviour of Mencius with an unworthy associate, II. ii. 6. Benefits of trouble and affliction, VII. i. 18.

Benevolence and righteousness, I. i. 1: VI. ii.
4: belongs naturally to man, II. i. 6: IV. i.
10: VI. i. 1: VII. i. 15; ii. 16: exhortation to, II. i. 7: importance to all of exercising, IV. i. 2: the only security of a prince, IV. i. 7; 8; 9: filial picty the richest fruit of, IV. i. 27: the superior man preserves, IV. ii. 28: and rightsousness equally internal, VI. i. 4; 5: righteousness equally invertal, VL 1. 4; 5; it is necessary to practise with all one's might, VL i. 18: must be matured, VL i. 19: and righteousness, the difference between Yao and Shun, Tang and Wa, and the five Chiefs in relation to, VII. i. 30: the throne can be got only by, VII. ii. 18.

Benevolent government, I. i. 5; 7: III. i. 8: IV. 1. 1: safety and prosperity lie in. I. ii. 11:

IV. 1. 1: safety and prosperity lie in, I. ii. 11: affections of the people secured by, I. ii. 12: glary the result of, II. i. 4: the prince who sees about practising, has none to fear, III. ii. 5: Bodilly defects, how men are sensible of, VI. ii. 12: organisation, only a sage can satisfy the design of his, VII. i. 38.

Book of Rites, quotations from, II. ii. 2: III. ii.

8: IV. i. 1. Brilliant Palace, the, or Hall of Distinction, I.

ii. 5. Burial, Mencius's, of his mother, I. ii. 16: II. ii.

Calamity and happiness are men's own seeking,

II. i. 4: the superior man is beyond the reach of calamity, IV. ii. 26.

Calumny, comfort under, VII. ii. 19. Careful, the thought of consequences should make men, VIL ii, 7. Cattle and sheep, illustration taken from feeding, II. ii. 4.

Character, how men judge wrongly of, VII. i. 84: different degrees of attainment in, VII. ii. 95.

Charge of ene's self the greatest of charges, IV. i. 19.

i. 19.
Chess-playing, illustration from, VI. i. 9.
Chief ministers, the duties of, V. ii. 9.
Chiefs of the princes, the five, VI. ii. 7.
Chiefs in of the princes not a sovereign of the kingdom, II. i. 3: influence of a, different from that of a true sovereign, VII. i. 18.
Childlike, the great man is, IV. ii. 12.
Common relations of life, importance of, to the presentity of the kingdom, IV. i. 11.

prosperity of the kingdom, IV. i. 11. ompass and square, use of the, IV. i. 2. oncert, the character of Confuctus a complete, Condemnation of king Hui of Liang, VIL ii. 1 Confidence of the sovereign, how to obtain, IV. i. 19.

executences, the thought of, should make men execut, VII. ii. 7.

carreful, VII. ii. 7.

Conspicusus mound, monopolizing the, II. ii. 10.

Constitution, benevolence and righteousness part of man's, VII. i. 15.

Conviction, how Mencius brought home, II. ii. 4.

Cookery, I 'Yin's knowledge of, V. i. 7.

Corn, assisting, to grow, II. i. 2.

Corrupt times are provided against by established virtue, VII. ii. 10.

Counciling writers from the ground of profit.

Counselling princes from the ground of prefit, danger of, VI. ii. 4.

counsellors of great men should be morally above them, VII. ii. 34.
Counsels for the government of a kingdom, III.

Courses, two, open to a prince pursued by his enemies, I. ii. 15: of Yao and Shun, open to all, VI. ii. 2.

Court, Mencius would not pay, to a favourite, IV. H. 27.

Cultivation, men's disregard of self-, VI. i. 18: men may become Yaos and Shuns by the, of their principles and ways, VI. ii. 2: of the mind must not be intermitted, VII. ii. 21.

Death or flight, which should be chosen, I. ii. 15: there are things which men dislike more than death, VI. i. 10: how Mencius predicted the, of Pan Chang-kwo, VII. ii. 29.

Decencies may not be expected, where virtues are wanting, VII. i. 44.

Decrees of Heaven, man's duty as affected by the, VII. i. 2.

Deeds, not words or manners, prove mental qualities, IV. i. 16.

quanties, iv. 1. 16.
Defects, men are sensible of bodily, but not of mental or moral, VI. i. 12.
Defence, of Shun's conduct, V. i. 2; 3: of 1 Yin, V. i. 7: of Confucius, V. i. 8: of accepting presents from oppressors of the people, V. ii. 4.

Degeneracy, the progress of, from the three kings to the five chiefs of the princes, and from those princes to their ministers, VI.ii.7.

Deluga, the Chinese, III. i. 4, note 7; ii. 9: IV. ii. 36: VI. ii. 11.

Desires, the regulation of, essential, VII. fi. 35. Developing their natural goodness may make men equal to the ancient sages, IIL i. 1: VII ii. 81.

Dignities, arrangement of, in the Chau dynasty, V. ii. 2.

Dignity, how the ancient scholars maintained their, VII. i. 8: how Mencius maintained his, with the princes, VII. ii. 22.

Disappointment of Mencius with the king Hulang, I. i. 6.

Discrimination of what is right and wrong ment precede vigorous right-doing, IV. ii. 8. Disgraceful means which men take to seek wealth and honour, IV. ii. 33.

Disposition, a man's true, will often appear in small matters, VII. ii. 11.

Disputing, Mencius, not fond of, III. ii. 9. Dissatisfaction with a parent, not necessary unfilial, VL ii. 3.

unfilial, VI. ii. 3.
Division of labour, propriety of the, III. i. 4.
Dostrine, of the Mehists refuted, III. i. 5: heretical, III. ii. 9: of the Mean, quotation from the, IV. i. 12: of the sages, to be advanced to by successive steps, VII. i. 24: on the transmission of, from Yao to Meneius's own time, VII. ii. 33.
Duties which the virtuous and talented owe to the warms and ignorant IV. ii. 7: of different the young and ignorant, IV. ii. 7: of different classes of chief ministers, V. ii. 9.

Duty, man's, how affected by the decrees of Heaven, VII. i. 2: benevolence the path of, VII. ii. 16.

Dynastica, Haiâ, Yin, and Châu, II. i. 1: III. i. 3: V. i. 6: Châu, II. ii. 13: V. ii. 2: the three, III. i. 3: IV. i. 3; ii. 20: Haiâ and Yin, IV. i. 2: Shang or Yin and Châu, IV. i. 7.

Earth, advantages of situation afforded by the, II. ii. 1.

Earth-worm, an over-fastidious scholar compared to an, III. ii. 10.
Education, importance of a ruler attending to,

III. i. 8.

Elated by riches, not to be, a proof of superiority, VII. i. 11.

Emoluments, sarrangement of, in the Chaudynasty, V.iii. 2.

End, the, may justify the means, VII. i. 31.

Enjoyment, man's nature the source of his true, ΫĬĬ. i. 21.

Equanimity of Shun in poverty, and as sovereign, VII. ii. 6.
Repror of a Mohist refuted, III. i. 5; ii. 9.

Errors of Yang. Mo, and Tsze-mo, VII. i. 26;

Evil, a warning to the violently, and the weakly, IV. i. 10: speaking, brings with it evil con-sequences, IV. ii. 9.

Exactions just, should be made with discrimination, VII. ii. 27.

Example, influence of, III. ii. 6: influence of a ruler's, IV. ii. 5: the ancients led men by, VII. ii. 20.

Excellence, how a prince cannot subdue mea merely by his, IV. ii. 16.

Excusing of errors, how Mencius beat down the, II. ii. 9.

Exhortation to benevolence, II. i. 7.

Explanation of friendly intercourse with K'wang Chang, IV. ii. 30: of the different conduct of Tsing and Tage-sze, IV. ii. 81: of Shun's conduct towards his brother, V. i. 8, and towards the sovereign Yao, and his father Kû-stu, V. i. 4: of the odes Hsiâo Pân and K'ai Pâng, VI. ii. 3.

Extreme cases must not be pressed to invalidate a principle, VI. ii. 1.

Failures in evident duty will be accompanied by failures in all duty, VII. i. 44.

Faith, the necessity of, VI. ii. 12.

Fame, a love of, may carry a man over great difficulties, VII. ii. 11.

Father, why a, does not himself teach his own son, IV. i. 18.

Favour to individuals, good government does not lie in, IV. ii. 2: how Mencius acknow-ledged a, VI. ii. 5.

ledged a, VI. ii. 5.
avourite. Mancius would not pay court to a, Pavourite, 1 IV. ii. 27.

Filial piety, to have posterity, the greatest part of, IV. i. 26: in relation to benevolence, &c., IV. i. 27: how Shun valued and exemplified, IV. i. 28: seen in the obsequies of parents, IV. ii. 28: seen in the obsequies of parents, IV. ii. 30: great, of Shun, V. i. 1; 4: of Traing-true seen, VII.

Firmness of Hôi of Liû-haiâ, VII. i. 23. First judgments are not always correct, IV. ii. 28.

Five things which are unfilial, IV. ii. 30: injunctions at an assembly of the princes, VI. ii. 7: ways in which the sage teaches, VII.

Force, submission secured by, II. i. 3.
Forceter refusing to come to the king of Ch'i when called by a flag, V. ii. 7.

Four limbs, principles of the mind compared to the, II. i. 6: different classes of ministers, VII. i. 19.

Fraternal obedience, in relation to righteousness, &c., IV. i. 27: affection of Shun, V. i. 3.

Freedom of Mencius, as unsalaried, to speak out his mind, II. ii. 5.

Friends, carefulness in making, IV. ii. 24. Friendship, the principles of, V. ii. 8; 7; 8.

Gain, the love of, and the love of good, con-trasted, VII. i. 25.

Generosity of Mencius in receiving pupils, VII. ii. 80.

Gifts of princes, how Mencius declined or accepted, II. ii. 8.

Glory the result of benevolent government, II.

God, rulers and teachers assisting to, I. ii. 3: the ordinances of, II. i. 4: IV. i. 4: the decree of, IV. i. 7: who may sacrifice to, IV. ii. 25. Good, sages and worthies delighted in what is, ood, sages and wortenes designed in what is, II. i. 8: importance to a government of loving what is, VI. ii. 18: man is fitted for, and happy in doing, VII. i. 4 (see Nature): people should get their inspiration to, in themselves, VII. i. 10: the love of, and the love of gain contrasted, VII. i. 25: words and principles, what are, VII. ii. 32. Goodness, different degrees of, VII. ii. 25. Government, character of king Hûi's, I. i. 3; 4: the love of music subservient to good, I. ii. 1: bad, of the king of Ch'i, I. ii. 6: of a kingdom, counsels for the III. i. 3: there is an art of, which requires to be studied by rulers and their ministers, IV. i. 1: the administration of, not difficult, IV. i. 6: the influence of king Wan's, IV. i. 13: good, lies in equal measures for the general good, IV. ii. 2: the aged were nourished by king Wan's, VII. i. 22: the wellbeing of the people the first care of a, VII. i. 98

Grain, illustration from growing, I. i. 6. Great, houses, a ruler should secure the esteem of the, IV. i. 6: services, Heaven prepares men for, how, VI. ii. 15.

Great man, Mencius's conception of the, III, ii. 2: makes no mistakes in propriety and right-ecounces, IV. ii. 6: simply pursues what is right, IV. ii. 11: is childlike, IV. ii. 12: in good men a reconciling principle will be found for the outwardly different conduct of, IV. ii. 29: how some are, VI. 1. 15: he who counsels, should be morally above them, VII. ii. 84.

Grief of Mencius at not finding an opportunity to do good, II. ii. 18.

Half-measures of little use, I. i. 8.

Hearts, of men, importance of getting the, II.
ii. 1: IV. i. 9: the pupil of the eye index of the, IV. i. 15: how to nourish the, VII. ii. 35. Heaven, delighting in, and fearing, I. ii. 3: attaining to the royal dignity rests with, I. ii. 14: a man's way in life is ordered by, I. ii. 16: V. i. 8: he who has no enemy in the kingdom is the minister of, II. i. 5: opportunities vouchsafed by, II. ii. 1: only the minister of, may smite a nation, II. ii. 8: the superior of, may smite a nation, II. ii. 8: the superior man does not murmur against, II. ii. 18: submission of States determined by, IV.i.7: Shumgot the throne by the gift of, V.i.5. Heaven's plan in the production of mankind, V. i. 7; ii. 1: Heaven's places, offices, and emoluments, V.ii. 3: has given us, what, V.i. 16: the nobility of, VI. i. 16; prepares men by trials and hardships, VI. ii. 15: by the study of ourselves we come to the knowledge of, VII. i. 1: what may be correctly ascribed to the appointment of, VII. i. 2: conferred nature, the bedily organs a part of the, VII. i. 38: how the superior man regards the will of, VII. ii. 24. Hereditary monarchy, Mencius's views on, V. i. 5; 6.

Heretics, recovered, should not have their old errors cast in their teeth, VII. ii. 26.

Hire, the labourer is worthy of his, III. ii. 4. History, quotations from, III. i. 2; ii. 1. Honour, the true, which men should desire, VI.

Husbandry, importance of, III. i. 3: VII. i. 22; 23: a ruler should not labour at, with his own hands, III. i. 4.

Hypocrisy, Shun defended against a charge of, V. i. 2.

Imperial or royal government, characteristic of, I. i. 7: dignity, attained by true royal government, I. il. 5: II. i. 5; and by doing what is good and right, I. il. 14: government, Mencius wished to see, and could have realized, a true, II. i. 1 : sovereign should arise every 500 years II. ii. 18: sway, not one of the things in which the superior man delights, V.II. i. 20.

Impulses must be weighed in the balance of reason, IV. ii. 28. Inability, defined, I. i. 7.

Inauspicious words, what are most truly, IV. ii. 17.

Influence, of king Wan's government, IV. i. 18: a man's, depends on his personal example and conduct, VII. ii. 9: Po-1 &c.; proved to be sages by the permanence of their, VII. ii. 15.

Injunctions, five, in an assembly of the princes, VI. ii. 7.

Insinuations of Shun-yü K'wan, how Mencius repelled the, VI. ii. 6.

Inspiration to good, people should get in them-selves, VII. i. 10.

Instrumentality of others affects one's way in life, how far, I. ii. 16.

Intercourse with neighbouring kingdoms, I. ii. 8: of Mencius with the princes of his time, III. ii. i.

Internal, the foundation of righteousness is, VI. i. 4; 5.

Judgment concerning Po-1 and Hûi of Liû-hsiâ. II. i. 9.

Judgments, first, not always correct, IV. ii. 23: of character, how men form wrong, VIL i.

Killing a sovereign, not necessarily murder, I. ii. 8: men, a prince should not have pleasure in, I. i. 6: the character of, does not depend on the instrument used, I. i. 4: the innocent, consequences of, IV. ii. 4.

Kingdom, by whom the torn, may be united, L. i. 6: king Hûi's competence to obtain the, L. i. 7: employment of Mencius would be for the good of the whole, II. ii. 12: the State, and the Family, dependent on the Head of the Kingdom, IV. i. 5: the way to get the, IV. i. 9: VII. ii. 13: tranquillity of, dependent on what, IV. i. 11: a drowning, IV. i. 17: how Shun got the, V. i. 5: how Shun would have regarded giving up the, VII. i. 85. Kingdoms, intercourse with neighbouring, I. ii.

3: the disposal of, rests with the people, I. ii. 10.

Kings, the three, VI. ii. 7. Knowledge ought to be pursued, how, IV. ii. 26.

Labour, propriety of the division of, III. i. 4: only that, to be pursued which accomplishes the object, VII. i. 29. Labourer, the, is worthy of his hire, III. ii. 4. Law in himself, a man has but to obey, the, VII.

i. 17.

Learner(s), teachers of truth must not lower their lessons to suit. VII. i. 41: himself, real their lessons to suit, VII. i. 41: himself, real attainment must be made by the, VII. ii. 5.

Learning inwrought into the mind, the value of, IV. ii. 14: consists in seeking the lest mind, VI. i. 11: must not be by halves, VI. L 20.

Leaving Lû and Ch't, Confucius's different, VII. ii. 17

Lessons, the, of the sage, reach to all classes, VII. i. 40.

Lettered class conducting government, propriety of a, III. i. 4.

Life, not nature, VI. i. 8: there are things which en like more than, VI. i. 10.

Limbs, the principles of the mind compared to the, II. i. 6.

Lingering, Mencius, in Ch'1, II. ii. 12.

Little men, how some are, VI. i. 15. Lords of reason, how some are, VI. i. 15. ses, how a ruler may take astisfaction for. I. i. 5.

Loving what is good, importance of, to govern-ment, VI. ii. 13.

Man, the nobility that is of, VI. i. 16: the honour that is of, VI. i. 17: the duty of, as affected by the decrees of Heaven, VII. i. 2: is fitted for, and happy in doing good, VII.
i. 4: has but to obey the law in himself, VII. i. 17: benevolence in relation to, VII. ii. 16.
Marriage of Shun justified, IV. i. 26: V. i. 2.
Masters, be not many, IV. i. 23.
Mean, doctrine of the, referred to, IV. ii. 7: Confucius kept the, IV. ii. 10: Teang held fast the, IV. ii. 20.
Means, the end may possibly justify the, VII.

i. 31.

Measure, with what, a man metes, it will be measured to him again, IV. i. 4.

Medium, Confucius and Mencius called to the pursuit of the right, VII. ii. 37.
Men, importance of a prince gaining the hearts of, II. ii. 1.

Mental qualities proved by deeds, not by words,

IV. L 16. Messenger, Mencius offended because a prince sent for him by a, II. ii. 2. Middle Kingdom, the, L i.7: III. i. 4: ii. 9: V.

L 5: VL ii. 10.

Mind, all men are the same in, VL i. 7: in danger of being injured by poverty and a mean condition, VII. i. 27: the cultivation of the, must not be intermitted, VII. ii. 21.

Minister(s), care to be exercised in employing, L ii.7: the, of Heaven only may smite a nation, II. ii. 8: Meneius condemns the pursuit of warlike schemes by, IV. i. 14: the truly great, directs his efforts to the sovereign's character, IV. i. 20: will serve their sovereign according as he treats them, IV. ii. 8: the duties of chie As he treats them; IV. ii. 5: the duties of chief, V. ii. 9: of Mencius's time pandered to their sovereign's thirst for wealth and power, VI.
ii. 9: four different classes of, VII. i. 19.
Moral, beauty alone truly excellent, IV. ii. 25:
excellence, the superior man cultivates, IV.
ii. 28: influences, the value of, to a ruler, VII.

i. 14.

Mountain, illustration from the trees of the New, VI. i. 8.

Mourning for parents, I. ii. 16: III. i. 2: V. i. 4; 5; 6: VII. i. 39; 46.

Mugwort, illustration taken from, IV. i. 9.

Murder, what Shun would have done if his father had committed a, VII. i. 35.
Murmur, at the hardest measures, when the people will not, VII. i. 12.

Music, the love of, I. ii. 1: the richest fruit of,
IV. i. 27: of Yū and king Wān, VII. ii. 22.

Music-master, the grand, I. ii. 4.

Nature, the, of man good, III. i. 1: VI. i. 1; 2; 6; 7: not to be confounded with the p nomena of life, VI. i. 8: appears as if it were not good, how, VI. i. 8; 9: to love righteous ness more than life is proper to man's, VL i. 10: how men should seek the lost qualities of their, VI. i. 11: relative importance of the different parts of the, VI. i. 14: Heaven is served by obeying our, VII. i. 1: man's own

ì

i

the most important thing to him, &c., VII. i. 21 : of man, and the appointment of Heaven, VII. ii. 24.

Natural benevolence and righteousness of man, only requires development to be more than sufficient, VII. ii. 81.

Neighbouring kingdoms, intercourse with, I.

Nobility that is of Heaven and that is of man, VI. i. 16.

Nourishment, the nature of man seems bad from not receiving its proper, VI. i. 8: of the different parts of the nature, VI. i. 14.

Object of Confucius and Mencius, what was the, VII. ii. 87.

Obscurity, how what Shun was, discovered itself in his greatest, VII. i. 16.

Obstinate adherence to a course deemed right, against, VII. i. 26.

Odes, quotations from the, I. i. 2; 7; ii. 3; 5: II. i. 3; 4: III. i. 3; 4; ii. 1; 9: IV. 1; 2; 4; 7; 9: V. i. 2; 4; ii. 7: VI. i. 6; 17: VII. i. 32; ii. 19.

Office, Mencius giving up his, II. ii. 10; 11; 12; 13; 14: VI. ii. 6: to be sought, but only by the proper path, III. ii. 3: V. i. 8: may be taken on account of poverty, when, V. ii. 5: the proper path, III. ii. 3: V. i. 8: may be taken on account of poverty, when, V. ii. 5: grounds of taking and leaving, VI. ii. 14. Officiousness, Mencius repelling, II. ii. 11. Opposition of Mencius to warlike ambition, VI. ii. 8.

Ox, king Hûi's compassion for an, I. i. 7.

Parents, burial of, III. i. 5 (see Mourning): the right manner of serving, IV. i. 19; ii. 18. Parks and hunting, the love of, &c., I. ii. 2.

Parts of the nature, relative importance of different, VI. i. 14.

Passion-nature, Mencius nourished his, II. i. 2. Pecuniary considerations, Mencius not in-fluenced by, II. ii. 10.

People, rulers must share their pleasures with the, I. i. 2: love of valour may subserve the good of the, I. ii. 3: the disposal of kingdoms rests with the, I. ii. 10: the affections of, only secured by benevolent government, I. ii. 12: IV. i. 9: people's happiness disregarded by the ministers of Mencius's time, IV. i. 14: the part of the, in making a sovereign, V. i. 5: how to promote the virtue of the, VII. i. 28: the most important element in a nation, VII.

Personal character, importance of, IV. i. 5. Phenomena, importance of carefully studying. IV. ii. 26.

Pictures of Po-1 and Hûi of Liû-hsia, II. i. 9. Pleasure, rulers must share with the people, I. i. 2; ii. 1; 4.
Position, how one's material, affects his air, VII.

i. 36.

Poverty, when office may be taken on account of, Y. ii. 5: importance of not allowing the mind to be injured by, VII. i. 27: equanimity of Shun in, VII. ii. 6.

Praise and blame not always according to desert, IV. i. 21.

Precious things, three, of a prince, VII. ii. 28. Precipitate advances will be followed by speedy retreats, VII. i. 44.

Prediction of Pan-ch'ang Kwo's death by Mencius, VII. ii. 29.

Prepares himself for the duties to which he aspires, how a scholar, VII. 1. 38.

Presents, Mencius defends accepting, from oppressors of the people, V. ii. 4: of a prince to a scholar, how to be made and accepted, V. ii. 6: how Mencius acknowledged, VI. ii. 6: Presumptuous idea of Po (Pai) Kwei, that he could regulate the waters better than Yū did, VI. ii. 11.

Prince, a, should employ ministers, how, I. ii. 7: should depend on himself, not on other powers, I. ii. 18: threatened by neighbours should act, how, I. ii. 14: two courses open to, when pursued by his enemies, I. ii. 15: should get the hearts of men, II. ii. 1: slighting Mencius, II. ii. 2: the, who sets about practising benevolent government has none to fear, III. ii. 5: benevolence the only security of a, IV. i. 7: a vicious, the agent of his own ruin, IV. i. 8: importance of rectifying a, IV. i. 20: presents of a, to a scholar, how to be made and accepted, V. ii. 6: three precious things of a, VII. ii. 28.

Princes, the only topics of Mencius with, I. i. 1: a chieftain of the, not a sovereign of the kingdom, U.i. 3: the, of Mencius's time failed in true royal government, II. i. 5: Mencius declining or accepting gifts of, II. ii. 5: III ii. 4: Mencius's reserve with the, of his time, III. ii. 1: Mencius defends himself for not 111. ii. 1: Mencius defends himself for not going to see the, III. ii. 7: why a scholar should decline going to see, when called by them, V. ii. 7: danger of counselling, from the ground of profit, VI. ii. 4: influence of a chief among the, different from that of a true sovereign, VII. 1. 13: of his time, Mancius censures the, VII. i. 46: how Mencius maintained his own dignity with the, VII. ii. 34. rinciples, one must live or die with his &c.

Principles, one must live or die with his, &c., VIL i. 42, Profit, secondary to benevolence and righteous-ness, L. i. 1: VI. ii. 4. Progress of degeneracy in successive ages, VI.

ij. 7.

Prompt action, necessity of, at the right time. IV. H. 4.

Propriety, belongs naturally to man, II. i. 6: parents should be served, &c., according to, III. i. 2: help to the world should be given according to, IV. i. 17: the richest fruit of, IV. i. 27: the great man makes no mistakes in, IV. ii. 6: the superior man preserves, IV. ii. 28: importance of observing the rules of, VI. ii. 1.

Prosperity of a country, on what dependent, I. LÌ.

Pupil of the eye, the index of the heart, IV. i. 15. Purity, pretended, of Ch'an Chung, III. ii. 10.

Record, quotation from a, III. ii. 8.

Remote, against aiming at what is, VII. ii. 32.
Repelling officiousness, Mencius, II. ii. 11.
Reproof, the benefit of, IV. i. 22: Mencius's, of Yo-ching, IV. i. 24; 25: of Kung-sun Ch'an, VIL i. 89.

Reputation, the value of, to a ruler, VII. i. 14. Reserve, Mencius defends his, with the princes of his time, III. ii. 1.

Respected, that a scholar be, is essential to his engaging in a prince's service, VII. i. 37.
Riches, not to be elated by, a proof of superiority,

Righteousness belongs naturally to man, II. i. 6: VI. i. 1: the straight path, IV. i. 10: fraternal obedience the richest fruit of. IV. i. 27: the great man makes no mistakes in, IV. ii.6: internal, not external, VI. i. 4; 5: to be loved more than life, VI. i. 10.

Ripe grain, illustration from, VI. i. 19.

Ritual Usages, quotation from the, III. ii. 2.

Royal government, the great principles of, I. i.

3; 4: will assuredly raise to the supreme dignity, I. ii. 5: various points of, neglected in Mencius's time, II. i. 5. Ruin, a vicious prince the agent of his own, IV.

Rulers, should share their pleasures with the people I. i. 2: should follow the advice of the wise, L. ii. 9: should sympathize with the people in their joys and sorrows, I. ii. 4: should not labour at husbandry with their own hands, III. i. 4: should study the example and principles of the ancient kings, IV. i. 1; 3: importance of benerolence to, IV. i. 3: ruler's example, influence of, IV. ii. 5: will not be murmured at when their aim is evidentily the people's good, VII. i. 12: the value of reputation and moral influences to, VII. i. 14.

Rules, the necessity of governing according to, IV. i. 1; 2.

Sacrifice, allusions to, III. i. 2; ii. 3; 5: IV. ii. 25; 33: VI. ii. 6: VII. ii. 14.
Sage, Mencius not a, II. i. 2: only with a, does the body act according to its design, VII. i. 88: the lessons of the, reach to all classes, VII. i. 40.

Sages, when they srise, will agree with Mencius, III. ii. 9: the human relations perfectly exhibited by, IV. i. 2: the agreement of, not affected by place or time, IV. ii. 1: are distinguished from other men, how, IV. ii. 1; 19; 20; 21; 22: just like other men, IV. ii. 82: VI. i. 7: Confucius superior to all other, V. ii. 1: the great doctrines of the, to be advanced to, by successive steps, VII. i. 24: Po-1, &c., proved to be, by the permanence of their influence, VII. ii. 15: definition of a, VIL ii. 25: the perfect virtue of the highest, VII. ii. 88.

Satisfied, how an adviser of the princes may be always perfectly, VII. i. 9.

Scholar(s), the, ought to be remunerated, III. ii. 4: may accept presents from a prince, on what principles, V. ii. 6: should decline going to see the princes when called by them, why, V. ii. 7: forming friendships, rules for, V. ii. 8: ancient, maintained the dignity of their character, &c., how, VII. i. 8: prepares himself for the duties to which he aspires, VII. i. 33: must be respected in order to his engaging in the service of a prince, VII. i. 37.

Self, the charge of, greatest, IV. i. 19.

Self-cultivation, men's disregard of, VI. i. 13.

Self-examination recommended, IV. i. 4: the superior man practises, IV. ii. 28.

Self-restraint necessary to a ruler, L ii. 4.
Selling himself, Pāi-li Hst vindicated from the charge of, V. i. 9.

Senses, all men have the same, VI. i. 7: come are slaves of the, VI. i. 15. Settling the kingdom, I. i. 6.

Shame, the value of the feeling of, VII. i. 6; 7.

Sheep-dates, Trang-tare could not eat, VIL ii. 36. Shifts, Mencius put to, II. ii. 2.

Shû-ching, quotations from the, I. i. 2; ii. 3; 11: IL i. 4: III. i. 1; ii. 5; 9: IV. i. 8: V. i. 5: VI. ii. b: with what reservation Mencius read the, VII. ii. 8.

Sickness, Mencius pretends, II. it. 2.
Sincerity, the great work of men should be to strive after perfect, IV. i. 12.

Slaves of sense, how some are, VI. i. 15. Sorrow of Shun on account of his parents' aliens-tion from him, V. i. 1. Sovereign, killing a, not necessarily murder, L ii. 8: of the kingdom, who is a, IL i. 3: importance of having virtuous men about a, III.

ii. 6: sovereign's example, influence of, IV.
ii. 5: influence of a true, VII. i. 18: a, the least important element of a nation, VII. ii.

Sovereigns, will be served by their ministers according as they treat them, IV. ii. 3: the ministers of Mencius's time pandered to their, VL ii. 9.

Spirit-man, who is a, VII. ii. 25.
Spirits, tutelary, the importance of, to a nation,
VII. ii. 14.

'Spring and Autumn,' the, referred to, III. ii.9: IV. ii. 21: VII. ii. 2. State, three things important in the administration of a, VII. ii. 12.

States, intércourse of neighbouring, L. ii. 3; rise and fall of, dependent on benevolence, IV. i. 8: subjection of, to one another, determined differently at different times, IV. i. 7.

Straits, why Confucius was reduced to, VII. ii. 18.

Subjection of one State to another, how determined, at different times, IV. i. 7.

Successive steps, the doctrines of the sages to be advanced to, by, VII. i. 24. Superior man, the, keeps away from his cook-room, I. i. 7: helps men to practise virtue, II. i. 8: will not follow narrow-mindedness, &c., II. i. 9: will not take a bribe, II. ii. 3: will not be niggardly in burying his parents, II. ii. 7: of ancient and of modern times contrasted, II. ii. 9: does not murmur against Heaven, &c., II. ii. 18: makes difficulty about taking office, why, III. ii. 8: the spirit nourished by, may be known, how, III. ii. 7: does not himself teach his son, why, IV. i. 18: wishes to get hold of what he learns, as in himself, IV. ii. 14; 15: is ashamed of as in himself, IV. ii. 14; 15: is ashamed of a reputation beyond his merits, IV. ii. 18: cultivates moral excellence, &c., IV. ii. 28: may be deceived, in what respects, V. i. 2: all do not understand the conduct of, VI. ii. 6: serves his prince, how, VI. ii. 8: taking and leaving office, grounds of, VI. ii. 14: has three things in which he delights, VII. i. 20: finds his true enjoyment in his own nature, VII. i. 21: gmarior man's services in a VII. i. 21: superior man's services to a country, without his being in office, entitle him to support, VII. i. 32: is kind to creatures, loving to men, and affectionate to his relatives, VII. i. 45: speaks of his nature, and of the will of Heaven, how, VII. ii. 24: the words and the principles of, VII. ii. 23. Superiority, not to be elated by riches, a proof of, VII. i. 11.

Sympathy of a ruler with the people in their jey and sorrows, L ii. 4.

Talents, and virtue, how to know men of, L ii. 7: a ruler should be guided by men of, I. ii. 9: duties owing by men of, to those who have not, IV. ii. 7.

Taxation, III. i. 3; ii. 8: VI. ii. 10.

Teacher, a, in a higher place than a minister, IV. ii. 31: of truth, must not lower his lessons to suit learners, VII. i. 41.

Teaching, refusing to teach, may also be a way of, VL ii. 16.

Territory, emoluments regulated according to the extent of, in a State, V. ii. 2.

Thought, how many act without, VII. i. 5.

Three, things universally acknowledged to be honourable, II. ii. 2: kings, the, VI. ii. 7: things in which the superior man delights, things in which the superior man delights, VII. i. 20: things important in the administration of a State, VII. ii. 12: precious things of a prince, VII. ii. 28.

Throne, the, descended to Yû's son, and not to his minister, why, V. i. 6.

Thumb amongst the fingers, Ch'an Chung compared to the, III. ii. 10.

Tonies of Maneire, with princes V i 1. 7. III.

Topics of Mencius, with princes, I. i. 1; 7: IL. ii. 2.

Touch, males and females must not allow their hands to, IV. i. 17.

Tours of inspection of the ancient kings, I. ii. 4 : VL il. 7.

Tranquillity of the kingdom dependent on the discharge of the common duties of life, IV.

Transmission of doctrine from Yao to Mencius. VIL IL 38.

Trials and hardships, how Heaven prepares men by, VI. ii. 15.

Triffes, Meneius censures the princes of his time for occupying themselves with, VII. i. 46.
Trouble and affliction, the benefits of, VII. i.

Truth, how Mencius required the simple pursuit of, in his pupils, VII. i. 43.

Tyrant, what will be the fate of a, IV. i. 2.

Ulcer-doctor, Confucius charged with lodging with an, V. i. 8.

Unfilial, five things which are, IV. ii. 20. Unperturbed mind, Mencius had attained to an,

Unsalaried, Mencius free to speak his opinion, &c., because, II. il. 5; 14.

Unworthy associate, Mencius's behaviour with a, II. ii. 6.

Valour, the love of, I, ii. 8: how nourished, I l.

Villages, the good careful people of the, described, VII. ii. 87.

Vindication of 1 Yin, V. i. 7: of Confucius from the charge of lodging with unworthy charac-ters, V. i. 3: of Pai-It Hat, V. i. 9: of Mencius from the charge of eating the bread of idleness, VII. i. 82.

VII. i. 32.

Virtue, real, submission secured only by, II. i.

3: friendship must have reference to the, of the friend, V. ii. 3: is sure to be gained by seeking it, but external things not, VII. i. 3: man may attain to perfect, VII. i. 4: of the people, how to promote, VII. i. 23: corrupt times are provided against by established, VII.
ii. 10: of the highest sages, VII. ii. 33.

Virtuous men, importance of having, about a sovereign's person. III. ii. 6.

sovereign's person, III. ii. 6. Fex populi vos Dei, V. i. 5.

Warlike and other schemes of the ministers of his time condemned by Mencius, IV. ii. 14: VI. ii. 8.

Warning to the violently evil and the weakly evil, IV. i. 10: to Sung Ch'ang, VI. ii. 4: to the contending States of Mencius's time, VII. ii. 2.

Wars, all the, in the Ch'un-ch'iû were un-righteous, VII. ii. 2: counsels against, VII. ii. 4.

Way, a man's, in life, erdered by Heaven, I. ii.
16: of truth like a great road, VI. ii. 2.
Wealth, the love of, compatible with royal government, I. ii. 5: diagraceful means which men take to seek, IV. ii. 33: and power, the ministers of Mondus's time pandered to their sovereigns' thirst for, VI. ii. 9.
Well-heirs of the records the first sere of a

Well-being of the people, the first care of a government, in order to their virtue, VII. 1. 28.

Well, digging a, VII. i. 29.
Will, the, is the leader of the passion-nature, II. i. 9.

Willow, man's nature compared to the cit, VI. i. 1.

Wisdom, the richest fruit of, IV. i. 27.

Words, Mancins understood, II. i. 2: what are most truly inauspicious, IV. ii. 17. World, one cannot avoid all connexion with thos e whom he disapproves, in the, III.

Wrongs should be put right at once, III, ii, 8.

INDEX II.

OF PROPER NAMES.

Names in Italics will be found in their own places in this Index, with additional references.

Chang Î, a celebrated scholar of Wei, III. ii. 2. Chang K cong Chang, a minister of Ch'i, IV. ii. 30. Ch'ang Hsi, a disciple of Kung-ming Kao, V. i. 1 ; ii. 8. Chang, the State of, IV. ii. 2; 24: V. i. 2; VII. ii. 37. Ching, a minister of the State of Ch'an, V. i. 8. Ch'ang Chien, a person whose words are quoted, III. i. 1. Ch'an, the State of, V. i. 8: VII. ii. 18; 87. Ch'an Chan, a disciple of Mancius, II. ii. 8; 10; VI. ii. 14: VII. ii. 28. Ch'an Chia, an officer of Ch'i, II. ii. 9. Ch'an Chung, an ascetic of Ch'i, III. ii. 10: VII. i. 84. Ch'an Heiang, a disciple of Ch'an Liang, III. ch'an Liang, a philosopher, III. i. 4.

Ch'an Tai, a disciple of Moneius, III. ii. 1.

Châo Chien, a noble of Twin, III. ii. 1.

Châo the Great, a title borne by different ministers of Twin, VI. i 17.

Châo-wû, a hill in the north of Ch'i, L ii. 4. Chau, a city on the northern border of Ch'i, II. ii. 11; 12. II. ii. 11; 12.

Châu, the prince of Ch'ān in the time of Confucius, V. i. 8.

Châu, the State and dynasty, I. ii. 8: II. i. 1; ii. 13: III. i. 8; ii. 5: IV. i. 7; ii. 1: V. i. 4; 6; ii. 2; 4; 7.

Châu, the tyrant, the last sovereign of the Yin dynasty, I. ii. 8: II. i. 1: III. ii. 9: IV. i. 1; 9; 13: V. i. 6; ii. 1: VI. i. 6: VII. i. 9: i. 22. Châu Haiso, a scholar of Wei, III. ii. 8. Chau-kung, or the duke of Chau, II. i. 1; ii. 9: III. i. 1; 4; ii. 9: IV. ii. 20: V.i. 6: VI. ii. 8.
Ch'an, name of the disciple of Mencius, Kungsun Ch'an, II. i. 1; ii. 2; 6; 14; et al.
Chiang, the lady of, I. ii. 5.
Chiang the Vang-hape river, III. i. 4; ii. 9. Chiang, the Yang-tere river, III. i. 4; ii. 9. Chieh, the tyrant, I. i. 2; ii. 8: IV. i. 9: V. i. 6; 7: VI. ii. 2; 6; 9; 10. Chih, a famous robber of the time of Confucius, III. ii. 10: VII. i. 25. Ch'ih Wa, chief criminal judge of Ch'i, II. ii. 5. Chi family, the family of Chi K'ang of Lû, IV. Chi (Tit), name of a stream, III. i. 4. 7. Chi, Hau-chi, Minister of Agriculture to Yao and Shun, IV. ii. 29. Chi Hwan, a favourite of the king of Ch'l, V. Chi Hwan, the Head of the Chi family in the latter days of Confucius, V. i. 4. Chi-shao, name of a piece of music, I. ii. 4. ro. Ch'I, a mountain in Ho-nan, V. i. 6. Ch'I, a small State in Shan-hst, II. i. 1.

Ch'i, name of a mountain, and also of the old State of Chau, I. ii. 5; 14; 15: IV. ii. 1. Ch'i, the name of a stream, VI. ii. 6. 5. Ch'i, the son of the Great Y6, V. i. 6. Ch'i, the State of, I. i. 5; 7; ii. 1; 11; 13; 14: II. i. 1; 2; ii. 2-14: III. i. 1; ii. 1; 5; 6; 16: IV. i. 7; 24; ii. 3; 21; 31; 33: V. i. 4; 8; ii. 1; 7; 8: VI. ii. 5; 6; 8: VII. i. 34; 36; 39; ii. 17; 28; 29. Ch'i Liang, an officer of Ch'i, slain in bettle, VI. ii. 6. Chin, the State of, I. i. 5; 7: IL ii. 2: V. i. 9: VI. i. 4; 12; ii. 4; 6 Ch'in Chang, named Lao, a disciple of Confucius, VII. ii. 87. Ching, a place or people, punished by the duke Hat of La, III. i. 4; ii. 9. Ching, the duke or ruler of Ch'1, I. ii. 4: III. i. 1; ii. 1: IV. i. 7: V. ii. 7. Ching Ch'au, an officer of Ch'i, II. ii. 2. Ching Ch'un, a man who plumed himself on his versatility, III. ii. 2. Chio-shao, name of a piece of music, I. ii. 4. ro. Chit, the name of Zan Chit, a disciple of Confucius, IV. i. 14. Ch'in, in the name of Confucius's Work, the Ch'un-ch'iù. Ch'iû, Chees Ch'iû, a famous chees-player, VI 1. 9. Ch'a, a minister of Ch'i, IV. ii. 32: VI. ii. 5. Ch'a, the State of, I. i. 5; 7; ii. 6; 18: II. ii. 2; III. i. 1; 4; ii. 5; 6; IV. ii. 21: VI. i. 4; 12; il. 4. Chu, name of a State, I. ii. 8. Chu-hain, name of the governor of Ping-la, II. ii. 4. Ch'u, name of a place in Twin, famous for its breed of horses, V. i. 9. breed of horses, Ch'ti-cht, a place in Tain famous for gome, V. i, 9. s. Chung-ni, a name of Confucius, denoting his place in the family, I. i. 4; 7: III. i. 4: IV. ii. 18. Chung-ein, a son of Tang, the founder of the Shang dynasty, V. i. 6. Chung, a place in Ch'i, II. ii. 14. Ch'ung, the mountain, V. i. 8. Ch'ung Yü, a disciple of Mencius, II. ii. 7. Chwang, a street in the capital of Ch'1. III. ii. 6. Chwang Pao, a minister at the court of Ch'l, L ii, 1. Confucius, II. i. 1-4: III. i. 4; ii. 1; 8; 7; 9: IV. i. 2; 7; 14; ii. 18; 21; 22; 29: V. i. 4; 6; 8; ii. 1; 4; 7: VI. i. 6; 8; ii. 8; 6: VII. i. 24; ii. 17; 19; 37; 38.

Fan, a city of Ch'i, VII. i. 86. Fang Fû, an officer of Tain, VII. ii. 38. Fei-lien, a favourite minister of the tyrant __Châu, III. ii. 9. Fû-hsiâ, a place where Shun dwelt, IV. ii. 1. Fû Yûch, the minister of the sovereign Kâc-toung, of the Shang dynasty, VI. ii. 15.

Hai Tang, a famous worthy of Tsin, V. ii. 8. Han, one of the three great families or clans Tain, which afterwards divided the State, and finally claimed to be independent king-doms, VII. i. 11.

Han, the name of a river, still so called, III.i.4. Hao-shang Pu-hai, a man of Ch'1, VII. ii. 25. name of northern streams, the Yellow River, III. il. 9.

Hat, a favourite of Châo Chien, a noble of Tain, III. ii. 1.

Hat, the lady, a celebrated beauty of the time of Confucius, IV. ii. 25.
Haiâ, the dynasty, I. ii. 4: II. i. 1: III. i. 8: IV. i. 2: V. i. 6; 7; ii. 4.
Haiang, honorary epithet of Ho, king of Liang, stang, the half-brother of Shun, V. i. 2; 3: VI. i. 6.

Hsiao, a duke of Wei, V. ii. 4.

Haich, Shun's Minister of Instruction, III. i. 4. Hsieh, the name of an ancient principality adjoining Tang, I. ii. 14: II. ii. 4.

Haieh Chū-châu, a minister of Sung, III. ii. 6. Haieh Liù, Tass-kû, a disciple of the Confucian school, II. ii. 11: III. ii. 8.

Hsien-ch'iù Mäng, a disciple of Mencius, V. i. 4. Hsin, the native place of I Yin, in Ho-nan, V.

i. 7.
Hain, the younger brother of Ch'an Halang,
111. i. 4.

Hsiû, a place in the district of Tang, in present department of Yen-châu, II. ii. 14. Hau Haing, a heresiarch, III. i. 4. Hau Pû, a disciple of Meneus, III. i. 5: IV.

ii. 18.

Hadan, king of Ch'i, L i. 7; ii. 1-11; IV. ii. 8: V. ii. 9; VIL i. 89.

Hsūn-yū, a tribe of barbarians, L. ii. 8. Ha Ho, name of a man of Ch'i, I. i. 7.

Hûi, a duke of Pt, V. ii. 3.

Hûi, posthumous epithet of Yung, king of Liang, I. i. 1-5: VII. ii. I. Hûi of Liû-haiâ, posthumous title of Chan Hwa, an officer of Lû, II. i. 9: V. ii. 1: VI. ii. 6: VII. i. 38; ii. 15.

Hwa Chau, an officer of Ch?, slain in battle,

VI. ii. 6. 5. Hwai, the name of a river, III. i. 4; ii. 9. Hwan, the duke of Ch'i, I. i. 7; ii. 2: IV. ii. 21: VI. ii. 21: VI. ii. 7; ii. 21: VI. ii. 31: VI. ii.

Î, a famous archer, about n.c. 2150, IV. ii. 24 : VI. i. 20 : VII. i. 41.

1 Chih, a follower of Mo, III. i. 5. 1 Yin, the minister of Tang the Successful, II. i. 2; ii. 2: V.i. 6; 7; ii. 1: VI. ii. 6: VII. i. 81; ii. 88.

Kå or Ko, a city in Ch'1, II. ii. 6: III. ii. 10. King, younger brother of the prince of Tang, VII. i. 48.

K'ang, honorary epithet of Fang, a younger brother of king Wû, V. ii. 4.

Kao, Mencius's opponent on the nature of man, named Pú-hái, II. i. 2: VI. i. 1-4; 6. Kao, a disciple of Mencius, II. ii. 12: VII. ii. 21 ; 22.

Kao, a disciple of Taze-hsia, VI. ii. 3.

Kāo-ko, an able minister of the tyrant Châu, II. i. 1: VI. ii. 15.

Kao-t'ang, a place in the west of Ch't, VI.

Kao Yao, Shun's Minister of Justice, III. i. 4: VII. i. 85; ii. 88.

Kau-ch'ien, a prince of Yûch, neighbour and opponent of the king of Wû, in the time of the Lich Kwo, I. ii. 3.

Ko, the name of a State in the present Honan, I. ii. 8; 11: III. ii. 5.

Kū-sau, Shun's father, IV. i. 28: V. i. 2; 4:

VI. i. 6: VII. i. 85.

Kung Chih-ch'i, an officer of the State of Yu,

Kung-1, chief minister of Lt, VI. ii. 6. Kung-liang, an officer of Ch 1, IV. ii. 27. Kung-lit, duke Lit, an ancestor of the House of Chau, I. ii. 5.

Kung-ming I, a disciple first of Taxe-chang, and then of Taxag Shan, III. i. 1; ii. 8; 4: IV. ii, 24.

Kung-ming Kao, a disciple of Toking Shan, V.

Kung-shu, a celebrated mechanist of Lû, named Pan, now the tutelary spirit of carpenters, IV. i. 1.

Kung-sun Ch'au, a disciple of Mencius, II. i. 1; 2; ii. 2; 6; 14: III. ii. 7: IV. i. 18: VI. ii. 8; 18: VII. i. 81; 32; 39; 41; ii. 1; 36.

Kung-sun Yen, a celebrated scholar of Wei, III. ii. 2.

Kung-tû, a disciple of Mencius, II. ii. 5: III. ii. 9: IV. ii. 80: VI. i. 5; 6; 15: VII. i. 48.

K'ung, the surname of Confucius. See Confucius.

Kung Chü-hein, II. ii. 4. Kwan, the, barbarians, I. ii. 8.

Kwan Chung, named I-wû, minister of Hwan, duke of Ch i, II. i. 1; ii. 2: VI. ii. 15.

Kwan-shû, an elder brother of the duke of Châu, II. ii. 9.

K'wan, the father of the great Yu, V. i. 8. Kwang, music-master and wise counsellor of Thin, IV. i. 1: VI. i. 7.

K'wang Chang, a minister of Ch't, III. ii. 10: IV. ii. 30.
K'wei-ch'iû, a place where duke Hwan of Ch'i sasembled the princes, VI. ii. 7.

Lai Chû, a minister of Tang, VII. ii. 88. Lang-ye, a mountain and city in Ch'i, I. ii. 4. Li, a cruel sovereign of the Chân dynasty, VI. i. 6.

Li Lau, called also Li Chu, a man of the time of Hwang Ti, of very acute vision, IV. i. l. Liang, the State of Wei in Tsin, so called from its capital, I. i. 1-6: VII. ii. 1. Ling, a duke of Wei, V. ii. 4.

Ling-ch'iù, a city on the border of Ch'i. II. ii. 5.

La, the native State of Confucius, I. ii. 12; 16;
II. ii. 7: III. i. 2: IV. ii. 21: V. i. 8; ii. 6;
8; 18: VII. i. 24; 36; ii. 17; 37. Lung, an ancient worthy, III. i. 8: VI. i. 7.

Mäng Chi, probably a younger brother of Mäng Chung, VI. i. 5.

Mäng Chung, a nephew, or perhaps a son, of Mencius, II. ii. 2.

Minuthin and Manager Mang Haien, a worthy minister of Lû, V. ii. 8. Mäng Pän, a bravo of Ch'i, II. i. 2. Mang Shih-she, a man of valour, II. i. 2. Mang-tere, Menoius, passim. His name was Ko, I. ii. 16. Mi, an unworthy favourite of duke Ling of Wei, V. i. 8. Mien Ch'û, a man of Ch'i, who taught a slow style of singing, VI. ii. 6. Min Tass-chien, a disciple of Confucius, II. Ming-t'ile, the place where Shun died, IV. ii. 1. Mo, barbarous tribes of the North, VI. ii. 10. Mo Ch'i, a person whose words are quoted, VII. ii. 19. Mo Ti, the heresiarch, III. i. 5; ii. 9: VII. i. Ma, the posthumous epithet of a duke of La, L ii. 12: II. ii. 11: V. ii. 6; 7: VI. ii. 6. Mû, the residence of the tyrant Chieh, V. i. 7.
Mû Chung, a friend of Mäng Haien, V. ii. 3.
Mû P'ei, a disciple of Confucius, described as ambitious, VII. ii. 87. Nan-yang, the name of a place, VI. ii. 8. Niù mountain, the, VI. i. 8. North Sea, the, V. ii. 1. Pän Ch'ang-kwo, an officer of Ch'i, VII. ii. 29. Päng Käng, a disciple of Mencius, III. ii. 4.

Pan Ch'ang-kwo, an officer of Ch't, VII. ii. 29.

Pang Kang, a disciple of Mencius, III. ii. 4.

Pang Mang, the pupil and murderer of the archer I. Iv. ii. 24.

Pei-kung I, an officer of Wei, V. ii. 2.

Pei-kung Yû, a brave of Wei, II. i. 2.

Pt, a city in Lû, V. ii. 3.

Pt Chan, a minister of the State of Tang, III i. 3.

Pt-kang, an uncle of the tyrent Châu, II. i. 1:

VI. i. 6.

Pt-ying, the place where king Wan died, IV:

ii. 1.

Pin, a settlement founded by Kung Liû, I. ii.

14.

Ping, a duke of Lû, I. ii. 16.

Ping, a duke of Tsin, V. ii. 3.

Ping-lû, a city on the southern border of Ch'l,

II. ii. 4: VI. ii. 5.

Po, a city in the present Ho-nan, the capital of Tang, III. ii. 5: V. i. 6; 7.

Po, a famous worthy of the Shang dynasty, II.

ii. 2; 9: III. ii. 10: IV. i. 13: V. ii. 1: VI.

ii. 6: VII. i. 22; ii. 15.

Po Kwei, styled Tan, an ascetic of Châu, VI.

ii. 10; 11.

Po (or Păi)-li Hai, shief minister of duke Mû of Ch'in, V. i. 9: VI. ii. 6; 15.

San Î-shăng, an able minister of king Wăn, VII. ii. 38.

San-miâo, the State of, V. i. 3.

San-wei, a region in the West, V. i. 2.

Shăn Haiang, a son of Tase-chang, one of Confucius's disciples, II. ii. 11.

Shăn Kû-li, a minister of Iâ, VI. ii. 8.

Shăn-năng, the second of the five early Tt, III. i. 4.

Shăn Tung, a minister of Ch'i, II. ii. 8.

Shăn-yû Hsing, a disciple and friend of Tsăng-tere, and a member of the Shan-yu clan, IV. ii. 31. Shang, the dynasty, III. ii. 5: IV. i. 7. Shih, an officer of Ch'i, II. ii. 10. Shih-ch'id, a place in Sung, VI. ii. 4. Shun, the ancient sovereign, styled Ti, II. i. 2; 8; ii. 2: III. i. 1; 4; ii. 4; 9: IV. i. 1; 2; 26; 28; ii. 1; 19; 28; 32: V. i. 1-7; ii. 1; 8; 6: VI. i. 6; ii. 2; 3; 8; 10; 15: VII. i. 16; 25; 30; 35; 46; ii. 6; 38; 37; 38. Shun-yū K'wān, a famous sophist of Ch'i, IV. i. 17: VI. ii. 6. i. 17: VL. ii. 6.

South river, the, V. i. 5.
Sun-shû Åo, chief minister of king Chwang of Ch'û, VI. ii. 15.
Sung, the State of, II. i. 2; ii. 4: III. i. 1; 4; ii. 5: V. i. 8: VII. i. 36. Sung K'ang, a travelling scholar, VI. ii. 4. Sung Kau-chien, a travelling scholar, VII. i. 9. Sze, the name of a stream, III. i. 4. Tai, elder brother of Ch'an Chung, III. ii. 10. Tai Pu-shang, a minister of Sung. III. ii. 6. Tai Ying-chih, a Great Officer of Sung, III. ii. 8. T'à, the name of a stream, III. i. 4.
T'ài, an ancestor of the House of Châu, the duke Tam-No, who received from king We the title of king, I. ii. 5; 14; 15.

Tai, the mountain on the border between IA and Ch. J. i. 7: II. i. 2: VII. i. 24. T'ai-chia, son and successor of Tang, II. i. 4: IV. i. 8: V. i. 6: VII. i. 31. Tai-kung, the great counsellor of kings Wan and Wo, IV. i. 18: VII. i. 22; ii. 38.

Tai-ting, the eldest son of Tang, V. i. 6.

Tan-chū, the son of Yao, V. i. 6.

Tan-fū, Tai, an ancestor of the House of Chāu, I. ii. 5. Tang, the founder of the Shang dynasty, L. i. 2; ii. 3; 8; 11: II. i. 1; 8: ii. 2; 12: III. ii. 5: IV. i. 9; ii. 20: V. i. 6; 7: VI. ii. 2; 6: VII. i. 30; ii. 4; 33; 33.
Tang, a place where grain was stored in Ch'l, VII. ii. 23. Tang, the small State of, I. ii. 18; 14; 15: II. ii 6: III. i. 1-4: VII. i. 43; ii. 80. Tao Ying, a disciple of Mencius, Tien, a son of a king of Ch'i, VII. i. 33. Ting, a duke of Ting, III. i. 2.
That Wo, a disciple of Confucius, II. i. 2.
Th'ai, the State of, VII. ii. 18. Tsang Ts'ang, a favourite of duke Ping of La, I. ii. 16. Ts'ang-liang, a stream in Shan-tung, IV. i. 8.
Tsing Shän, the disciple of Confucius and philosopher, I. ii. 12: II. i. 2; ii. 2: III. i. 2; 4; ii. 7: IV. i. 19; 81: VII. ii. 36.
Tsing Hai, Tsing Shän's father, IV. i. 19: VII. ii. 36; 37 Tring Hat, the grandson of Tring Shin, II. i. 1. Twing Yian, son of Twing Shan, IV. i. 1.
Twing Yian, son of Twing Shan, IV. i. 19.
Twino, the principality of, VI. ii. 2.
Twin, the native State of Mancius, I. i. 7; ii.
12: II. ii. 12: III. i. 2: VI. ii. 1; 2; 5.
Twin, a river in the State of Chang, IV. ii. 2.
Twin, the State of, I. i. 1, note; 5; 7: III. ii. 3:
IV. ii. 21: V. i. 9; ii. 8: VII. ii. 22.
Tweedo. Wang Rissen, the governor of Ka in Tuze-do, Wang Rhom, the governor of Kå in Ch'i, IV. i. 24; 25; ii. 27.

Tuze-ch'an, named Kung-sun Chiâo, the chief minister of Châng, IV. ii. 2: V. i. 2.

Tuze-chang, a disciple of Confucius, II. i. 2; 4.

Tase-chih, the minister of Tase-k'wai of Yen. II. ii. 8. Taxe-cho Zû, an archer of, IV. ii. 24. Taze-haia, a disciple of Confucius, II. i. 2: III. Tese-helang, a disciple of Trang-tase, II. i. 2. Tame-kung, a disciple of Confucius, II. i. 2: Tame-kung, a disciple of Confucius, a. a. a. III. i. 4.

Tame-kwai, a king of Yen, II. ii. 8.

Tame-lû, Heist Lis, VI. ii. 6.

Tame-lû, the designation of Chung Yû, a disciple of Confucius, II. i. 1; 8: III. ii. 7: V. i. 8.

Tame-mo, a philosopher of Lû, VII. i. 26.

Tame-ahû I, a man who pushed himself into the service of government, II. ii. 10. Taxe-se, the grandson of Confucius, II. ii. 11: IV. ii. 31: V. ii. 3; 6; 7: VI. ii. 6.
Taxe-th, an officer of Chang, remarkable for his beauty, VI. i. 7.
Taxe-yh, a disciple of Confucius, II. i. 2; 4.
Tung-kwo family, the, a branch of the family of duke Hwan of Ch'1, II. ii. 2.
Twan Kapenin a scholar of Wei, III. ii. 7. Twan Kan-mû, a scholar of Wei, III. ii. 7. Wai-ping, a son of the sovereign Tang, V. i. 6. Wan, the king, I. i. 2; 7; ii. 2; 8; 5; 10: II.
i. 1; 8: III. i. 1; 8; ii. 5; 9: IV. i. 7; 18;
ii. 1; 20: VI. i. 6; ii. 2: VII. i. 10; 22; ii.
19; 22; 88. Wan, the duke of Tang, I. ii. 18; 14: III. i. 1; 8; 4. Wan, the duke of Tsin, I. i. 7: IV. ii. 21. wan, ane duke of Tain, 1. 1, 7: IV. ii. 21.

Wan Chang, a disciple of Mencius, III. ii. 5:

V. i. 1; 2; 8; 5-9; ii. 8; 4; 6; 8: VII. ii. 37.

Wang Hwan, Taze-ao, the governor of Ka in Ch'i, II. ii. 6.

Wang Liang, charioteer to Châo Chien, III. ii. 1. Wang Pao, a man of Wei, teacher of an abrupt style of singing, VI. ii. 6.

Wang Shun, an officer of the duke of Pi, V. ii. 8.

Wei, the State of, IV. ii. 24: V. i. 8; ii. 4.

Wei, one of the three families which ruled the State of Twin, VII. i. 11. Wei, a small State in what is now Shan-hat, II. i. 1: VI. i. 6. Wei, a river in Chang, IV. ii. 2. Wa, the State of, I. ii. 8: IV. i. 7; $1. Wû, son of king Wân, and joint founder of the Châu dynasty, I. ii. 3; 8; 10: II. i. 1; ii. 7: III. ii. 9: IV. i. 9; ii. 20: VI. i. 6: VII. i. 30; ii. 4; 83.

Wû-ch'ing, a city in Lû, IV. ii. 31. Wû Hwo, a man noted for his strength, VI.

Wû-ling, a wild place in what is now the department of Tu-nan, III. ii. 10.

Wû-lû, a disciple of Mencius, VI. ii. 1; 5. Wû-ting, a sovereign of the Shang dynasty, II. Yang Ch'ang, a city in what is now Ho-nan, Yang Chû, a heresiarch, probably between the times of Confucius and Mencius, III. ii. 9: VII. i. 26; ii. 26. Vall. 1: 20; 11: 30; Yang Hû, the chief minister of the Ch'1 family in L0, III. i. 3; ii. 7 Yao, the Ti sovereign, II. i. 2; ii. 2: III. i. 1; 4; ii. 4; 9: IV. i. 1; 2; ii. 32: V. i. 3-7; ii. 1; 6: VI. i. 6; ii. 6; 8; 10: VII. i. 30; 46; ii. 6; 32; 37; 38. Yellow River, the, VI. ii. 6. Yen, the kingdom of, III. ii. 9. Yen, the State of, I. ii. 10; 11: II. ii. 8; 9. Yen, chief minister of Ch. I. ii. 4: II. i. 1. (Written also Ngom and Gom.) Yen Ch'au-yû, a worthy officer of Wei, V. i. 8. Yen Hûi, the favourite disciple of Confucius, IV. ii. 29. Yen Pan, a son of Yen Hûi above, V. ii. 3. Yen Yuan, i. q. Yen Hûi, II. i. 2: III. i. 1 YI, a minister of Shun and of Yū, III. i. 4: V. i. 6. Yi-ya, the cook of duke Hwan of Ch'i, VI. i. 7. Yin, State and dynasty of, II. i. 1; ii. 9: III. i. 3: IV. i. 2; 7: V. ii. 4: VII. ii. 4. Yin-kung To, a famous archer, IV. ii. 24. Yin Sze, a man of Ch'i, II. ii. 12. Ying, a place between Ch'i and Lô, II. ii. 7. Yo, a quarter in the capital of Ch'i, III. ii. 6. Yo-chang, a disciple of Mencius, I. ii 16: IV. i. 24; 25: VI. ii. 18: VII. ii. 25. Yo-chang Ch'in, a friend of Mang Heien, V. ii. 2 Yû, a cruel sovereign of the Châu dynasty, VI. Yu-chau, a place somewhere about the north of the present Chih-li, V. i. 3.
Yû Zo, a disciple of Confucius, II. i. 2.
Yû, the Great, founder of the Haiâ dynasty and of the feudal State, II. i. 8: III. i. 4; 9: IV. ii. 20; 26; 29: V. i. 6: VI. ii. 11: VII. ii. 22 ; 88. Yū, a small State adjoining Tsin, V.i.9: VI.ii.6. Yū, the mountain, V. i. 3. Yū-kung Sze, an archer of Wei, IV. ii. 24. Yūch, the State of, IV. ii. 31: VI. ii. 3.

Zăn, a small State, VI. ii. I; 5. Zan Niû, a disciple of Confucius, II. i. 2. Zan Yû, grand-tutor of the prince of Tang, III i. 2. Z0, the name of a stream, UII. L 4.

INDEX III.

OF CHINESE CHARACTERS AND PHRASES;

INTENDED ALSO TO HELP TOWARDS THE PORMATION OF A DICTIONARY AND CONCORDANCE FOR THE CLASSICS.

In the references, Books are separated by a colon; Parts of the same Book, and Chapters, by a semicolon.

THE 1st RADICAL, ---.

(z) One; sometimes = a, L i. 7. 6, zo, z7; ii. 8. 5; 4. 5, et alibi, saspe. - F, every single individual of all the people, II. i. 1. 8. - j, any one State, and a whole State, IV. i. 6. z. _____ ALL the heart, VII. ii. 87. ra. 一類, VII. ii. 87. ra. 一人, once with a reference to the sovereign, Lii. 8. 7. J. —, a ninth, # ____, a tenth, __ + ___, a twentieth, III. i. 8. 6, 15; ii. 5. 4; 8. 1: VL ii. 10. 1, 4., to hold to one point, be obstinate, VII. i. 26. g. 4. (s) One and the same, exactly similar, VI. i. 14.4; ii. 9.3; VII. i. 90.2, et al. (3) To unite, to be united, I. i. 6. s, 3, 4. (4) As an adverb and conjunction: once, once for all, as soon as, I. i. 5. r; ii. 8. 6, 8; 11. s: III. ii. 1. 1; 2. 1: IV. i. 20, of al. one . . . another, now . . . now, II. ii. 18, s: III. ii. 9, s.

T, a son of the sovereign Tang,

W. i. 6. 5. T, a sovereign of the Yin dynasty, IL i. 1. 8.

Beven, I. i. 8. 4; 7. 24; ii. 2. 1, 2; 11. 1, et al. May be used for the seventh, I. i. 6. 6.

文 (1) Ten oubits, VII. ii. 84. a. (a) 文 夫, a man, III. i. 1. 4. 賤(小) 文 夫, II. ii. 10. 7; 12. 6. 大丈夫, III. ii. 2. x, a, 3. 丈夫—a son, a manchild, III. ii. 8. 6.

(z) He, she, it, this, that, which is above, with the corresponding plurals, spoken of place, time, and rank. Pass , constantly appear as correlates, -superiors and inferiors; high and low; above and below. 上者, 下者, en the high grounds, on the low grounds, or they who were above, they who were below, III. ii. 9. 3. _____ the highest antiquity, III. i. 5. 4. 上刑, the severest punishment, IV. i. 14. g. 士, ♥. ii. 2. 3, 6, 7, 8. 上层, ♥. ii. 2. 9. 7, V. ii. 6. 6. (2) A preposition, following the noun, sometimes with between them, and the noun sometimes preceded by the, and I, upon, above, by, I. i. 7.4; IL i. 6.2; III. ii. 10.z; VII. ii. 15; 80. r. (3) 1 77, God, the most High God, I. ii. 8. 7; IV. i. 7. 5; ii. 28. a. (4) 上宫, name of a palace, VIL il. 80, r.

The grd tone. To ascend, I. ii. 4. 7.

Anciently, the grd tone. (1) He, she, it, this, that, which is below, with the corresponding plurals, spoken of place,

Æ

ch'iú

time, and rank. Pressim. On 上下, as correlates, see 上. 其下, the lowest case, VI. ii. 14. 4. Without 其, V. ii. 2. 9. 下土, V. ii. 2. 3, 6, 7, 8. (s) A preposition, used like 上 above. (3) 下滞, to go below the girdle, VII. ii. 32. z. 為下, to dig to a great depth, IV. i. 1. 6. (4) 天下, the world, = the kingdom, I. i. 8. 5; 5. z; 6. a, 6: V. 1. 3, 4; 8. a; 4. z, 3; 5. z, 2, 5, 6, et al., saeptesime. 昔天之下, V. i. 4. 2. (5) In the name

A verb, to descend, IV. ii. 8, 3, 4. To plant, to rain, I. i. 6.6. The to descend from a carriage, VII. ii. 28, 2. So, To plant, III. i. 4. 15. ? To plant, III. i. 8. 16: and I. ii. 4. 7.

(r) Not. Passim. With other negatives,—莫, 無, 非, 問, it makes a strong affirmative. (a) 不勝, a name, III. ii. 6. r. 不害, also a name, VII. ii. 25. r.

(r) The name of one of Mencius's disciples, Kung-sun Ch'au, II. i. 1. r; 2. r; ii. 2. s; 6. s; 14. r, et al. (s) The name of an officer of Ch'i, Ching Ch'au, II. ii. 2. 4.

ping said, according to the nterpretation of some, to have reigned two years, V.i. 6.5.

(1) And, and moreover, II. i. 1. II; ch'ich 2. 19; ii. 7. 4; 9. 2, 4, et al., saspe. 且 夫, &., III. ii. 1. 3. (2) And, = and yet, and even if, carrying the mind on to anticipate a reply, which is often given by 况 or 而 况 . . . 平, I. i. 4. 5: II. ii. 9. 3: VI. ii. 10. 6. With this meaning, we find 且 掩, II. ii. 12. I: VI. ii. 8. 3, 8. Observe 方 且, III. i. 4. 16. (3) 且 = will, or let me, III. i. 5. I, 2.

Great, III. ii. 9. 6.

以有天下, to possess the throne by hereditary succession, V. i. 6. 4.

(I) A hillock, F. F., II. i. 2. s8. F.

J. III. ii. 1. 5. F., the peasantry (but F. is there a territorial designation), VII. ii. 14. s. (a) The name of Confusius, IV. ii. 21. 3. (3) F., a double surname, V. i. 4. I., s. (4) F., a city of Ch'1, II. ii. 5. I. F., a place in Sung, VI. ii. 4. I., s. F., the place of a famous meeting of princes, VI. ii. 7. 3.

Together, III. i. 4. 3. Also written VII.

THE 200 RADICAL,].

The middle. (1) Used as a preposition, after the noun, often with the or some other preposition before the noun. also is often between the noun and [1], I. ii. 2. 3; 11. 3: II. ii. 10. 6: III. i. 4. 5; ii. 5. 5; 9. 4, et al., sage. (a) 1 A in the heart's core, IL i. 8. s: III. i. 5. 4. and in the middle of the kingdom, II. ii. 10. 8: III. i. 8. 15; 4. 17: IV. ii. 88. r (here only = city). 其中, the central one, III. i. 8. 19. (數 曲, to burn at heart, V. i. 1.5. 申士, an officer of the middle class, V. ii. 2. In the same chapter, [simply, of the middle quality. (3) A mean, average, III. i. 3. 7. (4) The Mean, IV. ii. 20. a. To keep the Mean, IV. ii. 7. (5) 中天 下面 正, to stand in the centre of the nation, VII. i. 21. s; compare 41. 3; 26. 8; ii. 87. a. (6) 🛱 📆 , the Middle Kingdom, III. i. 4.7, 19; ii. 9.3: VI. ii. 10.5. The 4th tone. To his the mark, II. i.7.5: chung V. ii. 1. 7. 中 声唱, VII. ii. 88. a.

THE 3m RADICAL, ...

丹 (1) 丹朱, the name of Yao's son, tan V. i. G. s. (a) The name of 白圭, VI. ii. 11. I.

(i) To count—be counted—as the principal thing, II. ii. 2. 4. (a) To preside over, V. i. 5. 6. (3) Being a host, V. ii. 3. 5: VII. ii. 24. 2. (4) To make one's host, i.e. to lodge with, V. i. 8. 1, 2. Observe para. 3, 4, 其所為主 and 其所主.

THE 47E RADICAL, J.

(1) To be, L i. 7. 8, 9; ii. 4. 6: V. i. 4. 1.
(a) An initial particle of varying power,—seeing this, but, now, &c., L ii. 15. 1: II.

Ll2

i. 2. so: IV. ii. 28. 7: VI. i. 6. 5; ii. 6. 6. Observe $\mathcal{F}_2 \dots \mathcal{F}_3$, VI. i. 6. 5.

人

A long time, for a long time; to be a long time, IL i. 1. 3, 8; 2, 22; ii. 14. 3: III. ii. 9. 2: V. i. 6. 2; ii. 1. 4: VII. i. 80. 2.

(1) Of, = the sign of the possessive case. But it would often be very harsh to translate it by of, Li. 1.4; & I, 3, 4, et al., saspissime.

The regent follows the , and the regimen precedes it. They may be respectively a noun, a phrase, or a larger clause. 🗾 followed by to is very common in Mencius; e.g. VII. ii. 24. (s) Him, her, it, them. Passim. (3) It is often difficult to determine the antecedent to Z. It has to be gathered from the context; and sometimes merges in the verb, making it an emphatic neuter, or -a passive; e.g. I. i. 8. a; 6. 6; 7. 4: IV. ii. 14; 15: VII. i. &x; 5; 18.3; 80.x. (4) 有 and 有之, as in (a), but also impersonally, = there is . . ., I. ii. 8. 1; 8. 1, et saspe. So, the negative 未之有, where the 未 attracts the Z to itself. The same is to be observed of 真. (5) We have 作 之君, L ii. 8. 7; 爲之敏, IL ii. 9.4; LZE, III. i. 4.1; and other similar expressions, where we may suppose two objectives, the Z being to, for, &c., him, it, them. Observe especially 夏之死, L ii. 12. 1, and 與己,示之,マ・ュムの之謂, is called, or is what is called. 此之 III, I. 4.6. We might reduce this to (I), ... is the saying of this. But this cannot be done where is followed by an adjective or other words, e.g. VII. ii. # Z comes under (2), compare 名之,17.124;何服之有, IV.ii.8.4; 何卿之間, V.ii.9. r; and 是之取留, IV. ii. 18. a. (7) 如之何, how, Lil. 6. r; 14. r, et saspe. (8) Observe 草 尚之風, III. i. 2.4. (9) In names, 2 奇, V. i. 9. a; 之師 and 之他, IV. ii. 94. 2; 强之, III. ii.8. r; 子之, II. ii.8. r; and 夷之, III. i. 5. 1, a. (10) As a verb. To go, or come, to, V. i. 5. 7; 6. 1; 9. 3, et al., suspe. (10) As a verb. To go, or Suddenly, II. i. 6. 3.

(1) A particle of interrogation. Found alone; preceded by another interrogation, ···焉,思,思乎,by不亦, and by 况, I.i. 1. 2; 2. r: II. ii. 9. a: III. i. 2. a: IV. ii. 27. 8: V. i. 7. 7; ii. 5. 3: VI. ii. 1. 3, 8, et al., sage. Also in indirect inter-3, 8, et al., same. Also in indirect rogation, II. ii. 2. 3: IV. ii. 82. 1. particle of exclamation, I. i. 7. 7; ii. 5. 4: III. i. 4. 11, et al. Preceded by # VIL i. 86. 1; followed by 12; I. i. 8. 4; preceded by in and followed by it, IL ii. 2. 6. (3) Partly interrogative and partly exclamatory. Alone; preceded by 菌, and 必相,,Lii.L 1,3; 2.s: IIIi 9. 8: VI. ii. 6. 1: VIL ii. 87. 2, 7, et al. Immediately preceded by 矣, IL i. 2. 18, 19. ? by { j, III. ii. 10. 6. (4) A preposition, -after verbs, and adjectives, - in, of, to, from, &c., I.ii. 12. s; 15. r: II. i. 1, 3, 10; 2. s8; ii. 11. 3: III. i. 8. 3, 7, st sk., same. Observe 在乎, VI. i. 12. r. (5) Than, in comparisons, IL ii. 2.4; i. 8. 5. (6) Observe 有時乎,V.il.5.1;云乎, V. il. 7.4; 畫歸乎來, IV. i. 18.1; 有乎爾, VIL 11.88.4

Needy. 窮乏者, VL i. 10. 7, 8 空乏, to impoverish, VL ii. 15. 2.

To mount upon, III. i. 2. 2. To take advantage of, IL. i. 1. 9.

In 3rd tone. (x) A carriage, I. ii. 16. z. 高荣: 千荣: 百荣: 之間, the kingdom, a great State, the possessions of the chief of a large clam, I. 1. 1. 4, et el. The classifier of carriages, III. ii. 4. x: IV. ii. 2. r: VII. ii. 84. a. (a) To drive a carriage, III. ii. 1. 4. (3) A team of four horses, V. i. 9. a. (4) A set of four arrows, IV. ii. 24. a. (5) Name of a Book, IV. ii. 21. a. (6) 元 田, name of Confucius's office, when in charge of the public fields, V. ii. 5. 4.

THE SER RADICAL, Z.

Nine, VII. i. 29: VI. ii. 2. s, et al. fl.
—, a ninth, I. ii. 5. 3. But in III. i. 2.
15. fl. — refers to a mode of territorial division.

To beg, IV. ii. 88. z. 乞人, a beggar, VI. i. 10. 6.

(z) A final particle, used both at the end of sentences, and of clauses, or separate members of a sentence. Sometimes we miss it, where it might be; and sometimes it might be dispensed with, I. i. 2. a, 3; 2. z, a, 3. 4, et passin. (a) After the adverb ; after proper names (though rarely in Mencius), and very often after a clause in the first member of a sentence: it—quoad, now, or may often be left untranslated. In these cases, it is often, but far from always, followed by other particles, I. i. 8. r; 7. 8, sr, ss: IV. i. 14. r, et passim. (3) As correlate of 君, concluding the explanation of the character or sentiment which precedes 著. The 署, however, is often wanting, L ii. 4. a, 3; 10. s; 11. z: IL i. 2. 9: IIL i. 8. 6, 10, et saspe. (4) 者也 is found at the end of sentences, sometimes preceded by 者 and sometimes not. 者, however, may generally be explained independent (5) 也 者 in the first member of a sentence resumes a word or subject, and the explanation or account of it follows, IL i. 9. 1: VII. ii. 87. 9, of al. We find #11, 看, however, at the commencement of a chapter, where no discourse is resumed, VII. ii. 16. Observe VI. i. 8. s. (6) It is often interrogative, following 何, 顯 在, &a, L i & r; 4 5; ii. 1. 6, 7; 4. 4, of sag 早乾, dry, drought, VII. ii. 14. 4.

Digitized by Google

To confound, III. i. 4. 18: VI. ii. 15. s: VII. ii. 10. = to be confounded with, VII. ii. 87. 12. Rebellious, III. ii. 9. 11. To be in confusion; a state of confusion, II. i. 2. 22: III. ii. 9. 2, 5: IV. ii. 29. s: V. ii. 1. 1, s: VII. ii. 12. a.

THE OTH RADICAL,] .

I, me, we, my, I. i. 2. 4; 7. 9; ii. 16. 3: II. i. 1. 3; 2. 16, 26; 4. 3, et al., suspe.

THE 7TH RADICAL, ___.

(r) A preposition - by, to, in, on, for, sage. It occurs commonly in quotations from the older classics. Mencius himself prefers to, though he does also use to. (a) In the double surname, i. IV. i. 17. r: VI. ii. 6. r, 5.

(1) Says. In a quotation, V. i. 4. r. Observe V. ii. 8. 4. (a) (1) (1), closing a sentence, or the member of a sentence. It is difficult to translate, and Wang Yin-chih regards it simply as a final particle, II. ii. 2. 4: III. ii. 5. 7: IV. ii. 24. r: VII. i. 89. 2. So (1), V. ii. 7. 4.

Five. Same. In the fifth, IV. ii. soi 80. a. Adverbially,—five times, VI. ii.

In haste, quickly; to be in haste, I. i. 2. 3: III. i. 8. a.

The and tone. Frequently, IV. ii. 18. 1. 1: V. ii. 6. 4, 5; 7. 4: VII. i. 8. 1.

THE STR RADICAL, --.

(z) To expire, die, I. i. 2. 4: VI. ii. 6. 4.

(x) To expire, die, I. i. 2. 4: VI. ii. 6. 4.

(x) To be utterly lost; to periah, I. ii. 4. 6, 7, 8: IV. i. 2. 4; 8. 2; 7. 1; 8. 1; ii. 21. 1: V. i. 9. 3: VI. i. 8. 4; 16. 3; 18. 2; ii. 15. 4.

— not to be found, gone away, I. ii. 7. 1.

(a) To cause to die or periah, VI. i. 8. 2.

(3) Not at home, III. ii. 7. 3.

Used fer ##, not being, not having, IV. i. 19. 3; ii. 28. 7. Used actively, and to disown, VII. i. 34.

Also. Saspe. It is difficult sometimes, and doubtful whether we ought, to bring out the else in another language;—as in L.i.l.a, a; 7. 17: IL ii. 10. 6, et al. 不亦…乎,亦…而已 are common phraseologies, I. ii. 2. s: II. ii. 2. 3: VI. ii. 6. s: VII. i. 89. 2. Observe 却亦,II. ii. 4. 3: III. ii. 10. 3. 亦不,where 亦=still, III. ii. 6. r: VII. ii. 19. 3; and 即亦=yea, VII. ii. 88. 4.

文

A surname, V. ii. 8. 4.

(1) To present an offering; an offering, VI. ii. 5. 4, 5. (2) To accept an offering as a sacrifice, V. i. 5. 6.

尽无

A capital, IV. i. 7. 5.

To have faith, VI. ii. 12.

The name of Tang's capital, referred to the present department of Kwei-téh in Ho-nan, III. ii. 5. s: V. i. 6. 5; 7. 9.

惠

The name of king Tai, one of the ancestors of king Wan, I. ii. 5. 5.

THE 9TH RADICAL, 人.

人 My or

(1) A man, men; other men. Passin. – humanity, man's nature, VI. i. 1. s ; 2. 3: VIL ii. 16. , , all men, or each man, IV. i. 11; ii. 2. 4, et al. (s) It indicates officers and rulers, in distinction from E, the people, L i. 2. 3: IL i. 1. 13, et al. 80, perhaps, VII. ii. 28. , with reference to the sovereign, I. ii. 8. 7. (3) Following names of States it = native, natives, people. So 基人, 悉人, &c. &c. But 般人and 周人, III. i. 8. 6, are different, meaning the founders of the Yin and Chau dynastics. So , the people of the State, or merely a common man, I. ii. 7. 4, 5: II. ii. 8. 2; 10. 3: IV. i. 11; ii. 8. 2; 24. 2, et al. (4) With other characters, it forms concrete substantives, especially nouns expressing office er profession. We have 匠人and玉人,Lile; 矢人 and M 人, IL 1.7; 屋 人, V. il. 6.5; 虞人,∀.ӹ7.7; 館人,∀ILӹ80; 人, V. i. 2. 4. (5) Observe also 量 人; 狄人; 嬖人; 窮人; 鄕 人;族人;野人, which means ooth country people, and uncultivated people; 良人=husband, IV. ii. 38. 1; 侍人, V. i. 8. 1; 聖人, II. i. 2. 17, so, ac, a5, a6; ii. 9. 3: III. i. 4. a, 8, 18; ii. 9. 5; 10, 14: IV. i. 1. 5; 2 1: V. i. 7. 7; VI. i. 7. 8, 8: VII. i. 38. 3; 24; 36; ii. 15; 24. a; 38. 4; 實人, the humble 'I' ef the prince of a State, I. i. 8. 1: 4. 1; 8. 1; 7. 4, et al.; 夫人, the wife of a prince, III. ii. 8. 3; 大人, III. i. 4. 6: IV. i. 20; ii. 6; 11; 19: VII. i. 19. 4; 38. 3; ii. 34. 1; 小人, II. ii. 12. 7: III. i. 2. 4; 4. 6, et al.; 庶人, the masses, the people, I. i. 1. 4: III. ii. 7. a: V. ii. 2. 6, 7, 8, et al.; 戶人, disciples, III. i. 4. 13: VII. ii. 29; 人牧, 人君, 人臣, 人子,人 弟, but the characters here are possibly not in apposition, but in regimen. (6) 為人, VII. ii. 38.

+ +--, a tenth part, a tithe, III. i.

Benevolence, benevolent, to be benevolent. Passim. Mencius does not use the term for 'perfect virtue,' as Confucius does, though it may sometimes have that meaning. In VII. ii. 24. 2, low seems the proper rendering.

To show oneself an enemy to, III. ii.

Now, the present, modern time: also, in the same way as our logical use of now, in discoursing. Pussim. We find 今也 and 今夫; 今日,今時,富今之時, and富今之世. 今而後, from this time forth, I. ii. 12. a, et al.

(z) Firm purpose, VIL i. 28. (a) Used for f, a stalk of the mustard plant, a straw, V. i. 7. s.

f In the 4th tone. 介默, suddenly,

To take—be in—office, II.i. 2.sa; ii.14. 1: III. ii. 3. 1, 5, 6, st st. Observe 當仕, V. ii. 7. 9. 仕者, officers, I.i. 7. 18; ii. 5. 3. So 仕 alone, II. ii. 3. 1.

(1) Other, another, I. i. 7. 9: V. i. 8. s; ii. 4. 3: VII. ii. 17. 日 , another day, other days. It may mean formerly, next day, and afterwards, I. ii. 1. s; 16. r: II. ii. 4. 4; 10. 3: III. i. 2. 4; 4. 13; 5. 2. 4; ii. 10. 5: IV. i. 14. r: VI. ii. 5. 2. 11. ii. 7. rs; ii. 1. 6, 7: II. ii. 2. 9: VI. i. 11. 4; ii. 8. s: VII. i. 15. 3; 25. 3; 26. 3. Se, 日 有

他哉, L ii. 10. 4: VI. i. 14. r. 言他, spoke of something else, L ii. 6. g. 他, went elsewhere, IV. ii. 88. r. (s) Read fo, a name, IV. ii. 24. s.

A measure of eight cubits, VIL ii. 84. 2.

(1) Alternate, one after another, III. ii. 9. 5. For, instead of, V. ii. 2. 6, 7, 8. (2) (2), the three dynastics;—Hsiâ, Shang, and Châu, III. i. 2. 2; 8. 10: IV. i. 8. 1. (3) A name, (2), III. ii. 1. 1.

To employ, 使令, to be employed, I. i. 7. ré.

The 4th tone. (1) An order; to order, L. ii. 11. 4: IV. i. 7. a. (2) Good, VL i. 17. g.

(z) To take, to use. But our idiom requires, for the most part, that it be translated as a preposition,—by, st, with, because of, according to, &c. It precedes the principal verb of the sentence, as in L i. 2. 8, 女王以民力為臺, 'king Wan used the people's strength to make his tower,' or 'made his tower with the people's strength; or in V. i. 5. 1, 美以 天下與舜, 'Yao took the king-dom and gave it to Shun;' or simply, 'Yao gave the kingdom to Shun.' It follows the principal verb, and then its prepo-sitional force is more apparent, e.g. I. i. 4. 2, 教人以挺, 'to kill a man with a stick.' We might indeed translate, 'to kill a man, using a stick.' Its regimen sometimes precedes it, e.g., V. i. 7. 2, -介不以與人一介不以 取諸人, 'one straw he would not have taken and given to men, or taken and received from men,' or simply, 'he would neither have given nor taken a single straw.' This position of the regimen is for the sake of emphasis. Examples, of the first two usages especially, occur very frequently. Julien argues (see the 'Treatise on Four Chinese Characters,' appended to his Translation of Mencius) that in many cases it is merely—a sign of the accusative case. And it is difficult sometimes to give any other force to the , as in II. i. 1. 5: III. i. 4. 10: IV. ii. 28, et al., yet a peculiar significancy may be traced in it. Observe fif 1, that by, for, from, which,—a force sometimes sustained by 以 alone; 是以, hence; and fig , whereby, or wherefore. is found without any regimen, joined to 告,Lii.12.2, et al., sagps. 有以and 無以are abbreviations for 有所

以,無所以, Li.5. a, 3, of al. In a sentence which has no accessory, 以 - to use, to act, according to, &c., e.g. V. ii.1.3. And often with a regimen of intervening, frequently means to take to be, to consider, to be considered. But by no means always. Sometimes also the is omitted. (2) It often = the conjunction because, II. i. 2. 15, et al. (3) To, so as to ;—often forming, with a verb following, our infinitive. Sometimes the = 'wherewith to,' 'and thereby,' L i. 1. 2; 7. 12, 15, 16, 21, 22, of al., saspe. To this belong 以來, 以下, and 以 2. (4) It is often used after | , forming our potential mood, and - the &, which is suppressed after our auxiliaries. Passin. (5) Used as = [], 'to stop,' I. i. 7. s. (6) Observe 明以教我, L.i. 7. 19; 樂。 以天下,エӹムぉ; 以美然,エニ ii. 7. 1; , IV. ii. 7; and some other sporadio case

The second of brothers. It is used in designations, V. i. 6. 5. (1) 1. the designation of Confucius, I. i. 4. 6; 7. s, st sl. It follows the surname, or what is equivalent to it, without any other character, and then may be taken as—the name, II. ii. 2. 3;—III. i. 1. 8;—III. i. 1. 1. 8;—III. ii. 10. I, s, 3, 5, 6; VII. i. 24.

任 (1) A charge, office, VI. ii. 15. 2. 任 — business, purpose, I. ii. 9. 1. A burden, VI. ii. 2. 3. (2) As a verb. To charge, to burden, V. i. 7. 6; ii. 1. 2. Observe IV. i. 14. 3, and 聖之任者, V. ii. 1. 5.

The and tone. (1) A burden, -baggage, III. i. 4. 13. (2) The name of a small State, VI. ii. 1. 1; 5. The the younger brother of the chief of Zin. VI. ii. 5. 1.

A surname. ###, the minister of Tang, II. i. 2. sc, s3; ii. 2. 8, 10, st sl. ###, the name of a Book in the Shuching, V. i. 7. 9.

The name of Confucius's grandson, IV. ii. 81. 2: V. ii. 6. 4.

Five men in rank or file. # = ranks, II. ii. 4. 1, 2.

伏戏

To be lying down, I. i. 2. 3.

(1) Happiness; to be happy, I. ii. 4. 5: III. ii. 5. 5. (2) The name of a place, II. ii. 14. 1.

(1) The eldest of brothers, 伯兄, our VI. i. 5. 3. (2) A title of nobility, V. ii. 2. 3, 4. So西伯, IV. i. 18. r: VII. i. 22. r, 3. (3) In the designation 伯良, II. i. 2. 22, 23; 9. r, 3, of al., saspe. (4) Must be used for 佰, a hundred, III. i. 4. r8.

As; to be like to, L. i. 6. s: II. i. 2. 6:

VII. i. 26. 3; 41. 1; ii. 87. 11. 41 0], like one another, similar, II. ii. 2. 5: VI.
i. 7. 3, 4, 5, 6. To be like what is right,
II. ii. 5. 1.
ii. 87. 12.

(1) Position, status, i. e. of dignity, IV.
i. 1. 7; 12. 1: V. i. 5. 7; ii. 2. 3, et al.,
saspe. 在位 is frequent. 正位, the correct place, i. e. propriety, III. ii. 2. 3.
天位, all legitimate dignities, V. ii. 2. 4.

Position, place, III. i. 2. 4: IV. ii. 27. 1, 3.

To assist, III. ii. 9. 6.

(1) What, why, what kind of, I. i. 1. 2. 6, at al., samps. 何也.何.與.何 it, at the beginning or end of sentences, merally-why is this? how is it? I. i. 2. r; 7. ro; ii. 16. r. But sometimes 何也, simply=is or was what? VI. i. 7.8; Il. 6. a, et al. In VI. i. 9. a,何能 -is of what avail? Other characters sometimes come between in and the particles, and with the same difference of usage. [11] , whereby, what to, I. 1. 1. 4, of al., scape. [1] II, what from? how? Li.7.4. [1] 2, what do? why? Lii. 5.4: VII ii. 86. 2. But observe 何爲也哉,♥.以7.3 何之 where are you going? VI. ii. 4. 2. (2) for generally with between, = what, what is to be done? Difficulty, surprise, or indignation is generally implied, but not always. The phrase #11 to be met? is common, I. i. 4. 6; K. I; ii. 6. I, a, 3: V. ii. 2. I, of ol., seeps. Other words are found also between m and iii, and then the phrase—what has... to do with—? I. ii. 14. 3, of ol. (2) iii. y, what sort of? of what nature? in what manner? At the end of a semtence, iii m—what do you think of? What shall be said? I. i. 8. 2; 7. 3: VII. ii. 87. 3, 8, of ol., seeps. (4) iii. 4, of ol. 111. ii. 9, 9.

(r) Ease, enjoyment, VII. i. 12; ii. 34.
(a) To be without office, in obscurity, 選供, II. i. 2. a: V. ii. 1. 3.

·Glib-tonguedness, VII. ii. 87. 12.

(1) To cause, to make to; to make to be, I. i. 8. 3; 4. 6; 5. 3, 4; 7. 18, 21, et el., sage. Observe T L L L, I ii. 16. 3. H = to send (once, we have the addition of L, II. ii. 2. 1; 6. 1, et el., sage. (2) To employ, to command; no other verb following, II. i. 2. 22; 5. 1, et el. (3) M H = if, supposing that, II. ii. 10. 5; V. ii. 6. 5; VI i. 7. 5. Without the M, VI i. 9. 3; ii. 14. 4.

The 4th tone. To be commissioned, ?I.i.7.16. 使者, a messenger, V. ii. 6. 4.

(1) To come, I. i. 1. s; 2. 3, st cl., saspe.
以来 and 而来, downwards, II i.
2. 23, 27, 28; 5. 6; ii. 18. 4; VII. ii. $8. 4.
Observe 畫歸乎來, IV i. 18. 1, st cl. (2) The coming, next, III. ii. 8. 1, 2, 3.

The 4th tone. To lead on, III. i. 4. 8.

Extravagance, wild license, I. i. 7. so.

To be by, in attendance on, II. ii. 10. a 侍人, an attendant, with a bad meaning, V. i. 8. 1, 2. 侍妾, attendant girls, concubines, VII. ii. 31. 6.

作

Digitized by Google

假

倡

供源海湾侯

使源係為後衛俑器俗

To supply, to furnish, L i. 7. 16: III. ii. 8. 3; 5. 2: V. ii. 4. 6.

To despise, insult, IL i. 4. 3: IV. i. 8. 4; 16.

To make incursions on; to attack stealthily, I. ii. 14. 2; 15. 1: III. ii. 5. 6: IV. ii. 24. 2.

i. 7. 16.

To bind, 係 累, L ii. 11. 3.

A man of distinction, 俊姝, II. i.5. I: VI. ii. 7. 2.

Wooden images of the dead, I. i. 4. 6.

Manners, practices, customs, II. i. 1.8: VI. ii. 6. 5; 9. 3. Apr., current customs (with a bad meaning), VII. ii. 87. II. Apr., the manners of the age, I. ii. 1. 2: IV. ii. 80. 2.

(1) To protect and love, I. i. 7. 3, 4, 10, 12; ii. 8. 2, 3: II. i. 6. 7: III. i. 5. 3. (2) To preserve, IV. i. 8. 3.

To wait for, II. ii. 2. 5: V. ii. 7. 9: VII. i. 1. 3; ii. 83. 3.

(r) Truthfulness, fidelity, L. i. 5. 3: III. i. 4. 8: VI. i. 16. r: VII. i. 82; ii. 27. rr, ra. True, real, V. i. 9. r: VII. ii. 25. r, 2, 4; 83. 2. (a) To believe; to have confidence in (it may be to obey or follow, as principles; or to employ, as officers), L. ii. 11. 2: IV. i. 1. 8: V. i. 2. 4: VII. i. 84; ii. 8. r; 12. r. To be believed; to obtain the confidence of, IV. i. 12. r; ii. 11. (3) As an adverb, really, truly, II. i. 5. 6: III. i. 5. 3: V. i. 2. r; 4. 2: VI. i. 2. 2.

In 1st tone. To stretch out straight, to straighten, VI. i. 12. 1.

See 脩.

To stoop, used adverbially, with the correlate 111, = below, I. i. 7. 21, 22: VII. i. 20. 3.

Together; = both, VI. i. 9. 3: VII. i. 20. 2.

A granary; a storehouse for grain generally. Commonly found along with , a granary for rice, I. ii. 12. a: III.

i. 4. 3: V. i. 1. 3; 2. 3; ii. 6. 6. Used as a verb, I. ii. 5. 4. (a) A name, (a) A. l. ii. 16. 1, 3.

(x) To rebel against, revolt from, III.
i. 4. 12, 14. (a) Double, as much again as, I. ii. 11. 3: III. i. 4. 18: IV. i. 14. 1:
V. ii. 2. 6, 7, 8: VI. ii. 6. 7. In this second sense, the character is aspirated, and in the and tone, in the Canton dialect.

Inverted, upside down, IL i. 1. 18.

To be tired, weary, II. i. 2. 19: VI. i.

Children and youths, I. ii. 11. 4.

Always used with reference to Ath, the relationships of human society, II. ii. 2. 4: III. i. 8. 10; 4. 8: IV. i. 2. 1; ii. 19. s: V. i. 2. 1; VI. ii. 10. 5.

To bend, III. i. 2. 4.

(1) To feign, pretend to, II. i. 8. 1: VII. i. 80. 1. (2) To borrow, V. i. 9. 2: VI. ii. 2. 6: VII. i. 80. 1.

Together with, I. i. 2. 3, 4. As a verb, chick II. i. 9. s.

To press upon, III. i. 4. 7.

Side, the side, II. i. 9. s; ii. 9. 3: V. ii. 1. 3.

A heroic character, 俊傑, II. i. 5. I: VI. ii. 7. 2. 豪傑, III. i. 4. 12: VII. i. 10. I.

(1) A tutor (an official title), VII. i. 89.
3. To act as tutor, to teach, III. ii. 6. 1.
(2) (1) (2), an ancient statesman, VI. ii. 15. 1.

All-complete; to be prepared, ready, III. i. 4. 6; ii. 8. 3: V. i. 1. 3, ii. 6. 6: VII. i. 4. 1; 83. 3.

(1) To transmit, hand down (used both actively and passively), I. i. 7. s: IV. ii. 28. 7: V. i. 6. r; 9. g. (s) To communicate, deliver, as an order, a pledge, II. i. 1. rs: V. ii. 7. r.

傳 The 4th tone. Records, a Record, I. ii. choon 2. 1; 8. 1: III. ii. 8. 1. Observe 以 傳食於諸侯, III. ii. 4. 1. The dictionary defines this use of 傳'by 續.

To hurt, wound, II. i. 7. r: IV. ii. 81. r.
Wounded, IV. ii. 20. g. — to be contrary to, IV. ii. 28. — f, there is no harm, it does not matter, I. i. 7. 8:
VII. ii. 19. s. So, There is, III. ii. 10. 4.

Digitized by Google

(r) A charioteer, driver, IV. ii, 24. 2. ②僕僕爾, an adverb, in a troubled manner, V. ii. 6. 5.

Deceit; deceitfully, III. i. 4. 17, 18:

(1) Ceremonies, demonstrations of respect, VI. ii. 5. 4. (a) A name, 張儀, III. ii. 2. r. 公明儀, III. i. 1. 4; ii. 8. 1; 9. 9: IV. ii. 24. 1. (3) 公 僕, a double surname, VI. ii. 6. 3.

A hundred thousand, IV. i. 7. 5.

Economical, III. i. 8. 4: IV. i. 16. Niggardly to, II. ii. 7. 5. To be limited to, only to amount to, VI. ii. 8. 6.

the name of a place, I.ii.4.4.

篇 and 篇 者, the learned, the fol-lowers of Confucius, the orthodox, III. i. 5. g: VII. ii. 26. 1.

More than sufficient, VI. ii. 18. 6.

The surname of a minister of Ch'1, IV. ii. 82: VI. ii. 5. 1, 2, 3, 6.

THE 10TH RADICAL, | ...

(I) Used for the head, III. ii. 1. 2: V. ii. 7. 5. 兀士, head officers, a name appropriate to scholars of the first class in the royal domain, V. ii. 2. 5. (2) A name, 曾元, IV. i. 19. 3.

To believe, accord with, V. i. 4. 4.

An elder brother, II. ii. 9. 3: III. i. 5. g 3, et al., saspe. 伯兄, the eldest brother, 父兄, fathers and elder VI. i. 5. 3. brothers; elder relatives, I. i. 5. 3; ii. 11. g, et al., saspe. , brothers, I. i. 7.
12; ii. 1.6, et al., saspe. Embracing cousins, 7 = sisters, V. i. 8. 2. V. ii. 8. i.

(1) To fill; to fill up, develop, carry out, II. i. 6. 7: III. ii. 10. 6: V. ii. 4. 5: VI. ii. 9. 1 · VII. ii. 25. 5, 6; 81. 2, 3.  to stop up, III. ii. 9. 9. Full, I. ii. 12. 2. The filling up, II. i. 2. 9. (a) A surname, II. ii. 7. r; 18. r.

A prognostic, = a trial, V. ii. 4. 6.

(1) First (adverb and adjective); before (preposition); former, V. i. 9. 3; ii. 4. 6: VI. i. 5. 3; 7. 5, 8; 15. a; ii. 15. a: VII. i.46.1: II.i.2.2. 先君, former princes, III.i.2.3. 先干, the former (ancient) sovereigns, L. ii. 1.2; 4.4, 8, et al. 先生, our master, you, master, IV. i. 24. 2; ii. 81. r: VI. ii. 4. s, 4, 5, 6. 先子, m 先知, fres grandfather, II. i. 1. 3. knowing; 先自 , first apprehending V. i. 7. 5; ii. 1. 2. 先星, the former sages, III. ii. 9. 10. (2) To make first or chief, L. i. 1. 4, et al.; 先後 generally appears as correlate. To take the initiative, I. ii. 16. r: III. ii. 7. 3: IV. ii. 8. 3. (3) 先之, to set the example, III. i. 2 4. 之 先=to excel him, III. i. 4. ra. Perhaps these examples, and those also under (s), should be read #7, the 4th

The 4th tone. To precede, VI. ii. 2. 4.

先 光 Light, VII. i. 94. 2. H=glory, glorious, knoang III. ii. 5. 6: VII. ii. 95. 6. Observe H 光,Lii.5.4.

克 (1) To conquer, VL ii. 9. 2. =grasping able ministers, VI. ii. 7. 2. The name of 樂正子, L ii. 16. 3: IV. ii. 24. 2.

To escape from, avoid. Followed by 7, I. i. 4. 5; 7. 21, 22. Used absolutely, or actively, L. ii. 15. 1: IV. ii. 28. 7: VL ii. 14. 4.

A rabbit, a hare. catchers, I. ii. 2. 2.

驅党, a minister of Shun, banished by him, V. i. 8. 2.

THE 11m RADICAL,入.

To enter, I. i. 8. 3; ii. 2. 3; 16. 2, 4 4. same. Used metaphorically, 入道, to go in and on to principles, VII. ii. 87. 11. Used in correlation with H, -at home, at court, and abroad, I. i. 5. g: III. ii. 4. 3: VI. ii. 15. 4. But in III. i. 8. 18, / -going out and coming in; and in VI. i. 8. 4 they are spoken of the mind.

(1) Within. A preposition, following the noun, I. i. 8. 1 (河); 7. 17. When the noun has an adjective joined to it, a 之 precedes 内, L ii. 2. 3; 6.3: IIL ii. 5. 3, 7, et al. (2) With 9, as our relate. The seclusion of the house, the harem, I. ii. 5. 5. The family, generally, II. ii. 2. 4. Internal, what is internal, II. ii. 2. 4. Internal, what is internal, within, VI. i. 4. 1, 2, 4; 5. 1, 2, 9, 5; ii. 6. 5.

Used for (I) To reseive, III. ii. 内 = to force, V. i. 7. 6; ii. 1. a. (2) 内 次, to form a friendship with, gain the favour of, II. i. 6. a.

To be complete, perfect, IV. i. 21.

Two, a pair of, VIL ii. 22. g.

The 4th tone. A numerative for carriages, VII. ii. 4. z.

THE 1978 RADICAL, J.

Right, I. i. 7. 17, 24, et al., saeps. eighth, L. i. 6. 6: IV. ii. 18. 3.

雨

//

à

1

ŗ

(r) Public, IIL i. 8. 9. 公卷之 to take office sustained by the State, V. i. 4. 7. (2) A title of nobility, translated by duke, V. ii. 2. 9, 4; 8. 4; 6. 6, et al. 三么, the three highest officers at the royal court, VII. i. 28.—It often follows the names of States, and honorary titles of the dukes. 周公, Li.1.7, et al., saepe.—酒景公, L il. 4. 4, 10, et al.— 桓公,II.ii.2.8,10.et al.—晋平公, V.ii.8.4.—秦穆公,V.i.9.1,3,et al.— 想 忍 久, II. ii. 11. 3, et al. — 想 平 公,Lil.16.1.—腰定公,III.1.2.1.— 滕文公, I. ii. 18. t, et al. — 程公, Lii. 12. z.—篇 震 公, V. ii. 4. 7.-衞孝公,₹ӹィァー智惠公, in double surnames, 🔊 🗐, V. i. 1. 2.— III. i. 1. 4, et al. 公孫,ILili, ed al. —III. ii & r. 公都, II. ii 5. 4: III. ii. 9. 1, et al. 公信, VI. ii. 6. 3. 公 益, IV. i. 1. r. 公行, IV. ii. 27. 1. Compare 庾 公, and 尹 公, IV. ii. 24. 2. (4)公劉, and 古公亶'父, ancestors of the Chau family, Lii. 5. 4, 5. 太公 and 太公堂, a minister of the kings Wan and Wu, IV. i. 18. r: VI. ii. 8. 6: VII. i. 22. r; ii. 88. 3.

六律, the pitch-Six, II. i. 1. 8. tubes, IV. i. 1. 1, 5. 六等, the six degrees of dignity, V. ii. 2. 3. the royal forces, VI. ii. 7. 2.

A particle, much used in poetry, IV. i. 8. s: VIL i. 82. r.

To have in common, III. i. 2. a; 8. ro. To share, V. ii. 8. 4.

The 1st tone. (1)共為, to perform, discharge, V. i. l. a. (2) 共工, s name of office; -the superintendent of Works.

Sharp weapons of war, I. i. 3. 2,5; 5. 3; 7. 14; ii. 11. 3; II. ii. 1. 3,4; 3. 4; IV. i. 1. 9; VI. ii. 4. 3.

The third personal pronoun; the possessive pronoun of the third person; the, that. Both singular and plural. Passim.

Completely provided with, II. i. 2. 20.

(r) A rule, a statute, 興 刑, V. i. 6. 5. 典籍, VI. ii. 8. 5. (a) A canon. 堯 III, name of a Book of the Shti-ching, V. i. 4. 1.

To unite, comprehend, embrace together; together, II. i. 2. 18: IV. ii. 20. 5: VI. i. 10. 1; 14. 1; VII. i. 9. 6. Observe III. ii. 9. 11. 兼金, 'fine silver,' IL ii. 8. 1. 兼愛, Mo's principle of loving all equally, IIL ii. 9. o: VII. i. 96, a.

THE 18TH RADICAL,

典 再牛, a disciple of A surname. Confucius, II. i. 2. 18, 20.

Twice, again, V. ii. 6. 4, 5: VI. ii. 7.

A cap of full dress or ceremony, VI. ii.

THE 14TH RADICAL,

短 A cap, a bonnet, II. i. 9. 1: IV. ii. 29. 6, 7: V. ii. 1. 1. To wear a cap, III. i. 4. 4. 冠

The 4th tone. To cap; the ceremony of capping, III. ii. 2. s.

氯睾, a prime minister, IIL i. 2. 4.

THE 15TH RADICAL, 7.

冬 Winter, VI. i. 5. 5.

trung 况

More properly . How much more, —in the concluding member of a sentence, IV. i. 14. a. It is generally followed by I at the end of the clause, V. i. 7. 7: VII. i. 86. a. 况 is sometimes immediately preceded by m, and in the previous clause we have the particles 酒, 猫, 然且, and且, IL il 2 10; 9. s: V. il. 4. 5; 7. 3. 4(題 for 平) s(况平...平): VIIds; 1d.6:

To melt, fuse. A sounder, III. i.

Digitized by Google

ohik

刺

前

則

THE 16th RADICAL, 几.

A stool, IL il. 11. 2.

All,—preceding the noun or clause to which it belongs, II. i. 6. 7: V. ii. 2. 3 (bis); 4.4: VI. i. 7. 3; 10. 3; ii. 7. 3: VII. i. 10.

凱鳳, the name of an ode, VL ii. 8.

THE 17TH RADICAL, | ...

Bad, calamitous. Spoken of seasons, hering and joined to for k, L i. 7. 21, 22; ii. 12. 2: II. ii. 4. 2: III. i. 3. 7: VI. i. 7. 1: VII. ii. 10. Without for k, I. i. 8. 1.

(r) To go, or come, out, I. i. 6. a; ii. 4. ro; 16. r, et el., suepe. II II., and III., to come out from, I. ii. 12. a: II. i. 2. a6; but III. = to travel on, I. i. 7. r8, et el. (a) To send out, to issue, I. ii. 11. 4: IV. i. 24. a. III. = to put away, to divorce, IV. ii. 80. 5. (a) To quit, leave, II. ii. 12. r, 4, 5, et el. (4) As correlate with A, abroad, in opposition to at home, I. i. 5. 3: III. ii. 4. 3; in opposition to at court, VI. ii. 15. 4. See A.

A cuirass, defensive armour, II. i. 7. 1.

THE 18 RADICAL, 7.

A sharp weapon, I. i. 8. 2; 4. 2, 3.

The 4th tone. The lot, apportionment, VII. i. 21. 3.

(1) To punish; punishments, I. i. 5. 3; 7: 20: III. i. 8. 3: IV. i. 14. 3. Penal laws, II. i. 4. 2: IV. i. 1. 8: V. i. 6. 5. (2) To give an example to, I. i. 7. 12.

First, VI. ii. 7. 3. Early ways, VII. ii.

The 4th tone. To distinguish, III. i. 8. 19. 有别, to have separate functions, III. i. 4. 8.

advantages of situation, II. ii. 1. 1, 2, 3, 4. To count profitable, IV. i. 8. r. (3) Naturalness, being unconstrained, IV. ii. 26. r.

To make; to regulate, I. i. 5. 3; 7. 21, as: III. i. 8. 13: VII. i. 22. 3. Regulations, rules, VII. ii. 84. 2. A. telep within certain rules, III. i. 8. 4.

To stab, II. i. 2. 4. To criticiss, VII. ii. 87. II. In I. i. 8. 5, where it means to sound, it is said to be read to'i, in the 4th tone.

To cut, to pare, - to dismember; to deprive of territory, IV. i. 2, 4: VI. ii. 4. 3, 4; 7. 2.

(z) Before, in front of. 食前, feed spread before me, VII. ii. 84. a. 於前, before you, I. i. 7. z6. 於王前, before your Majesty, II. ii. 2. 4. (a) Former, L ii. 16. z, a. 前日, formerly, II. ii. 2. z; 7. z; 10. a; 12. z.

(1) Then; denoting either a legical sequence or a sequence of time, but generally the former. The sequence is often in the course of the thought, and we find it difficult to translate the character in English. Pussiss. (1), well then so then, is very common. So is (1) (or (1) (1) (1) (1) (1). (a) A rule, a pattern; an example, V. i. 4. 9: VI. i. 6. 8. (3) To make a pattern of, to correspond to, III. i. 4. II. These two usages are in quotations from the older classics. In Mencius himself, (1) is simply the particle.

Strong, II. i. 2. 13.

To out. 割烹-cookery, V. i. 7. 1, &

To begin, to found, L. ii. 14. 3.

A sword, L ii. 8. 5: IIL i. 2. 4.

A an ancestor of the kings of the Chau dynasty, I. ii. 5. 4.

THE 19m RADICAL, 力.

Strength, force; vigorously, Li. 2. 3; 7. 10: III. i. 8. 12, et al. 妈力, to do one's utmost, Lii. 15. 1: V. i. i. a. 心力, Li. 7. 17. 目力, IV. i. 1. 5. 劳力, to labour with the strength, -the sweat of the brow, III. i. 4. 6. 力役 personal service, VIL ii. 27. 1. 第日, こり, to exert one's strength a whole day, II.ii. 12.6. 南馬之り, caused by a single two-horsed carriage, VIL ii. 22. 3.

(1) Achievement, work done, I. ii. 14.

8: II. i. 1. 3, 13: VI. ii. 6. 5.

3: II. i. 1. 7, 10, 12: III. ii. 4. 4, 5.

1), an interchange of the productions of labour, III. ii. 4. 3.

(2)), a short period of mourning, VII. i. 46. 2.

To add to; to be added, VI. i. 10. 7: VII. 21. 3; 39.4 加多,加多, to decrease, to increase, I. i. 8. r. To exercise to, I. i. 7. rs: VII. i. 6. r: VII. i. 9. 6. To raise, appoint to; to be raised to, II. i. 2. r: V. ii. 6. 6.

To help, I. ii. 8. 7; 4. 5: II. i. 2. 16; 5. 4; ii. 1. 4: III. ii. 8. 3 (N.B.)? VI. ii. 7. 2. The system of mutual aid, on which the ground was divided by the Châu dynasty, III. i. 8. 6, 7, 9, 15, 18.

moved, or of changing countenance, V. ii. 9. s: VI. ii. 8. 4.

Valour, bravery; brave, I. ii. 8. 4. 5, 6, 7, 8: II. i. 2. 4, 5, 6, 7: III. ii. 1. s: IV. ii. 28. 1; 30. s: V. ii. 7. 5.

To urge, 子必勉之, you must exert yourself, III. i. 8. 13.

To move, excite, I. ii. 11. g. To affect others, IV. i. 12. g. To stimulate, VI. ii. 18. a. 斯容, movements of the countenance, VII. ii. 38. a. 斯心、不動心、不動心、 to be parturbed, unperturbed, in mind, II. i. 2. 1, 2, 3, 9, 10. 事助, laborious toil, III. i. 3. 7.

To aim at, attend to chiefly, VI. ii. 8. 9: VII. i. 46. 1, s.

(r) To toil, III. i. 4. 6: V. i. 4. 2. To make to toil, VI. ii. 15. 2. 罗者, the toiled, I. ii. 4. 6. So 男, in VII. i. 12, but in V. i. 1. 2. 男 punished. (a) Services, VII. i. 48. 2.

The 4th tone. To encourage, III. i. 4. 8.

(1) Power, force, VII. i. 8: VI. i. 2. 3.
(2) Opportunity, the circumstances of a case, II. i. 1. 9: IV. i. 18. 2.

Laborious, III. i. 8. 7.

(1) Meritorious, VII. i. 48. 2. (2) (3) (4), the highly Meritorious, an epithet of Yao, III. i. 4. 8: V. i. 4. 1.

To advise, encourage, IL ii. 8. s.

THE 20th RADICAL, 付.

Do not;—prohibitive, I. i. 2. 3; 8. 4; 7. a4; ii. 5. a; 7. 4, 5; 10. a, 3; 15. a: II. i. 2. 9, 16: V. ii. 9. 3: VII. ii. 34. r. Sometimes the prohibition is indirect, I. i. 5. 6: II. ii. 11. 3: VI. i. 10. 5: ? IV. i. 9. I.

To walk with the hands. (1), to erawl, as an infant, or one unable to walk, III. i. 5. g; ii. 10. r.

Lying on the ground. (1) (1), see

THE 21st RADICAL, L.

To influence, transform; to be transformed, IV. i. 28. s: VII. i. 18. 3; 40. s (N.B.); ii. 25. 7.

(N.B.); ii. 26. 7.

The dead, those whose bodies are in course of decomposition, II. ii. 7. 4.

(1) The north, II. i. 2. a. In the north, III. i. 4. Is. | III. i. 4. Is. | III. i. 4. Is. | III. i. 6. 4. I; ii. 6. 4. | III. ii. 11. s. III. ii. 5. 4. VII. ii. 4. 3. | III. ii. 7. II. si al. (2) In a double surname, II. i. 2. 4, 6:—V. ii. 2. I.

THE 2210 RADICAL,

A workman,—properly in wood, IIL chiang ii. 4. 3, 4: VII. ii. 5. 1. 厅人, I. ii. 9. 1. 大厅, a master-workman, VI. i. 20. a: VII. i. 41. a.

A surname. E 11. ii. 10. r: IV.

A basket; to bring in baskets, III. ii. foi 5. 5.

THE 28RD RADICAL, T.

p'i any rank. I. ii. 3. 5; 16. r: V. i. 3. s; 6. s; ii. 8. 5. Joined with 几点, III. ii. 5. s: V. i. 7. 6; ii. 1. 2: VII. i. 22. 2. Ir. VI. ii. 2. 3, 几 should be taken as a numerative for fowls.

To conceal; to hide themselves, III. i. a. 7.

厭

孤

THE 24TH RADICAL, +.

Ten, tens, I. i. 8. 2, 4, et al., sage. -月,十二月, the eleventh month, the twelfth month, IV. ii. 2. 3.

A thousand, L. i. 1. a, 4; 7. 18, et al.,

Half, IL i. 1. 13: IIL ii. 10. 1.

Low, mean, L. ii. 7. 3: II. i. 1. 3: III. ii. 6. a: V. ii. 5. a, 3, 5. To consider mean, II. i. 9. a.

千二半三年至 卒年 (r) To die, IV. ii. 1. r, s. (s) At last, IV. ii. 38. r: VII. ii. 38. s (afterwards). 80,於卒也, V. ii. 6. 4.

杂%南 区, 伙, abruptly, I. i. 6. a.

(r) South, southern, II. i. 8. a: V. i. 5. 7. 函 - in the south, I. i. 5. r. 函 to go southwards, I. ii. 4. 4. the royal position, with the face to the south, V. i. 4. r. But I. ii. 11. s: III. ii. 5. 4: and VIL ii. 4. 3, are different. (2) p, the name of a place, VI. ii. 8. 3. , a barbarian of the south, III. i.

(1) Extensive; extensively, IV. ii. 15: VII. ii. 32. r. Applied to the wide loose garments of poverty, II. i. 2. 4, 7. (2) To gamble, IV. ii. 30. s.

THE SOM RADICAL, TJ.

(r) To be in peril, I. i. 1. 4: IV. i. 2. 4. To endanger, I. i. 7. 14: IV. ii. 80. a. Perils, IV. i. 8. z. = is under a sense of peril, VII. i. 18. a. (2) = ft, the name of a place, V. i. 8. a.

(1) A particle, = that is, indeed, I. i. 7. 6. (2) To approach, go to, III. i. 2. 4.

To refuse, decline, V. ii. 4. 2, 3.

A noble; a high dignitary or chief minister, II. i. 2. r; ii. 6. r, 2; 10. 6; III. i. 8. 16: IV. i. 8. 3: V. i. 8. 2; ii. 2. 3. 5, 6, 7; 9. r, 2, 4: VI. i. 16. r; ii. 6. r.

THE 97TH RADICAL,

Thick. = liberally, sumptuously, III. i. 5. 2. 所厚者, where one should treat well, VII. i. 44. r.

An origin; a fountain. Seems to be used for in, II. ii. 14. 1; 18. 2.

The 4th tone, i. q. 原. Your good, careful people, VIL ii. 87. 8, 9, 10.

His, their. It cocurs only in quotations from the Shih-ching and Shû-ching. I. ii. 8. 7; 5. 5: III. i. 1. 5; ii. 5. 5. VII. ii. 4. 5; 19. 3.

(1) To oppress, III. i.4. 3, 5. (2) The title of an unworthy sovereign, VI. i. 6. 2. = 'The Cruel,' IV. i. 2. 4.

To be satisted, II. i. 2. 19.

be satisfied, I. ii. 4. 7.

THE 28TH RADICAL, 🗘.

(1) To go away from; to leave. Both active and neuter, I. ii. 11. 4; 18. 2; 14. 2; 15. 1, 2, et al., suppe. (s) To be distant from; II. i. 1, 8; IV. ii. 1, 2; 7; V. i. 6. s: VIL il. 88. 4.

The grd tone. To put away; to remove, I. ii. 7. 4: II. ii. 4. 1: III. ii. 8. 1, et el.

THE 29th RADICAL, 又.

Moreover, further; -continuing a narrative by the addition of further particulars, I. ii. 11. 3: II. i. 1. 8; 2. 8, 10, 16, et al., saspe. — — and still, III. ii. 5. 2.

(1) To come to; to reach to; to attain to, I. ii. 18. s: II. ii. 11. 4: III. i. 8. 9: VI. ii. 5. 4: VII. i. 27. s; 29; ii. 1. 1, s; 28. 1. 及=to wait for, V. i. & g. 灰, so as to reach to, L. i. 7. 10, 12. 及, L il. 11. 4: IL il. 2. 6: VIL l. 41. L (2) At the commencement of clauses, a conjunction, = and when, I. i. 5. 1; 7. 20: II. i. 4. 2, 4; ii. 9. 4: III. i. 2. 5; 8. 3; ii. 9. 5: VII. i. 15. 2; 16; ii. 6. (3) As a preposition or conjunction, - and, I. i. 2. 4; along with, IV. i. 9. 6.

(1) A friend, friends, L ii. 6. 1: IL i. 9. 1, of al. Joined with M, II. i. 6. 3: III. i. 4. 8: IV. ii. 80. 4. (2) Maintaining friendship with; to be friendly, IL i. 9. 1: III. i. 8. 18: V. ii. 8. 1, 3, 5; 7. 4. (3) A name, 然友, III. i. 2.

(1) To return (neuter), L ii. 4.7; 12 a, et al. Active; sometimes = to recall, L ii. 11. 4: II. ii, 4. 3; 12. 4, et al. 反命, to report the execution of a commiss III. i. 2. 5; ii. 1. 4, et al. (2) To turn back to, I. i. 7. 17, 23, et al. ? VII. ii. 88, 1; 87. 13. (3) To turn the thoughts inwards, I. i. 7. 9. Compare 自 反, self-exam-ination, II. i. 2. 7: IV. ii. 28. 4, 5, 6. 反 身, IV. i. 12. r: VII. i. 4. r. ____,&a., IV. i. 4. (4) To turn round, IL. i. 1. 6. (5) On the contrary, yet, IL i. 2. 10. Contrary to what should be, IV. i.

右

司

同

18, 2; ii. 24. 2. (6) 反覆, to repeat, again and again, V. ii. 9. 1, 4: VI. i. 7. 2. Observe II. ii. 6. 1, 2.

(1) 叔父, a father's younger brother, an uncle, VI. i. 5. 4, 5. (2) 普叔, an elder brother of Châu-kung, II. ii. 9. 2, 3. (3) In surnames, VI. ii. 15. r.—II. ii. 10. 6.

To take, I. ii. 10. a, 3; 11. 1; 14. a, et al., saspa. To obtain, receive, I. i. 1. 4. To find; choose; approve of, IIL i. 5. 3: IV. i. 8. 3; ii. 18. 1, 2; 21. 3; 24. 2, et al. To seize, III. ii. 5. 5, 6, et al.

To receive, II. i. 2. 4; 9. 1; ii. 8. 1, 8, 4: V. ii. 4. 2, 3; 6. 4, 5, et al., sagpe. To accept, V. i. 5. 5, 6. 其所受教, those whose instructions they might receive, II. ii. 2. 9. 有所受之, it was received from a proper source, VII. i. 85. 4.

Venerable Sir, L.i.1.2; 5.1. 高叟, that old Kao, VI. ii. 8. 2.

A thicket, IV. i. 9. 2.

THE SOTH RADICAL, .

To call, to summon, I. ii. 4. 10: II. ii. 2. 5, 7, 10: V. ii. 7. -, 3, 4, 9.

To knock at, VII. i. 28. g.

Antiquity, ancient, I. ii. 1. 3: II. i. 2. se, st el., seepe. 古之人 is of frequent occurrence, sometimes meaning the encients generally, but often the ancient kings and worthies, I. i. 2. 3; 7. 12: II. ii. 1. 13, st el. 古者, the ancients, anciently, II. ii. 7. 2: IV. i. 18. 3¢ III. ii. 7. 1. 古公, the ancient duke, the title of 数, an ancestor of the Châu family, I. ii. 5. 5.

May. Passim. Like may in English, III may represent possibility, liberty, or ability. III is very frequent, -may. The may sometimes be explained by thereby, therewith, but not always. III is not always an auxiliary, but often conveys a complete meaning. Observe II and III in III. ii. 1. 4, &c. &c.

The 1st tone. In the name 句 變, I. ii. 8. r.—VII. i. 9. r. History; historical, IV. ii. 21. 3.

(1) The right, 左右, to—on—the right and left, I. ii. 6. 3: II. ii. 10. 7: IV. ii. 14. (本方, the right = the west—of Ch'', VL ii. 6. 5.) 右 = attendants, I. ii. 7. 4, 5: ? disciples, IV. ii. 8I. 1. (2) 右前, the title of a high officer at the courts of the princes, IV. ii. 27. 1, 2.

To preside over. The phrase 有司 —'the officers,' generally those of inferior rank, I.ii. 12. 1, 2; 16. 1: III. i. 2. 4: VI. ii. 10. 4. 有司者, II. ii. 10. 7. 司 徒, the minister of instruction, III. i. 4. 8. 司徒, the minister of justice, VI. ii. 6. 6. 司城, the city-master, V. i. 8. 3. 司馬, the master of the horse, V. i. 8. 3.

Each, every, VII. i. 4. 6.

(1) To agree with, I. i. 7. 9: IV. ii. 20. 5 VII. ii. 87. 11. (2) To unite, IV. ii. 1. 3. Observe VII. ii. 16. 1.

(1) The same, I. ii. 16. 2: II. i. 2. 22: III. i. 4. 17, et al., sape. Often = to be the same, to agree, in or with.

are there points in which they agree? II. i. 2. 24. To make the same, III. i. 8. 3.

II. i. 2. aq. To make the same, III. i. 8. 3.

II. i. agreeing with, VII. ii. 87. II.

Adverbially,—together, in common, III. i. 8. 19: VII. i. 18. 3. (2) To share, I. ii. 1. 6, 7; 2. 2; 4. 2, et al. (3) A name, II. ii. 8. I, 2.

(1) A prince, a ruler, I. ii. 11. 2: III. ii. 5. 4. (2) 更后氏 and 更后—the great Yū, the founder of the Haia dynasty. Sometimes—the Haia dynasty, or its founder, II. i. 1. 10: III. i. 8. 6: IV. i. 2. 5: V. i. 6. 7. (3) 后 稷, the title of Shun's minister of agriculture, Tut (Chi), III. i. 4. 8: IV. ii. 29. 1, 2, 3, 4.

(1) The name, VII. ii. 86. 2. To name, ming III. i. 4. II: IV. i. 2. 4. 無名之指, the fourth finger, VI. i. i2. I. (2) Fame, VI. ii. 6. I: VII. ii. 11. 名世者, illustrious men, II. ii. 18. 3.

An officer, a minister, III. i. 8. 13: V. i. 8. 3. 委, p., the office first held by Confucius, V. ii. 5. 4. 天吏, II. i. 5. 6; ii. 8. 2.

A prince, a ruler. Passim. It very often occurs in correlation with , a minister.

咽

唯

郊哭※哿»唐

吠产否点 吳 $ 告3

君子, the superior man, a designation of the individual high in talents and virtue. Sometimes indicates station. 人君, see on 人. 都君, a designation of Shun, V. 1. 2. 3.

To bark, IL i. 1. 10.

(1) No, I. i. 7. 10, 15, 16; ii. 16. 2, et al., saspe. (2) Or not, II. i. 2. 1; ii. 2. 3; 4. 1.

The name of a State, I. ii. 8. 1: IV. i.

To announce respectfully and request, IV. i. 26. 2: V. i. 2. 1, 2.

(I) Passim. I, my. (2) In the name 答夷吾, VI. ii. 15. 1.

周obbu

(z) Complete, VII. ii. 10. (a) 周旋, turning or wheeling about, VII. ii. 88. a. (3) i.q. 则, to help, give alms to, V. ii. 6. a, 3: VI. ii. 14. 4. (4) Name of the Châu dynasty, or its original seat, I. ii. 8. 6: II. i. 1. 10; ii. 18. 4, et al., saspe. 周人, the founders of the Châu dynasty, III. i. 8. 6. 周人, the famous duke of Châu, II. i. 1. 7, et al., saspe. 周道, V. ii. 7. 8. (5) A name, VI. ii. 6. 5.—V. i. 8. 8. (6) A surname, III. ii. 8. 1.

Taste, flavours, VI. i. 7. 5, 8; 17. 3: VII. ii. 2a. r.

To call out, VIL i. 86. 3.

(1) To charge, admonish; orders, III. ii. 2. s; 3. 6: IV. i. 7. 2, 3: V. i. 2. 4, et al. To appoint. Applied very frequently to the ordinances of a sovereign or ruler, I. ii. 4. 6; 16. 1, et al., seepe. Applied also to the ordinances or appointments of Heaven or God, II. i. 4. 6: III. i. 3. 1s, et al. iiii = the Heaven-ordained, meaning our nature, VII. i. 1. 3. Observe II. ii. 14. 3

The to return—i. e. report the execution of a commission, is common. (2) To instruct; instructions, III. i. 5. 5: V. i. 1. 2; 2. 2: VI. ii. 7. 3. (3)

The speeches, II. i. 2. 18; 9. 1. (4)

In a double surname, V. i. 1. 1.

Harmony, accord; harmonious, accommodating, II. ii. 1. 1, 3: V. ii. 1. 5.

(1) All, III. ii. 9. 6: V. i. 2. 3; 8. 2. (2) , a double surname V. i. 4. 1, 2. To chatter and clamour about, III. ii. 6, 1.

The 4th tone. To swallow, take a mouthful, III. il. 10. r.

Sorrow; to lament, III. i. 2. 4, 5: VII. ii. 83, 2. Alas for! I. ii. 5. 3. Alas for! I. ii. 5. 3. Alas !—at the end of the sentence, IV. i. 10. 3: VI. i. 11. 2.

To vomit, III. ii. 10. 5.

Things round, circles, IV. i. 1. 1, 5; 2, 1.

To wail; to bewail, III. i. 2. 4, 5; 4. 13: VI. ii. 6. 5: VII. ii. 88. 2.

May. 哿矣=may get through, Lii. 5. 3.

(1) A name of Yao, V. i. 6. 7. (2) A name, V. ii. 8. 4. (3) 高唐, a place, VI. ii. 6. 5.

(1) Traders, travelling merchants, I. i. ang 7. 18 (1) (1): II. i. 5. 2; ii. 10. 7. (2)
The Shang dynasty, IV. i. 7. 5.

(1) To ask; to ask about; a question.

Passim. III is often followed by the to sak of or at; once, by T., II. i. 1. 3. (a)

III -to study; learning, III. i. 2.4:

VI. i. 11. 4. (3) To send to inquire for,

V. ii. 6. 4. III ..., III, ii. 2. 3. (4) Fame,

VII. ii. 19. 3.

(1) To commence, L. ii. S. 4. (2) To instruct, III. ii. 9. 6. (3) The name of Yū's son, V. i. 6. 1;—of the count of Wei, VI. i. 6. 3.

To taste, to sip, fif W, IV. i. 26.

(r) Good, virtuous; what is good; excellent, L i. 7. ar; ii. 4. 5; 5. 4: IL i. 1. 8; 8. a, 3, 5, et el., sage. (a) Skilful; to 和人成品

回統

因

困 k'so 团

be skilful, I. i. 7. 12: II. i. 2. 11, 18, et al., sceps. To make good; to cultivate, II. i. 9. 1: V. ii. 4. 5: VIL i. 9. 6.

To joy, be glad; joyful, I. ii. 1. 7; 9. 1: II. i. 8. 1; ii. 10. 2: V. i. 1. 2; 2. 3, 4: VI. ii. 5. 2; 18. 1, 3.

VI. ii. 5. 2; 18. 1, 3.

(I) To illustrate, I. i. 8. 2. (a) To understand, VIII. ii. 15. 3; VII. i. 21. 4.

To mourn for, I. i. 8. 3, et al. The period of, and all pertaining to, mourning, I. ii. 16. 1, 2; VII. i. 30. 1, 3, et al.

The 4th tone. (I) To die, expire; ruin, I. i. 2. 4: IV. i. 1. 9. (a) To lose, I. i. 5. 1: III. ii. 1. 2: V. ii. 7. 5: VI. i. 10. 5.

Lofty. A., I. ii. 7. I: III. i. 4. I5.

ch'ide

To find pleasure in; to relish, I. i. 6. 4, 6: VII. ii. 86. I.

un, magniloquent, VII. ii. 87. 6, 9.

hotio

(I) To try, A., Lii. 7. 19. (a) ch'ang Forming the past tense, I. ii. 1. 2: II. i. 2. 7, 15; ii. 6. I., 2, et al., sepe. The combination — The tragment. 2. 7, 15; ii. 6. 1, 2, et al., saepe. The combination 未當 is frequent.

In the designation — iii, II. ii. 8. r.

To bite, gnaw, III. i. 5. 4.

Vessels; implements, I. ii. 11. 3, 4: V. ii.4.6: VI. ii. 10.3. 被器,III. i.4.5. 器里, ILL il & 3

Actomy another, III. i. 4. 13.

(1) To dread, II. i. by urgency of affirs, Over against, 11 25, towards one

(1) To dread, IL i. 2. 4. (2) Pressed by urgency of affairs, IL ii. 7. 1.

, indifferent and self-satisfied, V. 1. 7. 3: VII. i. 9. a, 3.

A mok, L ii. 5. 4.

THE 81st RADICAL, .

Pour. Saspe. 四海 and 四海 之内, a name for all subject to the royal rule, I. i. 7. 12: III. ii. 5. 3, 7, et al., saspe. Observe IV. ii. 18. 2: VI. ii. 11. 3. 四方 and 四境, the four quarters of the kingdom or a State, I. ii. 8. 7; 6. 8: ILi.1.10, st at 四體,四支, and

VOL. II.

M m

土

共

在

四肢, the four limbs, IL i. 6. 6: IV. ii. 80. a: VIL i. 21. 4; ii. 24. z. 【日世, the four virtuous principles of our natur ILi. 6. 6, 7. 四罪, four criminals, V. i. 8. 2. 四夷, all the barbarous tribes about the Middle Kingdom, I. i. 7. 16.

The name of Confucius's favourite disciple, IV. ii. 29. 2, 3.

(1) Then, therefore, I. i. 7. so. (2) By cans of, taking advantage of, II. ii. 10. 4: III. i. 5. r. (3) To accord with, IV. i. 1. 6.

To be distressed, VI. ii. 15. g.

(1) Firm; to be made strong, II. ii. 1. 4.
(2) Stupid, VI. ii. 8. 2.
(3) As an adverb,
—certainly, indeed, as a matter of course, 1. i. 7. 5, 17; ii. 11. 3: VII. ii. 6. 1, et al., saepe.

A park, I. ii. 2. z, 2, 3: III. ii. 9. 5. ff, the name of king Wan's park, I. I. 2. g.

the appearance of being embarrassed, V. i. 2. 4.

the royal kingdom. the State of a Adu, L i. 1. 4; but such a State is called 萬秉之圖, Lii. 10.4: M — the people, L ii. IL i. 1. 13. 7. 4, 5: VIL ii. 28; but also = a common man, IV. ii. 8. r. 國家, a State, with its component great families, I. ii. 9. 2, et al., scope. | , the Middle Kingdom, Li. 7. 16, et al.; but - in the middle of the State, II. ii. 10. g. acity, IV. ii, 88, r: V. ii. 4. 4. Used for 君, V. ii. 7. 4. 為國, to administer a State, III.

A garden, III. ii. 9. 5.

THE 82mb RADICAL, +.

The ground, soil, II. ii. 7.4: IV. ii. 8.1: V. i. 4. 2. Territory, VI. ii. 7. 2; -but for this meaning ± 1 is commonly used, meaning also newly-cultivated ground, I. i. 7. 16; ii. 15. 1: IV. i. 14. 2, 3: VI. ii. 9. 1; 14. 4, et al. 平土, plains, III. ii. 9. 4.

The 4th tone. Bark about the roots of the mulberry tree, II. ii. 4. 3.

To be in; to be on; to depend on;—the where, wherein, and whereon following. Passim. As a preposition,—in, on, I. i. 7. so: III. i. 8. 8; in the case of, V. i. 8. s.

chien 堪

k'an

(1) \(\frac{1}{2}\) H, the holy field, III. i. 8. 16.

(2) A name, VI. ii. 10; 11. 1.

(1) The earth in correlation with heaven, II. i. 2. 13: VII. i. 18. 3. 14 = position, II. ii. 1. 1, 2, 3: VI. i. 7. 2. (2) The ground; territory, I. i. 5: 1, 2: II. i. 1. 8: V. ii. 2. 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, et al., scepe.

= lands, III. i. 8. 7. Observe 11. ii. sense. See 1. 11. iii. sense. See 1. 11. iii. sense. See 1. 11. iii. sense. III. i. 8. 14. (3) 11. = place, I. i. 7. 4, 7: IV. ii. 81. 3. 11. 3.

Equal, III. i. 8. 13.

To sit, I. i. 7. 4: II. i. 9. 1; ii. 11. 2, 3, too et al.

姐 A wall, III. ii. 7. 2.

(1) An anthill, II. i. 2. a8. So Chu Hest explains it, but in the dictionary its sound with that meaning is chik. (2)

A boundary; to bound in, IL ii. 1. 4.

磁基, a hoe, IL i. 1. 9.

The hall or principal apartment in a house, I. i. 7. 4: VII. ii. 84. s. (2) 15, the Brilliant palace, built for the purpose of Audience, I. ii. 5. 1, 2.

Strong, I. i. 5. 3: II. ii. 1. 3.

To endure, IV. ii. 29. 2.

The name of the ancient sovereign, IL i. 2. 26; ii. 2. 4, et al., sagnissime.

To acknowledge, to reply to, VL ii. &. L.

(1) An open area or arena, III. i. 4. 13. ch'ang (2) the fifth, a plantation keeper, VI. i. 14. 2.

(r) Mire, mud, IL i. 9. 1: V. ii. 1. 1 fii (流 炭). (2) Roada, L i. 8. 5; 7. 18.

To fill up, II. i. 2. 13. 克塞, to fill up and stop, III. ii. 9. 9. 80 茅塞, VII. ii. 21. 1.

域 然, the sound of the drum, I. i.

Ornaments on walls, = to disfigure, III.
ii. 4. 5.

A border, a boundary, I. ii. 2. 3.

据 境之内,四境, Lii. 6.3: II. i. 1. 10.
Name of a prince of Ch'1, VII. i. 88. 1.

(1) Ink. 編墨, a carpenter's marking line, VII. i. 41. s. (s) Black, IVI. i. 2. 4. (3) Surname of a heresiarch. 墨書, a Mohist, III. i. 5. 1, s: VII. ii. 26. 1, s. 是氏, III. ii. 2. 9. 墨春, III. ii. 9. 10, 14.

Tombe, IV. ii. 88. 1.

A channel for water; a ditch, III. i. 5. 4: VI. ii. 11. 3. In other cases, always in combination with his, I. ii. 12. a: II. ii. 4. a: III. i. 8. 7; ii. I. a: W. ii. 7. 5.

A tract beyond cultivation, IV. i. 2. 2.

(1) Mould, III. ii. 10. g. (2) 環境, territory, III. i. 8. 14.

To pull down, III. ii. 9. 5.

THE 88RD RADICAL, ±.

(I) A scholar, a man of education and ability. Passiss. (a) An officer, L i. 1. 4, et suspe. This and the preceding meaning run into each other. L L, H L, T L, V. ii. 2. 3, 5, 6, 7, 8.

壬 仲壬, a son of the sovereign Tang. v. i. 6. 5.

Strong, V. ii. 5. 4. ## - in vigorous choose manhood, I. i. 5. 3; ii. 9. 1; 12. 2: II. ii. 4. 2.

Solely employed, exclusively active, II.

Long life, VIL i. 1. 3.

THE 85TH RADICAL, 女.

Repeated, - the appearance of being reverential, V. i. 4. 4.

THE SOTH RADICAL, 夕.

The evening, VL ii. 14. 4.

Night, IV. ii. 18. s; 20. 5: VI. i. 8. 1, 2.

Many; much, I. i. 1. 4; iii. 1, 2, et el., saspe. To become many, III. ii. 9. 5. In other cases it contains the copula in the same way. Many times, II. ii. 4.2. Mostly, VII. i. 86. 2. 3 and 3 3 3; VI. ii. 18. 2. VI. ii. 18. 2.

THE 87mm RADICAL, 大.

Great, large; greatly. Passim. To make great, I. ii. 8. 5. 大=if the result were great, III. ii. 1. 1. 大情, the nobler part of our nature, VI. i. 15. 1, 2. 大厅, a master-workman, VI. i. 20. 2: VII. i. 41. 2. 大夫, see 夫. 大人, see 人.

大甲, the name of a Book in the Shu-ching, II. i. 4.6, et al. 太善, éd., III. ii. 5.6; V. i. 5.8. 太丁, a son of the sovereign Tang, V. i. 6.5. 太王, an ancestor of the House of Châu, I. ii. 8. 1; 5. 5; 14. 2; 15. 1. 太師, the Grand music-master, I. ii. 4. 10. 太公 and 太公堂, a minister of Win and Wû, IV. i. 18. 1: VI. ii. 8. 6: VII. i. 22. 1; ii. 88. 3. 太山, the Tâi mountain in Shantung, I. i. 7. 11: II. i. 2. 28: VII. i. 24. 1.

(r) A male, males, L 1i. 5. 5: III. i. 8. 17. Ahusband, Lii. 5.3. 夫=a fellow, Lii. 8. 3. So, when joined with 🚜, II. i. 2. 4; with 📆, V. ii. 1. 1; with 🔐, V. ii. 1. 3; with , VII. ii. 15. 夫妻, III. i. 4. 8: IV. ii. 80. 5. 仄 夫, ••• 匹. 丈夫, ••• 丈. 夫,a husbandman,III.i.4.5,9,44. Observe 夫…布,℡iās (a)大夫, neral name for the officers of a court, below the chief minister. especially V. ii. 2. 3. (3) 夫子 master-used in conversation. Applied to Mencius. Passim. Applied to Con-(4)夫人, the wife of a prince, IILii.& 3.

The 2nd tone. (x) An initial particle, which may generally be rendered by sees. Sometimes, however, we must use then or but: and sometimes it will hardly admit

Mm 2

夫

好

如

of being rendered in English. Passim.
(a) A final particle, with exclamatory force, IV. ii. 24. 2: VI. i. 1. a; ii. 7. a. (3) Intermediate in sentences, with a demonstrative force, I. i. 6. 6: II. ii. 2. 6: VII. i. 89. 4. To this are to be referred 今夫,若夫, and且夫, the two former of which are common.

To lose, II. i. 1. 8; ii. 1. 4; 4. 1, 2, et al., saspe. To lose,—not to get, I. i. 8. 4; 7. 24, et al. To fail of or in, III. ii. 1. 4: VI. il. 7. a, et al. 自失, to lose one's self, II. i. 9. s: compare IV. i. 19. 1.

夷

(1) Even; evenly. In the phrase 夷 考, VIL il. 87. 6. (a) To wound, - to be offended, IV. i. 18. a. (3) Used for 🚁, the invariable rules of virtue, VI, i. 8. 8. (4) Barbarous tribes;—properly those on the cast, as in E , III. ii. 9. rr. But used generally, III. i. 4. rs. We have also昆夷,Lil&1;四夷,Li7.16; 東夷, IV. il l. r; and 西夷, L il 11. a, et al. (5) A surname, III. i. 5. (6) In the honorary epithet, 伯夷, L. i. 2. 22, 23, et al., same. Also in the name, 餐房吾,Ⅵ.ііӀն.ҡ

The name of a State, III. ii. 9. 6.

Services, VI. i. 10. 7, 8.

In a name. 宮之奇, V. i Q. a Shun's minister of Instruction, III. i.

龟の奉が奇が契が

(r) An interrogative partiale, =how, why, what, I. i. 7. 22; ii. 11. 2: III. ii. 1. 2; 5. 4: IV. ii. 28. 4, 6: V. i. 2. 3, 4; 8. 2; ii. 4. 6; 7. 4, 5: VI. ii. 1. 7; 2. 3: VII.i.84; ii.4.3; 22.3. 奚篇, L.ii. 16. s: VI. ii. 18. 3. In names, 白 里 ≇, ∀. i. 9. 1, 2: ∀L ii. 6. 4; 15. 1.-奚, III ii 1. 4.

To match, take by force; to rob, I. i.1. 4; 8. 4; 5. 4; 7. 23: III. ii. 5. 2: IV. i. 16. 1: VI. ii. 1. 8. Observe VI. i. 15. 2.

To press forward; to make himself distinguished, VII. ii. 15.

THE 88rs RADICAL, 女.

A woman, a female; a daughter, I. ii.
5. 5: III. ii. 4. 3; 5. 5: IV. i. 17. 1: V.i. 1. 3, 4; 2. 1; ii. 6.6: VII. ii. 6. a daughter, III. ii. 2. 2; 8. 6.

The 3rd tone. For fir, you, your, L. i. 2. 4; ii. 9. 1, 2: III. ii. 1. 4; 2. 2.

The 4th tone. To give a daughter to one in marriage, IV. i. 7. s: V. ii. 6. 6.

The 4th tone. To love, be fond of. Bags. to be fond of strange things, V. i. 8. ri. 9. r. 歸于奸, to become friendly, VI. ii. 7. 3. Mencius never uses friendly, VI. ii. 7. 3. 开as an adjective in the grd tone, 好 =good, fine, unless in V. i. 1. 4.

(1) As. Saspe. We often find to 1 and the thus, such, so. (2) As -ii, # or though, since, L i & s; 5. 3; ii. 5. 4, 5, st al, seepe. 80 如便, VI. i. 7. 5; 10. 3, dal ③如何,如之何,何如 see on in, but observe the difference between if the at the beginning and at the end of a sentence. Observe also I. ii. 14. 3. (4) After adjectives, it - our termination by VII. i. 18; 12. a, stal. (5) 加=to wish, IL il. 2. r.

A consort, a wife. The dictionary says that the most honourable inmate of the harem next to the queen was called but it seems to have the highest meaning in L ii. 5. s.

Irregular, utterly lost, IV. ji. 28. 6.

媒妁, a go-between, a matchmaker, III il 8. 6.

A deceased mother. In 考觉, V. i. 4. r. 妣

A wife, L i. 5. 4, et al., sage. 基子, wife and child, wives and children. Se The 4th tone. To give to one to wife,

A concubine, IV. ii. 88. z, s: VL i. 10. 7,8; il.7.3 In VII. il.84.a, 侍妾-'attendants and concubines.' -women, III. ii. 2. 2.

V. i. 2. 2. To have to wife, V. i. L. 4.

To begin; beginning; first, I. i. 2. 3; 8. 3; 4. 6; ii. 2. 3; 4. 9; 11. a: II. i. 6. 7; ii. 10. 7: III. i. 8. a (N.B.), 13; 5. 3; ii. 5. 4: V. i. 2. 4; ii. 1. 6.

(r) For the present, if you please, Lii. 9. 1, 2: II. i. 2. 21; VII. i. 89. 2. (a) In III. i. 5. 4, the meaning is undetermined.

A, or the, surname, V. ii. 9. 1, 4: VIL ii. 86. a. 百姓, the people, L i. 7. 5, 6, 7, 10, 12, et al., sage.

To give up; to cast away, IL ii. 1. 3: III. i. b. 4.

The 4th tone. Public stores of grain, to. 委吏, the first office held by Confucius, V. ii. 5. 4.

姜 姜女, the wife of king T'āi. 姜 delong is the surname, L ii. 5. 5.

Beauty, VI. i. 7. 7.

Majosty, dread, I. ii. 8. 3: III. ii. 2. 3. To overswe, II. ii. 1. 4.

To marry (on the part of the man), IV. i. 26. s: V. i. 2. 1, 2; ii. 5. 1.

世执, a matchmaker, III. ii. 8. 6.

A name. ## 1V. i. 1. z.

To flatter, VII. il. 87. 9.

[養湯媚]嫁湯娘品雙、蘇門

To be married (on the part of the woman), III. ii. 2. s.

An elder brother's wife, IV. i. 17. I, 3: V. i. 2. 3.

A favourite (in a bed sense), and 美人, I. i. 7. 16; ii. 16. 1, 3; III. ii. 1. 4.

The name of a place, IL. ii. 7. 1.

THE 89rm RADICAL, 子.

(I) A son. But often it is equivalent to child, children; especially in the frequently recurring phrase 子. So, in 赤子, an infant, III. i. 女子, a daughter, IIL ii. 8. 6. 天, a virgin daughter, VI. ii. 1. 8. (a) A general appellation for virtuous men, which may be translated by gould-men, disciple, philosopher, &c. Same. In this sense it is often used in conversation, and is equivalent to You, Sir. Observe 吾子, II. il. l. 3, and 二 ay friends, my disciples, L.ii. 15. r. this sense it is very common after sur-names and honorary epithets. We have 孔子,孟子,告子,如如 is used also after the surname and name or epithet together, as in 孟康子, et al. (3) A title of nobility, V. ii. 2. 3, 4,5 So, in 微子, IL i. 1.8: VL i. 6. g, and 玺子, II. i. 1. 8. (4) It enters often into designations, as in 子 翼 子思, &c. &c. Into names also, as in 一子, IV. ii. 25. 1, and perhaps 子, IV. ii. 24. a 子权, II. ii. 10. 6, 🗜 🅦, IV. ii. 24. s, seem to be (5) Phrases equivalent to surnames. formed with 子 are-天子, the highest name for the sovereign. Same. - Es, sons and younger brothersyouths, I. ii. 11. 3: II. i. 5. 6, et al.; -, disciples, II. i. 1. 7; ii. 10. 9; 11. 3: IV. i. 7. 3; 子孫 descendants, Lii. 14. 3, et al. Observe IV. i. 7. 3; 先子, see 先:世子, the crown prince, III. i. 1. 1, st ol.; 眸子, the pupil of the eye, IV. i. 15. r, s; 樹子, the designated heir, VI. ii. 7. 3; 夫子, see 夫; 小子, little children, said to the disciples by Confucius, IV. i. 8. 3; 14. 1; a boy, II.i.& g: IV.i.& s; 音 平, u, III il 6, a, 3; and 君子, see 君.

} Half-an-one, V. i. 4, 2,

凡 Asurname. That of Confucius. Pussim.

(i) To be in, IV. i. 15. I, et al. 存= true to abide, VII. i. 18. g. (s) To be preserved, II. i. 1. 8, et al., sage. 存=to be alive, VII. i. 20. a. To preserve, IV. ii. 19. I, et al. Observe 存入, IV. ii. 28.

(r) Filial piety; filial; to be filial, I.i.
8. 4; 5. 3; 7. 24, et el., suepe. (2) The honorary epithet of a duke of Wei, V. ii.
4. 7.

李 (1) In a name, VI. i. 5. 1, 5. (a) A surchi name, V. i. 14. 1.—V. ii. 4. 7. 季孫 II. ii. 10. 6. Observe 季子 and 季 任, VI. ii. 5.

(1) The great, chief, 趙孟, VI. i. 17. mäng a. (a) A surname. That of Mencius. Puesim. 孟仲子, II. ii. 2. 3.一孟季子, VI. i. 5. 1, 5.一孟獻子, V. ii. 8. a.一孟施舍 and 孟黄, II. i. 2. a, 5, 6, 8.

Young and fatherless, I. ii. 5. 8. friendless, VII. i. 18. 2.

Children. Said by Chû Hat to mean wives and children, I. ii. 5. 3.

An infant, able to smile. 夜提之 Madi 苗, VII. i. 15. 2.

descendants, L ii. 14. 3. Observe F. T. Iv. i. 7. 5. (s) In double surnames, II. i. 1. 1, of al.—II. ii. 10. 6.—VI. ii. 15. 1.

Who, which:—interrogative, I. i. 6. 3, 5, 6; 7. 17, 18; ii. 1. 4: IV. i. 19. 1, 2, 4 al.

times VII. i. 25. r, 2; 41. r.

(1) To learn; learning, I. ii. 9. 1, 2: II.

Actio i. 2. 19, 22, et al., saspe. (a), to study, or held III. i. 2. 4: VI. i. 11. 4. (a) A school, or college, of a higher order, III. i. 3. 10.

(r) , a boy, II. i. 6. 3: IV. i. 8. a. (a) In a name, IV. ii. 24. a.

(r) The sons of concubines, VII. i. 18. s.
(s) = calamities, II. i. 4. 6: IV. i. 8. 5.

THE 40m RADICAL,

The sides of a house, below the caves.

A homestead, a dwelling, I. i. 8. 4; 7. 24; II. i. 7. 2: IV. i. 10. 2, 3; VII. i. 22. 2.

To guard, have the charge of; to observe, but with the idea of guarding, L ii. 4. 5; 18. a; 15. a; 11. i. 2. 6, 8; ii. 5. 5; III. i. 8. 18; ii. 4. 3; IV. i. 8; 19. 1, 2; ii. 81. a; VI. ii. 5. 1; 7. 5; VII. ii. 82. 1, a. 7 7, a keeper, VII. i. 86. 3.

(r) Rase, quiet, VI. ii. 15. 5: VII. ii. 24. r. (e) Tranquil; to be in repose; to repose in, II. i. 7. s; 12. 5: IV. i. 10. s, 3; 8. r. V. i. 5. 6: VII. i. 32. a. (g) To give repose to, I. ii. 8. 6, 7, 8: II. ii. 11. 8: VII. i. 19. a. (4) Quietly, in tranquillity, I. i. 4. r: III. ii. 2. r: IV. ii. 14. r.

(1) The name of a State, II. i. 2. 16; ii. 3. 1, 3: III. i. 1. 1; 2. 1; 4. 3, et al. (2) A surname, VI. ii. 4. 1.—VIL i. 9. 1.

Complete; to complete, IV. i. 1. 9: V. i. 2. 3.

(1) To settle, compose; to be settled, I. i. 6, a: III. i. 2, 3; 8. 13; ii. 9, 3 (N.B.): IV. i. 20; 24. 2; 28. a: V. ii. 9. 4: VII. i. 31. a, 3. (a) An honorary epithet, III.

(1) To be right, reasonable; to seem to be; ought, ought to be, L. i. 7. 7; ii. 2. a, 3: II. ii. 2. 5; 9. 3: III. ii. 1. 1: IV. L. 1. 7; 24. a; ii. 24. 1; 28. 4: V. i. 2. 1; ii. 5. 3: VII. i. 41. 1. (a) In a name, VII. ii. 38. 3.

A visitor, a stranger, II. ii. 11. 3.

(1) A house, I. ii. 9. II. ii. 10. 3, stel., sage. 宫室, houses, edifices, III. ii. 9. 5: VI. i. 10. 7; ii. 10. 4: VII. i. 26. a. 室=a palace, V. ii. 8. 5. 室=a family, a house, IV. i. 6. I: V. ii. 21: VI. ii. 10. 3. ? 處室者, IV. ii. 88. I. (2) 室=a wife. 有室, III. ii. 8. 6. 男女居室, male and female dwell together, V. i. 2. I.

An honorary epithet. 客宜王, Li.7. 1, et al., sage.

(z) A palace, V. i. 2. 3; 5. 7; 7. 9. 二 a house, an establishment, III. i. 4. 5. 三 宝, see 宝. (a) A surname, V. i. 9. a. In the double surname 北宫, II. i. 2. 4, 6.—V. ii. 2. z. (3) 上宫 and 宝宫 are the names of two palaces, VII. ii. 80. z: L ii. 4. z.

(z) To injure; to be injured; injury, I. ii. 15. z: II. i. 2. z3, z6, st el., sege. It is often followed by 於, III. i. 4. 4, st el. (a) In a name, 浩生不害, VII. ii. 25. z.

What, why, I. ii. 2. 4. Chû Hat, however, explains it here by when.

To be at ease, to feel happy, III, ii. $. 3.

At night, III. i. 8. 2.

(r) A chief officer, IV. i. 14. 1. 秦幸, see 豪. (s) A surname, II. i. 2. 18, 25, 26.

(r) Countenance, deportment, V. i. 4. r:
VII. ii. 88. 2. (2) To be tolerated, VI. ii.
8. 2. To get the countenance of, VII. i.
19. 1. (3) To be admitted (as light), VII.
i. 24. 2. (4) ***
is not enough for the crime, IV. i. 14. 2.

(x) To stop over night, II. ii. 2. 4; 11. 1, 3 (N.B.); 12. x, 4, 6. (a) 百 - to cherish, V. i. 3. a.

温密, to hush, V. i. 4. z.

To sleep, VI. ii. 18. 1, 3.

To suffer from cold, Li. 8. 4; 7. 24. 実实, a cold, IL il. 2. r. To subject to the influence of cold, VI. i. 9. 2.

To examine, to observe closely, I. i. 8. 1; 7. 10; ii. 7. 4, 5: IV. ii. 19. 2: VII. i. 5. = to be extremely particular, VII. i. 46. 2 (observe the idioms).

To lodge (active), IV. ii. 81, r.

(1) Few, little, generally in correlation to 3 or 12, L. i. 7. 17: II. i. 2. 16, et al.
(2) Old and husbandless, widowed, I. ii. 5.
3. (3) 15, the humble designation of themselves by the princes,—the opposite of our We, I. i. 2. 1; 5. 1; 7. 4. et al.
(4) 15 = equal,—in the phrase 15, which is explained by 15,—such a wife as seldom is to be found, I. i. 7. 12. Compare 17 17 in Analects, XVI. xiv.

(r) To be full; to fill, I. ii. 12. 2: III. ii. 5. 5 (-to put). Joined with 7, VII. ii. 25. 5, 6; 81. 3. (2) Sincerity, VII. i. 87. 3. (2) Full, ii. 8. 6. (2) Fruit, III. ii. 10. r. Metaphorically, IV. i. 27. r, 2.

To enjoy repose; to give repose to, III. ii. 9. II: VII. ii. 4. 5.

(I) Wide and loose, II. i. 2. 4, 7. (2) Generous, V. ii. 1. 3: VII. ii. I5 Precious things, VII. ii. 28.

龍

ij.

To distinguish, to exalt, L ii. 8. 7.

THE 41st RADICAL, 1.

An inch, inches, II. ii. 7. 2: IV. ii. 7 (N.R.): VI. ii. 1. 5; 2. 2. Observe \(\text{VI} \), VI. i. 14. r, 6.

(1) Dykes. 11. ii. 1. 4. (2) To appoint, sions of a State, II. ii. 1. 4. (2) To appoint, —to territory or office, V. i. 8. 1, 2: VI. ii. 7. 3; 8. 6.

To shoot with an arrow and string; to shoot, VI. i. 9. 3; ii. 2. 3.

To shoot; archery, V. ii. 1. 7: VI. i. 20. r. 射清, an archer, II. i. 7. 5: III. ii. 1. 5. 80, sometimes, 射 alone.

(1) Shall, will, should, would; to be going to, to be about to. Passim. It expresses a purpose, and often, especially in questions, puts it delicately. Will be, III. i. 1. 5. (a) To offer, present, V. ii. 6. 5. (3) ? To assist, IV. i. 7. 5. (5)

Entirely, exclusively, II. i. 1. 3.

Choom (V), with exclusive attention, VI. i. 9. 3.

To presume, take on oneself, VI. ii. 7. 3.

To honour, II. i. 4. 2; 5. 1, et al., sauge. Honour; to be honoured, VIL i. 32. 1. Honourable, IL i. 7. 2: III. ii. 6. 2. An honourablesituation, V. ii. 5. 2, 3. Honourable things, IL ii. 2. 6.

A measure of eight cubits, III. ii. 1. 1, 2.

To reply. Same. Used properly of the reply of an inferior to a superior.

To lead, conduct, IV. ii. 8. 3. To lead on, influence, VII. i. 22. 3.

The 42md RADICAL,

Small, little; a little (adverb). Seeps.

/ - mean creatures, VII. ii. 19. 3. To consider small, VII. i. 24. r. To make small, I. ii. 9. r. Of phrases with 小we have—小子, see-子; 小人, the opposite of 君子 and 大人, seeps; 小龍, the meaner part of our constitution, VI. i. 15. r. s (compare 14. 2, 5); 小民, the inferior people, III. i. 8. ro; 小馬, mean, small valour of a bravo, I. ii. 8. 5; 小丈夫, a small man, II. ii. 12. 6; 小乃, the name of the five months' period of mourning, VII. i. 46. s; 小弁, name of an ode, VI. ii. 8. r. 4,

Ш

嵎

巡

(I) Few, Lii. 1.4: V. i. 6.2. 加少, to decrease, I. i. 8. 1. (2) In a little, V.

The 4th tone, Young, V. i. 1. 5.

(1) Still (adv.), III. i. 5. 1; ii. 10. 6. (2) To exalt, VII. i. 88. 2, 3. (3) To surpass, II. ii. 2. 9: VII. ii. 22. 1. (4) 😝 = to go up to court, V. ii. 8. 5. To ascend, V. ii. 8. a. (5) To add to, be added to. 不可尚 已, III. i. 4. rg. Observe 草 尚え M, the grass, when the wind is on it . . . , III. i. 2. 4.

THE 48ad RADICAL, 尤.

(r) A fault, I. ii. 4. 9. (2) To grudge against, to blame, I. ii. 12. 2: II. ii. 18. 1. To go to, to approach, L i. 6. 2, 7; 7. 4, 6, 7, et al., saspe.

THE 44TH RADICAL, P.

To personate the dead at sacrifice being a resting-place for their spirits, VI. 1. 5. 4. A cubit, II. i. 1. 8: III. i. 4. 17; ii. 1.

1, g: VI. i. 14. 1, 6; ii. 2. s: VII. ii. 84. s.

The 4th tone. To stop, L. ii. 16. g.

尺號尼記尼記 仲尼, the designation of Confucius, Li. 4. 6; 7. 2, et al.

> (I) 伊尹, the chief minister of the sovereign Tang, II. i. 2. 22, 23, et al., saspe. (s) A surname, II. ii. 12. 1, 3, 7. 尹 公, apparently a double surname, IV. ii. 24.2.

> (r) To dwell, reside, in,—generally applied to places, but sometimes to official positions; residence, seat. Passim. It is applied metaphorically also to virtues, and their opposites, as in II. i. 4. r: III. ii. 2. r, g: III. i. 10. r, g: compare II. ii. 2. rg. In VIL ii. 87. 11, 居之= their principles; compare IV. ii. 14. –, to choose an alternative, IL ii. 8. 1. In VII. i. 86. 1, 2, 3, 居=status, position. In VI. ii, 9. 3, - to retain. 居者, those who stayed at home, I. ii. 5. 4. (2) In a name, III. ii. 6. 2.

(1) A house, III. i. 8. 2: IV. ii. 81. 1

(r) To bend (act.), III. ii. 2. 3. To be vi. 1. 12. r. (a) The name of a place in Tsin, V. i. 9. 2.

Always in the phrase 不屑,-not to consider pure, not to condescend or stoop to, II. i. 9. 1, 3: VI. i. 10. 6; ii. 16. 1: VIL il. 87. 7.

The grd tone. To drive away, IV. ii.

Shoes or sandals, made of woven materials, III. i. 4. z, 17, 18; ii. 10. 4: VI. i. 7. 4: VII. ii. 80. 1, 2.

To tread, V. ii. 7. 8.

Belongings, = relationships, IV. ii. 30. 5.

To collect, L ii. 15. r.

THE 46TH RADICAL, [[].

Hills, a mountain, II. ii. 1. 4: III. i. 4. 7: VL i. 2.3; 8. z. | = wooded hills, I.i. 8.3. [A hill-paths, VII. H. 21. 東山, VII. 1.54; 太山, L.1.7.11: Ⅱ. i. 2. s6: Ⅶ. i. 24; 梁山, L ii 15. ɪ; 巣山, V. i. & a; 羽山, V. i. & a; 登山, V. i. 6. z; 44 山, VI. i. 8. z; and 15 [], I, ii, 14. 2; 15. 1,-are all names of mountains.

发发,dangerous, unsettled, V. i. 4. L

A mountain, by which was the original seat of the Chau family, giving also its name to the adjacent country, I ii. 5. 2, 5. 岐周,Ⅳ.ii.1.2 岐山,ை山.

Asmall high hill. 本標.VLit.1.5. (1) The name of a place in Ch'1, IL ii.

ch'ung 14. a. (s) 祭 山, see 山. To die,-spoken of a sovereign, II. i. 1. 7: V. i. 5. 7; 6. 1, 5. 篇角, the horns lowered to the ground, as when two bulls are fighting, VII. ii. 4. 5. A corner or bend of a hill, VII. ii. 25. 2.

A neighbourhood in the capital of Ch'i, III. ii. 6. 1.

ii. 84. 1.

Precipitous, VII. i. 2. 2.

THE 47TH RADICAL, (().

Ж A stream, IV. i. 1. z. ch'wan

To perambulate. 巡 矜, to make a tour of inspection—spoken of the ancient sovereigns, I. ii. 4. 5: VI. ii. 7. a.

帛

THE 48TH RADICAL, T.

(1) A workman, VII. i. 41. s. 百工, the various workmen, III. i. 4. 5, 6. 工—a charioteer, III. ii. 1. 4. 工師, the master of the workmen, I. ii. 9. 1. (a) In opposition to 前, — officers, IV. i. 1. 8. (3) 共工, the title of an ancient high officer, V. i. 8. 3.

左 The left. 左右, to—on—the left and right, L ii. 6. 3: II. ii. 10. 7: IV. ii. 14. r. 左 = attendants, L ii. 7. 4, 5. ? disciples, IV. ii. 21. r.

Skill; akilful; to be akilful, IV. i. 1. 1: ck'éde V. ii. 1. 7: VII. i. 7. 2; ii. 5.

Large, great, L. ii. 9. r: III. i. 4. r8: IV.

A witch,—one who prays and makes incantations on behalf of others, II. i. 7. r.

An order; a difference, III. i. 5. 3: V. ii. 2. 8.

THE 49TH RADICAL, F.

Self. Myself. Himself, yourself,—and the plurals. Passim. D, the same, H. i. 4. 5. Observe III. ii. 10. 5: VI. ii. 8. 2: VII. i. 9. 5.

(1) To stop, end, I. ii. 5. 1: III. ii. 8.

1, 2, 3, st el., sage.

1, if I may not stop, I. ii. 18. 2. Its most common use is at the end of sentences in the phrase 11 ph., and there stop, and nothing mere. Passin. So 11 ph., alone, VI. ii. 2. 2. Also without the 11 ph. IV. ii. 80. 5.

1V. ii. 80. 5.

2 ph., not to be able to stop, what is the result of necessity, is also frequent, I. ii. 7. 3; 14. 2, st al., sage.

1, alone. at the end of clauses and sentences, gives strong emphasis to the previous assertion, I. i. 7. 16, so: II. i. 9. 1, 2, st sage.

2 l. ii. 6. 2.

3 Indicates the past tense.

Must be translated sometimes by use, user, I. ii. 16. 1: IV. ii. 10. 1: VI. ii. 18. 8.

A lane, IV. ii. 29. 2.

THE SOME RADICAL, 11.

市 A market-place, marketa, I. i. 7. 18; ii. 5. 3; 11. s; 15. 1, et al. 市井之臣, V. ii. 7. I. III. ii. 10. 7, 為市者 is probably—'those who cetablished markets, rather than 'market-dealers.' Observe II. i. 5. a.

Cloth,—of flax, III. i. 4. 17; ii. 4. 3: VII. ii. 27; ? II. i. 5. 5.

Always in the phrase A, 'little,' few, IV. ii. 19. 1; 88. a: VI.i. 8. 2: VII. i. 18.

Cloth,—of silk, L i. 8. 4; 7. a4; III. i. 4. 17; VII. i. 22. a, g. (1); (1), VI. ii. 10. 4; see (1).

(I) A ruler, or sovereign, the ruler; used of Yao and Shun, II. i. 8. 9: V. i. 1. 8,4; 2. 2; ii. 8. 5. (2) 1 3, God, the most High God, I. ii. 8. 7: IV. i. 7. 5; ii. 25. a.

A leader, II. i. 2. 9.

Formerly in the entering tone. To lead, V. i. 4. r.

(r) A military host, I. ii. 4. 6; 10. 4; 11. 3: VI. ii. 4. 5, 6. 一篇, the royal armies, VI. ii. 7. a. (a) A teacher, master, III. i. 1. 4; 8. rr; 4. ra, r4, et el. 80, 先前, IV. i. 7. 3. (a) To make one's master, to follow, IV. i. 7. 4. (4) 编篇, a plantation-keeper, VI. i. 14. 2. 工篇, the master of the workmen, I. ii. 9. r. 条前, the Grand music-master, I. ii. 4. ro. 80, 篇 alone, IV. i. 1. r: VI. i. 7. 6. 上篇, the chief criminal judge, I. ii. 6. a: II. ii. 5. r. 一篇前, title of a high officer, IV. ii. 27. r. a. ? II. ii. 14. 3.

A mat, mats, IIL i. 4. z.

A girdle, a sash, VII. ii. 82. I.

or presents, VI. ii. 10. 4. So, stalone, V. i. 7. 3: VI. ii. 5. 1: VII. i. 57. a.

Lq. A. changing-like, sudm denly, V. i. 7. 4.

THE 51st RADICAL, 干.

To seek for, II. ii. 5. 4: V. i. 2. 3. (a)
To seek for, II. ii. 12. 1: VII. ii. 83. a.
(3) In names. 比于, the uncle of the tyrant Châu, II. i. 1. 8: VI. i. 6. 3.
—艮于木, III. ii. 7. a.

(1) To be brought to a state of perfect order. Spoken of the physical condition of the country, III. i. 4. 7; of its government, III. ii. 9. 11: IV. ii. 29. 1: VII. ii. 82. 2. II. ii. 18. 5: IV. i. 1. 1. 29. ii. 29

A year, years. Same.

Fortunate, lucky; fortunately, III. i. 2. 1: IV. i. 1. 8. Observe the idiom of followed by fin, IL ii. 2. 1: IV. ii. 20. 5.

THE 52nd RADICAL, &.

Young, to treat as the young; the young, L i. 7. 12; ii. 5. 3; 9. 1: III. i. 4. 8; ii. 6. 2: VL ii. 7. 3.

(1) Dark, III.i.4.15. (2) An honorary or rather dishonouring epithet of a sovereign, IV. i. 2. 4: VI. i. 6. a. (8)

The 1st tone. (1) To hope, VII. i. 41. 1.
(2) In the phrase ii, little, few, IV.
ii. 19. 1; 88. 2; VII. i. 8. 2; VII. i. 16.
(3) In the phrase iii., near to, or expressive of a wish, I. ii. 1. 1, 3, 7; II.
ii. 12, 4, 5.

Several, I. ii. 12. s: II. ii. 4. s. ? how many, IV. i. 24. s.

THE 58 RADICAL,

(1) A kind of school, I. ii. & 4; 7. 24: III. i. & 10. (2) A due order, III. i. & 8.

(z) Lq. 4H, a whetstone, V. ii. V. 8.
(a) E = to come to, IV. i. 28. 2.

A kitchen; shambles, I. i. 4. 4; 7. 8: p'do III. ii. 9. 55, the master of the kitchen, purveyor, V. ii. 6. 6.

府 A treasury. 府庫, L il. 12. 2: III. /6 i. 4. 3: VI. ii. 9. 1.

A kind of school, L i. 8. 4; 7. 94: III.

The court below and before the hall or principal apartment of a house, IV. ii. 88. r.

(1) A measure for determining the length, I. i. 7. rg. (2) A model, rules, I. ii. 4. 5: II. ii. 7. 2: IV. i. 1. 8.

To measure, I. i. 7. 9, 13.

An arsenal, 府庫 see 府.

有廊, the name of a State, V.i. & 2,3

康 康誥, the name of a Book in the Name Shū-ching, V. ii. 4. 4.

廣 点公 appears to be a surname, IV.

To pilfer and hide, VII. ii. 30. 3. Not well made; see the dictionary. I. q. below, and in Analects, II. 10. 4, 5.

(1) Ordinary, VI. i. 5. 4. (a) Merit; to think of one's merit, VII. i. 13. 8. (3) , a name of certain small principalities, V. ii. 2. 4.

Pure, disinterested; purity, moderation, III. ii. 10. 1, s: IV. ii. 22: V. ii. 1. 1: VII. ii. 15; 87. II. (s) (s), a supporter of the tyrant Châu, III. ii. 2. 6.

To hide, be concealed, IV. i. 15. a.

A stable, I. i. 4. 4: III. ii. 9. 9. But this is a vulgar form of the character in the first text.

A kitchen, I. i. 7. 8.

(1) A house, a dwelling-place, III. i. 4. z.
(a) A stance for a shop or booth, II. i. 5. 5.
To levy a ground-rent on such stance, II.
i. 5. a.

A shrine or temple. Always in the phrase 宗廟; see 宗

To put aside, disregard; to make void, I. i. 7. 4: IV. ii. 24. a: V. i. 2. I; 6. 4: VII. i. 26. 4; 41. a. To decay;—spoken of States, IV. i. 8. a.

 A granary. Always in connexion with A, L il. 12, 2: III. i. 4. 3: V. i. 1. 3; 2. 3; ii. 6. 6. 6. 5.

A granary. Always in connexion with A, L il. 12, 2: III. i. 4. 3: V. i. 1. 3; 2. 3; ii. 6. 6. 5.

(1) The shed tenanted by a prince mourning for his father, III. i. 2. 5. (a)

THE 54TH RADICAL, 3.

在 A courtyard. In the phrase 朝廷, the court, IL ii. 2.6: IV. ii. 27. 3.

THE 55TH RADICAL, H.

$\frac{1}{2}$, the name of an ode in the Shih-ching, VI. ii. 8. 1, 2, 4.

Chess-playing, IV. ii. 30. s: VI. i. 9. 3.

THE 56TH RADICAL, -C.

To make a model, to imitate, IL ii. 10. 3.

To murder; to be murdered.—Spoken with reference to killing a sovereign, I. i. l. 4; ii. 8. 2: III. ii. 9. 7: IV. i. 2. 4.

THE 57m RADICAL, 己.

A bow, I. ii. 5. 4: IV. ii. 24. 2: VI. i. 9. 3; ii. 8. a. 日人, a bow-maker, II. i. 7. 3.

(1) A younger brother, II. ii. 9. 3: III. i. 4. a, of al., suspe. Found often along with 兄. But sometimes 兄弟-relatives, V. ii. 8. 1; and in V. i. 8. 2, it = sistera. 子之兄弟, you and your brother, III. i. 4. 12. 子弟, soms and younger brothers—youths. Suspe. In II. i. 5. 6, it seems to = children; and in VII. i. 1. 2, a son. (2) Used for 弟, fraternal duty, VII. i. 39. 2. (3) 弟子, disciples, II. i. 1.7: II. ii. 10. 8; 11. 3 (-I, your disciple): IV. i. 7. 3.

(r) To condole with,—on occasions of death and mourning, II. ii. 2. s; 6. r; III. i. 2. s; ii. 3. r, 2, 3: IV. ii. 27. r. (a) To console, I. ii. 11. s: III. ii. 5. 4.

To draw; to lead on; to lead away, VI. i. 16. s; ii. 8. 9: VII. i. 41. 3. 另一to take, III. ii. 6. z. 另一to take, III. ii. 6. z. 另一

Not. Passin.

A bow,—the name of that belonging to Shun, V. i. 2. 3.

Weak, the weak, I. i. 7. 17; ii. 12. s: jás or III. ii. 5. s: IV. i. 7. 1.

Strong, vigorous, L i. 5. r: IV. i. 7. r: ol'iong VL ii. 18. a.

The 3rd tone. To make one's self strong ch'iang to, IV. i. S. 4; 14. 2: VI. ii. 9. a.

Strong; strength, I. i. 7. 17; ii. 11. 3.

To act vigorously at, I. ii. 14.3: VII. chicag i. 4.3. To force, III. i. 4.13. — by dint of pressing, III. ii. 1. 4.

A surname, V. i. 8. 2.

To draw a bow to the full, VI. i. 20. 1:

THE 50rm RADICAL, == .

A sow, swine, I. i. $. 4, 5; 7. s4: VII.

THE 59TH RADICAL,

(r) The bodily organs, VII. i. $8 (N. B.)

(a) To manifest, be manifested, VI. i. 6. 5.

Appearance, representation, I. i. 7. 11.

To cut, carve, 彫葉, L ii. 2 a

To display, give distinction to, VI. ii.

A surname, III. ii. 4. r.

THE 60m RADICAL, 4.

To serve, perform service, IV. i. 7. 1:
V. ii. 7. 2:
J (V., personal service, VII.
ii. 27. A servant, II. ii. 7. 3.
to make the will to serve, VI. ii. 5. 4.

往 (I) To go to. Passim. 無所往 而不..., in all places and circumstances..., VII. ii. 81. 3; 87. 10. (2) 往者, the past, VII. ii. 80. a.

(1) To exact duties; exactions, I. ii. 5. 9; II. i. 5. 2, 3; ii. 10. 7; III. ii. 8. 1; VII. ii. 27. 1. (2) To take, A. A. A. (3) To punish, to execute royal justice, I. i. 5. 5; ii. 11. 2, 3; III. ii. 5. 3, 4, 5; VII. ii. 2, 2; 4. 3.

(r) To go to; to march, I. ii. 2. 6, but the meaning is doubtful. (a) Seems to be used for III, and III. 75, -to decease, V i. 4. 1.

御 5 御 5 編 2 復 2

敝

必

(1) To wait, to wait for. May sometimes be translated by until, II. 1. 1. 9; 8. 1; ii. 4. 1, et el., seeps. (e) To treat, behave to, entertain, IV. ii. 38. 4; 81. 1; V. ii. 4. 4. In I. ii. 11. 1, the two meanings seem to come together.

To be refractory and quarrelsome, IV. ii. 80. 2. Is often written Pitch-tubes, for determining the upper musical accords, 大 律, IV. i. 1. r, 5.

That which is after. (1) As a noun. Posterity, I. i. 4. 6: IV. i. 26. 2. An after period, II. i. 2. 27. Futurity: here the may be considered—an adjective, future, III. ii. 4. 3. (a) As an adjective. Future, coming after, I. ii. 14. 3; 16. 1, et al., same. (3) As a verb. To make an after consideration, I. i. 1. 4; ii. 11. s: VII. ii. 4. 3, et al. To follow, keep behind, VI. ii. 2. 4. To follow after, succeed to (neuter), IV. ii. 1. 3. (4) As an adverb. Afterwards. Passum. Especially when preceded by the community of the conjunction and preposition, after words and clauses, generally preceded by —after, VI. ii. 7. 3, et al.

That, those. Saspe. It may be sometimes rendered conveniently by the third personal pronoun.

(1) Slowly, VI. ii. 2. 4. (2) (3) A surname, III. i. 5. 1, 3, 5: IV. ii. 18. 1.

A footpath, VII. ii. 21.

(r) Foot (adjective), IV. ii. 2. 3. (a) Meraly, only, II. i. 2. r6; ii. 9. 4; 18. 5: IV. i. 1. 3; 25: VI. ii. 8, 8. (3) A disciple, disciples, I. i. 7. a: III. i. 4. r, a; ii. 9. r4: IV. ii. 22. a: VII. i. 25. r, a.

(1) To get, to be got; both with and without an objective following. Passim. When there is no objective, the sense of the 得 must often be supplied from what precedes. 得乎 and 得於, to gain, to get the regard of, I. ii. 4. 2: IV. i. st. r: VII. ii. 14. 2. 必得, must get the proper men, VI. ii. 7. 3. 得更, VI. i. 10. 7, 8. 不得已, see 已. (2) The auxiliary con, could, 而 comes frequently between 得 and the verb.

To remove, III. i. 8. 18: IV. ii. 4. 1.

To follow—both physically, and = to act according to, I. i. 7. 21; ii. 9. 1, 2: IV. ii. 80. 2, at al., saspe.

follow, be in the train of, IV. i. 24. r; 25.
r. followed by m means to follower, — thereupon, thereafter, I.i. 7. 20: II ii. 10. 2, et el., but each character has its proper meaning. — from, VI. i. 4. 2.

The 4th tone. A  A, followers in immediate attendance, III. ii. 4. r: IV. ii. 30. 2.

御者, a charloteer, IIL ii. 1. 5.

I. i. 7. 12. The meaning is doubtful.

All round, the whole of, IV. ii. 83. 1: VII. i. 46. 1.

(1) To report, I. i. 7. 10. (2) To repay, (2) to avenge, III. ii. 5. 3.

The 4th tone. Again, II. i. 1. 1; 2. 17;

The 4th tone. Again, II. i. 1. 1; 2: 17; ii. 11. 3; III. i. 1. 3; 2. 4; ii. 9. 10; IV. i. 19. 3; V. i. 6. 5; VII. ii. 28. r. As a verb, to repeat, to try again, III. ii. 1. 4; VII. ii. 1. 2.

(1) Small, slight; in small degree, IL i. 2. so: III. ii. 9. 7: IV. ii. 81. 3: VL ii. 6. 6. 分析, the dress of a common man, V. i. 8. 3. The sentence to which this belongs has been omitted in the translation. 一般原而過失, 'He assumed, however, a private dress, and passed by Sung.' (2) The name of a State, II. i. 1. 8: VL i. 6. 3.

To wait for, I. il. 11. 2: III. ii. 5. 4.

To be evidenced, VI. il. 15. 3.

微視, the name of a piece of music, I. ii. 4. 9.

(1) To put away, II. i. 4. g. (a) To remove,—as the materials of a meal, IV. i. 19. g. (g) The share-system on which the Châu dynasty divided the lands, III. i. R. 6.

THE 61st RADICAL, N.

(1) The heart; the mind:—denotes the mental constitution generally. Supe. See note on IL i. 2. (2) In a name, IL ii.

Must, used as an auxiliary, and to asset also what is necessary. Often — what will certainly, would certainly; to be sure to Pussim.

ii. 87. 2.

恝

怸

悌

(1) To bear, to endure, V. ii. 1. 1, 3, et al. or 忍人之心, a heart that cannot bear the sufferings of others. So 忍人之 II, II. i. 6. 1, 2, 3: IV. ii. 1. 5. (2) To harden, to make enduring, VI. ii. 15. 2. To reflect, consider. 忖度,₺ measure by reflection, I. i. 7. 9. (I) The will; aim, purpose. Passim. In II. i. S. 9, 10, it appears to be used synonymously with N. In V. i. 4. 2, it - the aim or scope of a writer. 心流, VI. ii. 15. 2. , the will bent on or directed to, is common. We have the phrises 得志, III. ii. 2. 3, et al.; 立志, VII. ii. 16, et al.; 尚志, VII. i. 88. a, s; 役志, VI. il. 5. 4; 致志, VI. i. 9. 3; _____, a determined scholar, III. ii. 1. 2: V. ii. 7. 5. (2) A Record, a History, III. i. 2. 3; ii. 1. 1.

To forget; to be forgetful of, I. ii. 4. 7: II. i. 2. 16: III. i. 2. 1; ii. 1. 2: IV. i. 1. 4; ii. 20. 4: V. i. 1. 2; ii. 8. 2; 7. 5: VI. ii. 7. 3: VII. i. 8. 1; 85. 6; ii. 87. 1.

True-hearted; true-heartedness, sincerity, I. i. 5. 3: III. i. 4. 10: IV. ii. 38. 5, 6; 31. 1: VI. i. 16. 1: VII. i. 32; ii. 87. 11.

快報和 To be cheerful, to find pleasure, L. i. 7. 14, 15.

忸怩, to be and look ashamed, V. i.

To blush, VII. i. 20. 3.

To be angry; anger, I. ii. 8. 6, 7, 8; 9. 1: II. ii. 12. 6: III. ii. 2, 1: IV. i. 18. 2:

(1) To think; to think of, L ii. 5. 4: II. i. 2. 4; 8. 2; 9. 1: III. i. 5. 2: IV. i. 12. 2, et al., sueps. Thinking, thoughts, IV. i. 1. 5: V. i. 2. 3. (2) 子思, the designation of Confucius's grandson, II. ii. 11. 3, 4: IV. ii. 81. 2, 3: V. ii. 8. 3; 6. 4, 5; 7. 4: VI. ii. 6. 3.

息敖, indolent and indifferent, IL i. 4.4.

Urgent, earnest, III. ii. 8. 2, 6: IV. ii. 29. 4: VII. i. 46. 1 (N.B.)

The nature,—generally used of that of man, III. i. 1. 2, and especially in the 6th Book, Part I. Applied generally, or away from man, IV. ii. 26. r: VI. i. 2. 3; 8. r. Te be natural; to possess, to enjoy by nature, VII. i. 21. 2, 3, 4; 80. 1; ii. 24. I, 2; 88. I.

To murmur, I. ii. 11. 2; VI. ii. 8. 1. 2. 3. 4, et al., seeps. 日怨, to murmur against himself, to become contrite, V. i. 6. 5. 猴天, II. ii. 18. r; compare II. i. 7, 5. — to be dissatisfied, V. i. 1. 1; compare I. ii. 5. 5. Recentment, I. i. 7. 14; V. i. 8. 2.

忸怩∞忸

休愧, to be alarmed, IL i. 6. 3.

Constant, fixed; constantly, generally, I. i. 7. 20: III. i. 8. 3: IV. i. 5. 1; ii. 28. 3: VI. ii. 18. 3, 4: VII. i. 18.

恐 Kung To fear, be afraid; sometimes - our lest L. i. 7. 22; ii. 8. 8; 14. r: II. i. 7. r: III. i. 2. 4: IV. i. 16. r: VII. ii. 1. 2; 87. r2. The grd tone. To feel pleased, II, ii.

> The principle of reciprocity, making our own feelings the rule for our conduct to others, VIL. i. 4. g.

> The appearance of being without sorrow, V. i. 1. 2.

Licenser 放然, IIL ii. 9. 9.

The sense of shame; to feel ashamed of; shameful, L i. 5. r; ii. 8. 7: II. i. 7. 3, 4: IV. i. 7. 3, 4; ii. 18. 3: V. ii. 5. 5: VL ii. 14. 4: VIL i. 6; 7. r, a, 3.

Kindness, L i. 7. 10, 12: II. ii. 2. 4: IV. ii. 80. 4.

To respect, honour, IV. i. 1. 13; 16: V. ii. 4. 1; 6. 3. 恭敬, VL 1. 6. 7: VII. i. 87. a, 3. 若 - gravely complainant, III. i. 8. 4 不 恭, wanting in selfrespect, II. i. 9. 3.

(1) To stop (active and neuter), IIL ii. 9. 9, 19. To rest from toil, L ii. 4. 6. 安息, to rest in quiet, III. ii. 9.5. (2) To grow, applied to trees and to the mind, VI. i. 8. 1, 2. (3) A name, V. i. 1. 2; ii.

悄 悄悄, to al vide VII ii. 19. 3. 悄悄, to be disquieted and grieved, Brotherly duty; to be obedient as a younger brother, I. i. 8. 4; 5. 8; 7. 24: III. ii. 4. 3.

(r) To be pleased; to be pleased with, I. ii. 10. 3; 11. 2: II. i. 1. 3, 13; 8. 2; 5. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, et al., sage. Is sometimes followed by 7, V. i. 8. 3: VI. ii. 4. 5, 6. (a) To please, give pleasure to, IV. i. 12. r; ii. 2. 5: VI. i. 7. 8.—Observe 😩 容 悦,VIL i. 19. 1; 以爲悅,IL II. 7.3: VII. i. 19. s; and 以我為悅, VI.

To repent of, V. i. 6. 5.

Calamities; what causes sorrow and grief, IV. i. 28; ii. 9. r; 28. 7: VI. ii. 2. 3; 15. 4, 5: VII. i. 18. 2. What will endanger life, VI. i. 10. a, 3, 4. To be grieved, I. ii. 18. r: II. ii. 9. 2.

(株字, famished, to be distressed, IL st. i. l. rr.

棒 棒棒燃, angry-like, IL ii. 12. 6.

(z) The feelings proper to humanity, VI. 1. 6. 5; 8. 2. (a) = the truth, or reality, IV. ii. 18. 3. (3) = the quality or proper nature, III. i. 4. z8.

To be deluded, perplexed, IL i. 1.7: VI. i. 16. 3. To be in error, IV. ii. 29. 7.

怵惕…怵

A particle, both initial and medial. Pussim. It almost always means only. Observe its use in quotations from the older classics.

(1) To be kind; kindness, III. i. 4. 10:
IV.ii. 2. 23. (2) An honorary spithet, 来惠王, I. i. 1. 1; 2. 1, et el.—柳下惠, II. i. 9. 2, 3, et el.—罗惠公,
V. ii. 2. 3.

Wicked, bad; wickedness, II. i. 2. 4; 9. r: IV. i. 1. 7; 15. r; 18. s; ii. 25. s: V. ii. 1. r: VI. ii. 7. 4.

那 To dialike, detect, hate, Li. 4. 5: II. i. ed 4. 1, 2; 9. 1, et al., sage. 羞惡之心, II. i. 6. 4, 5: VI. i. 6. 7.

To be lazy, IV. ii. 80. 2.

To have mental anxiety, to be afraid, II. i. 2. 7.

To commiserate, 侧層之心, II. i. 6. 3, 4, 5: VI, i. 6. 7.

Unintelligent, stupid, L. i. 7. 19.

Transgression, error, IV. i. 1. 4.

(r) To be better,—spoken of disease, II. ii. 2. s, 3: III. i. 5. r. (s) To surpass, IV. ii. 24. r. Followed by , VI. ii. 11. r: VII. i. 89. r, 4. (3) To increase, VI. ii. 8. 4.

To think, IV. i. 25, z. One's own ideas, V. i. 4. z.

To love; to care for, I. ii. 5, 5: III. i. 5, 3; ii. 9, 9: IV. i. 4, 1; ii. 28, 2, 3: V. i. 1. 2; 2, 4; 3, 2: VI. i. 4, 4; 18; 14, 1: VII. i. 14, 3; 15, 2; 26, 2; 87, 1; 45; 46, 1; ii. 1. 1, 2. 3, 6, 7.

To be hated, VII. ii. 19. g.

To be ashamed, VII. i. 20. 3.

To complain, announce their wrongs, I. i. 7. 18.

(1) To be careful, to be cautious, I. ii.
7. 3: II. i. 7. r. (a) A surname, VI. ii.
8. r. 4.

To be kind to; affectionate, IV. i. 2. 4: VI. ii. 7. 3.

(1) To be dissatisfied, II. ii. 2. 4. (2) To be satisfied (also read ch'ich), II. i. 2. 15.

To desire, to affect, IV. i. 6. z. To desire with affectionate longing, V. i. 1. z, 5: VI. ii. 8. 5.

To feel ashamed, IL ii. 9. 1.

Wickedness; hidden wickedness, I. ii. 4. 6: VII. ii. 87. 13.

To despise; to neglect, I. ii. 12. s: II. ii. 2. 6. III. i. 8. rg.

Intelligence, discernment, II. i. 1. 9: VII. i. 18. r.

To think anxiously; to be anxious about, II. i. 2. 5; ii. 11. 4: VII. i. 15. 7; 18. s. Anxious thoughts, VI. ii. 15. 3.

Congratulation; to be rewarded, VI., ii. 7. s.

To be sorrewful; to grieve for; sorrew, canse of distress, L ii. 4. 6: III. i. 4. 7, 8, 9: IV. i. 9. 5; ii. 28. 7; 29. 2: V. i. 1. 4; ii. 8: VI. ii. 16. 5: VII. i. 27. 2; ii. 19. 3. 余薪之憂, - 'a little sickness,' II. ii. 2. 3. Observe 憂民之憂, L ii. 4. 3.

To hate. But the text is doubtful, VII. ii. 19. 2.

機悴,•••悴

TE teams

To dread, to shrink from, III. i.4. s.

或

To sorrow, II. i. 9. s: V. ii. 1. 3.

the appearance of being surprised, thoughtful-like, III. i. 5. 5.

To feel indignant, vexed, L i. 8. 9: VII. ii. 87. 8.

A name, VII. i. 85. r.

The 4th tone. To answer, II. ii. 8. s; 11. s; VI. ii. 1. 8.

To incur the resentment of, V. i. 2. r.

To repress; to punish, III. i. 4. 16; ii. 9. 12.

Admirable, VI. i. 6. 8.

Weak, timid, V. ii. 1. z; VII. ii. 15.

To cherish in the thoughts, VI. ii. 4. 5, 6.

To be suspended. 色素, hung up by the heels, L. i. 1. 13.

To fear, be alarmed, II. i. 2. 5: III. ii. 2. 1; 9. 8, 10, 11.

THE 6200 RADICAL, 戈.

A spear, I. ii. 5. 4.

The wild tribes of the West, III.i.4. 16; ii. 9. 12.

(1) To perfect, complete, I. i. 2. 3: IV. i. 1. 1: V. i. 9. 3: VI. ii. 5. 5: VII. i. 40. 3. Observe T. J., L. ii. 14. 3; and T. J., VII. i. 24. 3. To be perfect, III. ii. 8. 3: VII. ii. 14. 4. To become completed, IV. ii. 2. 3: VII. ii. 21. (a) Spoken with reference to music. Confucius is called T. J., a complete concert, V. ii. 1. 6. (3) A surname, III. i. 1. 4. In a double surname, VII. ii. 29. (4) T. J., the name of a book in the Shū-ching, VII. ii. 8. s.

To do violence to, VI. i. 1. 2. This chiang character has several other pronunciations.

(1) A kind of axe, I. if. 5. 5. (2) Relatives by affinity, I. ii. 7. 3: II. ii. 1. 4, 5: V. ii. 9. 1: VII. i. 84. 1. Used as a verb, II. i. 8. 2. (3) Sorrow, grief, III. i. 2. 5. III. i. 1. 7. 9.

A kind of spear, II. ii. 4. 1.

To collect, L ii. 5. 4.

(1) To put to death, to alaughter, III. ii. 9. 6: IV. ii. 4. (2) Diagrace, IV. ii. 80. 2.

(1) To carry on the head, L. i. 8. 4; 7. 24.
(2) A surname, III. ii. 6. 1.—III. ii. 8. 1.
(3) A name, III. ii. 10. 5.

THE 68m RADICAL, 戶.

更 To be distressed, reduced to straits, VII. ii. 18.

(1) A place, III. ii. 6. 2: V. i. 2. 4.
(a) The compound relative what, -that which, those which. Passin. Sometimes it is simply the relative, the antecedent, if we may so call it, being expressed, as in 所居之室. The idea of place as the antecedent often enters into the phrase where it is thus used. 無所 and 無所不,有所 and 有所不 are to be marked, VII. i. 7. s; ii. 1. s; 81. 1, 3; 87. 2, 10, st cl., saepe. 所以, whereby, the whereby, is very common; and 所, alone, has sometimes the same

抱

柮

相

7

栱

挫的

振

括

捆

桐

force. Observe 在所謂, VII. i. 48. z (compare IV. ii. 28. 7); 有所受之 III. i. 2. 3: VII. i. 85. 4; 所過, 所 存, VII. i. 18. 3; 所就, 所去, VL ii. 14. r; 兼所愛, VL i. 14. r; 未 有所終…, V.ii.4.6; 所爲主, 所 主, V. i. 8. 4; 惟 義 所 在, IV. ii. 11. 1; 所教,所受教, II. il 2.9; 所安, IL i 2.20; 所之, Lii.16.1; 惟君所行,Lii.4.s

In the phrase 犯某, III. i. 8. 7.

THE 64TH RADICAL, 丰.

The hand, hands, II. i. 1. 6: IV. i. 17. r, 8; 27. s (N.B.); ii. 8. r.

The natural powers; abilities, I. ii. 7. 2: VI. i. 6. 6, 7; 7. 1; 8. 2: VII. ii. 29. In the concrete, - men of good talents, IV. ii. 7: VI. ii. 7. 8: VII. i. 20. 4.

To rap, knock against, IV. ii. 24. 2.

扶持, to support, sustain, IIL i. 8. 18.

(1) To receive, I.i.4. 1. (2) To receive y and carry out, III. il. 9. 6, 13. 承難, V. i. 6. s. A passage here has been omitted in the text-股賢,能敬承總 歷年少施澤於民未 - that Ch'l was a wise and worthy prince, able reverently to receive and carry on the principles of Yū, and that Yih assisted Yū sely for a few years, conferring benefits on the people for a short time. (2) To resist, III. ii. 9. re. This is the meaning assigned by Chu Hat.

To grasp,—with one hand. 拱把, VI. i. 18.

(r) An initial particle, -come now, I. i. 7. 14. (s) Or, I. i. 7. 16. Followed by T. II. ii. 4. 3: III. ii. 10. 3. (3) To repress, III. ii. 9. zz.

To break off, L. i. 7. II.

To take out, IV. ii. 24. a.

To shake off, AR M., to confound, Read pi, i. q. in to assist; VI. ii. 15, a. able, VI. il. 15. 4.

To embrace, encircle, 枸 ఋ, to so round the gates, i.e. to guard them, V. ii. 5. g; 6. g.

To resist, to reject, VII. ii. 80, a.

(1) To pull out, VII. i. 26. r. (2) To rise high, II. i. 2. 26. In this meaning it should probably be read p'o; see the dictionary.

To detain, VII. ii. 85, 2,

Stupid, VII. i. 41. a.

(I) To call, to summon, III. ii. 1. s: V. ii. 7. 5, 6, 7. (2) To tie the legs, VII.

Used for M, the name of Shun's music. 徽。招,角。招, two pieces of music, L. il. 4. 9.

To make an obcleance; to pay one's respects, II. i. 8. a: III. ii. 7. 3: V. ii. 6. 4, 5.

To deliver, rescue, L ii. 11. 3. ch'àna

To grasp with the two hands, VI. i. 13.

持 To hold, to grasp, II. ii. 4. I. Applied to the will,—to maintain, II. i. 2. 9, 10. 扶持蜘扶

A finger, VI. i. 12. r, a; 14. 4. To point out, -meaning, scope, VI. ii. 4. 4: VII. ii. 뒴

To push. A push, II. i. 2. 4.

(1) To atimulate, III. i. 4. 8. (2) To bring to a close, to wind up,—in music, V. ii. 1. 6.

(1) To take under the arm, I. i. 7. 11. (2) To presume on, V. ii. 8. 1: VII. i. 48. 2.

A name, VII. ii. 29. z.

To beat and hammer. 18 , to make sandals, III. i. 4. z.

To remove, V. i. 2. g.

To give,—properly, with the hand, IV. i. 17. r. Generally, to give, IL ii, 10. g. To give up, surrender, III. ii. 5. a.

To collect imposts. , = exacting. able ministers, VI. in 7. s.

(r) The palm, L i. 7. rs: IL i. 1.8; 6.2. To manage, direct, III. i. 4. 7; ii. 1. 4. 排 III

To arrange, = to regulate the course of, III. i. 4. 7.

To dig. III. il. 9. 4: VIL i. 29. 1.

estead estead

To come into contact; to have intercourse with. (1) To receive, admit to one's presence, V. i. 8. 3. (a) $\frac{1}{2}\text{$\text{$\sigma}$}$, to have intercourse with, VI. ii. 4. 5, 6. But in I. i. 8. 2, $\frac{1}{2}\text{$\sigma}$} = being crossed, spoken of weapons. (3) $\frac{1}{2}\text{$\text{$\sigma}$}$, to let the water of rice strain off through the hand, V. ii. 1. 4: VII. ii. 17. (4) Used of the manner in which a present is offered, V. ii. 4. 3.

推

(1) To push, V. i. 7.6; ii. 1. a. (a) To push out, carry out, I. i. 7. m. To consider, procesute the study of, II. i. 9. 1. In these two cases, we should read the character ch'át.

检

掛

構造損害博品機等原系標

To cover. Applied to the bodics of the dead, III. i.5.4; to the nose, IV. ii. 25. r; to wickedness, IV. i. 15. r. To cover—to make good, to come up to, VII. ii.87.6.

To examine, to calculate, IV. i. 1. 8; ii. 1. 4.

To lift with the hand, to earry, 夜龙之童, children carried in the arms, VII. 1. 15. a.

To salute, with the hands joined before the breast, - to bow to, III. i. 4. rg: IV. ii. 27. g.

(z) To display, be displayed, put forth, III. ii. 5. 6. (s) ≜ kind of battle-axe, I. ii. 5. 4.

Used for to cover up, V. i. 2. 3.

To pull up, II. i. 2. 16.

To feel with the hand, = to adjust, VI. ii. 1. 5.

(1) To draw,—spoken of a bow, VI. i.
9. 3. 15, to press, to hold fast, II. i. 9. 2.

(s) To draw out, to recone, IV. i. 17. 1, 2, 3.

_____, to be fighting together, VI.
ii. 4. 2.

To diminish, to be diminished, III. ii. 8. s: VII. i. 21. 3.

(z) To seine, IV. ii. 8. 4: VII. ii. 28. s. (s) To strike with the hand, VI. i. 2. 3.

To drag, to drag away, VI. ii. 1. 8; 7. a.

To rub, i. e. to rub smooth, VII. i. 26. e.

To becken, to motion to, V. ii. 6. 4.

VOL. II.

n'n

To bend, 唐 , to flinch from strokes at the body, II, i. 2. 4.

(1) To tranquillize, - to subdue, I. i. 7. ró. (2) To hold, to grasp, I. ii. 2. 5.

To sow; to disseminate, III. i. 3. s: IV. i. 1. 7: VI. i. 7. s.

To beat, II. i. 2. 4: III. ii. 6. z.

To choose, I. ii. 14. s; 15. 2: II. i. 7. s; III. i. 8. ra: IV. ii. 28. 6. 牛羊何, what was there to choose between an ox and a sheep? I. i. 7. 7.

To beat, strike, 要析, V. ii. 5. 3; 6. g.

To hold fast,—spoken of the mind, VI. 1. 8. 4: VII. i. 18. 2. — principles, III. ii. 10. s, 6. In this meaning it should be the 4th tone, according to the dictionary.

. 巨 🕮, the thumb, III. ii. 10. a.

To stretch out and expand, 横而充之, IL i. 6. 7.

To encounter, to press near to, VII. ii. 28, a.

(z) To steal,—upon occasion offered, III. ii. 8. 2. (2) To bare, VII. ii. 28. 2.

THE 66TH RADICAL, 支.

支 Used for 肢. 四支, the four limbs,

THE 667H RADICAL, 5.
To take back, IV. ii. 8. 2, 4.

(1) Lq. 所. 有饭, some, III. ii. 5. 5. (2) Appears to be a mere expletive, Li.2.3. (3) 饭 妖, the appearance of a fish let go in the water, V. i. 2. 4.

To alter, change (active and neuter); to reform, II. ii. 9. 4: IV. i. 2. 4; 14. x (版於); ii. 29. x: V. ii. 4. 5: VI. ii. 15. 3: VII. i. 41. a. Observe 版 之 and 版語, II. ii. 12. 4, 5. 版日, 'spake with an altered mind,' V. i. 7. 4. In II. i. 1. 10, 不像一does not need more, (r) To attack, II. i. 5. 6; ii. 1. 2, 5: V. i. 7. 9. If -to expose one's errors, IV. i. 14. r. (a) To undertake, to proceed to do, I. i. 2, g.

(1) Tobanish,—spoken of men, animals, and doctrines, I. ii. 8. 1: III. ii. 9. 4, 10, and docurrnes, 1. 11. 5. 1; 111. 11. 9, 4, 10, 13; V. 1. 8. 1, a, 3; 6. 5; VII. 1. 81. 1, a. (a) To lose, let stray; stray, lost, VI. 1. 8. s; 11. a, 3, 4; VII. ii. 96. a. (3) Dissolute, self-abandoned, I. i. 7. so; III. i. & 8; il. 5. a. So 放然, III. ii. 9. 9. (4) 放飯, to eat immoderately; but anings are given to the phrase, VII. i. 46. a.

The grd tone. (1) To, going on to, I. ii. 4. 4: IV. ii. 18. s: VII. ii. 26. a. (2) '放動, a designation of Yao or (? possibly) of Shun, III. i. 4. 8: V. i. 4. z.

Government. Passim. By E, the prin-Government, VII. ii. 123; 28. 80政刑, ILida 為政, the administration of government, is ve common; but it - to give law to, in I. ii. 11. r: IV. i. 7. 4. 聽政, IV. ii. 2. r. ommon. It is also found. Observe 以政, V. i. & s.

The cause or reason of a thing. (1) 有故,無故, there being a cause, there being no cause, IV. ii. 8. 3, 4: VIL. i. 20. 2 (N.B.) Observe alone, III. i. 5. 3. At the end of a clause, and - because, Observe 1 VL i. 5. 4: VIL i. 21. 3. ··之故, VII. ii. 1. a (a) 故 and 是故, in continuation of a subject, -therefore, thus. Passim. (3) Facts, phenomena, IV. ii. 26. 1, 3. (4) Ancient, old, L ii. 7. 1: IL i. 1. 8. # = old acquaintance, VII. i. 48. 2.

效 死-to be prepared to die, to strive to death, L ii. 18. s; 15. s.

To teach. Same. Instructions; lessons, L. i. 2. 4; 7. 24; IV. i. 14. 2, 3. Observe II. i. 2. 19; and V. ii. 4. 4. Pronounced in the 1st tone, it—to call in, to employ, Alert, intelligent, and active, I. i. 7. 19: IV. i. 7. 5.

To save, L ii. 11. 1; 12. 1: III. ii. 5. 5: V. i. 7. 6. to put out, to save from fire, VI. i. 18. r. to part, to stop from fighting, IV. ii. 29. 6, 7. to save themselves from death, I. i. 7. sa.

(1) 点数, indolent indifference, idle sauntering, IL i. 4. 4. (2) A name, VL ii.15. r. (3) 子表, a designation, IV. i. 24. r; 25. r; ii. 27. g.

To ruin, IV. i. 8. r. To be defeated, L i. &. z: VII. ii. 1. a.

Worn-out, VII. i. 85, 6.

To venture, dare, presume. Seeps. BY III, 'I venture to ask,' is a common way of asking a question. Observe 讀 勿 復敢見,IL!!!!&

(z) To be scattered, I. i. 5. 4; ii. 1. 6; 12. 2: II. ii. 4. 2. (2) A surname, VII. ii.

(1) Generous, V. ii. 1. g: VII. ii. 15. (a) To manage; but this meaning is not found in the dictionary, II. ii. 7. 1.

To respect, revere; the feeling of reverence; reverential, II. ii. 2.4: III. ii. 2.2: IV. i. 2 s; 4. 1, et al., sage. 恭敬, VI. i. 5. 2, 3, et al. On the different between the terms, see IV. i. 1. 13.

To set forth, 数治, III. i. 4 7.

(1) Number, II. ii. 18. 4. Several, I. i, 8. 4: II. ii. 2. 3; 5. 1, et al., seeps. ? a few, VII. i. 39. 3. (s) = an art, VI. i. 9. 3.

Close, elose-meshed, L. i. 8. 3.

An enemy, I. i. 5. 5, 6: II. i. 2. 5; 5. 6: III. ii. 5. 4: IV. i. 7. 5, 6: VII. ii. 3. 3; 4. 2. Hostile, VI. ii. 15. 4: VII. ii. 2. 3. To be an enemy to, to oppose, L i. 7. 17; ii. 8. 5: VII. ii. 4. 5.

L.q. E. To drive, chase, IV. i. 9.3.4

To marshal, L ii. & &

Toingather. Theingathering, -spoken of the harvest, Lii.4.5: VLii.7.2. 和 , all taxes and imposts, Li. & 3: VIL i. 28, 1.

THE 67TH RADICAL, 文.

(1) A character, as delineated, —a word, V. l. 4. 2. (2) Style, method of composi-tion, IV. ii, 21. 3. (3) Elegant, adorned, VI.i.17.3. To adorn, 面文, IV.L 27.2 (4) An honorary epithet, 文干, Li 2. 3, et al., saspissime.—晋 文, IL i.7. 1, s: IV.ii.91.3-- 慶文公,Lii.18,ed

THE 69TH RADICAL, F.

▲ bill,—a general name of all crocked knives, 斧斤, Li.& g: VLi.& z, a

An aza. 华斤, see above.

雁

旅

梢

族

武 ehan 22

To cut in two, - to terminate, IV. ii.

(2) This, these, I. i. 4. 6; 7. 1s; ii. 5. 3, 4, et al., sasps. (a) As a conjunction, forthwith, then, thereupon, &c., I. i. 8. 5: II. i. 6. a: III. ii. 7. a; 8. 3: VII. ii. 87. a; 8. II. swerral cases we can hardly tell whether to take the character as a conjunction, or as the demonstrative, following its antecedent, to give emphasis to the sentence. Observe also I. ii. 8. 6, and 5. 4, where it seems a mere expletive. (3) 第 1, 1. q. 第 1, an instant, VI. i. 5. 4. (4) In a name, IV. ii. 24. a.

New, III. i. 8. 12.

To cut, hew, L ii. 9. r.

In the phrase, a conspicuous mound, II. ii. 10. 6, 7.

THE 70m RADICAL, 方.

(1) That which is square, IV. i. 1. 1, 5; 2. 1. Square, the adjective,—followed by the dimension, I. i. 5. 2; 7. 17, et al., seeps. Observe the note on V. ii. 2. 4. (a) A quarter, region, direction, III. 4. 1: VI. i. 2. 1. The phrase II J is common. III. J, without reference to their where-from, IV. ii. 20. a. (3) J = class, a resemblance, V. i. 2. 4. (4) To neglect, violate, I. ii. 4. 6. (5) As a conjunction, J II. ii. 4. 16; J, I. ii. 5. 4.

Pussion. (1) A preposition, in, at, on. But after many verbs and adjectives we must translate it variously,—by, to, from, &c. &c., and often it need not be translated at all. The down to, coming to, &c., is common. After the possessive Z, —in relation to, and so, sometimes, when not preceded by Z. —compared with, II.i. 2. sg. After —it is common, and what may be called composite verbs, such as The first in common, and what may be called composite verbs, such as The first in common, and what may be called composite verbs, such as The first in common, and what may be called composite verbs, such as The first in common, and what may be called composite verbs, such as The first in common, and what may be called composite verbs, such as The first in common, and what may be called composite verbs, such as The first in common.

(1) How! L. i. 2. 3. (a) (b), the wa name of a place, III. ii. 10. 1, 5, 6.

The rat tone. The complacently, at IV. ii. 88. r.

Dodgingly, =secretly, IV. ii. 88. z.

A flag, with dragons emblazoned, and bells attached, V. ii. 7. 6.

A flag,—of silk, unemblasoned, V. ii. 7. 6.

(z) A white cow's tail,—used to make signals with. = streamers, I. ii. 1. 6, 7. (a) I.q. 2, very old persons, I. ii. 11.4.

(1) Hosts. Properly, 500 men make a Lii. 8.6. (2) A stranger, a traveller, Li. 7. 18: II. i. 5. 2: VI. ii. 7. 3.

旋 周旋, going round, the turnings of Assian the body, VII. ii. 88. a.

A flag,—made of feathers suspended from the top of the staff, III. ii. 1. a: ∇ . ii. 7. 5, 6.

The head of an arrow, III. i. 2. 5.

THE 71st RADICAL, 无.

THE 72mm RADICAL, H.

(1) The sun, Li. 2. 4: II. ii. 9. 4: V. i. 4. r: VII. i. 9d. a. (a) A day, days, the day, II. ii. 4. r: III. ii. 10. r: IV. i. 24. s; ii. 2. 5; 8. 4; 20. 5, st al. 他日, see 他. 今日, to-day, II. i. 2. 16, st al. 明日, to-morrow, II. ii. 2. a, at al. 前日, formerly, II. ii. 7. I, st al. 終日, all the day, III. ii. 1. 4. 無日, 不日, in no time, Li. 2. 3: IV. i. 1. 9. 日至, the solstice, IV. ii. 26. 3: but VI. i. 7. s is different. 今日, in winter, VI. i. 5. 5. 服日, leisure days, Li. 5. 3. 第日之力, to exart the strength the whole day, II. ii. 12. 6. 日 alone — daily, from day to day, II. ii. 12. 5: III. ii. 6. r; 8. 2: V. i. 8. I, st al.

Nn2

日

Good, pleasant, IV. ii. 20. r.

A decade of days, L. ii. 10. 2.

旬¹⁶早

Drought, season of drought, I. i. 6. 6; ii.11.s: III.ii.5.4. 早乾,∀II.ii.14.4.

是 天, the name given to the autumnal heavens, = pitying, V. i. 1. 1, 2.

(1) Brightness, VII. i. 24. s. (2) Intelligent; to be intelligent about, I. i. 7. 21: II. ii. 12. r; ii. 12. s. (3) (3) To illustrate; to digest clearly, II. i. 4. 2: III. i. 8. 10. (4) Clearly, plainly, II. ii. 11. g: III. ii. 6. 1: VI. ii. 8. 5. Observe 明以教我, L.i. 7. 19. (5) Power of vision; L.i. 7. 10: IV.i.1. 1. (6) 明 日, to-morrow; see 日. (7) 明 堂, see 曾. (8) 公明, a double surname, III. i. 1. 4; ii. 8. 1; 9. 9: IV. ii. 24. 1.— V. i. 1. s.

(t) To change; to exchange, barter, I. i. 7. 4, 6, 7: II. ii. 10. 7: III. i. 4. 4, 5; 5. s; ii. 9. ro; 10. 4: IV. i. 18. 3; ii. 29. 5 (N.B.); 81. 3: VI. ii. 7. 3: VII. i. 28. I. 易位=to dethrone, V. ii. 9. r. 易 , an interchange of services, III. ii. 4.3. (a) 易牙, a famous cook of antiquity, VI. i. 7. 5.

also II, 易為食云云. 易=to use readily, IV. i. 22. (s) To cultivate well, I. i. 5. 3: VII. i. 28. I.

昆夷, the name of Used for 涅. a rude tribe of the West, I. ii. 8, r.

Formerly, III. ii. 1. s: IV. ii. 81. r. Instead of alone, Mencius commonly wees 昔 者, L il. 4 4; 5. 3, 4, 5; 14. 2; 15. 1, et et., scepe. Sometimes 昔者= yesterday, I. ii. 7. 1; II. ii. 2. 2, 3; III. ii. 1. s: IV. i. 24. 2. Sometimes I have left it untranslated.

▲ star. 星辰, IV. H. 96. 3.

(1) The spring. 春-in the spring, L ii.4.5: VI. ii. 7.a. (a) 春秋, the title of a work by Confucius, III. ii. 9. 8, rr, et al. (3) A name, III. ii. 2. r.

How? L ii. & 7.

Duak, VII. i. 28. g. Redoubled, = dark-ness, i.e. ignorance, VII. ii. 20. r. It is made either with 氏 or with 民.

昭 gence, VII. ii. 20. I. cháo

是

Passim. It often has (r) This, these. the whole preceding clause or sentence for its antecedent, - this is. It me often be translated also—in this cases. It might serve its peculiar force at the end of a sentence, affirming strongly what has been said in it, I ii. 10. 3: VII. ii. 15, sal We have 若是, 猶 (and 由) 是, and 如是,-all = thus, such;observe II. i. 2. s3. 是故 and 是 =therefore. (2) To be, VI. i. 15. 1,2, et al. (3) Right, III. i. 5. 2, 4: VIII. II. To approve, II. i. 6. 4, 5, et al. (3) Right, III. i. 5. 2, 4: VII. ii. 87.

畤

(1) Time, times; at—in—the time, L i. 5. 4; ii. 5. 5: IL i. 1. 9, II, I3; 4. 2, 4, et al., sage. The proper times or seasons, L i. 8. 3, 4; 7. 24: VII. i. 22. 2. Seasonable, L ii. 11. 2: III. ii. 5. 4: VII. i. 40. 2. Timeous,—a characteristic of Confucius, V. ii. 1. 5. 無時, without reference to time, VI.i.8.4. 有時, sometimes, V. il 5. r. 天時, opportunities of time afforded by Heaven, II. ii. 1. 1, 2. (2) - 是, this, Li 2.4; ii. 3.3. (3) A surname, IL ii. 10. 3, 4.

The surname of a minister of Ch1, L ii. 4. 4, 5: II. i. 1. 1, 2, 5.

The name of a State, 晉 🗐, L i. & ː, a al.—晉人, V. i. 9. s, a al.—晉 平 公,∀.ii.8.4-晉文,Li.7.1,≤,∉el

(1) The day-time, by day, IIL i. 8, 2: chán IV. ii. 18. 2. [1] # ; id., VI. i. 8. 2. (2) The name of a town, II. ii. 11; 12.

Great, vast. 普天之下, under the whole heaven, V. i. 4. s. 2'4

(1) The principle of, or man's capacity for, knowledge, IL i. 6. 5: IV. i. 27. a; VI. i. 6. 7; 9. 3; VIL i. 21. 4. (a) Knowledge, wisdom; wise; to be wise, I. ii. 8. 1; II. i. 1. 9; 2. 19, 25, et al., seeps.

The designation of Tsing Shin's father, IV. i. 19. 3: VIL ii. 86; 87. 暇

Leisure, L. i. 7. 22: IIL i. 4. 8. 腿ILida4 服日,Lida 医茂, luxuriant, IIL i. 4. 7.

The evening, II. ii. 6. 1. 4. the dusk of the evening, VII. i. 28. 3.

(1) Violence, oppression, cruelty, VI. i. 6.
2: VII. ii. 8. r. Oppressive, III. i. 8. r.; ii.
9. 5, 7. To oppress, IV. i. 2. 4: V. i. 8. g.
Applied to the mind, II. i. 2. 9, ro.

to do violence to one's nature, IV.
i. 10. r. So alone, VI. i. 7. r. (2) A name, I. ii. 1. r.

(1) To dry or bleach in the sun, III. i.

4. 13. ——to warm genially, VI. i. 9. 2.

(2) To exhibit, V. i. 5. 5, 6.

Rmpty; to leave empty, IV. i. 10. 3.

THE 78 RADICAL, E.

To say. Passim. Often the nominative is not expressed, and must be supplied from the context. In this case, sometimes—it is said. It is also used in descriptive accounts, and—is called, means.

曲 Crooked. Observe 無曲防, VI.

To trail after one, I. i. 8. s.

(1) To change to reform, II. ii. 9. 4. It was originally made from A and 5. (2) A name, III. ii. 4. 1.—VII. i. 48. 1, 2.

(r) A writing,—of a covenant, VI. ii. 7. 3. Writinga, books, V. ii. 8. 2. (a) The Shû-ching, I. ii. 8. 7; 11. 1: III. 1. 1. 5; ii. 5. 2, 4; 9. 3, 6: V. i. 4. 4: VL ii. 5. 4. Observe VII. ii. 8. 1.

A surname, 含子, I. ii. 12. 2: II.
7 i. 2. 6, 7, 8, et al., scepe. 含皙, see 皙,一含元, IV. i. 19. 3.一含西,
II. i. 1. 3, 4.

A perticle, indicating the present complete tense, II. i. 1. 3: V. i. 9. 3.

To assemble; the assembly of, VI. ii. 7. 3. To meet, - to engage in battle, II. i. 2. 5.

To calculate, enter accounts, V. ii. 5. 4.

The name of an ancient principality, used as a surname, VI. ii. 2, r.

THE 74rs RADICAL, 月.

合 kresi 曹 do

(1) To have, possess. Pussim. (2) The impersonal substantive. verb, there is, there was. Also passim. It is often difficult to determine to which of these meanings we shall refer particular examples. 有之, and 未之有, at the end of sentences, are to be noted, I. i. 8. 4; 7. 5, 24, et al., scepe. 有為, to have doing, to be capable of achievement, II. ii. 2. 7: III. i. 1. 4: IV. ii. 8. 1: V. i. 8. 3: VII. i. 29. 有餘—and more, VII. ii. 88. 1, 2, 3, 4, et al. 有司, see 司. Observe V. i. 7. 2. (3) The surname of one of Confucius's disciples, II. i. 2. 25, 28: III. i. 4. 13. (4) 有 節, the principality of Shun's brother, V. i. 8. 2, 3.

The 4th tone. And; again, III. ii. 9. 7: 4. 1; 5. 7; 6. 1.

朋友, friends, IL i. 6.3: IIL i. 4.8: IV. ii. 80. 4.

(r) Clothes, V. i. 8. 3: VI. ii, 2. 5.

11. ii. 8. 3: VII. i. 86. 2. (a) To wear,
V. ii. 2. 5. To wear mourning, IV. ii. 2. s, 3, 4. (3) To subdue, I. i. 7. 17: II. i. 8. s:
IV. ii. 16. r. (4) To submit, IV. i. 7. 5: V. i.
8. 2. (5) To be obnoxious to, IV. i. 14. 3.

I (not yet the imperial see), V. i. 2. g (N.B.); 7. 9.

(r) To look to from a distance; to look for, to hope; expectation, example, what is looked for or to, Li. 8. s; 6. a, 6; li. 11. s: II. ii. 12. 5: III. ii. 5. 4, 7: IV. ii. 20. 8; 81. r: VII. i. 9. 5. 皇人, VII. i. 86. r; ii. 28. a. 中堂, IV. ii. 88. r. 寸堂, III. i. 8. r. 8. (a) 皇皇, IV. ii. 88. r. 寸堂, III. i. 8. r. (3) 太公皇, a counsellor of Wan and Wa, VII. ii. 88.

The morning; in the morning, I. ii. 5. 5: II. ii. 2. r; 6. r: III. ii. 1. 4: IV. ii. 28. 7: VI. ii. 9. 3; 14. 3.

A round year, VIL i. 89. r.

to model one's self on, VI. i.7. 5, 6.

THE 75th RADICAL, 木.

(1) A tree, trees, I. i. 7. 16, 17; ii. 7. 1; 9. 1, et al. Wood, a piece of wood, II. ii. 7. 1: VI. ii. 1. 5. , supplies of wood, I. i.8.3. (2) In a name, III. ii. 7. 2.

公室

朋 p'ang

農

阻

Not yet. Passin.

The extremity; the point, the top, L i. 7. 10: VI. ii. 1. 5.

(z) Vermilien colour, VII. ii. 87. za. 4 (a) In names, 朱 萊, VII. ii. 88. z.— 丹朱.V.i. 6. z.—楊 朱, III. ii. 9. 9.

annals of Ch'û were composed, IV. ii.

🚣 🛮 A plum-tree, III. ii. 10. z.

材 Fine trees, VI. i. 8. 8. 材木, suptraction of wood, I. i. 8. 3.

(r) A species of willow, VI. i. 1. 1, 2.

To bind, VI. ii. 7. g.

A small bridge, IV. ii. 2. 3.

A cup, VI. i. 18. z.

A wooden peetle, VII. ii. 8, 2.

The east, on the east; eastern, Li. 8. 1; 6. 1; ii. 11. 2; II. i. 8. 2; III. ii. 5. 4, 5; IV. ii. 88. 1; V. i. 4. 1; VI. i. 2. 7, 2; ii. 1. 8(N.B.); VII. ii. 4. 2. 東山, VII. i. 94. 1. 東海, IV. i. 18. 1; VII. i. 22. 東夷, IV. ii. 1. 1. Observe 東京氏, II. ii. 2. 4.

To bend, make crooked, III. ii. 1. 1, 3, seeing 5: V. i. 7. 7.

A forest, L i. 8. 3.

(z) Certainly, really, indeed, IV. ii. 88: VI. i. 5. 3, 5. (a) To earry into effect; resolute to execute, I. ii. 16. 3: II. ii. 2. 5: IV. ii. 11.

Used for 如果, a female attendant, VII. ii. 6.

A branch of a tree, L i. 7. 11.

A watchman's rattle, V. ii. 5. 3; 6. 3.

(1) A kind of seminary, III. i. 8. 10.
(2) 校人, a pond-keeper, V. i. 2. 4.

To compare, III. i. 8. 7.

馮栗, full of awe, V. i. 4.4

To correct, IV. i. 20.

To be rooted, VII. i. 21. 4.

A surname, VII. i. 85. z.

The last sovereign of the Hslā dynasty; is sometimes—a tyrant, L ii. 8. 1: IV. i 9. 1, 3: V. i. 6. 4: VL ii. 2. 5; 6. 2; 9. 1, 2; 10. 7.

軽棉, handouse and fetters, VIL i. 2. 4.

(1) A species of tree, probably belonging to the suphorbies, VI.i.18.1, Bretzehneider, Pusiconia. (2) The name of the place where Tang's grave was, V. i. 6. 5: VII. i. 31.

The mulberry-tree, I. i. 3. 4; 7. 24: II. i. 4. 3: VII. i. 22. 2.

(z) An honorary epithet, 客相 and 租公, L i. 7. z, s: IL ii. 2. 8, zo: IV. ii. 21. 3: VI. ii. 7. 8—季相子, V. ii. 4. 7. (a) A surname, 相司馬, V. i 8. 8

Lq. 77, a sup, VI i. 1. 1, a.

(1) A bridge,—of a large size, IV. ii. 2. 3. (2) A weir, I. ii. 5. 3. (3) The name of a State, I. i. 1. 1; 2. 1, et el. (4) A name, VI. ii. 6. 5. (5) 11, the name of a mountain, I. ii. 15. 1.

A stick, a staff, I. i. 4 3; 5. 3.

(I) Handsuffs, 桂桔, see 柽. (a) To fetter, VI. i. 8. 2. Cháo Ch'i explains it here by M.

The same as the paper, VL i. 14.3

(I) A species of tree, the wood of which is most valuable, VI. i. 18. I (Bretschneider, Catalys). (s) A carpenter, who makes articles of furniture, III. ii. 4. 3,4: VII. ii. 5.

(1) 條理, 'discriminated and regulated,'—spoken of a concert, and = 'the blended harmony,' V. ii. 1. 6. (2) 操

成器, various utensils, III. i. 4. 5.

A spade, or shovel, III. i. 5. 4.

To abandon, throw away, spurn, I. i. 8. a; ii. 6. r: VIL i. 39; 85. 6, st al. To be rejected, IV. i. 14. a. H, to throw fields out of cultivation, III. ii. 9. 5.

The date, 羊棗, VII. ji. 36. i, s, now commonly called from the appearance of the fruit 羊矢棗.

(1) 模 順, a sour date-tree, VI. i. 14. 3. (2) 垂 順, the name of a place in Tsin, V. i. 9. 2.

The name of a place, where the princes of Ch'i kept a granary, VII. ii. 28. 1.

A wooden bowl, VI. i. 1. 1, 2,

A bed, a couch, V. i. 2. 3.

集品格品樓工作品牌品楊明

極当榮素模量

An inner coffin, 棺椁, L ii. 16. 2: II. ii. 7. 2.

An outer coffin, 柏 棹, see above.

The surname of the heresiarch 楊朱, III. ii. 9. 9, 10, 14: VII. i. 26. 楊= Yangism and Yangists, VII. ii. 26. 1, 2.

The name of a State, L. i. 5. 1, 3; 7. 16, 17; ii. 6. 1; 18. 1, at al., suspe. 人, L. i. 7. 17; III. ii. 6. 1; VI. i. 4. 4.

(1) An inheritance, the foundation of an inheritance, I. ii. 14. 3. (2) 美一instruction. 受業於門, VI. ii. 2. 6. (3) Partly finished, VII. ii. 80. 1.

An extremity (in a painful sense), L ii. 1.6. To push to extremities, IV. ii. 8. 4.

Glory, II. i. 4. 1: VIL i. 82.

模類, the projecting ornaments round the caves of great buildings, VII. ii. 84 a.

構怨, to excite resentment, L i. 7.14.

Dry; withered, I. i. 6. 6: II. i. 2. 16: III. ii. 10. 3.

A high gallery, , the pointed peak of a high building, VI. ii. 1. 5. See note in loc.

A sour date-tree, VI. i. 14. 3.

(1) To plant,—of trees, Li. 8. 4; 7. 24: VII. 1. 22. 2, 3. To sow,—of grain, III. ii. 10. 3: VI. i. 7. 2. III. i. 4. 8. (2) Appointed, legitimate, VI. ii. 7. 3. The tone with these meanings was different anciently from that of the character in its common acceptation of sees.

A spring, a contrivance, VII. i. 7. 2.

A sack open at both ends, L. ii. 5. 4.

The name of a tree, supposed to be the same as the tree, but not yet fully identified, VI. i. 14. 3.

To regulate, to restrict, I. i. 8. 5.

梅机, 800 机, IV. il. 21. a.

Sprouts, VI. i. 8. r.

檢 chia

欲

在 (i) The weight of a steel-yard. 程 - ch'wan to weigh, I. i. 7. 13. (s) The exigency of circumstances, IV. i. 17. 1: VII. i. 26. 3.

THE 76TH RADICAL, 欠.

Next,—in order or degree, V. ii. 2. 7, 9: VI. ii. 14. 3: VII. ii. 87. 2, 7. To be next, to come next to, II. i. 2. 9, 10: IV. i. 14. 3: VII. ii. 14. 1.

欣 欣欣然, smiling-like, I. ii. 1. 7.

To desire, like, wish, L. i. 2. 4; 7. 15, 16, 17, 18, 23, et al., saspissims. Desires, IV. ii. 80. 2: VII. ii. 85.

死

殍," 殖纵

毋

To impose on; to be imposed on, III. i. 4. 17: V. i. 2. 4.

微 娱, without elation, VII. L 11.

mouth with blood, VI. ii. 7. g.

To sing, IV. i. 8. 2: VI. ii. 6. 5 (indicating singing in some peculiar style).

To sigh, VII. i. 86. L

To drink, to sip, III. i. 2. 4. to swill down, VII. i. 46. 2.

Pleased. The state of the Pleased. The state of the Pleased. The Pleased in the P

THE 77 RADICAL, | .

L il. 11. 4: IL i. 9. a.

(I) To correct, rectify; to be rectified; correct; what is correct, II. i. 7.5; 9. I: III. i. 2. I3; ii. 2. I3, 3; 9. 6. I3, et al., sage. To make straight, V. i. 7. 7. What may be correctly ascribed to, VII. i. 2. I. 3, 4. (a) To have a purpose in the mind, II. i. 2. 16: VII. ii. 88. a. (8) 樂 正, a double surname ;—see 🎉

This, these. Passim. 如此, and 若 thus, so, such, are common.

A rece, I. i. 8. s: V. ii. 1. 7.

(z) Firmness, martial vigour. 威武, III. ii. 2. 3. (a) 1. the first sovereign of the Chau dynasty, L ii. 8. 6; 8, 1; 10. 3, of al., seeps. (3) T, a sovereign of the Shang dynasty, II, i.1.8. (4) 雄, name of a place, IV. il. 81. r. (5) 武 , a Book of the Shû-ching, VIL ii. 8. 2.

A year, the years; the character of a year as good or bad, I. i. 8. 5: II. ii. 18. 4: VII. ii. 88. z, a, 3, 4. 樂蔵, I. i. 7. 21, 22: IILi. 8.7: VLi.7.1(富藏) 篇, L ii. 19. s: II. ii. 4. s.

To pass over, = to change, IV. ii. 27. 3. 序 = for a period of, V. i. 6. 2.

To return, II. i. 2. 16; ii. 10. 1, s; 12. 5, et al., saspe. Used actively, = to repay, VII.i. 30.2. To turn to, come to, I. i. 6.6; ii. 11. 2; 15. 1: III. ii. 5. 4; 9. 9, et al., saspe. THE 78m RADICAL, 天.

To die; death; the dead, Li. 8. 5; 4.6; 7. 4,6, 7, 8, et al., sage. To die feer, Lii. 12.8. 死亡,Li7.st, m: IV. i.8.4; 9. s.

To die at an early age, VIL i. 1. 3.

殀地 Calamitics, I. ii. 10. s: VII. ii. 27. L. To bring calamities on, to destroy, VI. ii. 恐

VII. ii. 19. 2.

殆 (r) Perilous, in a dangerous condition, V. i. 4. r. (a) A particle, I apprehend, is near to, I. i. 7. r7: VII. ii. 28. r; 30. z. Followed by 🏂, IV. ii. 81. r.

> To bury along with the dead, to marifice, VII. ii. 1. 2. 有 - te accompany, VIL i. 42. z, s.

To be different, VL i. 7. 1, 5.

To die of hunger, VIL fi. 27. 1.

整 殖, to swarm, III. i. 4. 7.

To oppress, treat cruelly, I. ii. 12. 2. = a ruffan, an oppressor, oppressors, I. ii. 8. 3: III. ii. 5. 5, 6.

According to Chu Hat, to out off. ? to imprison, V. i. 8. s.

THE 79TH RADICAL, 女.

The dynasty so called, II. i. 1. 8, 10, et al., scape. M. A, the founder of the Yin dynasty, III. i. 8. 6.

A surname, III. ii. 7. 2.

To kill, put to death, I. i. 8. 5; 4. s; 4, 6, et al., enepiesime. Observe III. ii. 3. 3, and VII. ii. 10.

(1) To pull down; to break, I. ii. 5. 1, 2; 11. 3: III. ii. 4. 5: IV. 1. 8. 4; ii. 81. 1. (2) To blame, represed, IV. i. 21.

THE 80m RADICAL, III.

A mother; 父母, parenta, L i. 5. 4; 7. 21, 22, et al., saspe. 民父母, the parent of the people, -spoken of a ruler, Li.4.5; il.7.6: III.i.8.7. 母鷄, 母 file, brood hens, brood sows, VII. i. 22 a

Every, IV. ii. 2. 5.

THE 81st BADICAL, H.

(t) To compare, II. i. 1. g: VI ii. 1. j.

(a) H, T, an uncle of the tyrant Châu,
II. i. 1. 8: VI. i. 6. g.

The 4th tone. (1) For, on behalf of, I. i. 5. 1: IL ii. 7. 4. (2) And when ..., L. ii. 6. 1. (3) To classify, III. i. 4. 18. (4) To bend to the will of, set as a partisan, III. ii. 1. 5. (5) To join together, to collect, V. ii. 4. 5.

THE 82nd RADICAL, £. Hair, VII. i. 96. z.

Fine hair, 秋 墓,—what is very small, I. i. 7. zo. — 裏,—the least, small, I. i. 7. zo. — , -the least, one thread of ten filaments of silk being called a ..., IL i. 2. 4.

THE 88m RADICAL, 氏.

Family, I. ii. 16.3. 夏氏后, the side of the great Yū, the prince of Heid. 季氏, IV. 1 14. I. 景丑氏, II. ii. 2. 4. 東郭氏, II. ii. 2. 2. 楊氏, 墨氏, III. ii. 2. 9.

The people,—usually in distinction from rulers and superior men. Passiss.

Observe the phrases—丘 民, VII. ii.

14. 2; 天 民, VII. i. 19. 3; 凡 民,

VII. i. 10. z: V. ii. 4. 4; 森 民, VI. i.

6. 8; 阡 民, I. i. 2. 3: VII. ii. 87. z3;

文民, I. i. 2. 4; 7. 24. 民 = mankind,

II i. 2. 23, 27, 28.

People,—settling in a State from other states, II. i. 5. 5: III. i. 4. z, 2: V. ii. 6. a.

THE 84rm RADICAL, J.

(1) The air, breath, VI. i. 8. 2. (s) Air, — carriage, VII. i. 36. 1. (3) Specially deserving of notice is its use in IL i. 2. 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, — energy, the passion-nature.

THE 85th RADICAL, 水.

Perpetually, always, II. i. 4.6: IV. i. 4. 8: V. i. 4. 3.

泡 Water overflowing. 沙漠灌於, to fam inundate, III. i. 4. 7; ii. 9. 3.

(1) To seek for; to seek for; to seek, I.
i. 7. 9, 15, 16, 17; ii. 9. 1, et al., suspissions.
(2) The name of one of Confucius's disciples, IV. i. 14. 1.

(1) Impure, vile, mean, II. i. 9. 2: III. i. 8. 13: V. i. 9. 3; ii. 1. 3: VI. ii. 6. 2: VII. ii. 87. 11. (2) A pool, J. ii. 9. 2.

Low. To rank one's self low, II. i. 2. 25. Perhaps some of the instances under J., w4, should be read as w4, particularly III. ii. 9. 5, VII. ii. 37. II, and one or two others.

(r) You, thou, IV. ii. 31. r: V. i. 2. g:
VII. ii. 31. g. (s) Name of a stream, III.
i. 4. 7.

The river by eminence,—the Yang-tzze, chiang III. i. 4. 7, 13; ii. 9. 4. ? VII. i. 16. 1.

A pond, I. i. 2. 4; 8. 3: III. ii. 9. 5: CAUA V. i. 2. 4. A meet, I. ii. 18. 2: II. ii. 1. 3.

> (1) To lead forth a stream, IIJ. i. 4. 7: VI. i. 2. 1. The waters of a stream overflowing, VII. i. 16. (2) To bite things through with the teeth, VII. i. 46. 2.

計 Properly, to wash the hair; 沐浴, to bathe, IV. ii. 25. 2.

To die, pass away, III. i. 4. 13; ii. 9. 5.

A surname, II. ii. 8. z, a. 沈猶, a double surname, IV. ii. 81. z.

沓沓, dilatory, IV. i. 1. zz, zs.

郱

柯

(z) A thick marshy jungle, III. ii. 9. 5.
(s) , the the sudden fall of rain, or overflow of water, L i. 6. 6: IV. i. 6. z: VII. i. 16.

The 3rd tone. To stop, L. ii. 16. 3.

(z) The Yellow river, III. ii. 9. 4. 阿京 and 河内, Li. 8. z; 阿西, VI. ii. 6. 5. (a) 九河, the nine branches of the 河, which Yū regulated, III. i. 4. 7. 阿河, the most southern of these, V. i. 5. 7. (8) May be used for a river generally, II. i. 2. a8: VII. i. 16.

the appearance of thick clouds, I. i. 6. 6.

A pond, I.i. 2. 1, 3. A, the name given to king Wän's pond, I. i. 2. 3.

溢 The 4th tone. To be well governed; where management and regulation take where management and results as the reflect, I. ii. 6. 9: III. i. 2. 22: III. i. 4. 7; ii. 9. 2: IV. i. 4. 1: V. i. 5. 6; ii. 1. 1, 2: VI. ii. 7. 2; 18. 8.

洲, to be at one's case, IV. i. 1. 10, 11.

(1) To slight, neglect, IV. ii. 20. 4. (2) A surname, IL il. 11. g: III. il. 7. s.

A spring of water, II. i. 6. 7: III. ii. 10. mg:VILi 29. 泉原, IV. ii. 18. s.

> (1) Laws, IV. i. 1. 3, 4, 8. law of right, VII. ii. 88. 3. 法 - to enforce the laws, - to tax, II. i. 5. a. 法 家, families attached to the laws or constitution VI. ii. 18. 4. (a) An example; to serve as an example, be imitated, II. i. 1. 7: III. i. 3. II. IV. i. 1. 2; 2. 2; ii. 28. 7.

The name of a stream, a tributary of the Hwai, III. i. 4. 7.

The perspiration starting, III. i. 5. 4.

北流流流 注题表达洋则洒逐渐 To weep; the silent shedding of tears, IIL i. 2. 5: IV. ii. 88. 1, 2: V. i. l. 1, 2: VI. ii. 8. 2.

To lead, conduct, IIL i. 4. 7; ii. 9. 4.

Extravagant, III. il. 4. 1.

洋 洋, -at ease, or in the abundant water, V. i. 2. 4.

To wipe away, L i. 5, 1.

Waters flowing out of their course, 本人, spoken of the great inundation, III. ii. 9. 3: VL ii. 11. 4.

Overflowing; vast. # , used like the above, III. i. 4. 7; ii. 9. 3. 11: VI. ii.

To live, II. i. 4. 6: IV. i. 8. 5: VII. i.

To permeste, imbue. Followed by 於, IL i. 1. 7.

A pool, I. i. 8. 3.

(1) To flow, II. i. 1. 12: III. i. 4. 7: VI. i. 2. 1: VII. i. 13. 3; 24. 3. 流俗, current customs, -in a bad sense, VII. ii. 87. 11; but not so 流風, II. i. 1. 8. Observe L ii. 4. 6, 7, 8. (2) To float, VII. i. 46. 2. (3) To banish, V. i. 8. 2. (4) 流 獸, ••• 獸, VIL ii. 8. 3.

To dig, to deepen, V. i. 2. 3.

慢妖, rapidly; the appearance of springing up, I. i. 6. 6: VI. i. 7. 2.

(1) The appearance of vast waters, 浩然, resolutely, IL ii. 12.5. 浩然 之氣, the vast flowing passion-nature, II. i. 2. 11, 12. (2) 浩生, a double surname, VIL. ii. 25. I.

滄浪, the name of a stream, IV. i.

沐浴, to bathe, IV. ii. 26. a.

The sea; seas, IL i. 2. s8: IIL i. 4. 7, & al. # = the sea-shore, I. il. 4.4: VI. il. 15. z. 四海 and 四海之内 are expressions for the kingdom, III. ii. 5. 3. 7: IV. i. 8. 3; 6. 1: V. i. 4. 1: VI. ii. 18. 7: VII. i. 21. 2. So 海內, without the 四. Li 7. 17. 腹海, IV. 1 18. 1: VIL i 88. r. 北海Li.7.11: IV. i.18.1: V. ii. 1. r. VII. i. 22. r.

The name of a stream, IV. ii. 2. r.

To defile, be defiled, II. i. 9. r, 2: V. ii.

To diminish, to decay away, III. ii. 9. 4: VI. i. 8. 3.

To wade, IV. ii. 2. 3.

洪べ

淮

Tears, IV. i. 7. 2: VL ii. 8. 2.

To be dried up. IV. ii. 18. 3.

刘京 刘京, cold and distant, VII. ii. 37. 9.

The water in which rice is being washed, V. ii. 1. 4: VIL ii. 17.

The name of a stream, a tributary of the Yellow river, VI. ii. 6. 5.

Virtuous. Used actively, to make virtuous, to improve, IV. i. 9. 6; ii. 22. s: VII. i. 40. 5.

淫 Licenticus, unregulated, II. i. 2. 17: II. ii. 9. 10, 13. To make dissipated, III. ii. 9. 10, 13. III. ii. 2. g.

> Deep (both literally and metaphorically); deeply, I. i. 5. 3; ii. 10. 4: IL ii. 1. 3: III. i. 2. 4: IV. ii. 14. 1: VIL i. 14. 1; 16. 1; 18. 2.

> The name of a river, which flows through Ho-nan and An-hui, III. i. i. 7; ii. 9. 4.

泽于, a double surname, IV. i. 17. r:

(1) A gulf, an abyas, IV. i. 9. 3. (2) The designation of Confucius's favourite disciple, II. i. 2. 18, 20: III. i. 1. 4.

混 Lq. 滾. 混混, the appearance of water flowing freely from a spring, Clear, pure; purifying, IV. i. 8. s, 3: V. ii. 1. 1, 5.

To reside long, V. ii. 4. 6.

To be thirsty, to suffer from thirst, II. i. 1. 11: VII. i. 27. 1, 2.

南流 淹了人。沿流游,影。原文学是神经 water whirling round, VI. i.

子旗, the designation of one of Confucius's disciples, II. i. 2. so: III. i.

(z) Warm water, things hot, VI. i. 5. 5. (a) The founder of the Yin dynasty, I. i. 2. 4; ii. 3. 1; 8. 1; 11. 1, 2, et el., suspe.

源, increantly, V. i. 8. 3.

Level. The instrument,—the level, IV. i. 1. 5.

A ditch,—made in dividing the fields, 4 feet wide, and the same depth, V. i. 7. 6; ii. 1. a. 清製, L ii. 19. a: IL ii. 4. a: IIL i. 8. 7; ii. L 9: V.ii. 7. 5. 清 , IV. ii. 18. 3.

To overflow, VII. ii. 14. 4. To spread forth,—spoken of instruction, IV. i. 6. 1.

The name of a stream, IV. ii. 2. I.

滄浪, ••• 浪, IV. i. 8. a.

To drown, to be drowned, L i. 5. 5: IV. ii. 29. 4: VI. i. 7. r. To go to ruin, IV. i. 9. 6. To be drowning, IV. i. 17. I, 2, 3.

To extinguish; extinguished, III. ii.

To increase, IL i. 1. 7: VL il. 6. 3.

The name of a State, I. ii. 18, 1; 14, 1; 15. r: II. ii. 6. r, a, et al.—腺 文 久, I. ii. 18. r; 14. r; 15. r: III. i. 1. r; 8. r; 4.1.一腺定公,III. i.2.1.一腺更, VII. i.48. 1, 2.

Congealed, impeded, , dilatory, II. ii. 12. 1.

Banks, L ii. 5. 5.

溢下来资油资源: 减量滋量清量 康熙

The name of a stream, III. i. 4. 7.

To be a fisherman, to catch fish, II. i.

To be clean, pure; what is clean, III. ii. 3. 3: IV. ii. 25. r: VII. ii. 14. 4; 87. 7, rr. To keep pure, V. i. 7. 7.

Congee. ? any beverage, I. ii. 10. 4;

To moisten and nourish, VI. i. 8. 1. 洞潭 = to modify and adjust, III. i.

行澄, rain-pools, II. i. 2. ss.

(1) A marsh; marshy thickets, III. i. 4. 7; ii. 9. 5: IV. i. 1. 6. I. ii. 5. 3. (a) Favours, benefits; beneficial influence, II. ii. 12. r: IV. i. 1. s; ii. 8. 3, 4; 22. r: V. i. 6. a; 7. 6; ii. 1. a: VII. i. 9. 6. (3) [本本] the name of a gate, VII. i. 86. 3.

A small ditch, tributary to a III, IV. ii. 18. g.

To dam up, VI. i. 2. 3.

Muddy, IV. i. 8, 2, 3.

Lq. the character in the text of II. i. 4. 1, - what is low and wet.

With the 3rd tone. The name of a stream, III. i. 4. 7.

In the grd tone. (1) To ferry, convey across, II. ii. 12. r, 4. (a) To succeed, II. i. 5. 6.

沙艮 雅, to overflow, inundate, III. i. 4. 7; ii. 9. 3.

(I) To wash, III. i. 4. 13: IV. i. 8. 2, 3. Observe IV. i. 7. 6. (s) 📜 📜, slock and fat, L i. 2. 3. But the same phrase is used for the denuded appearance of a bare mountain, in VL i. 8.1 (3) 子類 is used as if it were a surname in IV. ii.

The brink of water, a coast, IV. i. 18. 1: V. ii. 1. r: VIL i. 22. r; 85. 6. Observe 牽土之瀉,₹.↓↓。

To clear the course of rivers, III. i.4. 7.

然

美工服品類原地工作品熟品

塔馬斯

爭

. SEE

Large waves, VIL i. St. 2

THE SOM BADICAL, 火.

Fire, L ii. 10. 4; 11. 3: II. i. 6. 7; III. i. 4. 7; ii. 5. 5: VL i. 18. 1; VIL i. 28. 3.

Calamity, L i. 7. 17: IV. i. 1. 9.

(1) Roast meat, VI. i. 4. 5: VII. ii. 86.
(a) To be warmed—immediately affected—by, VII. ii. 15. r.

Charcoal, 涂炭, IL i. 9. 1: V. ii. 1. 1.

(1) To set fire to, III. i. 4. 7. (2) Enterprising, energetic, III. ii. 9. (3) [7], meritorious achievement, II. i. 1. 3. (4)? acknowledged, brightly recognised, V. ii. 4. 4.

A surname, VL il. 2. 3.

To boil, to cook, V. i. 2. 4. Sockery, V. i. 7. 1, 8.

To burn, consume with fire, III. i. 4. 7: V. i. 2. 3.

The end tone. A final particle. Pussim.

(1) At the end of sentences, giving a liveliness to the style, especially where the closing member is brief, perhaps only one word, as in II. ii. 2. 4;—or where it is interrogative, introduced by in or some similar character.

(2) Correlative clauses are often terminated by in, as in VI. i. 7.

8. (3) It is common at the end of clauses, to which we expect a sequel, as in I. i. 7.

12; ii. 7. 4, et al., saspissime.

(4) Seems to be used for in VII. i. 84.—in often follows adjectives instead of in the meaning of that character, and—a lively affirmative so!

The 1st tone. An interrogative particle. How? It stands at the beginning of the clause or member of the sentence to which it belongs, unless where another particle or the nominative immediately precedes, I. i. 7. so; ii. 16. 3: II. i. 7. s; 9. s; ii. 8. 5, et al., sage.

No, not, without. Passim. 無 is the opposite of 有, both in its personal and impersonal usages, — not to have, to be without,—and there is—are—not. As instances of the relation between it and 有, observe I. i. 7. so, and II. ii. 10. 7. 無所 and 無所不 are common. 無所 make a strong affirmation. So, 無弗,無非, and 非無 Observe 無時, VI. i. 8. 4, and 無方, IV. ii 20. a.

Warm; warmly; to be warm.—spoken with reference to clothing, I. i. 7. 16: III. i. 4. 8: VII. i. 22. 3.

9; 84. 1; 21, of parein. (4) A surname,

Solitary; serrowful, L ii. 5. 3.

To shine, illuminate, VIL i. 24. 2.

What is toilsome, trouble, III. i. 4. 5.

To be extinguished, VI. i. 18. z. Metaphorically, III. ii. 2. z: IV. ii. 21. z.

A bear, VL i. 10. z.

To be ripe; to be brought to maturity, III. i. 4. 8: VI. i. 7. 2; 19. I.

Hot; what is hot, I. ii. 10. 4: IV. i. 7. 6.

Lq. 脂, the fiesh of merifice, VL ii. 6.

To plan,—a building, L i. 2. 3.

爛 糜爛, to boil to a mass, VIL ii. 1. a.

To cook. Chu Harmys, 'to light a fire,'

THE 87TH RADICAL, M.
To strive for, IV. i. 14. a.

A particle, found at the beginning of clauses, and quoted from the Shih-ching. And so, and, I. ii. 8. 6; 5. 4, 5.

17TC

爲。

Passim. (1) To be, I. i. 1. 4; 7. 20; ii. 2. 3; 8. 1; 4. 5, 6, et al., saspiseime. At the beginning of clauses, accounting what precedes, often - who is, who was. Before nouns of relation and proper names, it—to play, to be in the position, L ii. 4. 2: II. i. 1. 4; ii. 2. 10, et al., saspe. So in the phrase 其為人也. 以為with and without intermediate words, often - to take to be, to regard, to consider, to be considered, I. i. 7. 5, 7; ii. 2. 2; 11. 3, of suspe. Often, however, 😩 simply = to be, or to use to make. (2) To make, to do; to be done, I. i. 2. 3; 7. 10, 11, 12, 13, 16, 17, et easpiseime. and 经 C=why, L il. 5.4; 11. 2, 有爲  有. 爲=to exercise, to administer, to govern, II. ii. 4.4: III. i. & r. The phrase 篇 政, to administer government, and sometimes to give law to the kingdom, is frequent, I. i. 11. r: II. ii. 10. 6: IV. i. 1. 3; 6; 7. 4, = to establish, II. ii. 10. 7. So 定為III.i.2.3; and 設為III.i. 8. ra. 💢 = to seek to be, III. i. 8. 5.— 岱食, 岱飲, II.i.1. 11; 篮隙, 盆殿, VIL ii 4 1; 盆設 路工12.18; 民之爲道,皿1 8. 3, but 人之有道 in 4.8 is to be understood differently, through the force of the 有; 爲神農之言, III. i. 4. r; 🤼 🛅, III. i. 5. 5: VII. ii. 21; 不可爲泉,17.1.7.5; 我何以 爲哉, 7.1.7.3; 其所爲主 水為言、VIListi為之 場為之幣爲之兆Ⅱ.i.& 5; Ⅲ.9.4: V.Ⅱ.4.&

The 4th tone. For, in behalf of. Before clauses, it is most conveniently taken as a conjunction, because, I. i. 4.6; 7. 10, 11, 16, et al., exepissine.

Will. i. 26. 1. Observe A., VI. ii. 6. 1, and A., V. ii. 7. 3. But should not A. and A.

(1) Nobility, noble rank, II. 1. 7. 2; ii. 2. 6; 8. x: V. ii. 2. x (N.B.): VI. i. 16. r, 2, 3; ii. 7. 2. (2) The name of a bird, or birds in general, IV. i. 9. 3.

THE 887M RADICAL, 父.

(r) A father. Passim. The combinations 父子, 父母, and 父兄 are common. 父母 may denote the ruler, as the parent of the people, I. i. 4. 5; ii. 7. 6. 父兄 may denote all elder relatives, III. i. 2. 3, 4. (2) 文 (3rd tone), the name of one of the remotest ancestors of the Châu dynasty, I. ii. 5. 5.

THE 89rn RADICAL, 爻.

(r) You, your, 1. ii. 12. 2: IL i. 1. 3; 9. 2: V. i. 1. 2; ii. 1. 3, 7: VIL ii. 4. 5; 81. 3. (a) After adjectives, makes adverbe, i. q. (b) You ii. 10. 6. (g) A final particle, synonymous with , = simply, just so, III. i. 5. 3: IV. i. 9. r; ii. 18. 2: V. i. 2. 3: VIL ii. 88. 4. (a) Thus, VI. i. 7. r. — ? III. i. 8. 2, where perhaps — you. (5) I. q. (3), what is near, IV. i. 11.

THE 90TH RADICAL,

牀 ch'somy

a A wall, III. ii. 8. 6: IV. ii. 81. z () A wall, III. ii. 8. 6: IV. ii. 21. z () A wall, III. ii. 1. 8: VII. i. 2. 2; 22. 2.

THE 91st RADICAL, 片. 版 集, building-frames, VI. ii. 15. 1.

A window, VII. ii. 30. r. 篇戶, spoken of a nest, II. i. 4 3.

THE 9200 RADICAL, 牙.

牙 易牙, a famous cook of antiquity,

THE 98RD RADICAL, 4.

(1) A cow, an ox; eattle, I. i. 7. 4.6.7, 8:

IL ii. 4. 3: III. ii. 5. s, st cl. (2)

the name of a hill, VI. i. 8. r. (3)

one of Confucius's disciples, II. i. 2. 18, so.

Full, II. i. 2. 3.

(r) To feed, to tend, II. ii. 4. 3. (s) To browse on, VI. i. 8. r. (g) Pasture, II. ii. 4. 3. (4) (4) (5), a shepherd of men, a ruler, I. i. 6. 6. (5) (5) (6) A surname, V. ii. 8. a.—VII. ii. 87. 4.

(t) Things, substances, I. i. 7. t3: III. i.4. t8; 5. 3: IV. ii. 19. s; 28. 4: VI. i. 4. 5; 8. 3; 9. s; 15. s; ii. 5. 4 (articles): VIL.

獄"程

微

 ${f \Xi}$

(r) Cattle—embracing oxen, sheep, and pigs, and sometimes more kinds, V. i. 9. r. (a) Cattle set apart for sacrifice, victims, VI.ii.7.3. Generally in connexion with the sec.

A name, VL ii. 4. 1.

To lead forward, to drag, I. i. 7. 4.

The rhinoseros, III. ii. 9. 6.

A victim, called 養 as being 'spotless,' 養性, III. ii. 8. 8; 5. s: VII. ii.

THE 94re RADICAL, 犬.

A dog, dogs, I. ii. 15. r: IV. ii. 8. r: V. A'ilen ii. 6. 4: VI. i. 8. g; 7. 5; 11. g.

To violate, IV. i. 1, 8: VI. ii. 7, 3.

Ambitious, ardent, VII. ii. 87. 1, 2, 3, 2, 2, 5, 7.

The wild tribes on the North, I. ii. 14. a; 15. r: III. i. 4. r6 (天); ii. 9. rr

(夷秋) 12 (戎秋) 北秋, L

To be near to, VII. i. $1. I.

The fox, III. i. 5. 4.

A dog, dogs, L i. 8. 4, 5; 7. 24: II. i. 1.

新, a sovereign's tour of inspection, I. ii. 4. 5: VI. ii. 7. a. 計 is explained by 計, and—the flets.

Joined with . ? the wild cat, III. i. 5. 4.

(r) A wolf, IV. i. 17. r: VI. i. 14. 4. (a)

Fierce, III. ii. 9. zz.

(1) As; to be as, I. i. 7. 16: II. i. 1. 8, 13; 4. 1; 6. 6, et al., saspiesime. (2) Still, yet, I. ii. 2. 2; 11. 4: II. i. 1. 5, 7, et al., saspe. Observe II II. II. II. II. J. III. II. 2. 10; 7. 4. (3) In a double surname, IV. ii. 81. 1.

訟獄者, litiganta, V. i. 5. 7; 6. z.

Cautiously-decided, VII. ii. 87. 2, 7.

Only; alone, I. i. 2. 4; 7. 10, 12; ii. 1. 4: II. ii. 7. 3, 4, et al., sages. Old and childless, solitary, I. ii. 5. 3 In solitade, retirement, VII. i. 9. 6, et al. Peculiar, VII. ii. 86. 2.

, a tribe of northern barbarians, L. ii. 3, r.

(1) To get, obtain; catch, III. ii. 1.4: V. ii. 2.9. —to get the confidence of, IV. i. 12. 1. (2) A name, VI. ii. 2. 3.

To hunt, 田 遵, L ii. l. 6, 7: VIL ii. 84. a. ? 遵 鼓, V. ii. 4. 5, 6.

An honorary epithet, V. ii. 8. 2.

THE 96TH RADICAL, $\frac{1}{2}.

(1) To follow; following, along, I. ii. 5. 5; IV. i. 1. 4 (22 11): V. i. 4. 2. (2)
To lead (shoots), I. i. 4. 4, 5: II. i. 5. 6:
III. i. 4. 6, 18; ii. 5. 2; 9. 9: IV. ii. 14. 2:
VI. i. 1. 2.

should be drawn, VII. i. 41. 2.

THE 96TH RADICAL, T.

A gem, a precious stone, jade, I. ii. 9. s; 15. 1: VI. i. 3. s; VII. ii. 28. r. Used for the 'musical stone,' V. ii. 1. 6.

(1) A king, kings. Pussiss. 三王, the f unders of the three ancient dynasties, VI. ii. 7. 1, 3, et al. 王書, one who is a true king, I. ii. 5. 2; 14. 2: II. i. 1. 11, et al., seeps. 王郎, true royal government, I. ii. 5. 3: III. ii. 5. 7. So, 王道, I. i. 8. 3. On the meaning of 王, see II. i. 8. 1. It follows the names of States and honorary epithets. (a) A surname, V. ii. 8. 3.—III. ii. 1. 4.—VI. ii. 6. 5.—II. ii. 6. 1.

珠城

班

理

观

玌

The 4th tone. To exercise the royal authority (active and neuter), I. i. 8. 4; Ŧ 8. 11. ii. 1. r: IV. i. 9. 4, 5; ii. 16. r: V. i. 6. 5: VI. ii. 4. 6: VII. i. 20. r, 5.

A pearl, I. ii. 15. 1: VII. ii. 28.

To distribute, arrange, V. ii. 2. 1. Order, rank, II. i. 2. 23.

(I) 條理, see 條, V. ii. 1. 6. (2) The mental constitution, VL i. 7. 8. (3) To depend on, VII. ii. 19. 1.

To cut and polish a gem, L ii. 9. 2.

現 邪, the name of a place, I.ii. 4. 4.

(1) The harpsichord or lute, V. i. 2. 3: VII. ii. 6. (2) A surname, VII. ii. 87. 4.

A gem unwrought, I. ii. 9. 2.

An auspicious gem, which was fashioned round, V. i. 9. 2.

李·我以李·苏·璞·皇示·爱 (1) To surround, II. ii. 1. a. (a) A name, V. i. 8. 1, 2, 4.

THE 97TH RADICAL, I.

A gourd; a gourd dish, IV. ii. 29. 2.

THE 98TH RADICAL, Tr.

A tile, III. ii. 4. 5.

An earthenware pot or pan, used for steaming, III. i. 4. 4.

THE 99TH RADICAL, #

Sweet. = sweet food, I. i. 7. 16. +, to count sweet, or readily, VII. i. 27. 1.

Excessive; an exceeding degree; exceedingly, I. i. 7. 17; ii. 1. 1, 3; 14. 1, et al., saspe. 其 於... more, in a greater degree, than ..., II. i. 1. rr: VI. i. 10. 2, 3, 5. 己 其 者, extraordinary things, IV. ii. 10. Observe I. i. 7. rg.

THE 100m RADICAL, 生.

(1) To produce; to be produced,—spoken of men and things, II. i. 2. 15, 17, 23, 27, 28; 5. 6: III. i. 5. 3; ii. 9. 2, 4 al., sueps. (2) Life; to live; to grow; living, I. i. 8. 3; IV. ii. 24. 2: V. i. 2. 4: VI. i. 8. 1, 2; 10. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6: VII. i. 21. 4; 28. 3, 4 al. calculated to foster life and happiness, VII. i. 12 1. (3) To be born, to be born in, III. ii. 8. 6: IV. ii. 1. 1, 2: VII. ii. 87.9. ### master, a respectful way of speaking to or of an individual, IV. 1. 24. 2; ii. 81. 1: VI. ii. 4. 2, 4, 5, 6. (4) In a double surname, VII. ii. 25. 1. (5) In a name, VII. ii. 88. 3.

ch'fin 4. 12. (2) A native, III. i. 8. 3. (1) Livelihood, L. i. 7. 20, 21, 22: III. i. breed, V. i. 9. 2. (3) } , a designation, IV. ii. 2. 1: V. i. 2. 4.

A son-in-law, V. ii. 8. 5.

THE 101st RADICAL, 用.

(r) To use; to be used, I. i. 8. r, g; 4. 6; Initial, = for, on the part of, V. ii. 8.6; 用=thereby, L ii. 5. 4: IIL ii. 5. 6.

THE 102nd RADICAL, III.

(1) A field, fields, I. i. 8. 4; 7. 24: III. i. 8 (N.B.). 7, 9, 13, 18, 19, et al., saspe. Ħ ('ien 丰田 = the holy field, III. i. 8. r6. 田 鷹, VIL i. 28. z. 田野, IV. i. 1. 9: VL ii. 7. a. 田 風 , IV. ií. 8. 3, 4: VIL i. 22. 3. 東'田, the office held by Confucius in charge of the public fields, V. ii. 5. 4. (2) [H] and [H] 22, to hunt, L. ii. 1. 6, 7: III. ii. 1. s: V. ii. 7. 5: VII. ii. 84, 2.

(1) From, proceeding from, I. i. 7. 4; ii. 16. 1: II. i. 18; 2. 1, 27; 6. 4; 9. 3, et al., saspissims. (2) By, to proceed by, to walk in, III. ii. 2. 3; 3. 6; 9. 4, et al., saspe. (3) 由 Used for july, in both its meanings of as and still, I. i. 6. 6; 7. 3; ii. 1. 3: II. i. 1. 6; ii. 12. 5, of al. (4) (5) The name of 子路, III. ii. 7. 4.—In the name 井, V. L & a 甲 A coat of mail; = defensive armour, Li.8.2; 5.3; 7.14: IV.i.1.9. (2) 太 chi4 the name of a Book in the Shu-ching, ILi.4.6: IV. i.8.5: V. i.6.4: VII.i.81.1.

(1) To inculcate especially, repeatedly, I. i. 8. 4; 7. 24. (2) A surname, II. ii. 11. 3.

(1) A male, IV. i. 17. 1: V. i. 1. 3; 2. 1; ii. 6. 6. (2) A title of nobility, V. ii. 2. 3, 4, 5.

男

A border, boundaries, II. ii. 1. 4: III.

To fear, to dread, I. i. 6. 2; ii. 8. 2, 3; 11. 1, 3; II. i. 1, 3; 2. 5; 4. 2; III. i. 1. 4; ii. 5. 7; V. ii. 4. 4; VII. i. 14. 3; ii. 4. 5;

畝

耝 ch'4

寎

白

百

皇

A small channel of water. REMA chilos channelled fields, V. i. 1. 2; 7. 3, 4; ii. 6. 6; VI. ii. 15. r.

To rebel, to rebel against, II. ii. 1. 4. 5; 9. 1, 2, 3.

(z) To stop, restrain, I. ii. 4. 9. (a) To keep in store, have laid up, IV. i. 9. 5. (3) Read hets, to keep, to nourish, I. i. 8. 4; 7. az, sa, s4: V. i. 2. 4; ii. 6. 4: VII. i. 22. 3; $7. z.

An acre. Its size has varied at different times. Now 6.61 m2-an English acre, I.i. 8.4; 7.sq: III. i. 8.6, 16, 17, 19; 4.9: V. ii. 2.8: VII. i. 22.a.

(1) To be finished, III. i. 8. 19: V. i. 5. 7; 6. r. (a) A surname, III. i. 8. 13.—IV. ii. 1. s.

A general summary, an outline, III. i. 8. so: V. ii. 2. z.

A field of fifty ms. Used for fields generally, III. ii. 7. 4.

To draw figures on, III. ii. 4. 5.

(r) Different, to be different. Followed by 7, from, L i. 2, 5; 4, 2, 3; 7, 11, 17, et al., sage. (s) Strange; to think it strange, to be offended, L i. 7, 7; II. i. 2, 1; ii. 10. 6: IV. ii. 27, 3: V. ii. 9, 3.

(z) To detain, II. ii. 11. s. (s) To remain, VI. ii. 2. 6. The character is often, but improperly, written

(z) To sustain, be equal to, correspond to, IV. ii. 18. 17. To be matched, II. i. 1. 7. (a) To oppose, withstand. The meaning is associate with the above, I. ii. 8. 5. (3) In, at; to be in,—applied to time and circumstances, I. ii. 5. 5: II. i. 1. z (N.B.), 13; ii. 8. 3, 4; 18. 5, et el., sage. (4) Ought, IV. ii. 9: VII. 46. z. What ought to be, right, VI. ii. 8. 9.

The 4th tone. To be correct, V. ii. 5.4.

THE 108md RADICAL, 正.

(r) Distant, distance, II.i.1.rr. Spoken of relationship, I.ii.7.3: VI.ii.8.4: with verbal force, VI.ii.8. 3. (a) Coarse, III. i. 2. a: V. ii.8. 4. (3) To separate, III. i. 4. 7.

(r) To doubt, I. i. 5. 6: III. i. 1. 3: VI. i. 7. 3. (2) A name, II. ii. 10. 6.

THE 104re RADICAL,

Any feverish distemper. But **
- sickness and distress generally, VII. i.
18. 1.

(I) A disease; to be unwell, II. ii. 2. a, 3: III. i. 5. I: IV. i. 9. 5. 5. 1. ii. 1. 7: III. i. 8. I3. Understood in a moral sense, = infirmity, VI. ii. 2. 7: VII. ii. 88. 3. (a) To be troubled with, distressed by, III. ii. 7. 4: IV. ii. 2. a. 5. 1. 1. 1. 2. 16.

To be pained. 疾痛, see 疾.

▲ surname, V. i. 8. 1, 2, 4.

To be sured, III. i. 1. 5.

释疽 --- 疽

THE 105TH RADICAL, 火

To accend, II. ii. 10. 7: VII. i. 24. 1; 41. 1. = to be made to grow, III. i. 4. 7.

(r) To send forth,—as in discharging arrows, II. i. 7. 5: IV. ii. 24. a: VII. i. 41. 3; or in exercising government, I. i. 7. r8; ii. 5. 3. To be sent forth, manifested, II. i. 2. 17: VI. ii. 15. 3. (a) To rise, come forth, VI. ii. 15. r. (3) To open a granary, to cause it to open,—to send forth the stores, I. i. 8. 5; ii. 4. 9: VII. ii. 28. r.

THE 100m RADICAL,

(r) White; to pronounce to be white, Li.2.g; VLi.8.s; 4.s, 3. 通白者; grey-haired, Li.8.4; 7.24. (s) A surname, VLii, 10; 11.

(1) A hundred. Passim. It is used as a round number, signifying all of a class. We have 百世, ILi.2.37, stel.; 百官, ILi.2.3, 4, 5, stel.; 百声, V.i.5.6; 百姓, V.i.5.6, stel.; 百工, ILi.4.5, 6; 百穀, III.i.8.a. (a) 百里, a double surname, V.i.9.z, a: VI ii.6.4; 15, z.

皇皇如, anxious-like, III. ii. & r.

Passin. All. At the commencement of clauses, with reference to preceding statements. If it have a noun with it, the 野zi 省zi 省zi 眊do

眩

联 ming

明治政治

00 hollan 胖

noun precedes. 架管, VIL ii. 28. 2; 87. 11. Observe II. i. 6. 7: III. i. 4. 5.

white and glistening, III. i. 4. rg.

皡螅如, placid and content-like, VIL i. 18. 1.

THE 107rn RADICAL, 皮.

(t) The hides of animals; the skin with the hair on, I. ii. 15. r: VI. i. 9. rr; ii. 7. 6. (2) A name, VII. ii. 27. 4.

THE 100m RADICAL,

A vessel, 器 皿, III. ii. 8.3 min 盆地 盆地 盆地

(1) To fill; full, III. ii. 9. 9: IV. i. 14. 2; ii. 18. 2, 3: VII. i. 24. 3. The full amount, III. ii. 8. 7. (2) In a name, III. ii. 8. 1.

盆成,a double surname, VIL ii. 29. z.

(1) To add to; more, I. ii. 10. 4: VI. ii. 8. 7; 15. 2. (2) Of advantage, profitable, II. ii. 2. 16: VI. ii. 6. 3: VII. i. 8. 1, 2. (3) A minister of Shun and Yū, III. i. 4. 7: V. i. 6. 1, 2, 4, 6.

Why not; would it not be better to..., I. i. 7. ag: II. ii. 10. g: IV. i. 12. r; ii. 31. r, a: VII. i. 22. r; ii. 37. r.

An appearance of fullness, VII. i. 21. 4.

Complete, great; flourishing state, II. i. 1. 10; 2. 28; V. i. 4. 1; VI. ii. 7. 3; VII. ii. 88. a.

The 1st tone. A vesselful, III. ii. 8. 3; 5. a: VII. ii. 14. 4.

A robber, III. ii. 10. 3: V. ii. 4. 5.

To covenant solemnly, VI. ii., 7. 3.

To oversee, II. ii. 9. 2, 3.

(1) To exhaust, to carry out to the utmost degree, in the way of doing or thinking, I. i. S. 1; 7. 17; II. ii. 9. 2; III. i. 2. 4; V. ii. 4. 5; VI. i. 6. 7; VII. i. 1. 1; 2. 3; 8. Observe 自盡, III. i. 2. 2, and 盡 於人心, II. ii. 7. a. (a) All, IV. ii. 88. 1: VII. i. 86. 1. Entirely, III. i. 4. 3: VII. ii. 8. 1.

THE 109m RADICAL, 目.

The eye, I. i. 7. 16: II. i. 2. 4: III. i. 5. 4; ii. 10. r: IV. i. 1. 5; ii. 30. s: V. ii. 1. r: VI. i. 7. 7, 8; 15. s: VII. ii. 24. r.

(I) Straight; to be straight; to make straight, III. ii. 1. I, 3, 5: IV. i. 1.6: V. ii. 7. 8. Metaphorically, to correct; rectitude, II. i. 2. I3: III. i. 4. 8; 5. 2. (s) Only, I. i. 8. 2; ii. 1. 2: II. ii. 7. 2.

VOL. II.

(1) Mutually; may often be translated by one another, L. i. 4. 5; ii. 1. 6, 7; 4. 10, et al., saspissims. (2) A name, III. ii. 4. 2, 3.

To assist, to act as prime minister to; hestang a prime minister, IL i. 1. 8; 2. r: III. ii. 9.6: V. i. 5. 7; 6. 2, 5; 9. 3: VL ii. 5. 1, 3.

段份从, distressed-like, IIL i. 8. 7.

To inspect, I. ii. 2. 5: VI. ii. 7. s.

To be sparing of, I. i. 5. 3.

Dull, to be dull, IV. i. 15. r.

旗眩, 🏎 旗, IIL i. 1. 5.

眸子, the pupil of the eye, IV. i. 15.

Many, numerous; a multitude; the multitude, I. i. 7. 17; ii. 1. 4; 11. 4, et al.,

To be harmonious, III. i. 3. 18.

脺ű 睦n Te look aside, III. i. 5. 4.

> 膜眩, to throw into a state of confusion,—medicine in its beneficial opera-tion, yet causing distress, III. i. 1. 5.

脂 脂, with eyes askance, I. ii. 4. 6.

To be clear, IV. i. 15. r.

the name of Shun's father, IV. L 28. 2: V. i. 2. 3; 4. 1, s, 4: VL i. 6. 3: VII. i. 86.

See above.

To watch, to spy, IV. ii. 82; 88. r.

To watch, III. ii. 7. 3.

THE 110TH RADICAL, F. To reverence, 於式, IL. ii. 10. 3.

THE 111-E RADICAL, 矢.

An arrow, I. ii. 5. 4: II. i. 7. 1, 3: III. ii. 1. 4: IV. ii. 24. s: V. ii. 7. 8.

A final particle, found passim. It gives definiteness and decision to statements. Where the last clause of a sentence or paragraph is introduced by III, IF, or 亦 it generally ends with 矣. After 而 已 it may be looked for. After single adjectives and other words its force is both decisive and exclamatory.

矩

To know, to understand. Passim. All to acknowledge, i.e. to know and employ, VII. i. 9. a.

知 The 4th tone. Used for 智, to be wise; wise; wisdom. 知 者, VII. i. 46. I.

Asquare,—the carpenter's instrument so called, IV. i. 1. 1, 5; 2. r: VI. i. 20. s: VII. ii. 5.

Short, I. i. 7. 13: III. i. 1. 5 (N. B.); 4. 17. To shorten, VII. i. 39. 1.

THE 119TH RADICAL, Z.

石 (I) A stone, a rock, VII. i. 16. (a) 石 hètà 丘, the name of a place, VI. ii. 4. I.

To break, to split. Used for the blows of an axe, strong and well aimed, III. ii. 1. 4.

THE 119rm RADICAL, 示.

To show, indicate, V. i. 5. 4, 5.

contradiction.

The spirits of the land, or their altars. Always in the phrase , the tutelary spirits of a country, and may be used for the country itself, IV. i. 8. 3: VII. i. 19. s; ii. 14. 1, 3, 4.

To sacrifice; to sacrifice to, III. ii. 5. 2: IV. ii. 25. 2. 祭 神, sacrifices, VI. ii. 10. 4: VII. ii. 14. 4.

Happiness, prosperity, I. ii. 8. 6.

Reverent, reverently, V. i. 4. 4.

先祖, ancestors, III. i. 2. 3.

(1) A spirit. A spiritual beings who are sacrificed to, V. i. 5. 6. Spiritual,—mysterious, VII. i. 18. 3; ii. 25. 8. (2) , one of the most ancient sovereigns, III. i. 4. 1.

Auspicious, IV. i. 18. 4; ii. 17.

To sacrifice or make offerings to; sacrifices; sacrificial, III. i. 2. a, 3; ii. 3. 3: IV. ii. 88. r: V. i. 5. 6; ii. 4. 6: VI. ii. 6. 6 (N.B.) 余元, see 元人

I. q. . To pour out a libation, IV.

Emolument, revenue, salary, I. ii. 5. 3: II. ii. 8. 1; 14. 1; III. i. 8. 8, 13; ii. 10. 5: V. ii. 2. 1, 6, 7, 8, 9; 8. 5: VII. ii. 88. 2. To grant to, to endow, V. i. 7. 2. To forbid, prohibit; prohibitions, I. ii. 2. 3; 5. 3: VI. ii. 7. 3: VII. i. 35. 3, 4;

Happiness, IL i. 4. 5, 6: IV. i. 4. 3.

To withstand, oppose; to hinder; to ward off, I. i. 6. 6; 7. 9, 18: II. i. 1. 10; 7. a: VII. i. 16; ii. 8. 1. To stop and rob, V. ii. 4. 4, 5.

To resign, give over to another, V. i. 6. 7.

(x) What is proper; the principle of propriety; the rules of ceremony and politeness in accordance therewith, I. i. 7. sa; ii. 16. r.: II. i. 2. s7; 6. 5; 7. 3, et al., saspiesme. To be polite to, III. i. 3. 4: VII. i. 48. r., et al. 111. i. 3. 4: Demeanour, VI. ii. 14. 3. The same, used as a verb, IV. ii. 80. r. (a) The Book of Rites, II. ii. 2. 5: III. ii. 8. 3. The Ritual Usages, III. ii. 9. 2.

THE 114TH RADICAL, 🞝.

The great Y0, the founder of the Hsiadynasty, II. i. 8. s: III. i.4. 7, 9; ii. 9. 4, 11, et al., saspe.

Birds, III. ii. 1. 4. In the phrase , birds and beasts, irrational animals, sometimes applied metaphorically to men, I. i. 7. 8, 10, 12: III. i. 4. 7, 8; ii. 1. 5; 9. 5, 9: IV. ii. 19. 1; 28. 6; VI. i. 8. 2.

THE 115m RADICAL, 禾.

私

ping

Private; privately, III. i. 8. 9, 19: IV. ii. 22. s (N.E.): VII. i. 40. 5.

II. ii. 8. r. As a verb, to be solifishly attached to, to monopolize, II. ii. 10. 6: IV. ii. 80. s.

To grasp, maintain. 乗夷, VI. i. 6. 8.

(1) The autumn; in the autumn; astumnal, I. i. 7. 10; ii. 4. 5: III. i. 4. 13: VI. ii. 7. 2. (2) 本水, a historical Work, compiled by Confucius, III. ii. 9. 8, 11: IV. ii. 21. 1, 2: VII. ii. 2. 1. (3) A name, VI. i. 9. 3.

左近空 穿流窟 编 T

亚

(I) A hollow,—in the bed of a stream, IV. ii. 18. 2; VII. i. 24. 3. (2) 本学lessons, 設料, VII. ii. 80. a.

The name of a State, I. i. 5. 1, 3; 7. 16: V. i. 9. 1, 3: VI. i. 12. 1; ii. 4. 3, 5, 6. 秦人, VL i. 4. 4, 5.—V. i. 9. 1, 3: VL ii. 6. 4.

To remove, I. i. 8. r; III. ii. 2. 3; VI. ii. 7. 2. To alter, VII. i. 86, r.

To be taxed, II. i. 5. 4. 积 斂, all taxes, I. i. 5. 3: VII. i. 28. r. = revenues, V. i. 8. 3.

Lq. III. To loose, put off, VI. ii. 6. 6.

A kind of spurious grain, 木記 南, VI. i. 19.

The young, III. i. 8. 7.

To sow, III. i. 4. 4.

The 3rd tone. Seed, VI. i. 7. 2; 19.

税。柳州和北種的種的稱為 (1) To style, to pronounce, to speak of, III. ii. 9. 1: IV. ii. 80. 1: VII. ii. 87. 10. (2) To praise, III. i. 1. 2: IV. ii. 18. I. (3) To lift up, - to proceed to, III. i. 3. 7.

> The 4th tone. ? equal to, II. ii. 7. s. To correspond, to be

(1) The spirits presiding over the grain or agriculture of a country. 社稷, see 社. (2) 后稷, the title of Shun's minister of agriculture, III. i. 4.8. The 后 is dropped, and 穆 becomes a proper name, IV. ii. 29. 1, 2, 3, 4.

Paddy, III. ii. 5. 2.

To sow, IL i. 8. 4: IIL i. 4. 8.

(I) To bow down. 稽首, to bow ii. 4. 5. (a) A name, VII. ii. 19. 1.

A general name for grain, I. i. 8. g; generally spoken of as 표 📆, the five kinds of grain, III. i. 4. 7, 8, 17: VI. i. 19; ii. 10. 4. But we have also 百 蒙, III. i. 8. 2. the grain available for salaries, III. i. 8. 13.

An honorary epithet, I. ii. 12. r.—V. i. 9. 1, 3: VI. il. 6. 4.

Stores of straw, grain, &c., in the open air; ricks, I. ii. 5. 4.

To reap, III. i. 4, 8,

THE 116th RADICAL, 穴.

A hole, III. ii. 8. 6.

Empty, VII. ii. 12.

To dig through, VIL ii. 81. s, 4.

A cave artificially excavated, IIL if. 9. 3.

To leap over,—as if it were the, VIL ii. 31. s, 4. The dictionary explains it differently, however, and makes it—'an opening in the wall.'

To peep, to steal a sight, III. ii. 8. 6.

(1) Poor, in poverty and distress, I. ii. 5. 3: V. i. 1. 3: VII. i. 9. 4, 5, 6; 21. 3. (2) 7, 8. (3) (4) 1. i. 0. a: V. ii. 1. 3. (2) To exhaust, II. ii. 12.6. See 力. (3) To be at one's wit's end, IL i. 2. 17.

(1) To steel, VII. ii. 30. a. (a) Privately, VII. i. 85. 6. (3) Joined with other verbs so as to qualify them deferentially, II. i. 2. so; ii. 7. 1: IV. ii. 21. 3.

THE 117TH RADICAL, T.

(r) To stand; to stand erect, I. i. 2. r; 7. 18: IL i. 5. r; 9. r: IIL ii. 2. 3: IV. ii. 88. 1: V. i. 4. 1; ii. 5. 5: VIL i. 2. 2; 21. 2; 41. 3. 立, 而 . . . = quickly, IV. ii. 18. 3; - with indifference, II. ii. 4. 3. To stand fast, to be established, VI. i. 15. a. (a) To set up; to appoint, to establish; to be set up, appointed, V. i. S. r; 6. 5; ii. 1. r; VIL i. 1. 3; ii. 15. r.

(r) Anything definite and complete, a lesson, a piece, VIL i. 24. g. (a) =rule, canons, IV. i. l. 4. (3) A name, 墓 黃, III. ii. & x: V. i. l. x, a, et est, easps.—王 董, III. ii. 10. 1 : IV. ii. 80. 1. 置子, IV. ii. 80. a, 3, 5, is peculiar; see on par. I.

Boys under fifteen. A child, VII. i. 15. a A lad, III. i. 4. 17. 80 童子, III. ii. 5. 2, 3.

To exhaust, to carry to the utmost, L.ii. 15. I: IV. i. 1. 5: V. i. 1. 2.

(1) A principle, principles, IL i. 6. 5, 6, 7. (a) Correct, upright, IV. ii. 24. 2.

THE 118re RADICAL, 1/7.

To laugh, to smile; smiling, L. i. 7, 7, 16: III, ii. 7, 4: IV. i. 16, r: VI. ii. 8. s. To laugh at, L. i. 8. s: VII. ii. 28. a.

002

粒

符 A check, or token. 存節, the two halves of such a token, the fitting of which was an evidence of the holder's authority, IV. ii. 1. 3.

A degree, a class, III. i. 5. 3: V. ii. 2. a. To graduate, to arrange according to merit, II. i. 2. 27.

A sinew, a muscle, VI. ii. 15. 2.

To answer, VI. i. 5. 4; il. 1. 4: VII. i. 40. 4; 48. 1, a. duct, IV. i. 4. 1. To respond to,-in con-

A alip of bamboo containing writing. = a passage, a piece, VII. ii. 8. s.

To reckon. 🌉 🌉, incalculable, VL

(z) The name of a State, 電子, IL i. 1. 7. (a) 箕山, the name of a hill, V. i. 6. 1.

(1) A fife or flute, I. ii. 1. 6, 7. (2) An honorary epithet in 答叔, II. ii. 9. a, 3. A surname in 管仰, and 管夷吾, II. i. 1. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5; ii. 2. 8, 10: VI. ii. 15. 1.

(1) To regulate, to order according to the proper divisions, IV. i. 27. s. (2) 符節, 符.

A law, a rule. Used as a verb, III. ii.

To beat, as in forming mud walls. to build, L ii. 18. 2: III. i. 4. 13; ii. 10. 3. 第-to fortify, I. ii. 14. r. 板架, 200 板·

To usurp; usurpation, V. i. 5. 7: VII. i. 81. 3.

To consolidate, L. ii. 8. 6.

A small basket or dish for holding rice. Always in the phrase 簞食, I. ii. 10. 4; 11. 3: III. ii. 4. 1; 5. 5: IV. ii. 29. 2; VI. i. 10. 6: VII. i. 84; ii. 11.

(1) To alight, IV.ii.27.a, 3. (a) Hasty, VII. ii. 87. 1. (3) An honorary epithet,

A record, V. ii. 2. s: VI. ii. 8. 5.

6, 7.

THE 119m RADICAL, 米.

Rice hulled, II. ii. 1. 8: III. i. 8. 7: VII. ii. 27. 1. See 🕎.

Grains of rice, III. i. 8. 7.

Rice in the husk.  $\overline{\pi}$, IL ii. 1. 3. 栗木, VII. ii. 97. 1. 栗 alone, Li.3. 1: III. i. 4, 4, 5; il. 4. 9; 10. 9; IV. i. 14. 1: V. ii. 6. 9, 5; VI. ii. 2. 2: VII. i. 28. 9. Medhurst translates it as above, and apparently after Kang-hat's dictionary; still the 本草綱目 says that anciently was the general name for all glumaceous grain. It is now commonly spoken of I have translated it sometimes millet. by 'grain,' and sometimes by 'millet.'

Barbadoes millet, VI. i. 17. 3.

A kind of millet. Always in the phrase 桑盛, III. ii. 8. 3; 5. a: VII. ii. 14. 4.

Congee, III. i. 2. 2, 4.

Parched grain, rice or wheat, VII. ii. 6.

To boil rice to a mass. tear and destroy, VII. ii. 1. s.

To manure; the manuring, III. i. 3. 7: V.ii.2.9. The rendering of the sentence in the first of these instances is in accordance with the commentaries, but it may be doubted.

Provisions of grain, I. ii. 4. 6; 5. 4.

To purchase grain, VI. ii. 7. 3. All the commentaries explain here as if it meant 'to sell grain.' The meaning is—' Do not prevent our sale and their purchase.'

THE 120m RADICAL, 4.

Epithet of the last sovereign of the Yin dynasty, I. ii. 8. 1, 3: VII. i. 22. 1, et al.,

(r) To form alliances, VI. ii. 9. s. (s) What is most important, II. i. 2. 6, 8. (3) Compendious, VII. ii. 32. r.—In IV. ii. 15, the term combines the ideas of condensation and importance.

To pay over, V. i. 8. g.

纷纷然, confusedly, III. i. 4. 5.

(1) Of white, undyed, silk, III. i. 4.4. (a) For nothing, without doing servise, VII. i. 82. r.

Ropes of grass, III. i. 8. s.

Reddish blue, VII. ii. 87. rs.

I.q. 乘. 係累, to put in confine ment, L'il. 11. 3.

Digitized by Google.

樂 明神模派 糜 丽

料

級原案等

A register, V. ii. 4. 6.

A musical instrument, pipes, I. ii. 1.

和 shaio ser

和語為語 緊張統是孫語級音經過 緩慢調整維度期急轉品轉品線是總器將沒機是

To continue. == to continue to serve, III. ii. 5. 5.

To twist, VI. ii. 1. 8: VII. i. 89. 2.

(1) The end. Finally, as the final issue, VI i. 16. 3; 18. 2; ii. 4. 5. (2) To complete, V. ii. 4. 6: VII i. 89. 4. To stop, end (active and neuter), V. ii. 1. 6; 8. 4. (3) Perpetual, the whole.

(3) Perpetual, the whole.

(4) H. ii. 1. 4.

(5) H. ii. 1. 4.

(6) H. ii. 1. 4.

(7) H. ii. 2. 1.

(8) J. ii. 28. 7; 80. 5.

(9) V. i. 1. 5; VII i. 5; 85. 6; ii. 6. Observe this phrase in I. i. 7. 21, 22, and IV. ii. 83. 1.

To cut short, III. i. 1. 5. To cut, to stop intercourse with, II. ii. 11. 4: IV. 1. 7. 2.

To supply. 不論, a deficiency in the crop, L ii. 4. 5: VL ii. 7. a.

Rejected flow-ailk. 縣祭, III. i.

A thread of connexion. == a beginning, I. ii. 14. 3.

Silk from the silkworm. See ...

To give tranquillity to, III. ii. 5. 5.

(1) To define, to plan, I. i. 2. 3: III. i. 3. 13. (a) The unchanging standard, VII. ii. 27. 13.

To delay; not to be urgent about, III. i. 8. 2: VII. ii. 27.

II. i. 4. 3.

A particle,—used as the copula, III. i. 8. 12: V. i. 4. 3.

To twist. 🧙 🌉, III. i. 8. 2.

綽綽然, freely, at ease, II. ii. 5. 5.

A surname, VI. ii. 6. 5.

From. # 1-to climb a tree, or on a tree, I. i. 7. 16, 17.

The mourning worn for three months, VII. i. 46. 2.

=upright, IL i. 2. 7.

Threads. 麻縷, III. i. 4. 17. 布縷, VII. ii. 27. 1. Here it probably means cloth of silk.

Merit, doing, V. i. 2. 3.

To abound. 繁殖, III. i. 4.7.

To unwind a cocoon, III. ii. & 3.

epithet, interchanged with and read ma, IL ii. 11. 3: V. ii. 6. 4; 7. 4: VL ii. 6. 3.

To weave, III. i. 4. 1, 4; ii. 10. 4.

Embroidered garments, VI. i. 17. 3.

A line, string,—used with reference to a carpenter's line, IV. i. 1. 5: VII. i. 41. 2.

To bind. == to yoke, V. i. 7. 2.

To adjust a string to an arrow, to draw it back after it has been discharged, VI. i. 9. 3.

To continue; to be continued, I. ii. 14. 8: II. i. 1. 7: IV. i. 1. 5; 18. 2; ii. 90. 5: V. i. 6. 2, 4 (), 7; ii. 6. 4, 5. ..., after thia, II. ii. 10. 2. ..., immediately after, II. ii. 14. 3.

Strings to tie on a cap, IV. i. 8. 2, 3. To tie on, IV. ii. 29. 6, 7.

Hempen threads, III. ii. 10. 4.

THE 121sr RADICAL, 45.
To be wanting, III. ii. 9. 6.

THE 1920D RADICAL, XX.

(r) To eatch in a net, IL ii., 10. 7. To entrap, L i 7. so: III i 8. 3: V. i. 2. 4. (s) None, not.

Seldom, VI. i. 9. a.

罕MBx罪ii

· A not for catching fish, I. i. 8. 3.

(1) A crime, offence; a fault, I. i. 7. 4, 6, 7, 20; ii. 2. 13: II. ii. 4. 3, 4, et el., seepe.

A and sometimes alone, sinners, criminals, I. ii. 8. 7; 5. 3: V. i. 8. 2: VI. ii. 7. 1, 2, 3, 4.

To condemn, I. i. 8. 5: III. ii. 9. 8.

(1) To place, III. ii. 6. 1. To appoint, L. ii. 11. 4. To displace and appoint others, VII. ii. 14. 3, 4. (2) A stage, a post station, III III. 1. 1. 1.

To make to cease, to stop, VI. ii. 4. 3, 5, 6.

THE 188m RADICAL, 羊

The sheep or goat, I. i. 7. 4, 6, 7, 8: II. ii. 4. 8: III. ii. 5. s: V. i. 1. 3; 2. 3; 9. 1; ii. 5. 4; 6. 6: VI. i. 8. 1. **

dates, a kind of persimmon, VII. ii. 86. 1, 2.

To be ashamed; the feeling of shame, II.i.6. 4, 5; 9. s: III. ii. 1. 5: IV. ii. 88. s: V. ii. 1. 3: VI. i. 6. 7.

▲ flock, a company, VII. ii. 19. 3.

An overplus, III. ii. 4. 3.

Righteousness; our consciousness of what is righteous, and the determinations thereof; what is right. Passins. The combinations of , and , are very common.

英 Soup, V. ii. 8. 4. 豆类, VL i. 10. 6: bling VII. i. 84; ii. 11.

Meagre, feeble, II. ii. 4. 2.

THE 194TH RADICAL, 79.

(1) Feathers, a feather, L i. 7. 10; ii. 1. 6, 7: VL i. 8. 2; ii. 1. 6. (a) [1], the name of a mountain, V. i. 8. 2.

A famous archer of antiquity, IV. ii. 24. 1: VI. i. 20. 1: VII. i. 41. 2.

Only, VL ii. 1. 7.

To practise, do habitually, VIL i. 5.

The name of the herestarch Mo, III. ii. 9. 9, 10, 14.

Wings. Used as a verb, to give wings to, to assist, IIL i. 4. 8.

THE 1857H RADICAL, 老.

To be old; old; the old, I. i. 7. 12, 24; ii. 5. 3; 12. 2; 15. 1: II. ii. 4. 2: III. i. 8. 7; ii. 5. 2: IV. i. 18. 1, 2: V. i. 4. 1: VI. ii. 7. 2, 3: VII. i. 23. 1, 2, 3.

(1) A deceased father, V. i. 4. r. (2) To examine, II. ii. 18. 4: VI. i. 14. r: VII. ii. 87. 6 (夷 考).

Passim. (1) He (or they) who; this (or that), these (or those) who (or which). It is put after the words (verbs, adjectives, nouns), and clauses to which it belongs, Lil4; & 1,4; & 6; 5, 1,3,6, et el, saspissime. Observe 賢者, Li.21,2; ii.4. 1; 16. 1, et al.; 使者, V. ii. 6.4; 思考, III. i. 5. 1, 2, et similia. (2) After 書 with intervening words, phrases where a numeral is used, and many other cases, Z is equivalent to one, this, these. R.g. 若 置 人 者, · stuch an one as I,' Li.7.4; 離有百姓者, toid 6; 雙人有藏倉者, there was one Tsang Ts'ang, Lii 16.3; 三 聖者, III. il. 9. 13; 二者, IV. 12 2.—This seems to be the proper force of the character, so that it is an emphatic demonstrative by which the mind is made to pause on what has just been said. (3) It stands at the end of the first member of a clause or sentence, when the next gives a description or explanation of the subject of the other, terminated generally by the particle #1, but not always, Li 7. 9, 12; ii. 4. 2, 3: III. i. 8. 6, 7, et passin. (4) 也 者, at the end of the first member of a sentence, resume a previous word or statement, and lead on to an explanation or account of it. R.g. II. i. 9. I. Observe VII. ii. 16.—This case and the preceding may easily be brought under (2). (5) 看也 occur continually at the end of sentences, preceded generally in a previous clause by 老, and for the most part the force of 者 in (1) is apparent, L i.l. 5; ii. 8. 2: II. i. 1. 10, 11, et passim. (6) It forms adverbe with 昔 and 古, Lii. 4. 4: IL ii. 7. 2, et al., saepe.

Old, aged, L ii. 15. r.

而

The 4th tone. To reliah; a reliah, VI. i. 4. 5; 7. 5. 8.

THE 1967H RADICAL, 而.

Pussim. A conjunction, meaning and, and yet, which latter signification is often nearly or altogether—but. Its use, however, is very idiomatic, and it cannot always be literally translated into English. 而已, and 而已矣, are very common. So is 然,而; = 'so, and yet.'... Observe , 而, IL ii. 14. 3; 氏,而, V. i. 7. 4; 役,而, VI i. 8.1, of sim.; also 由...而來, IL ii. 18. 4, at al.; 而能, V. i. 7. 5. Its use after is to be noted. E.g. IV. ii. 2. 4: V. i. 1, 4.

建

欧

匪

THE 197m RADICAL, 秉.

耘

A plough-handle, 来親, IIL i. 4.2;

To plough; to cultivate the ground, I. i. 5. 3, 4; ii. 4. 5: III. i. 4. 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, II, et al., saspe. Li. 7. 18; il. 5. 3; 11. s: II. i. 5. 4. 24 =to labour, to do work, VII. i. 82. r.

To weed, IL i. 2. 16.

A ploughahare. 耒耜, see 耒.

To weed, L i. 5. 3, 4.

A harrow. == to cover the seed, VI. i. 7. 2.

THE 198m RADICAL, 耳.

(7) The ear, I. i. 7. 16: III. ii. 10. r: IV. i. 1. 5: V. ii. 1. r: VI. i. 7. 6, 8; 15. a: VII. ii. 24. r. (a) A final particle, simply, only, just, I. i. 8. a; ii. 1. a: II. ii. 10. a, 7: III. i. 4. rr: IV. i. 23; ii. 80. a: VI. i. 6. 7; 10. 5; 17. r; ii. 2. 3, 7: VII. ii. 7. 耳 II = indeed, I. i. 8. r (?).

To invite or call forth men of worth by presents, V. i. 7. 3, 4.

Sage (='great and capable of transforming'), VIL ii. 25. 7; sageness; a sage, IL i. 1. 8; 2. 18, 19; III. ii. 9. 9, 10, 13; IV. ii. 1. 4; V. ii. 1. 5, 6, 7; VIL ii. 25. 7, 8. 2 人, IL i. 2. 17, 20, 22, 25, 28, et al., suspe.

To collect, to be collected, II. i. 1: IV. i. 1. 9; 9. r.

To hear; to become acquainted with by report, I. i. 7. 1, 2, 4, 8, 16, 17; ii. 1. 4, 6, 7, et a., saspissima. 😩 🔡, extensive information, V. il. 7. 8. 多間載, id., VI. ii. 18. 2.

The 4th tone. Reputation, notoriety, IV. i. 1. 2; ii. 18. 3: VI. i. 17. 3.

Acuteness of hearing, IV. i. 1. r.

A sound; a voice, I. i. 7. 8; ii. 1. 6, 7: II. i. 2. 4: III. i. 4. 13: V. ii. 1. 6: VI. i. 音, I. i. 7. 16; VI. ii. 18.8 (= language). = music, VII. ii. 22.1; 87. 12. Reputation, IL i. 6. 3: IV. ii. 18. 3 (整 間): VII. i. 14. 1.

An office; the duties of office, I. ii. 4. 5: II. i. 4. 2; ii. 5. 5 (N.B.): V. i. 1. 2; ii. 8. 4; 6. 3; 7. 9 (N.B.): VI. ii. 7. 2.

To hear, to listen to; to hear and follow, L. i. 7. 16; ii. 7. 4, 5: II. ii. 11. 3: IV. i. 8. 3; 15.2; ii. 8. 3, 4, et al. 111 112, to administer the government, IV. ii. 2. 1. Compare III. i. 2. 4.

THE 199m RADICAL,

-a continuative particle, I. ii. 5. 5. The dictionary, however, explains the character here by [], himself.

And so, though, VII. ii. 19. 3.

THE 180m RADICAL, [六].

Flosh, mest, I. i. 8. 4; 4. 4: 7. 8, 24: III. ii. 6. 2; 9. 9; 10. 5: IV. i. 14. 2; 19. 3; ii. 88. r: V. ii. 6. 4, 5: VI. ii. 6. 6: VII. i. 22. 2, 3.

不肯, not equal to, degenerate; incompetency, II. ii. 7. r: IV. ii. 7. r; V. i. 6. a: VI. ii. 6. a.

A limb. 四肢, VII. ii. 94. r.

Fat (adj.), I. i. 4. 4: III. ii. 9. 9. Ruch food, I. i. 7. 16. Rich, spoken of soil, VI. i. 7. s.

The shoulders, III. ii. 7. 4: VI. i. 14. 4.

To cherish and train, VI. ii. 7. 3: VII. i. 20. 4. To be maintained and nourished, III. i. 4. 8.

The back, VI. i. 14. 4: VIL i. 21. 4.

Mutually, I. ii. 4. 6; 5. 5: IV. i. 9. 6: V. i. 1. 3 (N. B.)

胡和自然育的 A surname, I. i. 7. 4.

I. q. 10. The breast, IV. i. 15. 1.

The ribs. = to shrug up, III. ii.7.4.

L q. 🎉, to cultivate, improve, L i. & 3: VI. i. 16.2, 3: VII. i. 1.3; 9.6; ii. 82. To repair, IV. ii. 81. z. = to do, I. ii. 4. 4.

To be able; can. As the auxiliary, passim; but it is often used absolutely, e.g. I. i. 7. 10, 11; ii. 16. 3: V. i. 9. 3, st al., scope. 能 alone, and 能 者, men of ability, II. i. 4. 3; 5. 1. Ability, VII. i. 15. r. ii = to amount to, V. ii. 2. 4.

The belly, IV. ii. 8. r: VI. i. 14. 6; VII. i. 27. 1.

= fat meat, VI. i. 17. a. 👛 🕰 rich favours, IV. ii. 3. 3. 4.

툊

(r) The skin, VL i. 14. r, 6. and slone, = the body, IL i. 4; ii. 7. 4: VL ii. 15. a. (s) Admirable, IV. i. 7. 5. To smite, III. i. 4. r6; ii. 9. ra.

Minced meat, VIL il. 86. s.

A surname, II. i. 1.8: VI. ii. 15. r.

The arm, the lower arm, VI. ii. 1. 8; VII. i. 89. s; ii. 28. s.

THE 181 RADICAL, E.

A minister, an officer of a court, I. i. 7.
14, 16; ii. 4. 10; 6. 1; 7. 1; 8. 2, et al., sequence. In the first person, 'I. your minister,' I. i. 7. 2, 4, 5, et al. In a wider sense, subjects, II. i. 1. 8: III. ii. 5. 5. To employ as a minister, II. ii. 2. 8, 9, et al.

To rest, to sleep, IL. ii. 11. s, 3.

A surname, L. ii. 16. z, 3.

THE 182m RADICAL, 自.

(z) From, as a preposition, I. ii. 11. s: II. 1. s. s. s. s.; 8. s. of et., sespissime. According as, V. i. 5. 8. (s) Self, of all persons. Generally joined with verbs in a reflex sense. We have 自反,自失,自想,自支, &c. &c., II. i. 2. 7; 4. 4, 5, 6; 6. 6; 9. s., et al., sneptestus. Observe 自為, II. ii. 5. 3: VI. ii. 6. I.

Smells, odours, VII. ii. 24. z.

, a minister of Shun, III. i. 4.

THE 188m RADICAL, 至.

(z) To earry to the utmost degree, VI. ii. 14. a, 3: VII. i. 8. z. $\frac{1}{2}$ $\frac{1}{2}$ $\frac{1}{2}$, VI. i. 9. s. (s) To bring about by effort, V. i. 6. a. $\frac{1}{2}$ - to calculate, IV: ii. 26. 3. (3) To resign, II. ii. 5. a; 10. z.

(1) A tower, L i. 2. 3, 4. , the name of king Wan's tower, ibid. (2)

The designation of a low officer, a servant, V. ii. 6. 4.

A name, IL ii. 8. 1: VII. ii. 98. L

THE 184m BADICAL, 白.

The 4th tone. To share in; to be concerned about, III. i. 4. 11: IV. ii. 31. 1: V. ii.1. s: VII. i.20. 1, 5. VI. i.18. 1 is marked with this tone, but Chû Hat explains by III, 'to assist,' as in (5) above.

The and tone. Presses. A final particle, interrogative, and also with exclamatory force. It implies generally that the speaker has a well-formed idea on the subject of the question in his own mind, and that he wishes to express his own surprise, or to involve an opponent in difficulty, I. i. 7. 4, 10, 12, 14, 16, 17; fi. 1. 4, 7; 5. 3; 7. 3; 16. 1, et al., sequinisme.

(r) To arise, II. ii. 18. 3: IV. i. 1. 9: VI i. 6. s. (s) To rouse one's self, to be aroused, IV. i. 18. r: VII. i. 10; 22. r; ii. 16; 87. r3. , to raise itself—spoken of grain, I. i. 6. 6. (3) To raise, I. i. 7. r4. , to open the granaries, I. ii. 4. 9. (4) To Sourish, IV. i. 8. s.

(r) To lift, to raise, I. i. 7. 10: III. i. 8.
4; ii. 5. 7: VI. ii. 2. 3. — to promote;
to be lifted up, promoted, III. i. 4. 7: V.
i. 9. 3; ii. 6. 4, 6: VI. ii. 15. 1. — to allege, insist on, VII. i. 26. 4; ii. 37. 11.
— to take, I. i. 7. 12. — to complete, I. ii. 10. 2. (a) All, I. ii. I. 6, 7:
II. ii. 12. 5: VI. i. 7. 3.

Old, ancient, III. i. 8. 12: IV. i. 1. 4.

THE 185rm RADICAL, 舌. The tengue, III. i. 4. 14.

(1) To lodge in a booth, I. ii. 4. 9. (2) (3), a lodging-house, IV. i. 24. 2. (2) Only, III. i. 4. 2 († N.B.) (3) A name, II. i. 2. 5, 6, 8.

並

苞

若

苗3及1节《茅18兹》

がが用が

(1) To neglect, pass over, I. ii. 7. 2; 9. 1, 2: II. i. 2. 16, 21; 18. 5 (=besides).

1, 2: II. i. 2. 16, 21; 18. 5 (=besides).

2, to give up his own views, II. i. 8. 3. To give over, to cease, IV. ii. 18. 2. (2) To let go, I. i. 7. 4: V. i. 2. 4. (3) To discharge, as arrows, III. ii. 1. 4. The dictionary gives this instance under the 3rd tone.

The name of a State, III. i. 4.16; ii. 9.12.

THE 186TH RADICAL, At.

The ancient emperor, so called, II. i. 2. 26; 8. 3; ii. 2. 4, et passim.

To make postures,手之舞之, IV. i. 27. a.

THE 187 RADICAL, -A.

To be abandoned to pleasure, W A, II. i. 4. 4: VII. ii. 84. 2. Read without the aspirate, it is the name of Yen Hai's son, V. ii. 8. 3.

THE 189m RADICAL, 艮.

(1) Good, III. ii. 1. 4: IV. i. 15. 1: VI. i. 8. 3 (良心, the good natural heart);
17. 1; ii. 9. 1, 2. 艮 = intuitive, VII. i. 15. 1. (a) 艮人, the goodman, a husband, IV. ii. 85. 1. (3) A name, III. ii. 1. 4.

THE 1897R RADICAL, 俗.

(r) The countenance, the looks, I. i. 4.
4; ii. 1. a, 7: III. ii. 7. 4; 9. 9: V. ii. 9.
2, 4: VI. ii. 15. 3: VII. ii. 11. (a) Colour, colours; aights, I. i. 7. 16: V. ii.
1. 1: VI. i. 4. 1; 7. 8: VII. ii. 24. 1. (3)
The appetite of sex, VI. ii. 1. a, 7. Beautiful women—a cuphemism, I. ii. 5. 5: V. i. 1.
4, 5. Observe VII. i. 21. 4, where if—manifestations; and 38, where it—functions.

姚, flushed-like, II. i. 1. 3.

THE 140m RADICAL, 1914.

(1) The mugwort, or moza, IV. i. 9. 5.
(2) Beautiful, beautiful young women, V. i. 1. 5.
(3) To rule, to correct, V. i. 6. 5: VII. i. 11. 5. In this sense, it is interchanged with \(\), and should be read i.

The mustard plant. But it is used as simply = grass, IV. i. 28. r; ii. 8. r.

II. i. 2. 16.

Lq. 耘. To weed, VII. ii. 82. 3.

(z) Grass, pasturage, II. ii. 4. 3. 本, grass-outters, I. ii. 2. 2. 有力, grass-carriers, IV. ii. 31. z. (a) The flesh of grass-fed animals, VI. i. 7. 8.

A pig-pen, VIL ii. 26. a.

(1) If, I. i. 1. 4; 7. so; ii. 14, et al., sage.
(a) Improper, without some apparent cause, VI. i. 10. s; ii. 6. 6.

(I) Aa, such as; to be as (i.e. like, and sometimes equal to), I. i. 7. 4, 16, 17, 18, of passion. As if; seconing to be, I. i. 7.6: II. i. 9. I; ii. 2. 5, et al., suspe 宜若…然, 'may rightly be deemed to be so, 'occurs several times. As to, I. i. 7. so; ii. 14. 3: II. ii. 3. 5: VII. ii. 38. I, a, 3, et al., passion. 乃若, IV. ii. 28. 7: VI. i. 6. 5. 不若, 莫若, 豈若…哉, all = is it not the better plan to..., I. ii. 1. 4: IV. i. 7. 4: V. i. 7. 3, 4. 相若, III. i. 4. 17. 辟君, VII. i. 29. (a) If, I. i. 7. 7; ii. 11. 3, et al., suspe. (3) = to conform to virtue, V. i. 4. (4) The name of one of Confucius's disciples, II. i. 2. 25, 28, et al.

To embitter, to be embittered, I. i. 7. sa: VI. if. 15. s.

Surpassing, the first among a thousand, VII. i. 20. 4.

Vigorous-looking, V. ii. 5. 4.

警 茂, luxuriant, III. i. d. 7.

The name of a city of Ch'1, VII. i. 86. z.

Coarse, wild grass, III. i. S. s: VII. ii. Sl. z (N. B.)

This, these, II. ii. 19. r: III. ii. 8. r(4.

To cat, VII. ii. 6.

The name of a rude tribe or State, III. i. 4. 16; ii. 9. 12.

Grass, III. i. 2. 4. 草木-vegetation, III. i. 4.7. 草菜, 200 菜. 草 芥, IV. i. 28. I. 草荠, 200 荠 草 -herbe, VII. ii: 6.

A kind of spurious grain. 莨精 VI. i. 19.

hioang weeds, VI. ii. 7. 2. (a) Wild, ruinously addicted to hunting, I. ii. 4. 6, 7, 8.

在 To come forth and descend to. 益 - to govern, I. i. 7. 16.

(1) A surname, I. ii. 1. 1, 2. (2) The name of a street in the capital of Ch'i, III. ii. 6. 1.

The name of an ancient State, I. ii. 8. 6.

An ancient name for the territory of in the time of Chau, V. i. 7. 2.

A useless plant growing amid corn, and like it. ? Darnel, VII. ii. 87. 12.

E I.q. 严 To die. 酸季, Li. 8. 5;

臭ᄤ

(1) Not; not to be, not to have, i.q. 無, I. i. 5. r; ii. 12. r: II. i. 8. 5; ii. 2. 4, 9, of al., exercisence. Often it = no one, and in this case it generally attracts the object of the following verb to itself, I. i. 7. 3; ii. 12. a: III. i. 1. 10; 2. 27; 7. a: III. i. 8. 14; 4.17, stall, scape. 夏不 and 夏井 are strong affirmations, = there is nothing (or none) but..., I. i. 6. 6: II. i. 1. 8: IV. i. 20; ii. 5, stall. 夏井, see 井. So 夏如, II. i. 4. 2; 7. 4, stal. (2) 子夏, a worthy and thinker of La, VII. i. 26. 3.

禁-grass, plants, V. ii. 7. z.

I.q. . Calamities, IV. i. 8. r.

Vegetables, V. ii. 8. 4.

Grassy marshes. ? Bogs, III. ii. 9. 4.

Pulse, VII. i. 28. 3.

A grassy level, II. i. 2. 28.

(r) Fields lying fallow; commons, IV. i. 14. 3. (a) A surname, VII. ii. 88. s.

Buds; to bud, VI. i. 8. 1; 9. 2.

The 4th tone. A surname, VI. ii. 6. 5.

(r) Ten thousand, I. i. 1. 4; ii. 9. s; 10. s, 4: II. i. 1. 13; 2. 4, 7; ii. 10. 9, 5: III. i. 4. 18; ii. 10. 5: VI. i. 10. 7; ii. 10. 3. In several of these examples, the phrase is $\frac{15}{36}$$\sqrt{10}$$\sqrt{10}$$ applicable properly only to the royal domain, but used pretentiously of the great fiefs.

VII. i. 4. 1. (a) A surname.

III. ii. 5. 1: V. i. 1. 1, a, et al., sage.

To descend, 但 落-to decease, V. i. 4. r.

(1) To be manifested, III. ii. 9. 9. (a) To know elearly, VII. i. 5.

The name of an ancient State. 真 and 葛伯, I. ii. 8. x; 11. s: III. ii. 5. a, 4. 蒸丘, the name of a place, VL ii. 7. 3.

祚 To bury, inter, II. ii. 7. z: III. i. 2. a, teang 5; 5. a, 4.

(z) To wear on the head, IV. ii. 25. r.
(a) A name. 逢蒙, IV. ii. 24. r; 咸 丘蒙, V. i. 4. r, 2.

(r) All, 蒸 民, VI. i. 6.8. (a) Lq. 烝, to steam, III. ii. 7. a.

(r) To cover, V. i. 2. 3. (a) A particle, continuative and sometimes illative, I. i. 7. 17; ii. 4. 9: III. i. 5. 4: V. ii. 8. 4; 6. 4. The name of a place, II. ii. 6. 1: III. ii. 10. 5.

Five times, fivefold, III. i. 4. 18: VI. i. 6. 7.

The name of a State, VII. ii. 18.

To obscure, cloud over, keep in the shade, II. i. 2. 17: VI. i. 15: 2.

堯者, fuel-gatherers, L ii. 2. a.

A straw-basket, VI. i. 7. 4.

蓋は徒は祭は蔵は乾は青は隣の無は

Great, 高高子, how vast! IIL i

Overgrown with weeds. 光葉, ***

Thin. = mean, shabby, V. ii. 1. 3: VII. i. 44. r; ii. 15. r. = slight, IV. ii. 24. r. = a spare simplicity, III. i. 5. a. = to make light, I. i. 5. 3: VII. i. 28. r.

(r) The name of a State, I, ii. 14. r: II. ii. 8. r, 4. (s) A surname, III. ii. 6. s.

To present, to introduce, V. i. 5. 5, 6; 6. 1, 2.

(r) Firewood, I. i. 7. ro: VI. i. 18. 1.

- 'a little sickness,' II.
ii. 2. 3. (a) Grass, plants, IV. ii. 21. 1.

The death of a prince, III. i. 2. 1, 4

姚明《玉》蛇3 蜒3 ■

40

行

= mutual dependence, a borrowing of services, III. i. 8. 6.

To lay up, to deposit, I. i. 7. 18: II. i. 5. 2: V. i. 8. 2.

To despise, VII. ii. 84. r.

I.q. 藥. 樹藝, to cultivate, III.i.

Physic, III. i. 1. 5.

To revive, L ii. 11. 2.

A kind of basket, III. i. 5. 4.

THE 141er RADICAL, P.

(1) A tiger, III. ii. 9. 6: VII. ii. 22. 2. (2) A name, III. i. 2. 5.

To oppress, tyranniae over; oppressive, L. ii. 4. 6; 11. 3: II. i. 1. 11: III. i. 8. 7.

Empty, VII. ii. 12. 1. Used adverbially, VII. i. 87. 3.

A name or mark. == argument,

The 1st tone. To cry out. 文文 油, V. i. l. 1, 2.

The name of a State, V. i. 9. 2.

THE 148m RADICAL, 由.

呐-峡 abbreviated. A gnat, III. 5. 4.

An earthworm, III. ii. 10. 2, 3, 6.

Interchanged with . Early in the morning, IV. ii, 83, c.

A snake, III. ii. 9. 3. 4.

A surname, II. ii. 5. 1, 2, 3. But the dictionary does not mention the character as such.

Dung-worms, III. ii. 10. r.

A fly, III. i. & 4.

An insect that eats through wood.

—the appearance of being worn away,
VII. ii. 22, 2.

The silkworm. To keep silkworms, III. ii. 8, 3. To neurish silkworms on, VII. i. 22, 2.

The wild tribes of the South, III. i. 4. 14.

THE 148RD RADICAL,

Blood, VL ii. 7. 3: VII. ii. 8. 3.

THE 144TH RADICAL, 17.

(I) To go; to set out; to proceed, I. ii. 4.6: II. 1. 1. 12, et al., saeps. To make to go, to lead, VI. i. 2. 3; ii. 14. 2. To advance, in contrast with II., 'to stop,' I. ii. 16. 3. 一片, rain-pools, II. i. 2. st. 种行, to assist on the journey, or expedition, II. ii. 6. 1. (a) To do, perform; to carry out, to practise; to be practised, carried out, I. i. 4. 5; 7. 9, 23; ii. 5. 2, 4; 9. 1, et al., saeps. This meaning is kindred to the above, and derived from it. The sesy regulates the conduct. 行道, 'to carry out principles,' often occurs, but 行道之人, VI. i. 10. 6, is literally 'a tramper.' Observe the two meanings in IV. ii. 19. 2 — Observe also 行, 梯, VI. ii. 18. 2; 行车, IV. ii. 1. 3, and II. i. 1. 3; 與有行, V. i. 9. 3; 足以行矣, 而不行, and 行词, V. ii. 4. 6, 7. (a) A name, III. i. 4. 1, 3.—IV. ii. 81. 1.

The 4th tone. Actions, conduct;—
atways as a noun, I. ii. 4. 8: II. i. 2, 18:
III. ii. 9. 5, 7, 13: IV. ii. 11: V. i. 5. 4, 5;
7. 7: VI. ii. 2. 5: VII. i. 16. 1; ii. 88. 2;
87. 6, 9. Medhurst, Williams, and Wade give the pronunciation as here repre-sented; but according to K'ang-hat's dictionary, it should be expressed by

衣

会

The and tone. 公行, a double surname, IV. ii. 27. 1.

A name, III. ii. 8. z.

An art, a contrivance, I. i. 7.8: VI. ii. 16: VII. i. 18. 1; 24. 2. 油二a profession, IL i. 7. 1.

The name of a State, IV. ii. 24. 2; 81. 2: V.i.a.1,2,3. 篇重公, and 孝公, V. ii. 4. 7.

Lq. 模. Crosswise. 漢了-disorderly; perplexed, I. ii. 8. 7: VL ii. 15. 3.

THE 145TH RADICAL, 衣.

Clothes; robes, IL i. 9. 1: III. i. 4. 8; ii. 0. 5: V. ii. 1. z: VII. ii. 6. 衣屋, III. ii. 8. 3: VII. i. 86. a. 衣-graveelothes, I. ii. 16. a.

The 4th tone. To wear, I.i.8.4; 7.s4: III. i. 4. r, 4: VII. i. 22. 2. 衣

To decay, become small and feeble, III. ii. 9. 5, 7: V. i. 6. r: VI. ii. 14. 2, 3.

A shroud, L ii. 16. 2.

To strip up the sleeve, to bare the arm, 祖福, II. i. 9. a: V. ii. 1. g.

Embroidered robes, VII. ii. 6.

The 4th tone. To be covered with. = to be affected by, to receive, IV. i. 1. 2: V. i. 7. 6; ii. 1. a.  - to wear, to have to wear, VIL ii. 6.

The and tone. L.q. 被.被髮, the hair dishevelled, unbound, IV. ii. 29. 5, 6. A name, V. ii. 8. 2.

Naked. 課程, IL i. 9. s: V. ii. 1. 3.—There must be a difference in the meaning of the two terms, but I have not found it indicated.

Abundance of clothes; abundance generally. 有餘裕-'yea, and more,' II. ii. 5. s.

To mend clothes. To mend or repair generally; to supply; to assist, I. ii. 4. 5, ro: III. i. 1. 5; ii. 4. 2: VI. ii. 7. a: VII. i. 18. 8 (N.B.)

Nakud. 裸程, seo 程.

To tie or wrap up, L ii. 5. 4.

To put off the upper garment. 碣,∞4祖.

Narrow. 福小, Li.7.6: IILL& 14

Cloth of hair; coarse cloth, IL i. 2. 4, 7: III. i. d. 1, 4.

福 ist No. 表 Asiang (r) An honorary epithet. 王, Li. 6. r. (a) 子 要, the designation of a disciple of Teling Shan, ILi. 2.7. To take by surprise, IL i. 2. 15 (N.R.)

THE 146TH RADICAL, TE.

(z) The west; on the west; western, L i.5. 1; ii. 5. 5; II. i. 8. 2; VI. i. 2. 1, 2; ii. 6. 5. The fifth, the chief of the West-king Wan, IV. i. 18. 1: VII. i. 22. 1, 3. 西夷, L ii. 11. s: IIL ii. 5. 4: IV. ii. L2: VILiLA3. (2) 西子, a famous beauty, IV. ii. 25. r. (3) Part of the designation of the grandson of Tsang Shan, II. i. 1. 3, 4.

The 1st tone. (1) To seek for, IL ii. 6. 3: VL i. 16. 3. 😎 - to seek an introduction to, V. i. 7. 1, 8; 9. 1. (2) to intercept, II. ii. 2. 3: III. ii. 5. 2: V. i. 8.3.

(1) 反覆, repeatedly; to repeat, ∀. . 9. 1, 4: VI. i. 8. 2. (2) 篇 霜, to ii. 9. 1, 4: VI. i. 8. overturn, V. i. 6. 5. (2) (2) (2) (3)

To cover, overspread, III. i. 1.5.

THE 147m RADICAL, E.

見

To see. Passim. 望見, to see from a distance, VII. i. 86. 1; ii. 22. 2. Very often it = to visit, e.g. I. i. 1. 1: II. ii. 10. a: III.ii.7.1, 2, 3. 見於..., to have an interview with—spoken of a ruler, ▼. It forms the passive voice, III. ii. 7. 4. It forms ti ii. 5. 5: VIL ii. 29.

(1) To appear, to be seen, II. ii. 12 6: III. i. 5. s: VII. i. 21. 4; 2. 11. (2) To become illustrious, VII. i. 9. 6. (3) To have an interview with, an audience of ... I. ii. 1. 1, a; 16. a: II. ii. 4. 4; 6. 1: V. i. 4. 4 (N.B.)

A compass, the instrument so called, IV.i.1. r, 5; 2. r: VI.i. 20. s: VII. ii. 5. r.

To regard, to look at,—often = to consider, II. i. 2. 4, 5: IV. ii. 3. 1; 20. 3, st st. To see, I. ii. 3. 5; 12. x: V. ii. 1. x; 7. 8, of al. mild, to hold a court, to give audience, II. ii. 2. r. to, V. ii. 2. 5.

To see, VI. ii. 6. 5.

託

訟

aung 新

깴骰

許城

武

詩 wú

親

(1) To love, show affection to, I. ii. 12. 3: III. i. 5. 3: IV. i. 11. 1, et al., saeps. Mutual affection, III. i. 2. 2; 3. 18 (); 4. 8. To be loved, IV. i. 4. 1. (s) To be near, to approach, II. ii. 7. 4: VII. ii. 15. To touch one another, IV. i. 12. 1. Intimate, I. ii. 7. 1. (3) In person, personally, V. i. 7. 4: VI. ii. 1. 9. (4) Relatives. Very often it is used of parests, I. i. 1. 5: II. ii. 7. 5: IV. i. 11; 12. 1; 19. 1, 2, 4, et al. But it is also used more widely, VII. i. 84; 45; ii. 7.

A name, III. i. 1. 4.

To understand, apprehend; to make to understand, to instruct, V. i. 7. 5; ii. 1. s.

To view, contemplate; to discern, II. i. 2, 26; 6, 4; ii. 7. 2: III. i. 2, 5; 8, 9; ii. 7. 4: IV. i. 14. 2; 15. 2; ii. 88. 2: V. i. 8. 4: VII. i. 24. 1, 2. To make a visit of inspection, I. ii. 4. 4.

THE 149rs RADICAL, 角.

(1) A horn, VII. ii. 4. 5. (2) 角招, the name of a piece of music, I. ii. 4. 10.

To remove, II. ii. 9. 2 (N.B.): V. i. 1. 4. To relieve, to unloose, II. i. 1. 13.

death, I. i. 7. 4, 6.

See above.

THE 149m RADICAL, 言..

A word, words; a saying, I. ii. 8. 4; 5. 4, et passem. To speak, say; to speak of, I. i. 7. 9, 16; ii. 1. 5; 6. 8, et sagrissime. 言声, VII. ii. 88. a. 言一to mean, meaning, I. i. 7. rs: VI. i. 17. 3. 言一means, VII. ii. 4. 6; but in VII. i. 24. 7 the same phrase—to think anything of the words of others. 言—to cherish, think et, II. ii. 4. 1, et al. This usage is only found in some quotations from the Shih-ching. 言, to have a saying, or to say, sage. But in IV. i. 10. r it—to have speech.

To calculate, V. ii. 5. 4.

To punish; to order to be punished, VI. ii. 7. 2. To put to death, III. ii. 9, 6.

the appearance of being selfconceited, VI. ii. 18. 8.

(x) To instruct, V. i. 6. 5. (s) 伊 訓, the name of a Book in the Shū-ching, V. i. 7. 9. To revile, IV. ii. 88. 1.

To entrust, L ii. 6. 1. = to accept a stated support from, \forall . ii. 6. 1.

To contend, wrangle. 訟獄者, litiganta, V. i. 5. 7; 6. 1.

訴娱, cheerfully, VII, i. 85. 6.

To establish, 股為, III. i. 8. ro. 股外, to institute instruction, VII. ii. 80. a. 股份, to settle in one's mind, IV. ii. 80. 5.

(r) To allow, to accode to, I. i. 7. ro. To promise, II. i. 1. r. (a) A surname, III. i. 4. r, 3, 4, 5, 17, 18.

One-sided, only half the truth, II. i. 2. 17: III. ii. 9. 13.

To try. 嘗說, to try to follow, L i. 7. 19. 試劍, sword-exercise, III. i. 2. 4.

A piece of poetry; an ode. Generally, with reference to some piece of the Shihehing, I. ii. 4. 10: II. i. 4. 3: IV. ii. 31. 1: V. i. 4. 2; ii. 8. 2: VI. i. 6. 8; ii. 8. 1, 2.

The and Fig. are the forms of quotation from the Shih-ching. Passin.

Deceitful; deceitfully, III. ii. 1. 4.

(1) Particulars, V. ii. 2. s: VI. ii. 4...4.
Minutely, IV. ii. 15. r. (2) A name, II.
ii. 11. 3.

To out off, to put to death, L ii. 8. 3; 12. 1: III. ii. 9. 6: V. i. 8. 2; 7. 9; ii. 4. 4, 5: VL ii. 7. 3.

多音 and 太音 are the names of Books in the Shū-ching, L.i. 2.4.—III. ii, 5, 6: V. 1, 5, 8.

To tell, speak to about ..., I. i. 6. 2; 7. rr; ii. 1. r, 2; II. ii. 11. 3; 12. r: VII. i. 9. r.

To delude, III. ii. 9. 9.

To repeat, croon over, VL ii. 2. 5. To relate, IL ii. 4. 4.

To instruct, to teach, VI. i. 9. 3; 90. 2; ii. 16 (教証).

(1) To be sincere; sincerity, IV. i. 12.
1, 2 (N.B.), 3: VII. i. 4. 2. (2) Really, truly, indeed, I. i. 6. 6; 7. 6, 7, 12: II. i.
1. 2; 8. 2; ii. 12. 7: III. i. 2. 5; 4. 3; 5.
4: V. i. 2. 4; 4. 1.

To speak of, discuss, III. ii. 9. ro (我 者): IV. ii. 15. 我 解, II. i. 2. r8. To explain, explanation, V. i. 4. s; ii. 4. 5. Speakings, =doctrines, III. ii. 9. 5, 7, 9, 13.

To counsel, V. i. 7. 6: VI. ii. 4. 3, 4, 5, 6: VII. ii. 84. I.

Lq. 悦. To be pleased, L i. 7. 9; ii.
4. 10 (傳 設, see 傳).

Who, whom, L i. 5. 5; 6. 6; II. i. 4. 3; ii. 18. 5; III. ii. 6. a, et al.

ham cally, V. i. 5. 3.

To talk with, converse, IV. ii. 88. r: VI. ii. 8. a.

To discuss, to consider, V. ii. 8. a.

To request, to beg; to beg leave. Sometimes, especially in the first person, it is merely a polite way of expressing a purpose, I. i. 8. a; 5. 6; 7. rg, rg; ii. 1. 5; 8. 5; 16. 3; 16. r, st el., seeps. Observe II. ii. 10. a; 11. 3: V. ii. 4. 3.

映 To flatter,面映之人, sycophants, pg VI. ii. 18. 8.

To reprove, to remonstrate; admonitions. It is often followed by ..., II. ii. 5. s; 12. 6: IV. ii. 8. 9, 4: V. i. 9. s, 8; ii. 9. 1, 4.

To avoid, to conceal, VII. ii. 86. a.

A common saying, L ii. 4. 5.

A reply, affirmative and immediate, I. ii. 16. z: II. ii. 2. 5.

(1) Not merely one; all, I. i. 7. 16; ii. 7. 4, 5: IL. ii. 10. 3. (2) A preposition. In, from, on, to, &c., I. i. 7. 12; ii. 7. 5, et el., saspissime. (3) As an interrogative, generally, 第二二、Yet once we have the 平 expressed, V. i. 8. 1; and 第 remains— , which it is in II. ii. 13. 4, where there is no interrogation, I. i. 7. 4; ii. 1. 2; 2. 1; 5. 1 (N.B.); 8. 1, et al., saspissime. (4) 第 侯, see 侯, (5) 第 》 , the name of a place, IV. ii. 1. 1.

To consult, take counsel, I. ii. 11. 1, 4. A counsel, a plan, I. ii. 18. a. Counselling, II. ii. 2. 7.

(1) To address, to say to, I. ii. 5. 1; 6. 1; 10. 2: II. i. 2. 7, 16; ii. 4. 1; 5. 1; 10. 3, st al., saspissime. To tell to, to inform, III. ii. 1. 4. (2) To say; to speak of, I. i.

suppose, III. i. 6. 2, 6, et al., sage. | to be called, I. i. 2, 3; ii. 4. 7; 8. 3: VIII. ii. 87. 28, 4, 5, 8, et passion. Observe | iii. 87. 29. 11. i. 2, 2; II. i. 2, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8. Sometimes, where | iii. 26. 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8. Sometimes, where | iii. 26. 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8. Sometimes, where | iii. 26. 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8. Sometimes, where | iii. 26. 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8. Sometimes, where | iii. 26. 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8. Sometimes, where | iii. 26. 2, 2, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8. Sometimes, where | iii. 2. 10 to can explain the characters without insisting on a peculiar idiom. At other times we can explain them by understanding | before | iii. | but in a multitude of cases we have simply to accept the idiom. | iii. 2, which also is frequent, is different. | iii. 2, 6; VI. i. 7. 8, et al. | iii. 1, 2, 17; III. i. 5, 3; IV. ii. 24. 2, et al. Observe I. ii. 7, r; VI. ii. 1. 6.

To plan; plans, III. ii. 9. 6: V.i. 2.3.

manner, VI. ii. 6. 5. The sing (active and neuter), V. i. 5. 6; 6. r.

To give careful attention to, L i. S. 4; 7. s4.

To detest, V. ii. 4. 4.

To inspect. 機而不征, Lii. 5. 8: II, i. 5. 8.

To know, I. i. 7. 4; ii. 7. a: II. ii. 2. r, s; 10. a; 12. r: V. i. 2. s; 4. r; ii. 6. 4: VI. i. 4. s; 10. 7, 8; ii. 6. 5, 6. To understand, VI. ii. 8. 4.

To warn, III. ii. 9. 3.

To compare, 管則..., V. il 1.7.

To discuss, indulge in discussions, III. ii. 9. 9.

Praise, IV. i. 21: VI. i. 17. 3.

To read, V. ii. 8. 2.

To change; to be changed, I. ii. 1. s; 11. s: II. i. 1. 8; ii. 14. s: III. i. 4. rs, r6; ii. 5. 4: V. ii. 9. s: VI. ii. 6. 5; 9. 3: VII. i. 7. s(-versatile); 41. s; ii. 14. 3. 4.

To calumniate, VI. ii. 18, 8. To revile, I. ii. 4, 6,

(1) An enemy, IV. ii. 8. 1, 4. (2) 15. to avenge, III. ii. 5. 3. (3) In a name, V. i. 8. a.—The character is also written

(z) To reprimand; reproof, VI. ii. 7.2. (a)
To yield, to decline, VII. ii. 11.
modesty and complaisance, II. i. 6. 4, 5.

THE 160TH RADICAL, A. valley, III. i. 4. 15.

A mountain-stream; a river, II. ii. 1. 4.

THE 151st RADICAL, 豆.

A wooden vessel, or dish, 豆羹, VL. i. 10. 6: VII. i. 84; ii. 11.

How. Passin. It is generally followed by Etc., at the end of the sentence; e.g. I. i. 2. 4; 6. r6; ii. 10. 4.

THE 15th RADICAL, 承.

承 The swine, VII. i. 16. 承交之, ski to treat one as a pig, VII. i. 87. z.

A young pig, I. i. 3. 4; 7. 24: III. ii. 7. 3: VII. ii. 26. 2.

(1) The elephant, III. ii. 9. 6. (2) To resemble, to make to resemble, I. i. 4. 6. (3) The name of Shun's brother, V. i. 2. 3; 8. 1, 2, 3: VI. i. 6. 3.

Grain-fed animals, VI. i. 7. 8.

The first among a hundred, 豪 傑之士, III. i. 4. ra: VII. i. 10.

(r) To be pleased, satisfied, II. ii. 18. r, 5: IV. i. 28. a. (a) To make an excursion, I. ii. 4. 5.

THE 158m RADICAL, 3.

利·利納新 親語

(z) The leopard, III. ii. 9. 6. (a) A name, VI. ii. 6. 5.

A kind of wolf, 豺狼, IV. i. 17. r.

(z) A general name for the barbarous tribes of the north, VI. ii. 10. 2, 4, 7. (s) A surname, VII. ii. 19. z.

Aspect, demeanour, IV. i. 16. 72 35. a polite demeanour, VI. ii. 14. s, 3; used verbally, IV. ii. 80. r.

THE 154rm RADICAL, 貝. An honorary epithet, V. i. 8. 3.

(1) To carry on the back, I. i. 8. 4; 7. 24: III. i. 4. 2: IV. ii. 81 (N.R.): VII. i. 85. 6. (2) To take refuge in, VII. ii. 22. a. (2) , the name of a place, IV. ii. 1. z.

VIL ii. 12. 3. 貨財, IV. i. 1. 9; ii. 80. 2. (2) Lq. 材, talents, VIL i 40. 3.

(r) To levy a tax, III. i. 8. 6, 7. 頁 形, revenues, V. i. 8. g. (s) 子頁, the designation of one of Confucius's disciples, II. i. 2. 18, 19, 25, 27: III. i. 4. 13.

Poverty, I. ii. 16. s: III. ii. 2. g: V. ii. 5. 1, 2, 3.

I. q. (f). To be accustomed, III. ii.

To reprove, to be reproved, IV. i. 22.
The responsibility of reproving, II. ii. 5.
5. To urge to—implying more or less of reproof, IV. i. 1; 18. 4; ii. 80. 3, 4.

Double, III. i. 4. 17. Double-minded, VII. i. 1. 3. — supplemental, V. ii. 8. 5.

The name of a city and small territory, p 要惠公, V. ii. & 3.

(r) Noble, being in an honourable condition; honour, V. i. 1. 4; 8. 2; ii. 8. r; 9. r: VI. i. 17. r, 2: VII. i. 48. 2; ii. 14. r (N.R.) , II. ii. 10. 6: III. ii. 2. 3: IV. ii. 58. r, 2. , III. ii. 10. 6: IV. ii. 14. 2. (2) To esteem noble, to give honour to, II. i. 4. 2: III. i. 5. 2: V. ii. 8. 6, et al.

To diminish, degrade, VI. ii. 7. a.

To borrow, III. i. S. 7. The dictionary, however, says that the character, meaning to borrow, should be read fi (old 4th tone), and that, pronounced fdi, it means to lend.

(I) 克 寅-life-guarda, VII. ii. 4. 4. (2) A name, II. i. 2. a.

To rely on, IV. ii. 14. z.

貶

賊

A stationary trafficker or merchant, L. i. 7. 18.

(1) A price, III. i. 4. 17, 18. (2) A name, II. ii. 9. s.

To injure, do violence to; to play the thief with, II. i. 6. 6: IV. i. 2. 2; ii. 80. 4: VI. i. 1: 2: VII. i. 26. 4. Seditions; villainous, III. ii. 9. rr: IV. i. 1. 9. An injurer,—may be rendered by 'a thief,' IV. i. 1. 13: VI. ii. 9. r: VII. ii. 87. 8, re, rr.

A guest, V. ii. 8. 5: VII. ii. 94. a. 資施, VI. ii. 7. 3.

距 ch's

路

踽

圀 ci

ť do

贱

(z) Admirable, possessed of talents and virtue; to be talented and virtuous; the possession of talents and virtue. Passim. E.g. I. ii. 7. 3, 4; 16. z: II. i. 4. z; 5. z; 9. s. As a verb, = to praise, IV. ii. 29. z. (a) To surpass, be superior, III. i. 1. z; 2. 6, a.

To exact, IV. i. 14. r. To pay a tax,

A pledge, an introductory present, III. ii. 8. 1, 4: V. ii. 7. 1.

To depend on, = be good, VI. i. 7. r.

To avail for, be adequate to, L i. 7. ss:

A gift to a traveller for the expenses of his journey, II. ii. 3. 3.

THE 155m RADICAL, 赤.

赤赤子, an infant, III. i. 5. 3. 赤^{wi}子之心, the child-heart, IV. ii. 12.

報 課款, red and blushingly, IIL

To blaze with anger, L. ii. S. 6.

THE 150m RADICAL, 走.

To run; to run to, I. i. 8. s: IV. i. 9. a.
To gallop, I. ii. 5. 5.
peds, II. i. 2. s6.

To come, L. i. 7. 18.

赴

超级

To arise; to rise, II. i. 2. 17: III. i. 8. 11; ii. 9. 10: IV. ii. 38. 1: VII. i. 26. 1, a. To begin with, II. i. 1. 8. , to be aroused, VII. ii. 15.

To leap over, I. i. 7. II.

The name of a part of Tain, and the clan name of its chief, VI. i. 17. 2. In III. ii. 1. 4, III is, perhaps, 'the officer Chien of Chao.'

To run, to hasten, II. i. 2. 10, 16; ii. 2.
3: VII. ii. 23. 2. 11.
ii. 6. 2.

THE 157rs RADICAL, 足.

(1) The foot, IV. i. 8. 2, 3; ii. 2. 1: VI.
i. 7. 4. (2) To be sufficient; enough, I. i.
7. 5, 10, 12, 16, 21, 22; et passion. May sometimes be conveniently translated by 'to be able,' e.g. VII. i. 22. 2.
abundant, VII. i. 23. 3.

L. to satiste one's self, IV. ii. 83. 1. As a verb, T. do not count me sufficient to . . . , III. i. 2. 4.

The name of a famous robber, 🏖 筑.

To resist, to keep at, or banish to, a distance, III. ii. 9. ro, rg, r4: VI. ii. 18. 8. In a name, II. ii. 4. 2, 4.

Foot-prints, III. i. 4. 7.

To cross over; to leap over, I. ii. 15. I: III. ii. 3. 6; 7. 2: IV. ii. 27. 3: VI. ii. 1. 8. To overstap, to exceed, I. ii. 7. 3; 16. I, 2.

(r) The heel, VII. i. 26. s. (s) To come to, III. i. 4. r.

the appearance of walking alone, i.e. of acting peculiarly; unsociable, VII. ii. 37. 8.

The foot-prints of animals, III. i. 4, 7,

蹈-to dance, 足之蹈之, IV.

蹊蘭, foot-paths, VIL il. 21. r.

Urged, embarrassed, L. ii. 1.6: V. i. 4. L.

A shoe or sandal of straw, VII. i. 85. 6.

Lq. 35, VIL i 25, 2, 3.

To tread on. (adverb) = having trampled on, VI. ii. 10. 6.

Followed by — uneasy-like, II. i.

1. 3. The uneasiness would be indicated by some motions of the feet.

(z) To stumble, IL i. 2. ro. (a) To overturn, IV. i. 1. ro. In the tonal notes on this latter passage, we are told to read the character keet; but in the dictionary the meaning, to overturn, is given under the other pronunciation.

To leap, I. i. 2. 3: VIL i. 41. 3. To make to leap, VL i. 2. 3.

THE 158m RADICAL, 身.

(r) The body, VI. i. 10. 8; 14. r; ii. 18. a. (a) One's person, one's self, I. i. 1. 4; 5. r; ii. 16. s; 16. r: III. i. 2. 3; 4. 6; ii. 9. 5; 10. 4, et al., saspissime.

Solf-examination; and property property, self-examination; and property prop

The body, VII. ii. 29. 1.

THE 159m RADICAL, 直.

Wheel-ruts, VII. ii. 22. 3.

Lq. 7. Eight cubits, VII. i. 29.

The name of Mencius, I. ii. 16, 2: V. ii. 2, 1: VI. ii. 4, 4.

To struggle. V. ii. 4. 5, 6. But the meaning is not well understood.

(z) To carry with one in the same carriage, III. ii. 8. z, 4. (a) To begin, III. ii. 5. 4: V. i. 7. 9. (3) A particle, — [1], IV. i. 9. 6. (4) To serve, perform duties to, V. i. 4. 4. (5) [1], to write articles of agreement, and place them on the victim of the covenant, VI. ii. 7. 3.

The grd tone, A year, V. i. 4. 1; 5. 7.

To support, to aid, I. i. 7. zg: IL i. 1. 8 (本 本); ii. 2. 6; 6. r (N.R.): IIL i. 4. 8: VI. ii. 2. a.

(1) Light, I. i. 7. 13: III. i. 4. 17: VI. 11. 12. 2. 3. 4. 17: VI. 11. 12. 3. 3. 4. 2. 3. 4. 2. 3. 4. 3. 3. 4. 3. 3. 4. 3. 3. 4. 3. 3. 4. 3. 3. 4. 3. 3. 4. 3. 3. 4. 3. 3. 4. 3. 3. 4. 3. 3. 4. 3. 3. 4. 3.

m Bright. 光輝, brightly displayed,

(1) The wheel of a carriage, VI. ii. 24. a.
(2) A wheelwright.

(2) A wheelwright.

(3) A wheelwright.

(4) A wheelwright.

(5) A wheelwright.

(6) A wheelwright.

(7) A wheelwright.

A double surname, IV. i. 1. r.

(z) Properly, the bottom or frame of a carriage or waggon. A carriage; a waggon-load, I. i. 7. 10; ii. 16. 1: VI. ii. 1. 6. (a) A carriage-wright; see

(1) To turn over. In the phrase (or 平) 海 起, L ii. 12 s: IL ii.
4. s: III. i. 8. 7. (2) 轉 附, the name of a place, I. ii. 4. 4.

THE 160m RADICAL, 幸.

A name, III. i. 4. 2.

A transgression. 不辜, innocent, II. i. 2. 24.

(I) Lq. (2). Depraved; moral deflection, Li. 7. 20: III. i. 8. 3. (2) I.q. (3) To open up, to bring under cultivation, I. i. 7. 16: II. i. 1. 10: IV. i. 1. 9; 14. 3: VI. ii. 7. 2; 9. I. (3) To remove from the way, IV. ii. 2. 4. (4) A name, III. i. 5. I.

To twist, III. ii. 10. 4. The pronunciation and meaning are taken from the tonal notes and Ohn Hai. The dictionary does not give them.

I.q. 14. To avoid, III. ii. 7. s; 10. 5: IV. i. 18. r: VI. i. 10. a, 3, 4: VII. i. 22. r.

Lq. 管. 辟芜, may be compared to, VII. 1. 29.

To discriminate, VI. i. 10. 7.

VOL. II.

Pр

逝

逝

猫

푈

To dispute, III. ii. 9. 1, 13 : VII. ii. 26. 2.

THE 161se RADICAL, 层.

辰 星辰, the planets and constellach'én tions of the zodiac, IV. il. 26. 3.

To suffer diagrace, L. i. 5. 1: II. i. 4. 1: IV. i. 9. 5. To diagrace, V. i. 7. 7.

(r) Husbandry, I. i. 8. 3. alone, and 大, husbandmen, II. i. 5. 4: III. i. 4. 5, 9; ii. 8. 5; 4. 8: V. ii. 2. 9. (a) 大, an ancient sovereign, the father of husbandry, III. i. 4. r.

THE 169m RADICAL, 完.

To meet, to receive, I. ii. 10. 4; 11. 8: III. ii. 5. 5: VI. ii. 14. s, 3: VII. ii. 28. s.

To go out to meet (as a bridegroom his bride), VI. ii. 1. 3.

Until. 追…未-before, II. i. 4. 3.

To urge, be urgent, III. ii. 7.2.

Alternately, V. ii. 8, 5.

to give a report of office, L.ii. 4. 5: VL ii. 7. s.

Footsteps, traces, IV. ii. 21. r.

(z) Te pursus, follow after, II. ii. 12.5: IV. ii. 24. s: VII. ii. 26. s. (s) To go back upon, VII. ii. 80. s.

The knob, or ring, of a bell, VII. ii.

To retire,—from a place, an interview, office, &c., II. i. 2. se; ii. 5. 5; 14. s: IV. i. 1. rs; ii. 31. r: V. i. 8. s; ii. 1. r: VI. i. 9. s: VII. i. 44. s.

To run away; to run away from, III. i. 4. 7: VII. ì. 85. 6; ii. 26. r. 日逸
-to turn the syes away, when thrust at, II. i. 2. 4.

(r) To oppose, rebel against, IV. i. 7. z. Spoken of water in a state of inundation, III. ii. 9. 3: VI. ii. 11. 4. Unreasonableness, (ii), IV. ii. 88. 4, 5, 6. (a) To meet with the mind, anticipate, V. i. 4. a.

To pursue, chase, VII. ii. 28. s.

(1) Throughout. ——all, IV. ii. 30.
1: VI. i. 9. 3. ——universally acknowledged, III. i. 4.6. (a) To communicate.

1), an intercommunication of the productions of labour, III. ii. 4. 3.

(1) To go away, V.i.2.4. (2) An introductory and continuative particle, IV. i. 7. 6.

To be quick; quickly, rapidly, I. ii. 11.
4: II. i. 1. 12; 2. 22; ii. 12. 4: III. ii. 8.
8: V: ii. 1. 4: VII. i. 44. 2.

To begin, V. i. 7. 9.

To meet with, IV. ii. 14. To anticipate and excite, VI. ii. 7. 4.

A surname, IV. ii. 24. z.

(1) To unite, IV. i. 14. g. (2) iii reckless persoverance in a bad course, I. ii. 4. 6, 7, 8. (2) A name, VI. ii. 5. a.

To advance, go forward, I. i. 7. 19: II.
i. 2. 5, sa, et el., sage. — when ad vanced, i. e. in office, II. i. 9. s: V. ii. 1. 3.
Actively, to advance, bring forward, I. ii.
7. 1, 3. Spoken of the provision of food,
IV. i. 19. 3.

= comfortably, III. i. 4. 8.

To urge, press, V. i. 5. 7.

Evasive, II. i. 2. 17.

A continuative particle. And then, III. i. 8. 9: IV. ii. 8. 4: VI. ii. 8. 3.

(1) To meet, VI. ii. 4. r. 是—to intercept, III. ii. 1. 4. (a) To meet and succeed with, I. ii. 16. 3: II. ii. 12. r, 3: VI. ii. 4. 3. 不相遇, to disagree, IV. ii. 30. g.

To wander; to travel, associate with, L. ii. 6. r: IV. ii. 80. r: VII. i. 9. r; 16. An imperial tour, I. ii. 4. 5. student of, VII. i. 24.

To make to go round, = accomplish easily, I. i. 7. 12: II. i. 1. 8; 6. 2. To go round, make a revolution, I. ii. 10. 4.

The 3rd tone. (1) To go beyond; to exceed; more than, I. i. 7. rs: II. i. 1. ro; 2. s; ii. 18. 4: III. ii. 10. r: IV. ii. 18. 3: ? VI. i. 2. s: VII. i. 11. (s) To err; faults, transgressions, II. i. 8. r; ii. 9. 3, 4: III. ii. 1. 5: IV. i. 1. 4: V. i. 6. s; ii. 9. r, 4: VI. ii. 8. 4; 11. s, 4; 16. s.

The ret tone. To pass by, I.i. 7.4: III.
i. 1. r; 4. 7; 5. 4: IV. ii. 26. r; 29. r: V.
i. 8. 3: VII. i. 18. 3; ii. 88. 7.

To stop, to restrict, L. ii. 8. 6: V. i. 4. 1: VI. ii. 7. 3.

(r) To reach to, II. i. 1. 10; ii. 7. s: III. i. 2 s; 5. 4: V. ii. 2. 4: VII. i. 24. 3. To carry out, to extend, VII. i. 15. 3; 40. 3; ii. 31. (a) To obtain advancement; to be in office, IV. ii. 88. s: VII. i. 9. 4, 5, 6; 19. 3. To find vent, II. i. 6. 7. (3) To be intelligent, VII. i. 18. 2. (4) Universally acknowledged, II. ii. 2. 6.

(1) A road, a path, I. i. 8. 4; 7. 24: III.
i. 4. 7: IV. i. 8. 5: V. i. 9. II: VI. i. 8. 2: VII. i. 41. 2. It occurs everywhere with a moral application, meaning the way or course to be pursued, the path of reason, of principle, of truth, &c. E.g. I. ii. 8. III. i. 2. 3, 14; 4. 3; ii. 1. 4; 2. 4, 6, 7; 14. II. i. 2. 3, 14; 4. 3; iii. 1. 4; 2. 4, 6, 7; 14. II. i. 4. 3, 12, 14, 18; ii. 1. 5; 2. 3; 4. 4; 9. 5, 7, 9, 10.—This usage and the preceding run into each other. The principles underlie the course, and the course follows from the principles.

(3) To speak about, discourse, I. i. 7. 2: III. i. 1. 2; 4. 3: VI. ii. 3. 2.

(1) To oppose, go contrary to, L. i. 3, 3: III. ii. 2. 2. (2) To avoid, escape from, II. i. 4. 6: IV. i. 8. 5. To escape notice, II. i. 2. 27. (3) To be distant from, VI. i. 3. 2.

The 4th tone. To putaway to a distance; to keep away from, I. i. 7. 8: III. ii. 9. 6.

(1) To go to, I. ii. 4. 5: III. i. 4. 17: VI. ii. 7. a. (2) Only, merely, VI. i. 14. 6.

Lq. 20. r. To blame, remonstrate with,

To meet with, V. i. 8. 3.

型運運, slowly, by-and-by, V. ii. 1. 4:

To follow, IV. i. 1. 4. To follow the line or course of, I. ii. 4. 4: VII. i. 85. 6.

To remove, I. ii. 11. g. To remove to, iii. 11. i. 4. r5: IV.ii. 1. r (followed by).

To transfer to, V. i. 1. g. Applied morally; —to move towards, V. i. 6. 5: VII. i. 18. s.

To choose. 選擇, III. i. 8. 18.

It is also pronounced i. (1) To neglect, I. i. 1. 5: VII. ii. 7. a. To be neglected, II. i. 9. s: V. ii. 1. g. (s) To be left; remaining, II. i. 1. 8: V. i. 4. s.

The 4th tone. To make a present, to present, III. ii. 5. a.

To withdraw from, V. i. 5. 7; 6. z. To avoid, escape from, I. ii. 10. 4.

What is near; the near, IV. ii. 20. 4.

THE 168m RADICAL, 品,

A city or town, III. ii. 5. 5. To build a town, I. ii. 18. z.

The name of the ancient seat of the family of Chau, I. ii. 14. s; 15. z.

A State, a country, III. i. 8. 12. Observe 変乳, I. i. 7. 12.

(r) Corrupt, depraved; what is not correct, perversity, I. i. 7. so: II. i. 2. r7: III. i. 3. g; ii. 9. 5, 7, 9, 10, 13: IV. i. 1. 13: VII. ii. 10. r; $7. rg. (s) Read yd.

The borders of a country; to be estuated in the borders, I. ii. 2. 3; 4. 10: VI. i. 8. 1.

(z) An outer wall of fortification. 美 家, see 埃. 郭 alone, IV. ii. 88. r. (a) 唐 郭 - a double surname, II. ii. 2 a.

里到, the name of a place, IV. ii. 1. a.

A post-station. Tax, II. i. 1. 12.

(1) A capital, but used for any principal city, IL ii. 4. 4. (2) 都 君, a name given to Shun, V. i. 2. 9. (3) 子 歌, the designation of an ancient officer, distinguished for his beauty, VI. i. 7. 7. (4) 公 都, a double surname, belonging to a disciple of Meneius, II. ii. 5. 4: III. ii. 9. 1, et al.

The name of the State of which Mencius was a native, I. i. 7. 17; ii. 12. 1: III. i. 2. a, 4: VI. ii. 1. 4; 5. 1, a, 6. 从人, I. i. 7. 17. 都君, VI. ii. 2. 6.

The 4th tone. Lq (i) Towards; Asiang to be directed to, VI ii. 9. r, s. (a) Formerly, in the former case, VI. i. 10. 8.

Mean, niggardly. 鄙夫, V. ii. 1. 3: VII. ii. 15.

The name of a State, IV. ii. 2. I: V. i. chang 2.4: VII. ii. 27. II. 原人, IV. ii. 24. 2.

THE 164TE RADICAL, 西.

To pour out wine into the cup, VI. i. 5. 3.

To agree, be in harmony, with, II. i. 4. 6: IV. i. 4. 3. To be the mate of, II. i. 2. 14.

Wine, spirits, I. ii. 4. 7: III. ii. 5. s: 4 IV. i. 8. 4 (克森 海西); 19. 3, si sl.

To be drunk, IV. i. 8. 4. To be filled, exhilarated, VI. i. 17. g.

Fellows. — of equal extent, II. ii.

A physician, II, ii. 2, 3.

To consecrate by smearing with blood, I. i. 7. 4.

THE 165m RADICAL, A.

(1) 杂色, variegated colours, L. i. 7. 16. (a) To gather. Observe 朵薪之 基, II. ii. 2. 3.

THE 166m RADICAL, 里.

g. (3) A measure of length. At present it is a little more than one-third of an English mile. 方里 is a square a, III. i. 8. 19; but square as are often meant, where the 方 is omitted, I. i. 1. z; 5. 1, z; 7. 17; ii. 2. 1, z, 3; 11. 1, et et., sape. (4) 百里, a double surname, V. i. 2. 1, z; VI. ii. 6. 4; 15. 1.

Heavy, I. i. 7. 13: III. i. 4. 17: VL ii.
1. 6. Applied metaphorically;—heavy consequences, VII. ii. 7. Heavy charge, V. i. 7. 6; ii. 1. a. Great, important; precious, I. ii. 11. 3, 4: VI. ii. 1. 1, 2, 6,7: VII. ii. 82. 3. As a verb,—to make heavy, VI. ii. 10. 7.

Wild country, wilds; the country as opposed to the town, the fields, L. i. 4. 4; 7. 18: IL i. 5. 4: IIL ii. 9. 9: IV. i. 14. s: V. i. 7. s; ii. 7. 1: VII. ii. 92. 2.

F, IV. i. 1. 9: VI. ii. 7. 2.

Countrymen, men rude and uncultivated, III. i. 8. 14, 19: V. i. 4. 1: VII. i. 16. 1.

To measure, II. i. 2. 5.

In a name, VI. ii. 8. 4.

THE 167TH RADICAL,

Motal, metallic, V. ii. 1. 6. In VI. ii. 1. 6 — gold. In IV. ii. 24. 2 — steel. In II. ii. 8. 1 I have translated by silver, but many contend that gold is meant.

An iron boiler, without feet, IIL i. 4. 4.

(z) A weight of thirty catties, I. i. 7. 10: VI. ii. 2. 3. (a) L.q. (b), all equally, VI. i. 15. 1, a.

A hook or clasp, VI. ii. 1.6. In the tent is it is printed by, which, though used, is not correct.

Vigorously, with precipitation, VIL i.

The name of a measure, containing sixty-four the (2), or nearly seven hundredweight according to present measures, IL ii. 10. 3: III. ii. 10. 5: VI. i. 10. 7.—See a note on the Life of Mencius.

氨基, a hoe, II. i. 1. 9.

A name, V. ii. 2. 1.

A weight, variously estimated at twenty, twenty-four, and thirty task, or Chinese ounces, I. ii. 9. s: II. ii. 8. r.

朋 yon

阨

件ching

防 fang

闻

附 lAn

433 A

A bell, I. i. 7. 4; ii. 1. 6, 7.

Iron. an iron share, III. i. 4. 4.

= a mirror; or a beacon, IV. i. 2. 5. It is more commonly written ...

To melt. __to infuse, VI. i. 6. 7.

To bore, III. ii. 8. 6.

To chisel, or bore. = to dig, I. ii. 18. a. Used metaphorically, IV. ii. 26. 2.

THE 168m RADICAL, 長.

and tone. (1) Lorig; length, I. i. 7. 13:
III. i. 1. 5; 4. 17. Tall, VI. ii. 2. 2. (2)
To excel, II. i. 2. 11. (3) A surname, V.
i. 1. 2; ii. 8. 3.

THE 169TH RADICAL,

To shut, III. ii. 7. s: IV. ii. 29. 7: V. ii. 7. 8. To repress, IV. i. 1. 13.

(1) To be grieved, II. i. 2. 16. (2) Appears in a quotation from the Shū-ching for , violent, reckless, V. ii. 4. 4. (3) The surname of one of Confucius's disciples, II. i. 2. 18, 20.

= to defend, III. ii. 9. ro.

閒順, to be at leisure, IL i. 4. 2, 4.

A space, an interval, II. ii. 18. 3: IV. ii. 7. r: VII. ii. 21. . . . 之間, the space between, I. i. 6. 6: III. ii. 6. r: IV. i. 18. 4; ii. 18. 3: VII. i. 25. 3. So 次 (or于) . . . 之間, II. i. 2. r3: VI. ii. 16. r:

grd tone. (r) To occupy the space between, I. ii. 18. r. (a) To blame, IV.i. 20.
(3) — 阴, one interval, VII. ii. 7. (4) 得閒, to find an opportunity, VI. ii. 5.
s.—It is more correct to write 閒, and not 圓.

w, eunuch-like, VIL ii. 87. 8.

A frontier gate; a peas, I. ii. 2. 3; 5. 3; II. i. 5. 3; III. ii. 8. 1; V. ii. 5. 3; 6. 3; VII. ii. 8. 1.

To bend a bow, VL il. 8. s.

THE 170m RADICAL, 皇.

Straits; to be in circumstances of distress, V. i. 8. 9. [10] [11], II. i. 9. s: V. ii. 1. 2.

A pit-fall, I. ii. 2. 3.

A raised dyke, an embankment, VI. ii. 7. 3.

An obstruction, a difficult pass, the case, III. ii. 9. 4.

To flatter, II. i. 2, 25.

(1) To be attached to. (1), the name of certain small principalities, V. ii. 2. 4. To join one's self to, III. ii. 5. 5. To add to, VII. i. 11. (a) (1), the name of a place, I. ii. 4. 4.

Mean and low, IV. ii. 29. s.

(1) To send down, to confer,—spoken of Heaven, VI. i. 7. r; ii. 15. a. To produce, I. ii. 8. 7. (a) To descend, come down, I. ii. 11. a: III. ii. 5. 4.

(1) To be dark and cloudy, II. i. 4. g.

(1) A high mound, a height, F b, III. ii. 1. 5: IV. i. 1. 6. (2) b, the name of a place, III. ii. 10. 1, 5, 6.

(1) To set forth, II. ii. 2, 4: IV. i. 1, 13.
(2) A surname, II. ii. 8, 1; 10, 4: VI. ii.
14, 1; VII. ii. 28, 1.—III. ii. 1, 1, .—II. ii.
9, 2.—III. ii. 10, 1, 2, 3, 5, 6: VII. i. 84,
1.—III. ii. 4, 2, 3, 12. (3) The name of a State, VII. ii. 18; 87, 1: V. i. 8, 3.

yū

憙

The marshalling of an army, VIL ii. 4. 1.

(z) To make pottery, II. i. 8. 4: VI. ii. 10. 3, 6. A potter, III. i. 4. 5. (2)

9: VIL i. 85. r; ii. 88. r.

To fall into a pts. 2 -to be involved, to be sunk, I. i. 7. so: IL i. 2. z7: III. i. 8. g: IV. i. 9. 5. Used actively,—2 L. i. 6. 5: VI. i. 7. z.

r: VI. ii. 5. 1, s, 6.

(r) The sun, III. i. 4. rg. (s) A surname, III. i. 8. 5; ii. 7. g. (s) (s) the name of a place, VI. ii. 8. 3.

A corner, III. ii. 9. 6.

Steps, or stairs, leading up to a hall, IV. ii. 27. 3. A ladder, V. i. 2. 3.

To fall down; to let fall, VIL ii. 19. g.

Narrow-minded, IL i. 9. 3.

A crevice, 宍 籣, III. il. 8. 6.

to secure friendship, or procure intercourse, V. ii. 4. 1, 5, reception, V. ii. 4. 7.

Difficult and dangerous positions, II. ii. 1. 4: III. ii. 9. 4.

(2) To conceal, II. i. 9. 2: V. ii. 1. 3.
(2) To be pained by, sympathise with, I. i. 7. 7.
(3) To lean upon, II. ii. 6. 3, 4, 5: VI. i. 6. 7.
(3) To lean upon, II. ii. 11. a. In this meaning, it ought to be read in the grd tone.

THE 17200 RADICAL, 隹.

To collect; to be collected, II. i. 2. 15:
IV. ii. 18. 3. Altogether, I. i. 7. 17. 集大成, a complete concert, V. ii. 1. 6.

Pheasants. 维者, pheasant-catchers, Lii. 9. s.

Though. Passim. Sometimes, especially when no verb is expressed, we may translate conveniently by even, even in the case of. E. g. II. i. 2. 7; 4. 2: III. i. 3. 9.

A chicken. But — L ME is under-

To go away from, III. ii. 4.5. But the character may be read in the same tone as above.

To be difficult; to find it difficult; what is difficult, IL i. 1. 8; 2. a, rs: IIL i. 4. ro; ii. 8. 6: IV. i. 1. rg; 6; 11: V. i. 2. 4: VI. ii. 2. 7: VIL i. 24. r.

The 4th tone. To dispute, IV. ii. 28.6.

THE 178m RADICAL, TO.

Rain, I. i. 6. 6; ii. 11. s: II. i. 4. g: III. ii. 5. 4: IV. ii. 18. g: VL i. 7. s; 8. 1: VII. i. 40. a.

The 4th tone. To rain upon, III.i.S.9.

(1) Snow, VI. i. 8. a. (2) 雪富, the name of a palace, I. ii. 4. z.

(1) Clouds, I. i. 6. 6; ii. 11. 2. (2) , 'The Milky Way,' the name of an ode in the Shih-ching, V. i. 4. 2.

A rainbow, L ii. 11. 2.

A name, III. il. $. z.

Dew. p p, ∀L i. 7. 2; 8. 1.

(1) 集广, the name of a place, II. ii. 5. r. (2) 集 条, 整 沼, 集 简, the names of king Wän's tower, pond, and park, I.i. 2. 3. The may be variously translated. (3) An honorary epithet, V. ii. 4. 7.

THE 175TH RADICAL, J.

Passim. (r) No; not; not to be. Very often it—it is not, it is not that; if not, if there be not. Rg. I. i. 8. 5; 7. 7, 10, 11; ii. 1. 2; 7. 1; 18. 2; 14. 2; 15. 2; 16. 2; 16. 2; 17. 11; ii. 1. 2. 15, 16, 22; ii. 2. 4. 莫非, 無非 are all strong affirma-tions. B.g. I. ii. 4. 5: II. i. 1. 8; 8. 4: VI. ii. 8. 6: VII. i. 2. 1. (a) To be contrary to; what is contrary to. R.g. IV. ii. 6. 1; 28. 7: V. i. 2. 4. (3) To be wrong; what is wrong. E.g. I. ii. 4. 2: II. ii. 8. 1: IV. i. 20. (4) To blame; to disown, I. ii. 4. 1, a: III. i. 4. 14: IV. i. 1. 12; 10. 1: VII. ii. 87. 11. ... VII. ii. 87. 11. ... Observe II. i. 2. 22: V. ii. 1. a; and VII. ii. 87. 11.

屝

曲

Not, IV. i. 7. 5: V. i. 4. 2.

THE 176TH RADICAL,

The face, II. ii. 12. 6: III. i. 2. 4; 5. 4, st al. 面读之人, sycophants, VI. ii. 12. 8. 两面, on, or towards, the south, I. ii. 11. a: III. ii. 5. 4: VII. ii. 4. 3. So 页面; but 南面, in V. i. 4. 1, is the face to the south, the position of a sovereign giving audience. 北面, V. i. 4. 1; ii. 6. 4, is the position of a minister.

THE 177m RADICAL, İ.

Skins freed from the hair, but not tanned. Still it is used as = leather. 苗山, chariots of war, VII. ii. 4. 4. The buff-coat, helmet, and other armour of defence, 兵苗, II. ii. 1. 3, 4.

THE 178m RADICAL, 章.

The name of a powerful family in Tain, VII. i. 11.

THE 180m RADICAL, 音.

A note in music. 五音, IV. i. 1. 1, 5.
The sound or notes of musical instruments, I. ii. 1. 6, 7. 八音, V. i. 4. 1.
整音,—spoken of instruments and the voice, I. i. 7. 16: VI. ii. 18. 8.

THE 181sr RADICAL, 頁.
The top of the head, VII. i. 26. s.

(1) To obey; to accord with; obedience; agreeably to reason, submissively, II. ii. 1. 4, 5: III. ii. 2. s: IV. i. 7. 1; 16: VI. i. 1. s: VII. i. 2. r; 81. r. To persist in, II. ii. 9. 4. Observe IV. i. 28. r, and V. i. 1. 3, 4. (s) A name, V. ii. 8. 3.

斯須, a brief season, VI. i. 5. 4.

(1) Interchanged with ... To repeat, eroon over, V. ii. 8. a. (2) ... (2), the name of a Book of the Shih-ching, III. i. 4. 16.

頒 頒白者, gray-haired people, L i. pan 8. 4; 7. 24. See the dictionary on the mange.

Obstinate. It seems, however, to be used in the sense of corrept, V. ii. 1. r: VII. ii. 15.

The neek, I. i. 6. 6.

The root of the nose. 是類-to knit the brows, I. ii. 1. 6.

Used for . A means to turn p'in up the nose, and generally to look dissatisfied, III. ii. 10. 5.

模類, the ornamental wood-work under the saves of public buildings, VII. it. 84. s.

To wish, desire, L i. 4. 1; 5. 1; 7. 19: II. i. 1. 4; 2. 22; 5. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5; ii. 7. 1; 10. 2: III. i. 4. 1, 2; 5. 1; ii. 2. 6: VI. i. 17. 3; ii. 2. 6; 4. 4.

The forehead, III. i. 5. 4: VI. i. 2. s.

面洞, to overturn, V. i. 6. 5.

A class, sort; kinds, L. i. 7. 11: IL i. 2. 28: III. ii. 3. 6; 10. 6: V. ii. 4. 5: VI. i. 7. 3, 5; 12. 2: VII. ii. 31. 4.

Lq. 歷. 頻順 - 類.

To look round, I. i. 2. 1; ii. 6. 3: IV. ii. 88. 1. To regard, think of, have reference to, IV. ii. 80. s; V. i. 7. s; VII. ii. 87. o.

To be distinguished, III. ii. 2. 6: IV. ii. 88. I. To make illustrious, II. i. 1. 5: V. i. 9. 3.

THE 182nd RADICAL,

(r) The wind, III. i. 2. 4. To expose one's self to the wind, II. ii. 2. 1. (s) Manners; character,—with the idea of influence implied, II. i. 1. 8: V. ii. 1. 1, 3: VII. i. 15. (3) III. the name of an ode in the Shih-ching, VI. ii. 3. 3, 4.

THE 188md RADICAL, 飛

(z) To fly. 飛鳥, birds, IL i. 26.
(a) 飛脹, a supporter of the tyrant Châu, III. ii. 9. 6.

THE 184th RADICAL, A.

(r) To eat; to consume, devour; to be consumed, I. i. 8. 3, 4, 5; 4. 4, 5; 7. 8, 24, et passim.

餌

III. i. 4. r. not unfrequently has this meaning, — to get a living, to support life. (a) Vianda, food to eat, III. ii. 4. 4, 5; 9. 5; V. ii. 4. 6 (N.B.): VII. ii. 84. s. (3) An eclipse, II. ii. 9. 4.

(1) Rise cooked; food generally, I. i. 8. 5; ii. 10. 4; 11. 3, of al. (a) To feed, to support; (b) 10. ..., to be supported by, III. i. 4. 6; ii. 4. 4, of al., sage. To feed cattle, V. i. 9. 1, 3.

f A kind of thick congree. 舒弗, III.

The evening meal. 7, III. i. 4.
3: VI. ii. 10. 4. In the first instance the characters have a verbal force.

To drink; drink, I. ii. 4. 6: II. i. 1. 11: III. ii. 10. 3, et al., saspe.

To est, VII. ii. 6. 10 10, to est im-

To eat to the full, to be filled; to the full, L i. 7. sr: III. i. 4. 8: V. ii. 8. 4: VII. i. 22. 3. ? Actively, VI. i. 17. 3.

To gain some end with, VII. ii. 31. 4. In the dictionary it is explained by 'to take with a hook,' - to beguile.

To carry provisions to the labourers in height the fields; provision-carriers, III. ii.5. s.

To nourish,—spoken generally of persons, the body, the mind, &c. Passiss. To keep cattle, V. i. 9. r. Nurture, VII. i. 36. r.

The 4th tone. To support,—used with reference to the support of parents, scholars, and superiors generally, I. i. 5. 4: III. i. 8. 7, 14, 19; 4. 3 (?), et al., saspe.

To swallow, to eat and drink.  *, to eat the bread of idleness, VII. i. 82. z.

To be famished, II. i. 2. 14, 15. 16, 16. 1 (used actively): VIL i. 22. 3.

To be hungry, to suffer from hunger, (本), VL ii. 14. 4. (本), L i. 5. 4. (本), L i. 8. 5; 4. 4: III. ii. 9. 9. To expose to hunger, VI. ii. 15. 2.

To eat. (25, IV. i. 25.

That which is over; a remnant, the remains, IV. i. 19. 3; ii. 88. 1: V. i. 4. 2. Supernumerary, III. i. 8. 17. The to have enough and to spare; and more, II. ii. 5. 5; 18. 4: III. ii. 4. 3: VL ii. 2. 7: VII. ii. 38. 1, 2, 3, 4.

A lodging-house, IV. i. 24. s: VI. ii. 2. 6: VII. ii. 30. r. To lodge (active); to be lodged, IV. i. 24. s: VII. ii. 30. r.

Dried provisions, L. ii. 5. 4.

To present or send as a gift, IL ii. 8, 1, 3, 4, 5: V. ii. 4. 4; 6. a, 4.

To offer as a gift, i. q. 111. il. 5. s; 7. a; 10. 5: V. i. 2. 4.

To suffer from famine;—interchanged also with 飢, I. ii. 12. s: II. ii. 4. s: VIL i. 22. s(飢); ii. 28. z.

The morning meal. 秦強, ••• 飱.

Generally, to entertain. But - to be entertained by, V. ii. 8. 5.

To get satisfied, to partake plentifully of, IV. ii. 83. r. To be satisfied, L. i. 1. 4.

THE 1857 RADICAL, 首.

首 The head, L ii. 1.6: III. ii. 5. 7: V. ii. shdu 6. 4, 5: VII. ii. 4. 5.

THE 187m RADICAL, 馬.

(I) A horse, horses, I. i. 4. 4; ii. 1. 6, 7; 5. 5; 15. I. 大馬音, to nourish as a dog or a horse, V. ii. 6. 4. (a) 司馬, the master of the horse, but used as a sort of surname, V. i. 8. 3.

(I) A surname, VII. ii. 22. 2. (2) 諸 og 注, the name of a place, IV. ii. 1. I.

To gallop. 脱馬=horsemanship, ch'th III. i. 2. 4. 脱黑, III. ii. 1. 4.

A team of four horses, V. i. 7. a.

The yoking of a carriage, I. ii. 16. τ : II. ii. 2. 5: V. ii. 7. 9.

A name, VL ii. 6. 5.

(r) To drive away, III. ii. 9. 4, 6, 11. (s) To urge, I. i. 7. sr: VII. ii. 1. a. (s) To urge on a horse, 11. ii. 1. 4;

To carry one's self proudly to, IV. ii.

(i) I. q. 数. 题 美加, cheerful oom like, VII. i. 18. I. (a) 题 光, a criminal banished by Shun, V. i. 8. a. (3) A name, II. ii. 6. I. IV. ii. 27. 2.

B To gallep. 聖時, see 聖.

局

THE 189th RADICAL, 骨.

The bones, VL ii. 15. 2.

The body, I. i. 7. 16: II. i. 2. 9: IV. i. 19. 3: VII. i. 36. 1. 四體, the four limbs, II. i. 6. 6: IV. i. 3. 3: VII. i. 21. 4. 大體, 小體, VI. i. 14. 2; 15. 1, 2. — 麓, one member; 具體. all the members, II. i. 2. 20.

THE 189TH RADICAL, 🧸.

(1) High, lofty, II. ii. 1. 3: IV. i. 1. 6, 7; ii. 26. 3: V. ii. 5. 5: VI. ii. 1. 5: VII. i. 41. 1; ii. 84. 2. (2) A surname, II. ii. 12. 3: VII. ii. 31; 22.—VI. ii. 8. 1, 2. (3) A name, V. i. 1. 2. (4) (4) (5), the name of a place, VI. ii. 6. 5.

THE 1907H RADICAL, B.

More correctly written . A name, in IV. i. 17. r: VI. ii. 6. r, 5.

The hair, IV. ii. 29. 6, 7.

THE 191st RADICAL, M.

To fight, to have a brush, I. ii. 12. r.

To quarrel, IV. ii. 29. 5, 6. 期 狼, IV. ii. 80. 2.

THE 198m RADICAL, 高.

the close of the Yin dynasty, IL i. 1. 8:

(I) To sell, V. i. 9. I, g. (2) , the name of a barbarous tribe, L. ii. 3. I.

THE 194m RADICAL, 鬼.

The name of a great family in Tsin, VII. i. 11.

THE 1957H RADICAL, A

VOL. II.

A fish, fish, I. i. 2. 3; 8. 3; 7. 16, 17: IV. i. 9. 3: V. i. 2. 4: VI. i. 10. 1; ii. 15. 1.

(1) The name of a State, I. ii. 12. I; 16. I, 3, et al., easpe. 人, V. ii. 4. 5. 各种人, VI. ii. 6. 3, et al. 种人 occurs in three other places, but without it |

組んは

the 备. 每平公, I. ii. 16. r. (s) 有项, the name of a Book in the Shihching, III. i. 4. 16.

The father of the great Yü, V. i. S. s.

A widower, I. ii. 5. 3.

THE 196TH RADICAL, A.

Birds, L i. 2. 8, 4: II. i. 2. 28: III. i 4. 7; ii. 9. 4.

i. 2. at.

(z) The sound of a bird. (3) (3), see

To beat, cause to sound, IV. i. 14. r.
(a) (b) (c), the name of a place, IV. ii.

The shrike or butcher-bird, III. i. 4. 14.

A wild goose, I. i. 2. I.

Large. Joined with and the, I. i. 2. 1: VI. i. 9. 3.

A goose, III. ii. 10. 5.

The swan, VI. i. 9. g.

The cackling of a goose. 說慕著, III. ii. 10. 5.

福 = glistening, L. i. 2. 3.

A kind of hawk, IV. i. 9. 3.

THE 197TH RADICAL, ...

THE 198m RADICAL, 唐.

The deer, L. i. 2. 1, 3; ii. 2. 3: VII. i. 16.

The female deer, a doe. 摩鹿, L i. 2. 3.

The male of the Ch'llin, a fabulous animal, the chief of all quadrupeds, II. i. 2. 2, 8.

Number, IV. i. 7. 5.

Q q

湿

The female of the Ch'l-lin. See 数

THE 1997x RADICAL, 变.

Wheat; all bearded grain. 类多, and see 数

数 次, barley, VI. i. 7. a.

THE 200rs RADICAL,

Hemp, II. i. 4. 17.

THE 201er RADICAL,

黄 Yellow, III. ii. 10. 3. 黄-yellow kaoang ailka, III. ii. 5. 5.

Black.  E, the black-haired people, V. i. a.

THE 208RD RADICAL, M. A name, II. i. 2. 4, 6.

(1) Property, a village of 500 families.

A, a neighbourhood; neighbours,
II. i. 6. 3; ii. 2. 6: V. i. 9. 3. (2) A party, a school, VII. ii. 87. 1.

THE 205TH RADICAL, II. A name, II. ii. 5. 1, a, 3.

The turtle, I. i. 2. 3; 3. 3.

THE 206TH RADICAL,

A tripod, a boiler with three feet and two ears, I. ii. 16. a. the pot, V. ii. 6. 4, 5. THE 907m RADICAL, 截.

(1) A dram, L i. 8. s; ii. 1. 6, 7: IV.i.
14. I. (a) To strike, to play on, VIL ii.
6. In this sense the character should have , and not , on the right.

THE 210m RADICAL,

To adjust one's thoughts,—in connexion with fasting, II. ii. 11. g: IV. ii. 25. 2. , the appearance of respect and dread, V. i. 4. 4.

The lower edge of a mourning garment, not hemmed, but even and not frayed, III. 1. 2. 2.

THE 211TH RADICAL,

THE 2197E RADICAL, M.

(1) The dragon, III. ii. 9. 3, 4. (a) A surname, III. i. 8. 7: VI. i. 7. 4.

The grd tone, used for in, a mound.

NOTE.

According to the calculation of Châo Ch'i, the Seven Books of Mencius contain in all s61 chapters and 34,685 characters. Teto Hetin, a scholar of the present dynasty, gives, as the result of a careful reckoning, 258 chapters and 35,226 characters. (See 集孝廉孟子正義, on Châo Ch'i's Introduction.)

If there be no omissions in the above Index, the different characters used by Mencius (counting a character for each variation of tone) amount to 2,000, or thereabouts.

In the Analects, the Great Learning, and the Dootrine of the Mean, there are 1,648 different characters.

Altogether the different characters in the Four Books amount to about 2,500, certainly not to 2,600.

END OF VOL. II.

411 31 135

